Fishing can be caught with worms on a bent pin, but custom has made it a violation of the constitution—the Treaty of Ghent, the Monroe Doctrine and the while many states to take a fish without the maximum hocus pocus, correct form perfect co-ordination of hand and eye worth of superfluous equipment.

Etiquette requires that you fish for trout with "flies." A "fly" is a curious bunch of rooster feathers designed by the same devil who makes women's dress ornaments and named by the fiend who digs up new monikers for sleeping cars.

These "flies" are the real pride of the real trout angler's heart. If the trout liked them as well as the fisherman everything would be jake.

The basic idea in trouting is to get a "fly" on the end of a line and cast it so that it will land in the face of some trout with an insatiable appetite for matiress feathers. The truth of the matter is that all sensible trout know that some gaudy member of the Rod and Game Club is due for his Spring casualty.

Nevertheless any joke can be carried too far and after a certain accumulation of arrogance a trout will snap at the darned thing out of resentment. This is what the trout fisherman calls a "strike."

Now and then the hook will become caught in a rock, a floating branch, a submerged twig or the handle of a discarded tooth brush. This is also called a "strike."

There are many strange theories adopted as facts by trout fishermen one of them is that the trout will not bite when the sun is low. A cardinal axiom is that there is no trouting when the watey is warm. Any alibi goes when delivered knee-deep in a brook.

It is all done by mirrors.

If you really want fish it is best to call up the market and order halibut.

No. 10 Downing Street

Number 60, Eaton-square which the Prime Minister, Mr. Baldwin, has bought to relire to when he relinquishes the Premiership after the Coronation, is one of the larger houses in the square. When I say "Mr. Baldwin has bought," it would perhaps be fairer to put it, "Mrs. Baldwin has bought," for Mr. Baldwin, too busy with State affairs to spare time for house-hunting, has left everything to Mrs. Baldwin. He has not even inspected the house. Mrs. Baldwin even agreed the contract with the owner and her husband possession of the house.

The house, which is 120 years old, has recently been modernized and redecorated, and, apart from a few minor alterations to suit the taste of Mrs. Baldwin, the house is practically ready for occupation. It has ten bedrooms, four reception rooms, and several bathrooms. Mrs. Baldwin will no doubt be pleased to see her own furniture again. It has been in store for a long time.

When a British Prime Minister leaves office, as Mr. Baldwin will shortly do, he is assailed by the problem of much relative leisure after intense occupation. No one who has not shouldered them can have any adequate idea of the tremendous burdens of a tenant of No. 10, Downing-street. Every minute of his day is planned out, and even during most of his week-end at Chequers the cares of State follow him relentlessly. Few ex-Prime Ministers can endure the sudden change. They must remain active.

What will Mr. Baldwin do? Whether he will write his reminiscences is not known yet. He has been urged to do so. It could not fail to be a remarkable work.

At least he will not lack for familiar neighbors in Eaton-square. Mr. Neville Chamberlain, Chancellor of the Exchequer, lived in Eaton-square before the Chancellorship moved to No. 11 Downing-street. Sir Thomas Inskip, Minister for the Co-ordination of Defence, lives at No. 10, Eaton-square; Mayor Tryon, the Postmaster General at No. 18; and Colonel Colville, Financial Secretary to the Treasury, at No. 56. Mr. Amery, a former Minister, lives in the square. Perhaps it was the Speaker at the time of the rebuilding of the Houses of Parliament ninety years ago who started a political tradition for Eaton-square. Number 71 was then the Speaker's official residence and temporary official residence and ever since Eaton-square has been more Ministerial and "politician" than any of the others.

TELEPHONE TALKS IN THE WATSON FAMILY

Don and Patsy Watson love to call on their Dad's Aunt Mary. Scarcely a week goes by when they don't drop in at least twice, for stories and cookies. So, on any afternoon, when their mother doesn't worry. She is getting home, their mother does calls up Aunt simply waits till the things that makes the Mary. This is just one of the Watson household. Telephone indispensable to the busy mother. It saves so much anxiety and such a lot of work that Mrs. Watson wouldn't be without it.

The rates for residence telephone service are surprisingly low—only a few cents a day. You really cannot afford to be without a telephone.

Open Ditch at Memorial Park Placed to Alleviate Floods Will Be Refilled for $2,100

Two Large Concrete Culverts Will Also be Constructed

BUY NEW SCALES

Council Forced to Spend $773 as Old Scales Wear Out

In order to remove a dangerous situation and improve the appearance of Memorial Park, the City Council at their regular session on Monday evening, decided to fill in the ditch across the park, which was opened last fall to alleviate a possible spring flood at a cost of $3,100. Two culverts will be constructed each being five feet wide and four feet deep and made of concrete, while the remainder of the ditch will be filled. Alderman Clapp, who introduced the recommendation stated, that it would require two months to complete the work. The park will be seeded down and brought back to its levelness of last fall. In filling the ditch, residents of the district will have less fear for their children for this ditch was being used as a playground and the banks are now too secure.

Many Petitions Received

Alderman Wills explained with the spending of this amount on this project, there would be little else in the way of major projects for the Public Works Department this summer. "We have to economize in all departments to keep the tax rate to the lowest possible figure," said the Alderman. A number of petitions were received by the Council requesting Daylight Saving for the summer months, one of them being one from the Cleaning House Association, one from the Kiwanis and one from the Rotary Club. The petitions all set out the advantages of Daylight Saving with respect to the clerks in stores and the residents having an hour more of sunlight to enjoy but the Council felt, that as the citizens had abandoned no fast time in the last two years the members were unable to grant the request and the various petitions were filed.

Request For Licence Granted

A request for bicklard room licence for Sam Pappas on Front street was granted by the Council, although a largely signed petition was received against the request and also a letter from Annie and Phyllis, owners of a billiard parlor at 201 Front St., setting forth several agreements between the above firm and Mr. Pappas, the Council felt they were not interested in a private quarrel between individuals and would therefore grant the licence requested. Mr. Pappas stated he wished a licence for eight tables.

This agreement was signed in a by-law presented, between the Stephenson Corporation and the Belleville Corporation respecting the maintenance of Franklin Street from Dundas Street to the Stephenson's plant. The Council also sanctioned a deed of agreement between the Corporation and William Arthur Thomas for a piece of property for a change was made in one part of the agreement whereby a house of less value at $3,500 shall be erected on the property within one year. Another agreement was certified between Louise Hurst and the Corporation affecting another piece of property.

Referred Back

A by-law to regulate bread and flour products in the city of Belleville was referred back to the committee for further consideration by Alderman Ireland who stated "that he was of the opinion that the by-law as drafted was covered by The Bread Act of the Province of Ontario. There are probably one or two amendments that we should make to fit conditions in the city", said Ald. Ireland and the matter was considered in committee. The council was unanimous in referring the matter back.

The request of Elliott Brothers, garagemen for permission to erect at the corner of Coleman and Moira Street was referred to the city engineer for his report.

Thanked For Donation

The gargantuan task of moving from their present location to the above mentioned place. A letter was received and read from C. A. Morrison, Treasurer of the George Pepper Fund thanking the council for their splendid donation of $50.00 towards sending the Belleville motorcycle champion to the Isle of Man race in the month of June.

A letter to the council objected to other busses allegedly discharging passengers from places other than at their terminals. The letter was read and considerable charge was also referred to the City Solicitor, Insurance to be carried and the bus to be placed on three buildings at the Tourist Camp. It was learned that buildings were not included in the new insurance schedule was drawn.

Sewer Connection Wanted

Ald. Hyslop asked if there was a connection be given his home to the sanitary sewer on Bowood street. This matter was referred to the City Engineer for a report.

The British Consul Tobacco Company requested permission to place a swing sign on the property of Mr. A. Kellaway, West Bridge Street. This sign is three feet by five feet in area. The council considered that the City Engineer give a report on the matter before it should be discussed and this was carried. The Alderman Harry Greenleaf will be absent.

Bbairman of a Coronation week celebration to be held in this city during the coming summer, the same being sponsored by the Chamber of Association. The funds derived will be used to further this beautifying and construction of a building beside the present scales from from the Government Dock to city limits.

New Scales Purchased

After a letter had been received from the Weights and Measures Department rejecting the scales at the City Dock, on the block Square the council purchased a new set of 10 ton scales from the Fruit Machinery Company at a cost of $777.00, this being the lowest tender. The price of the scales was given at $677.00 with an allowance on the old scales of $40.00 and cost of $100 for installation. The cost will be put in the earliest convenience. Alderman Barlow in speaking to the recommendation stated, that it was almost impossible to have them right. "Repairs can be made and they will test perfectly but in two months time they should be out of alignment again," said the Alderman. The City Engineer told the council, that the scales were already out of date although money is spent on them. The new scales will be set of scales. "They have outlived their usefulness," said the City Engineer, "Apparently there is no use trying to repair them, we have to have them satisfactory", said Ald. Clapp and "I would support the purchase of a new set of scales", said Ald. Harvey agreed, that the scales were absolutely worn out and the report of the committee was adopted.

No Action Taken

Residents of Coleman Street and adjacent thoroughfares appealed against the smoke nuisance in that district, but the council took no action in the matter. A petition from the Agricultural Society for a grant was referred to the committee on estimates without discussion. The petition placed by the Board of Health, "that city properties owned by persons on relief were found unsanitary and requesting the council to put the properties in sanitary condition," was filed and no action taken. Alderman Harry Ward did not give a detailed statement of conditions existing in the locality.

Parking lots at the rear of stores on the south side of Bridge street will be fixed up at the earliest possible moment to relieve the traffic congestion on Front Street, particularly on Saturday night. The Board of Health will get an estimation of work done from the contractors and a report.

Will Change Location

Under the headings of enquiries, Ald. Greenleaf asked if the sweepings from the street could be dumped in some other place than now utilized?" received an affirmative answer from Ald. Clapp, who stated he would try to arrange some other location. The motions of Alderman Alderman Baldree asked for a committee to report on the possibility and cost of constructing a sewer system in Foster Ward. This report will be submitted after a thorough investigation has been made. All members of the council with present except Ald. Laurie Lewis, who was out of the city and Ald. Cliff Barager was in the chair for the committee of the whole.

Intermediate "B" Trophy Won by Belleville Redmen Now on Display in the City

Arrives in Good Shape but Belleville Shield on Upside Down

FIRST TITLE

Belleville Club Affiliated With O. H. A. Since 1899

After 38 years of strenuous and continuous efforts throughout the hockey realm of Ontario, the first O.H.A. trophy ever to rest in the City of Belleville, arrived in a compact box, neatly packed and addressed to Eddie Thomas, 182 Front Street, Belleville, today.

The Intermediate "B" trophy, that goes to the winner of the Ontario Hockey Association annually, is a fine silver trophy with a height of fully 24 inches, including the large ebony base upon which sits, solidly inscribed, the silver cup portion of the trophy. Beautifully inscribed are three shields, indicating the names of the champion hockey club and the year, that particular club won the provincial hockey honors, which are solidly affixed the base of the cup. Whitby and Durham being the proud possessors of the trophy prior to its resting in Belleville. The former club won the cup the first year of its competition, 1934, while Durham turned the trick in 1936.

Belleville, as we all know, won its weeks back, but failed to the awe and astonishment of the management of the Redmen, when the large trophy was unpacked and placed upon exhibition, it was discovered that the shield bearing the name of the current year winner—"Belleville Hockey Club 1937". had been placed up-side-down. Believe it or not folks that small silver plate, upon which is inscribed the name of Belleville, is actually tacked on the O.H.A. intermediate trophy upside down. The question that now confronts Manager Eddie Thomas will be when he return the trophy to the jeweller to have the shield plate placed right-side upwards, or should he assume the responsibility of having the club take possession of it? That's the question today.

Hockey Crests Given

Some weeks ago the members of the Belleville Redmen, 1937 Intermediate O.H.A. champions in the "B" series, received from the hands of President Hill Goodsell and Secretary Billie Hewitt, of the O.H.A., their Belleville hockey crests and O.H.A. medals provided by the Association. The crests here compose the winning team in each respective group of the Association. Also attached to Eddie Thomas' store one may see a large horse shoe hanging on the wall. Now this horse shoe has a history and something of a significance. The horse shoe is of a bright green with green and white ribbons, the colors of the Sutton Seahorses. It was during the Belleville at Sutton game, that an excited fan from Sutton let loose with that self-same green and white bedecked horse shoe and on to the ice, presumably to bring the hometown luck, but Ken Wall, Belleville custodian, whose eagle eye worked miracles for the Redmen last winter, spied the horse shoe and in a flash of lightning upon the ice. Without thought of consequence Wall quickly made a lunge for the horseshoe, clutched it firmly in his hands, called time "time out" and hobbled valiantly skated across to the Seattle players' bench and presented the "lucky horseshoe" to Manager Thomas. That horse shoe has never been out of the possession of the Redmen since and to it Goalie Wall gives full credit for Belleville's winning of the intermediate championship this season.

Affiliated in 1899

According to local hockey historians Belleville first affiliated with the Ontario Hockey Association about 1900, being then known as Provincial intermediate finals by London Free Press. Clancy, now Assistant Postmaster in the city, being a member of the Belleville team that season. Again in 1904 and 1905 Belleville whittled a notch in the hockey mantlepiece of the Province, but protests sheared them of top honors. Moving along to 1916, Belleville advanced to the intermediate finals, but lost out to Sarnia, 3 Huff nil.

Some years later, Belleville again entered the hockey wars with gusto to advance far, but not far enough being eliminated by Collingwood and Niagara Falls in 1922 and 1923, Manager Thomas being at the helm that year and a mighty fine hockey team Belleville boasted of, every member being a native of this city and a "home brew" boy. That season up to 1931 when Belleville advanced to the finals in the senior "B" series of the O.H.A. but again bowed to Windsor. The crowning hope of every sporting fan's desire came in 1937, inasmuch when the Belleville Redmen accomplished what others had failed in—the winning of this city's first major hockey championship, the proof of which now is on display at Eddie Thomas' store in the intermediate "B" O.H.A. cup.

The O.H.A. trophy is as stated before about 24 inches in height, including the ebony base. The silver cup portion measures about one foot in diameter and on the cup proper is inscribed —"Ontario Hockey Association, champions, Intermediate "B" series". The individual shields indicating the champions in their respective years, Belleville's being affixed upside down, are fastened to the ebony base with small silver tacks.

Played in Open Air

Prior to entering the O.H.A. in 1899, 38 hockey in Belleville was played on an open air rink, on the old hospital lot, where now stands St. Michael's Academy. Later a covered rink was erected where now stands the Armouries, it was in this rink Jack "Romeo" Gordinier for many years was the trainer of Belleville hockey players and the late Jack Trudeau and the late Harry Burrell managed teams. Then the rink was moved to where the Canadian Pacific Railway station now stands and was operated for some years at that point by the late Richard 'Dick' Arnott, who also sponsored and fostered hockey in all its glorifications. Later Mr. Arnott moved the rink to its present site on Turnbull St., but a new and modern Arena was erected in Belleville in 1928 and it was in this up-to-date palatial auditorium, that the Belleville Redmen brought to Belleville its greatest hockey honors, an O.H.A. championship. May we live to see the Arena again bedecked with a modern artificial ice plant.

The Belleville Softball Association ran into its first case of postponement through rain last evening. If the executive of the league does not look to raising many postponed games on its hands at the conclusion of the regular playing schedule, they should enact legislation whereby all postponed games must be played at least one week from the date of postponement or the latter could hold good in the matter of ties. By passing such a by-law, the league would be able to be practically well up with its playing schedule. For instance they already have one rained out game and a tie on their schedule with no game scheduled until Friday. This leaves Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday available, for the playing of these games.

The South Hastings League is meeting at Canniffton on Thursday night at which time all players not signed up will be thoroughly scrutinized and if found unlicensed, passed upon. Coach Woodley is taking no chances on getting his men beat as the Belleville entry is composed of unlicensed players only, doubtless their certificates will not undergo the same scrutiny as the wandering others will. The latest street rumor has "Speedy" St. Louis and Lou and the Parkes Day pitching assignment against the Rhenany kids here next Monday morning.

For the first time in 56 years the famed green and white colors of Shamrock will not be carried into the O.A.L.A. wars. The team that has so long captured the provincial lacrosse title in early years will see no action this season, however the popularity of Orangeville talent is attributed the paramount cause of the club's decision. It originated in 1879 the Orangeville lacrosse club won the Dufferin title in 1887, 1891, 1899 and the two succeeding years. On the latter year it gained the Central Ontario zone, where lacrosse has only met with mediocre success for many years, the game seems to be gaining in popularity which only goes to prove the cycle of sport. The local intermediate team has been practising for weeks in which to practice before their schedule in the O.A.L.A. opens. Orangeville Mercury is contemplating nightly practice in the Belleville Arena. In the meantime, however, the local school zone lacrosse loop opens Friday afternoon.

George Pepper arrived safely in England yesterday and upon docking immediately notified his brother, Mrs. Wm. Pepper, 93 Chatham street that his safe crossing. George has some little baubles to transact in Birmingham before he can get on the wing of a 250 C.C. machine and possible a new 500 C.C. before he continues to the Isle of Man for practice periods. We expect some newspaper stories from George in about two weeks time.

You often meet up with some one who is always talking of "the one that got away". In some measure this tale remains an very much of the Belleville sports scribe, especially, when he commences to recount his many and various heart-to-goodness row-found baseball material of late years. His latest find is really one for Ripley. It seems they've mosquitoed a Japanese lad out in Peterboro who is reported to be a baseball player of parts, having starred with the Pacific Coast around Vancouver. His name is reported to be somewhere like Eddie Machinata. The big laugh of the discovery of the new star comes, when the Little City scribe, after reading as to the Jap's baseball talents and ability, reserves all and sundry that Mackmanara (that's a queer moniker for a Jap) has been residing in Peterboro ever since last January. Now just as if a real player of mine could successfully occlude himself in the Lilliput village all of that time without coming to the surface before this.

Rather queer how many baseball players from Western Canada happened to take up residence in Peterboro this spring, this Jap person makes the fourth to crop up out in Max Swanzie's home town. Of course we would not like to make mention of the fact that Hugh Campbell made an extended visit to Western Canada last winter.

Of course if the truth was known the reason the Peterboro scribe did not hear or know about Macmaranara is simply due to the fact that he can't even see Peterboro or the Otonobee River until a recent date, but what do we care. That again Fred Collins, the newly appointed pilot of the Petes is a native of Edmonton. But who are we to cast any suggestion of doubt. More power to the Peterboro club for their efforts in providing good baseball for their citizens.

This likeable lad Henri Piers, the Dutch rassler who meets John Katan in tonight's main bout at the arena, says he does not care what methods Katan employs as long as they are confidence and says it matters little to him whether Katan strictly adheres to orthodox tactics or reverts to his rough tactics of the past. It's a new house style. That Katan will try his rough matter is certain but Dutchman can almost be regarded as a foregone conclusion, though Promoter Jack Corcoran has opened negotiations to interest Earl McGready in coming to Belleville to defend his Canadian title against the winner of tonight's main scrap, we learn.

The intermediate "B" O.H.A. trophy won by the Belleville Redmen is at present gracing the Eddie Thomas' store, a fitting tribute to any group of amateur hockey players. Incidentally the silver shield or name plate upon which the name of the winning club is inscribed with "Belleville" down on a side panel of the trophy, up-side-down. We wonder if the significance means that the Redmen's winning of the championship was an "about face"?

Another member of the Quinte Motorcycle Club distinguished himself over the week end when Bruce Bristol, Madoc and former President of the local "put-put" boys won the hill climbing contest staged by the Peterboro Motorcycle Club on Sunday, Bristol being of "Mad" Sale, Toronto rider. Incidentally we have a splendid article written by Bert Prink, and pertaining to George Pepper and his fate of Man races, will publish it this week.

FRANK GENOVESE WINS DECISION OVER WALLACE

Toronto Boy Annexes Canadian Welterweight Crown

Champion Stages a Belated Rally in The Eighth

Toronto, May 18 (CP)— On the head of Frankie Genovese, young Toronto Italian, today rested the Canadian welterweight crown Vancouver's Gordon Wallace wore for five years, thanks to his gruelling 15-round decision last night won a decision over the coast veteran in ten rounds, only thrilling in spots to 4,000 faithful.

Clocked unofficially 144½, a ball found more than Wallace and forced the fighting most of the way. Both fighters were warned for low blows and the middle rounds were slowed by clinching and fighting.

Belated Rally

Seeing his title glimmering, Wallace staged a belated rally in the eighth for his best round. His left twice found the Italian's stomach and before the round ended the champion rocked Genovese with a crushing left to the chin.

In the ninth the youthful challenger showed superior endurance and his pushing, bruising tactics were Wallace down. He finished fast, cutting the champion's face with his right and carried the battle into the final round.

Ray Cook of Toronto, Canadian featherweight king, punched out a six-round split-decision over Sgt. Armstrong in a non-title preliminary. Cook came back after a three-year layoff to win the scrap. Armstrong weighed 129; Cook 126.

QUINTE MOTORCYCLE RIDER WINS TEST

Bruce Bristol, member of the Quinte Cycle Club, topped all competitors at Nassau Hill near Peterborough on Sunday, in the fastest hill climbing competition that attracted thirteen riders through the hills from Toronto, Oshawa, Madoc, Belleville and Peterborough.

The contest was held under the auspices of the Kawartha Motorcycle Club and Bristol went to the fastest rider on the rough climb to the top of Nassau Hill. Bristol scooted the course in 5.5 seconds, closely followed by Madison Sale, of Picton Club, Toronto, whose time was 6.2.

Before of the Quinte Motorcycle Club also won honorable mention for his riding.

PARKWOOD STABLES OF OSHAWA MAY FURNISH KING'S PLATE WINNER

Toronto, May 18 (CP)—Thoroughbred from the powerful Parkwood Stable owned by R. S. McLaughlin of Oshawa, may rule favorite when the Queen's Plate field—about 13 horses on Woodbine race track here Saturday.

For three years color bearers from the motor magnate's stable have been installed favorite for the galloping struggle over a mile and a furlong, worth 50 guineas, donated by the King, and a $7,000 added purse. The race was first run in 1860 when Don Juan was the victor.

It's not a question of how many of the five horses nominated by Harry Giddings, astute trainer, will start that's bothering the dopesters. The whole cone. Pagan King, winter book favorite; Donodris, Vicerine, Red Pirate and Silver Jubilee are nominated. Donodris and Vicereine were ruled out as starters as Giddings has concentrated on the others.

Pagan King is Out

Preliminary training trials indicated Pagan King, a black unraced colt by Chris-12-Bone-M. Mc-Gee may in the barn, leaving Red Pirate and Silver Jubilee to carry the colors. Pagan King last year was just about the best two year old in McLaughlin's barn, but in this fall he has shown the earmarks of a sprinter.

Red Pirate and Silver Jubilee, both with blood of Man o' War in their veins, wintered well and displayed good form when schooled over a distance. Both are chestnut colts by Martins, sired by Man O' War.

Red Pirate's true running form is unknown. He made only two starts as a juvenile, but scampered home by long margins each time. Silver Jubilee started seven times, winning twice, placing second twice and third once. Each will carry 117 pounds in the race.

McLaughlin has not won the historic event since Horometer won in 1934. The Son of Hourless set the record of 1.54 1-5 for the distance that year.

Yesterday's Stars

(By The Associated Press)

Bill Lee and Lonny Frey, Cubs: Lee tamed Reds, 5-2, with six hits and gave only two bases on balls; Frey's double and triple drove in three runs.

Lynn Nelson, Athletics: Entering game in first inning as relief pitcher, he held Yanks to one run and fanned seven as A's repulsed lead with 3-2 triumph.

Jimmy Deshong and Al Simmons, Senators: Former set Red Sox down with seven hits to win his fourth of season, 4-3; Simmons' thing home run of year accounted for two runs.

LITTLE TO CHOOSE BETWEEN CONTESTANTS

John Kaian and Henry Piers, each of whom displayed near-championship form at the last two wrestling shows here, finally will come back as opponents, according to the feature bout of a stellar card sponsored by the Quesenbury Club at the Arena on Tuesday night. On the strength of their past performances there is little to choose between them and the one safe bet is that their battle will be as exciting a one as ever has been seen on the local mat.

Eli Farber and Ralph Garibaldi, both main bout men in the United States will make their local debuts in the semi-final with the likelihood that the winner will be signed for the next main bout. They may provide the most acrobatic wrestling of the night.

A pugnacious display is expected of Joe Maynard and Al Dolmo, either of whom, when anything close to gentle in his methods.

FIGHTS LAST NIGHT

(By The Canadian Press)

Toronto—Frankie Genovese, 144½, Toronto, outpointed Gordon Wallace, 144, Vancouver, in 10 (for Canadian welterweight championship, George Burnette, 190, Detroit, won on foul over Bobby Cotton, 148 3-4, Mexico. (2).

New York—Fred Miller, 198, Cincinnati, outpointed Maxie Maher 1134½, Newark, N. J. (8).

"THE BRIGHT HILL"

by Clarissa Fairchild Cushman

After a moment she drew a long breath. "Carl, I couldn't, I couldn't do that."

"Couldn't do what?" Carl's head was still leaning on his hand, in that contrary gesture of weariness and defeat.

"Couldn't ask them to wait off. Why, it's so late. College starts in a month."

"What of that? Lord, Kerin! Do you think you are irreplaceable? With the world full of people looking for jobs can only get one job anyway by a pull through Dean Coles. Don't worry that they can't get somebody else, like a shot."

Kerin was hurt, "What do you mean—I only got the job by a pull—through Dean Coles? Who told you that?"

Carl laughed shortly, "Nobody, I just used my brains. I'm sure. Is it likely they'd pick you just out of the air?"

Kerin rubbed her knees. They were shaking her thin dress. But she said, her voice sounding small in the small room, "I can't help that, Carl. I have to go. I've said I would."

Carl shoved away his cup with a violence that overturned it, and the coffee spilled over Kerin's new black purse in which the check book lay. "Don't talk like an idiot. I'm telling you. Write and explain. They'll understand. Let them off. Every college and university in the country has to make these concessions. They think nothing of it."

He eyed her white face for an instant. "Good lord, Kerin," he said impatiently, "I'm telling you I'm back. Don't you understand? Your place is here. This is your home. I'm your husband. ...your first, your primary obligation. They'll be the first to recognize that. In fact, if you go and leave me alone here, I'm going to look pretty funny to them. And it's certainly going to look funny to them if you hang on to the job when you no longer need it, when there are so many people that do. They'll begin wondering what kind of woman you are."

Yes, thought Kerin, that was all true. "But they've fixed up the little house for me. All that expense."

"Oh!" said Carl, and his words, heavy with sarcasm, fell on Kerin like weights. "So that's it, is it? My lord! Here I come back, after you and Donald wept on my neck about my going, and what do you do? You start crying for your tiny crooked house and your tiny crooked stairs!"

"Oh, Carl—that isn't fair!"

"I'll say it isn't fair! Kerin, can't you honestly comprehend that I've had a bitter disappointment? And I'm making the best of it, and I've come home. Home—you and I, boy, at least, I said to myself, there's Kerin, she'll be glad. Kerin! And this is what I get!" He rose heavily from the table, and without a glance went by her, passed down the hall, and went out of the house with a slam of the door.

Kerin covering her eyes with her hands, for the first time in her married life wept, wept bitterly, without restraint, sitting stiffly in the little chair.

It was some time before she recovered; but into her muddled mind came gradually the thought of Alan. It seemed indecent to air this matter with anybody, but the need to consult Alan, with his slow and temperament judgment, was overpowering.

As she dressed in the new dark silk, the hat, the shoes, taking comfort in them for all she was so wretched, she wished forlornly that Alan might settle it. Susan had no positive opinions, even though they supported hers. But Susan was not at the door.

"Kerin Kingsbury! You've been crying! Now, Kerin,—"

"Susan, Carl's come back."

"Carl's come back? Carl!" Susan's mouth remained opened on the word, her eyes blank in their utter astonishment. Then she recovered. "You don't honestly mean to tell me that Carl's come back, Kerin? Not for keeps?"

"Yes, Susan, can I see Alan?"

"Alan? Of course you can, Kerin! Don't tell me you're not going, after all!"

"Why, yes—yes, I'm going," said Kerin.

"Oh! Mercy, Kerin! I was terrified to death. I couldn't have borne it. Alan! Here's Kerin. Yes, I'm tactful, Kerin, I'm running along. I've got the wit to pretend I've got something I've got to do. But mind—" she gave her friend's arm a violent shake, "you—you—back down."

Kerin sat down and faced Alan. "Carl's come back. The Russian scheme has fallen through."

Carl thinks I shouldn't go ahead with my plans either. But I—do."

Alan deliberately. "Why did he give up the Russian plan, Kerin? Do you know?"

Kerin spread her hand expressively. It seemed to convey a complete reply to both of them.

"Too bad," said Alan. "He had counted on it. Did they—"

"No. He quit."

There was a pause. "Do you want to go east as you planned, in view of everything?"

"Yes, I do, Alan." Kerin was honest. "But even if I didn't I think I should feel that I should."

"I agree with you," said Alan. "Is that what you came to ask?"

"I suppose it is." Kerin dropped her eyes. "Carl doesn't see it that way. He says they'll release me. He thinks my obligation is first to him."

Alan dropped his eyes also, and was silent a moment. His answer, when it came, was spoken differently. "Yes. I see his point. Carl can claim, of course, legal rights. And of course they will release you at Amberley even as late as this —if you ask them. He'll contend that I am a little —surprised—that Carl should be willing for you to ask them as late as this." He looked up then his lifted his keen gray eyes to Kerin's intent face. Set aside from the legal aspect, which we are naturally not discussing, surely you have a right to your own judgment as to where your obligation lies." There was another pause, but Kerin's eyes did not waver from his. "Kerin, Carl was the one to start his exodus. He felt that your obligation then was to let him go, wasn't it? Really—" Alan's tone was dry—"it ought to cut both ways."

Kerin rose. "Thank you, Alan," she said, and was out of the room, out of the house, so that Susan who had been rehearsing things to say, never even saw her go.

But when Kerin opened the door of her flat, softly, as was her habit, it was to have her heart literally leap in her, choking her in sudden terror. For from the front room came voices—Carl's cool, sarcastic; Donald's high, hysterical, with that note in it that she remembered from that other awful day, the day of his party. She flew down the hall, saying breathlessly, "Donald-Carl!"

They were facing each other in the little front room. On her entrance Donald sprang toward her, and then, with his back against her, turned and faced his father. Exactly so would a smaller dog, in the safety of his own yard, turn on the dog from which he had run.

"Donald—Carl—what in the world —"

"Why, yes—yes, I'm going," said Kerin.

"Oh! Mercy, Kerin! I was terrified to death. I couldn't have borne it. Alan! Here's Kerin. Yes, I'm tactful, Kerin, I'm running along. I've got the wit to pretend I've got something I've got to do. But mind—" she gave her friend's arm a violent shake, "you—you—back down."

Kerin's head bent. "I suppose it does," she said, and was out of the room, out of the house, so that Susan who had been rehearsing things to say, never even saw her go.

"Donald—Carl—what in the world —"

"Why, it's nothing, Kerin." Carl's voice was disgusted. "The kid flew at me when I said you two were staying here, that's all. Flew at me like a wildcat, for no reason whatever. A pretty welcome, is all I've got to say. A nice, quiet, loving family, so glad to see me." He looked at them standing together. The sense of their solidarity baffled him, hurt him sharply with a sense of exclusion. Instinctively he decided to hurt them, hurt him; he said, "The two of you!"

The boy turned and faced his father, his face, his fine bone, his grey wild and bright. "Is it true, mother? We aren't going?"

"Yes, Donald, I'm afraid it is. I'm sorry, but I'm afraid it is."

"You're a hard little thing Kerin," he said, "under everything. Quiet, and mousy, and saying 'Yes, Carl' but never generous with me. I think you must be what the new psychology calls a 'frigid woman'—certainly to me you've never been" "Carl—the boy—"

"Oh, yes—the boy—the boy—the boy! Always the boy! What about me, your husband?"

"What about me, Carl? When you wanted to go to Russia—"

"Oh—so that's it?" Carl's blue eyes were slits. He nodded his head slowly, letting the words fall. "You did begrudge it to me—the thing you knew I wanted so much. You thought in your heart I ought to stay here, with you, 'my wife and child'. Such a pretty, pretty gesture of love as it would have been! And since I didn't do a thing so utterly hypocritical as that, why —what's cause for—the goose is sauce for the gander, eh? Well, I'm—"

"Carl!" Kerin's voice was pitiful. "She's not dishonest!" cried the boy. "She's the honestest thing there is. She's honester than you—

INSTALLMENT NINETEEN

"Donny, dear, will you go to your room?" And as Donald disappeared, slipping from the room like a shadow "Carl," Kerin said, "I've done the best I could—"

"The best you could! Have you really?" He slammed his hand on the back of the chair beside him. "Shut up that talk Kerin! Think I'm a fool? You were tickled to death. I was going just as soon as you got that job. Don't lie about it. And now you've made to think I've come back. Aren't you? Clear underneath in your heart? Yes. Sure you are. We'll cry my neck when I left you and Donald both. That was part of the game. Lord Kerin! It makes me sick! The one thing—the one thing—I can't stand is dishonesty in people. You, that mean you!"

There had Donald beside her clutching her, his eyes blazing, his body trembling through her dress. "She's not dishonest!" cried the boy. "She's the honestest thing there is. She's honester than you—a whole lot! You're mean—mean! You like to be mean! It makes you feel big!"

"Donny! No, no, no—Donny! Go back, dear!" Kerin said, her own voice rising hysterically. It was terrible to be tired and feel your voice rising, and not to be able to stop it.

"No—he'll stay here!" Carl's voice was a bellow of fury. "Let go of your mother!" He took hold of the boy's arm suddenly and wrenched him away and flung him across the room. "There! Stand there!"

Oh, thought Kerin, they were all too tired—too tired. She must pull herself together.

Carl jerked his head back to Kerin. "Now pull yourself together and stop all this nonsense. Understand? I'll not hear another word about it. I'll be back in an hour and I want the house quiet and some decent lunch. Lord, what a mess for a man to come back to! For Heaven's sake, Kerin, clear up some of this excelsior and stuff!"

Pull herself together. Yes.

Carl turned to the door, but suddenly Kerin's voice, quiet, even, was there before him. "Carl! Wait a minute."

TARZAN'S QUEST

(Metropolitan Newspaper Feature Service)

Tarzan's heart burned with dark, fierce anger when the lying Prince Sborov told him that Brown had run away with Lady Greystoke. He did not for a moment question Jane's loyalty, but he judged that the brutal aviator had forced her to accompany him.

"Come, we shall find Lady Greystoke and Brown." "Brown will kill me," he threatened me many times." Sborov whimpered. "He will not kill you while I am with you." "You do not know him." "I do not need to know him," the ape-man answered grimly: "I know myself."

The cowardly prince sought every excuse to avoid an encounter with Brown; but Tarzan, impatient to resume his search for Jane, flung him across his shoulder and deposited him in the tree. Sborov was not a large man, but his weight was certainly an unwelcome handicap.

Though he disliked the fellow instinctively, the ape-man believed Sborov had been Jane's friend, otherwise he would have left him in the jungle. And now, despite his burden, he travelled rapidly to fulfill his double mission—to find Jane, and to kill Brown!

TORONTO STOCK EXCHANGE CLOSE

Toronto, May 18 (CP) — The spring excavation season widened heavily on the Toronto stock market today and in the slowest trading in some months, prices eased to still lower levels. Base metals held fairly well and the golds became a little more active in the last half hour but the industrials were irregularly lower and the western oils a bit heavy. Over the board narrow losses out-numbered the gains.

The big base metals made the main rally for higher ground. International Nickel touched 60½ for a gain of two points and Noranda at 61¾, showed a net gain of 1½. Consolidated Smelters crowded the 80 mark in the last few minutes for a net gain of a point.

Among the golds closing prices were narrowly higher for O'Brien, Dome, Pickle Crow, Caribou, Conlaurum, Kirkland Lake, Kirkland-Hudson, God's Lake and Base Metallic.

The Abitibi issues turned strong and the preferred registered a net gain of about two points and the common closed a half point higher. The Great Lakes Paper issues finished ¼ to a full point under the close was up for the banks, liquor stocks and the big oils.

WALL ST. CLOSE

New York, May 18—(AP)—Favored stocks showed some rallying moments for the market today, but numerous issues drifted into new low territory for the year or longer before finding support. The session was livelier than yesterday notwithstanding occasional apathetic intervals. Near the final hour prices were well mixed, with gains and fair list company leaders inclined to weakness. Transfers were at the rate of about 1,000,000 shares.

Board Room Gossip

As supplied to Biggar and Crawford by Financial Service.

MARKET COMMENT

Some nervousness was evident here yesterday before the opening over the report that the Brazilian Government loaned its Department of Coffee approximately $30,000,000 to help control world coffee prices. It was estimated the loaned will inflate Brazil's currency by 12 per cent. Some quarters had expected a reaction in the shares of Brazilian Traction on the announcement, but this did not materialize. With London closed yesterday, the opinion of that centre on the news from Brazil was not known.

Business activity in the Dominion shows no signs of a let-up. Despite smaller grain movement due to elimination of most farm and elevator stocks, loadings of other commodities are increasing, particularly metals merchandise and "miscellaneous" have resulted in increasingly heavy freight movement.

The Trader in Barron's points out that the great weakness of the average specialties—the failure to sense the significance of a possible serious reaction—has been again revealed. Instead of waiting for liquidating opportunities when rallies develop, he has been again attempting to "call the turn" on a buying spot. Instead of lightening up when favorable conditions permitted, the amateur has—in attempting to obtain a rebound—been getting in deeper and deeper, a factor that accounts for the amazing scope of "frozen accounts." The average business man never adds to inventory in declining market, redoubling efforts — his efforts to liquidate; yet in the stock market he completely reverses what is acknowledged to be sound merchandising technique.

It is a sad fact, moreover, of which veteran bear operators are well aware, that less than 10 per cent. of those perennially involved in securities ever get out at the top. And in a market so seriously narrowed by SEC regulations, it is doubtful if 10 per cent. could ever liquidate within a reasonable approximation of the peak. It takes advertising markets to drive home the lesson of the removal of "residers", pools, and big professionals.

ON THE STREET

A well-known mining operator who has been spending several months in the South is now back on the floor of the Exchange once more. This individual swings a substantial line both in Montreal and New York — a quiet market until midsummer seems to be the consensus of opinion of "old timers" here.

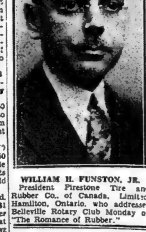
Livestock

Toronto, May 18 (CP)—Calf prices were steady to firm on the Toronto Livestock Market today in a slow trade. Top for steers was unchanged at former prices as did sheep and lambs. The lamb market was unsettled by early afternoon but indications pointed to a near steady close. Calves holdover from Monday was 600 head.

Receipts reported by the Dominion Livestock Branch were: Cattle 1,850, calves 1,170, hogs 1,500, sheep and lambs 170.



Trade was slow on weighty steers, although a few choice offerings were brought $8 to $8.50 and other grades sold at $6 to $7.50. Thin cow butcher steers and heifers went at $5 to $7.50, the common grades to $5. Butcher cows were priced at $4 to $6, canners and cutters from $2.50 to $3.50, bulls sold at $4.50 to $5 and bolognas mostly between $5 and $6. Calf values moved between $8 and $8.50, medium selling around $7 to $8. A few lots of stockers ranged from $4.25 to $5.00.

Choice veal calves brought $8 to $8.50 with occasional tops reaching $9. Bulk of weaker supply traded between $6 and $8.50.

Choice hogs sold mostly $7 to $7.50 with medium goods from $6.50 to $6.75 and fair to mediums from $5.25 to $6. Common kinds went from $4.25 to $5.

Good lightly lambs averaging 75 pounds or better brought $6 to $7.50 each while fair to medium made around $5 each with common lights down to $3.50 each. Sheep sold from $3 to $4.50.

Bacon hogs, fed and watered, delivered at selects at basis $1 premium. Butchers and heavier made $8.50 with extra heavies at $8 and lights at $7.50 to $8.50. Sows sold from $6.25 to $6.75.

ROOSEVELT COURT BILL IS REPORTED ADVERSELY

Washington, May 18—(AP)—The Senate Judiciary Committee voted 10 to 8 today to report the Roosevelt court bill adversely to the Senate.

First members to emerge from the committee session said all amendments, except a few clarifying ones, were rejected by the dominant opposition majority.

The vote was taken in executive session after announcement of the retirement of Justice Van Devanter.

Bankfield, Second Producer of the Little Long Lac Field

Views show plant now being put into operation. Top is a closeup of the mill which is to have an initial capacity of 100 tons per day, but which is sufficiently large for material additions to that rate. Showing also the shaft house and ore dump built up in the development of levels and sub-levels down to 525 feet. Lower is a further portion of the surface plant, relation of which to the mill can be judged by the appearance in both pictures of the sleeping and dining quarters on the hill to the west.

Bankfield mill, plant, electrical equipment and general layout are engineered as most modern and complete and likely to prove highly efficient.

Dealing with social legislation, the report of the executive committee of the Ontario Division, said such laws might be more effective if applied nationally. Policies of government regarding the relief problem met with general approval, the report said, but stated taxation was a grave problem.

Bankfield to Explore For Additional Ore

Chances Regarded as Good in Four Directions — Winze Planned

The average of ore reserves at Bankfield which is now using its 100 ton mill, shown by official statements, is equivalent to two years' operation on a 100-ton basis, with an average of $21.35 per ton. This average is calculated after cutting down high values.

Consideration is being given by officials to broadening of exploration work to include four areas, as yet undeveloped underground, but in which diamond drilling has indicated importance as values. One is the downward extension of the main ore zone south of Tombill in which diamond drilling from the 525-foot level showed ore sections, some quite high grade. This ore was located 200 to 300 feet below the level and to reach it a winze would have to be sunk. A sinking plant and electric hoists are now on order for this purpose. On strike the extension of the zone should come into Bankfield still farther west. There remains 1,900 feet of ground to the west boundary to be explored and this will no doubt be done by drifting westward on the lower level.

A second area in which drill results have been made is 2,000 feet or more east of the present drift on the 525. The main zone has been found to carry values there and it is probable that the 525-foot level will be extended out.

The third zone is the north vein, assumed to be the same one on which Magnet Consolidated has been working to the east, and in which Leitch Consolidated has indicated a nice orebody to the west beyond Tombill. A series of fairly paralleling breaks have been evidenced in this north zone and there is a strong possibility that the original Bankfield drilling in this section may not have been pushed far enough to intersect the most favorable zone. The management plans now to deepen these holes to explore the more northerly breaks.

Some interest has been interested in this first drilling and a crosscut is now being started north of the fourth level to investigate this area which is the Bankfield-Lake Eva vein. We have a length of over 2,000 feet. It was here that the original work on the Bankfield property was done before work was carried south to the present shaft area.

The fourth area would be on the south contact of the property. All work on the zone has hitherto been confined to the north contact.

DOMINIONS

volves mutual assistance against an aggressor, are frankly admitted.

Economic Side of Eastern Pact

The Australian Pacific proposal, however, had an economic side with which the conference discussions may be able to register some advance. Australia wants new markets in the Orient. She is producing more wheat and wool than the British Empire alone can absorb. She is looking to China and Japan as outlets for the trade she seeks as a necessary preliminary to better relations among the Pacific powers.

At the opening plenary session of the conference Prime Minister Mackenzie King of Canada urged the lowering of dams against international trade as a means to peace.

Official Announcement.

The official announcement of the wedding, handed to reporters at the gates of the Chateau by Herman Rogers, said:

"His Royal Highness the Duke of Windsor announces that his marriage to Wallis Warfield, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Teakle Wallis Warfield of Maryland, will take place at the Chateau de Candé at Monts on Thursday, June 3."

The wedding will fall just twenty days before the Duke's forty-third birthday.

Many Correspondents.

Mrs. Warfield will be 41 on June 19.

Rogers, spokesman for the Duke, gave the announcement to 100 British, American and French newspapermen at the Chateau gates. A drizzling rain was falling. Rogers, who excited he groped frantically for the French words needed to translate the announcement for the French reporters.

Rogers would put no interpretation on his declaration that "invitations to the wedding of the Duke of Windsor will be issued May 7. While it is confined to those who have been with him during the past month," Neither would he say who, definitely, would be invited.

Duke's Guests to Be Approved.

The Duke's equerry, Dudley Pope, said that the list of guests in London for approval, it was believed, Forward was then to contact Mrs. Warfield's aunt, Mrs. D. Buchanan Herryman of Washington, D.C., to be hostess.

(Mrs. Merryman is due to arrive in Paris almost simultaneously with Roosevelt Prieby).

Mrs. Merryman was described here as the "first wedding guest".

Although kept secret right up to the moment of the announcement, most of the preparations for the wedding had been made in advance. Mrs. Warfield's trousseau, in which her favorite blue predominates, was completed May 7, while the Duke's clothes were ordered May 10.

Announcement Typed.

Time was taken out from recent rounds of golf to discuss the necessary birth certificate for Mrs. Warfield.

Rogers lately promised to answer questions about the announcement this evening, however.

The typed announcement was on blue office stationery.

There were two separate statements, one a wedding notice bearing the title "official statement of the Duke of Windsor's marriage." The other was titled, "official statement regarding the invitations to the wedding." That was the one which disclosed members of the Royal Family would not be present.

At the top of each sheet were the words, "Chateau de Candé, Monts," typed together with the date, May 18.

There was no hint in the first announcement as to who would perform the ceremony, or whether it would be religious or civil. Nor would Rogers reply to questions concerning the coincidence of the wedding date with the late King's birthday.

of an automobile found in Schreiber's possession resembled the door of his damaged car.

Mr. Collins held there had been no evidence adduced to connect the accused man with the theft of the motor car in particular, as all of the employees engaged in the garage where the accused worked also had access to the vehicle. "I submit there has been no case made," concluded Mr. Collins.

In rebuttal Crown Attorney Donnan pointed out, that it was now for a court of preliminary investigation to weigh the evidence. "All you have to decide, Sir, is whether or not we have adduced sufficient evidence to put this man on trial and I have only introduced prima facie evidence," replied Mr. Donnan. The defence of his own unlimited evidence in court, all testimony being Crown witnesses only.

His Worship held that sufficient evidence had been adduced to place the accused on trial and ordered the same at the next court of competent jurisdiction.

5,000 FACTORIES IN SMALL TOWNS

Ontario Division C. M. A. is Meeting at Hamilton.

Hamilton, Ont., May 18.— (CP) —Industry and Labor Board provided for in recent legislation with power to administer the Minimum Wage and Industrial Standards Acts is a difficult and complex task, F. E. Waterman of Toronto, chairman, told the annual meeting of the Ontario Division of Canadian Manufacturers' Association here today.

Held in conjunction with the Hamilton-Brantford branch of the C.M.A., delegates were in attendance from all parts of the province. Prior to the luncheon, at which the organizations discussed various problems in business and committee reports were submitted. Officers were elected in both groups.

Analyzing Ontario's industrial picture, Mr. Waterman said industry was not confined to the larger cities. Actually 5,000 of the province's factories were located in 300 small towns and villages. He commended the administration for coming through the depression perhaps largely by better care with labor.

"Social legislation, particularly the type that seeks to regulate rates of wages and hours of business must grow out of consideration of conditions in larger centres," said Mr. Waterman. "There has been a tendency to legislate on the assumption that manufacturing is centred in the cities and as a rule regulations have followed and confirmed the fair and reasonable conditions that have been effective in the great majority of manufacturing establishments in such places.

Conditions Differ

"But habits and living conditions differ as between large and small places. What may be suitable for one may be disturbing to others. Legislation relating to rates of wages and hours of labor when administered in such a way as to be adaptable to fair and reasonable situations wherever they may be found may serve a useful purpose.

"But if the administration tried to make things equal they are fundamentally and economically unequal, the reverse will be the case," he concluded.

CHURCH FACES NON-ATTENDANCE

Niagara Synod is Told Less Than One in Family Attends

Hamilton, Ont., May 18 (CP)—A decline in church attendance to the point where an average of less than one member of each church family attends a Sunday service was reported in the Synod of the diocese of Niagara today by the Synod Committee on the State of the Church.

Report of committees on the State of the Church and the report of the Clergy Pensions Committee are considered the two most important items of business to be dealt with by this year's Synod session.

Presenting its report dealing with the decline in church attendance the committee said the matter did not give reason for either alarm or congratulation.

Unpleasant Facts

"Your committee feels that the Synod ought to face frankly the following unpleasant facts in this situation," said the report. "On an average less than one member of each family attends church on Sunday; only one church person in four can be accounted a church attendant. Over half of the girls in our Sunday Schools are not attending the regular services of the church.

The following factors are considered contributing to the declining delinquency of our people:

(a) The vagueness and irresponsibility which now obscure the matter of church membership.

on throughout the year with only an interval of 10 days or two weeks the latter part of August or the first part of September," Mr. Fine said. "This interval will be merely for the purpose of making necessary changes in dies and other machinery.

No Application To Oshawa.

Fine said no application had been made for application to the Motion Picture Code Authority, but added that while lay-offs could be eliminated in a factory producing staple goods which could be stored, it was a different matter to attempt to spread employment evenly throughout the year in a plant producing complete automobiles.

Demand for the cars being seasonal, production had to vary accordingly since it was not possible to store large numbers of automobiles for long periods of time. The answer here is a subsidiary and supplies parts to the main Oshawa plant.

At top is shown the Royal yacht Victoria and Albert paying the fleet in review formation. The map shows her path off Portsmouth Harbor. At lower right is the battle cruiser Hood, another of Britain's mighty warships taking part in the spectacle, and in the centre silhouettes of some of the seventeen foreign warships which will attend the review.

LIGHT HEARTED CANADIAN TROOPS ARRIVE AT SOUTHAMPTON

In rare high spirits, the Canadian troop contingent that did their bit in the coronation of King George VI is shown arriving at Southampton. Many of these men crossed the sea to Europe before on a not so joyful errand in the days of the world war.

WAGER RESULTS IN DEATH FOR RIVER SWIMMER

George F. Spread, 39, made a bet that he could swim the turbulent Merrimack River at Lowell, Mass. He was carried by the current, wedged between two rocks and drowned. Coast Guard surfman Robert H. Westcott of the Newburyport station, is shown in this remarkable picture, in a breeches buoy. He had fired 500 feet of rope with a hawser gun, lowered himself to the rocks, tied a rope around Spread's body and hauled it to shore.

POLICE GUARD MERRILL AFTER FLIGHT

Police officers of New York are shown escorting Dick Merrill through the gathered throng after he landed at Floyd Bennett airport completing his epoch-making flight from England. Despite terrible weather conditions, making it necessary to fly blind for almost the entire trip, Merrill and his co-pilot, Jack Lamble, made the journey in 24 hours, 20 minutes and 20 seconds. This was the first round-trip commercial aeroplane flight across the Atlantic Ocean. Merrill carried photographs of the coronation.

CONFESSES THREE MURDERS

Lester Brockelhurst, former Sunday school teacher, who calmly admitted to police officers at Hawthorne, N. Y., that he had slain three men for money and because the crimes "amused and entertained" his 18-year-old fiancee. Brockelhurst is shown ABOVE as he knelt in prayer during a trial at Chicago in 1935 when he was charged with robbery. He was later paroled from Pontiac penitentiary where he served part of his term of one year to life. During his trial at that time, he fainted upon hearing the sentence.

ROYAL CUSTOM IS REVIVED BY KING

With Queen Accepts Invitation to Home of One of His Subjects

London, May 18—(AP)—The newly crowned King and Queen revived an old royal custom today by accepting an invitation to a ball at the home of one of their subjects. King George and Queen Elizabeth planned to be among the 40 royal guests of the Duke and Duchess of Sutherland at Hampden House, tonight. Other guests will be Queen Mary, King Farouk of Egypt, Queen Mother Nazli of Egypt, the Duchess of Gloucester, the Princess Royal, the Duke and Duchess of Kent, Princess Juliana of the Netherlands and her husband Prince Bernardo, and Prince and Princess Chichibu of Japan.

At a special showing of Coronation pictures at Windsor Castle last night the little Princesses Elizabeth and Margaret Rose clapped in delight when their pictures were shown.

Early-rising visitors had a glimpse of Britain's old-time military pageantry today when the King's Guard was mounted with full ceremony on the Horse Guards' Parade.

Five hundred troops, in full dress uniforms of scarlet and blue with tall bearskins on their heads, marched and counter-marched to the blare of bands as the colors of the regiment, chosen for the day's duties at the Palace were trooped.

A ceremony, a survival of the days when the Palace Guard always was publicly mounted on Horse Guards' Parade, will be continued daily until June 1st.

PRINCESS STREET IN KINGSTON TO BE PAVED

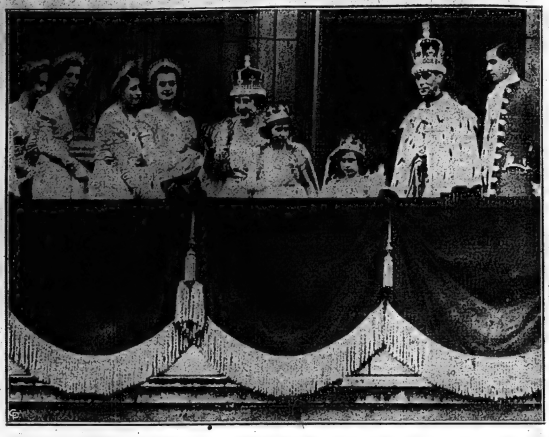
Kingston, Ont., May 18—(CP)—At a cost of some $13,000 the city will pave Princess Street, running through the centre of the city and a part of Highway No. 2. The street is already paved, but street car tracks run on the street for several blocks. It is the intention to pave the street over the top of the tracks.

Street cars have not been operated in Kingston in the past seven years, having been supplanted by buses when the street car barns and equipment burned in 1930.

One-Day Strike Ends at Tavistock

Tavistock, Ont., May 18—(CP)—Fifty-one employees of the Zimmerman Brothers Box Factory returned to their places in the plant here today after a one day strike ended with concessions by employers of part of their demands for higher wages and better working conditions.

The employees walked out yesterday after Zimmerman Brothers refused to recognize their shop union committee or agree to grant any of the demands made by the men.



NIAGARA PENINSULA BECOMES FAIRYLAND

It's blossom Time In the Niagara fruit belt and for the next ten days this renowned strip of country becomes the mecca of beauty seekers from far and near. Fragrant blooming orchards skirt Highway No. 8 for over forty miles between Hamilton and Niagara Falls. The display promises to be at its best this week. Coronation Splendor in Pictures Recorded From London

Newly-crowned Monarchs Respond to London's Thunderous Acclaim

From the balcony of Buckingham Palace, to which they had only just returned from the deeply impressive ceremony in Westminster Abbey in which they were crowned King and Queen over the world's mightiest empire, King George and Queen Elizabeth, still in their coronation robes, acknowledge the thunderous acclaim of thousands packed into the square and streets fronting the palace, with them are Princess Elizabeth and Princess Margaret Rose and attendants for the royal party. This was the first of several balcony appearances made by their majesties following the coronation.

The Royal State Coach Leaves Buckingham Palace for the Abbey

In a fairyland setting that began the most glorious pageants the modern world has produced, procession of the royal state coach in which rode Their Majesties King George VI and Queen Elizabeth to Westminster Abbey before the coronation began. Drawn by the Windsor greys, and with a double line of brilliantly uniformed Grenadier Guardsman standing stiffly at attention, the gilded four-ton coach rolls through the palace gates and down the ramp to start the procession to the Abbey. A guard of soldiers in old world uniforms and armed with pikes flank the monarch's coach.

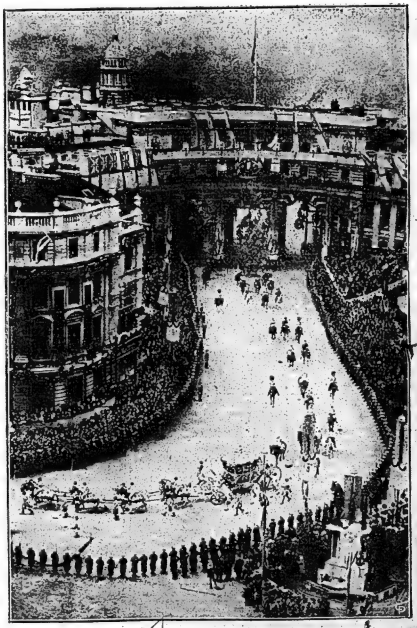
King and Queen Crowned Amid Brilliant Pageantry



High-placed nobles of the realm and dignitaries of the church surrounded His Majesty King George VI (top) as he sits in the throne chair amid the brilliant pomp and circumstance of the Westminster Abbey coronation pageant with the crown of St. Edward upon his head. Only a few moments before, the venerable Archbishop of Canterbury had lowered the gleaming crown upon the King's brow with the solemn words of the coronation ritual. He holds the two royal sceptres, with which he was crowned, in his hands. In the lower picture, Her Majesty the Queen, newly crowned, with six titled ladies as train-bearers and 2 church leaders as escort, moves toward the Abbey door at the close of the coronation ceremony. She carries the sceptres placed in her hands by the archbishop a few minutes earlier.

UNOFFICIAL STATEMENT OF TRANSFER MADE

It was unofficially reported today that on June 15 the entire flying personnel of Camp Borden would be moved to the R.C.A.F. base near Trenton and that activities would be doubled, while a new unit, "sea plane and air navigation" would be organized. The personnel of the flying units at Camp Borden include the Flying Training School and the Armament School unit with the addition of these two units the number of officers to be quartered at the air base will be ninety instead of the twenty-five there at present.

Bombers Soon in Operation.

It was also announced that the Blackburn Shark bombers recently acquired at a heavy expense will soon be in operation under flying conditions. These planes can carry air bombs and one torpedo and fly at a high rate of speed and also will an extensive range of flight. As well as a temporary slip is placed at the seaplane hangar, the planes will be equipped with pontoons, each having three floats. The hangar being is being carried on every day at the airport and the informant stated that activities along this line will be doubled in the near future.

Practically all the houses, that were erected on the property are now ready for occupancy and the new officers will be located in these buildings as well as the non-commissioned ranks.

Many of the families of Air Force members will reside on the property

APPOINTED HEALTH NURSE

Peterborough, Ont., May 19—(CP)—Miss Zeta Kearney of London, Ont., at present on the staff of the welfare department of that city, has been appointed public health nurse for Peterborough. The appointment was made by the board of health, at a meeting last night. Miss Kearney's duties start June 1.

WORKERS SATISFIED

Toronto, May 19—(CP)—Apparently satisfied with personal conditions employed by R. Score and Son they should go out on strike, a member of executive of the Journeymen Tailors' Union staged a brief demonstration before the Score store today. A squad of police broke up the demonstration in short order.

"The Union was trying to get workers to go out on strike", a Score official. "Our workers are satisfied with their jobs and would not quit."

TWO TRADITIONS BROKEN BY KING IN CITY DRIVE

Forced to Use Closed Carriage on Account of Rain

CEREMONY OMITTED

Invite Lord And Lady Mayoress to Sit at Secret Table With Them

By F. NORMAN SMITH

London, May 19 (CP)—The King and Queen were guests of the City of London at luncheon in the ancient Guildhall today and for the first time in modern history the Lord Mayor was commanded to sit at the sovereign's table.

Hitherto, at such functions, the Lord Mayor and the Lady Mayoress had always sat with the Sheriffs of the city at the head of the first table below the Royal dais.

Heavy rain caused cancellation of plans for a state drive from Buckingham Palace by open landau, with an escort of household troops, but the 1,000 guests were entertained had their best opportunity of seeing the Royal Family since the Coronation.

Streets and squares were jammed with spectators, many of whom had waited for four hours to see the procession pass. Umbrellas, newspapers and handkerchiefs were used as protection from the steady rain.

Queen Mary Attends

Police announced from loudspeaker cars the procession plans had been changed, but few across the crowds did not stay to see the limousines go by. Queen Mary passed first, amid the thunderous applause which marks her every appearance nowadays.

Baby Sister Beaten to Death By 3 year Brother with Toys

Jealousy or Exuberant Playfulness Given as Cause

CHILD ADMITS ACT

New York, May 19 (AP)— Three-months-old Dolores Calvin was dead today, beaten to death by her brother Noel, three, in a moment of childish jealousy or exuberant playfulness.

A toy airplane and a toy truck were the weapons in the hands of the three-year-old who readily admitted to police that he struck his baby sister with the toys.

The mother, Mrs. Geraldin Calvin, had left the infant in her crib in the living room and gone into the kitchen. Noel was playing in the living room with the toys.

The mother returned, found the baby in convulsions, beaten about the head. Noel is left-handed, and his left-hand was stained with blood. So was the left side of his blouse.

COL. DREW WARNS AGAINST C. I. O.

Sees Similarity in its Tactics And Those of Soviets in Russia

Toronto, May 19—Asserting that the C.I.O. was following the same tactics as were adopted by the Soviets in Russia, Colonel George A. Drew, in a radio address last night, declared the greatest political error the Ontario Conservative party could possibly make would be to attempt, by evading this issue, to appease the radical elements in the community.

The former party organizer, stoutly maintaining his position as a Conservative despite his break with Hon. Earl Rowe, declared he was warned that if the C.I.O. maintained its extraordinary expansion of the past few months, it might by next year easily reach a point in Canada where the business of the country would actually be under the direction of Labor Czars. Col. Drew emphasized that the rights of labor were not involved in the issue. Canadian labor was sound, he declared, but it could be raided just as any other group could be mistaken.

Fingers Hepburn Stand

To Premier Hepburn he was given credit for preventing repetition of the Hamilton steel strike. Colonel Drew declared that had it not been for the firm action of the Premier the C.I.O. would have had a foothold throughout the Province.

The other main plank of the Premier of this Province that such methods should not be tolerated in Ontario, had a great deal to do with the fact that these agitators have since manifested a "wholesome appearance of respect for our laws," said Colonel Drew. "This fact makes the C.I.O. no less dangerous for Canada if those organizations are tolerated."

CROWDS WATCH CORONATION PAGEANT

This impressive picture gives an idea of the huge crowds from the British Isles, and from overseas that jammed into the streets of London along the route of the coronation march of their Majesties to and from Westminster Abbey for their coronation. Densely packed humanity is held back from the route by a rigid wall of soldiers and sailors. Seen on the march is a contingent of regular troops, who participated in the pageant.

Duke of Windsor And Mrs. Warfield Now Legally Free to Wed on June 3rd— Double Wedding Party Planned to Get Around Abs sence of Members of Royal Family, One to be H eld in France And Other in Austria

MONTE, France, May 19 (CP)— The Duke of Windsor made known today he and Mrs. Wallis Warfield have signed a contract of marriage, presumably for disposition of property in the event of death or separation after their June 3 wedding.

Herman Rogers, spokesman for the Duke, said the contract was signed yesterday under British law, but that its provisions would be disclosed.

Rogers added his personal opinion that members of the Royal Family were absenting themselves from the Duke's marriage because "the King was advised not to send anyone."

Soon after the wedding the Duke and his bride will leave the Chateau to spend almost a month traveling before they reach Wasserleonburg Castle, at Noetach, Austria, about July 1, the spokesman predicted.

The gray castle on Austria's southern frontier, commanding an ment Bureau this morning when an unemployed farm laborer sought employment with an elderly bachelor farmer.

"I have always been accustomed to 'baching it,'" he told officials, and am quite used to washing dishes, scrubbing floors, cleaning milk cans, cooking meals and keeping house, after the daily work is done. Strange as it may seem I do not like women or children and would rather do the extra work than have them around."

When told that two elderly ladies had a position open for a man, the applicant threw up his hands in horror. "Excitable cods!" he exclaimed. "You can't satisfy 'em at any time and it would be worse if they were the bosses. No thanks, I'll look for a bachelor, and be happy."

Toronto, May 19 (CP)—Dick Merrill, famous transatlantic flyer, almost crashed up as he landed a motor in the mud at a point which he had a return flight from Newark to London. His plane struck a mud hole on the Toronto Flying Club Field and for a split second he was between safety and a crackup.

Flying from Newark, Merrill will be entertained here by Premier Mitchell Hepburn of Ontario who has flown from New York to Miami, Fla., with Merrill on several occasions

R. ABERNETHY TO STAND TRIAL FOR MANSLAUGHTER

Police Say He Professed "a Deep Affection" For Miss Watt

"JERKED" OFF ROAD

Man Would Neither Confirm Nor Deny Suicide Pact Testimony Given

Cobourg, May 19 (CP)—Russell Abernethy, married and the owner of a Campbellford, Ont., mill, must stand trial on a manslaughter charge in the death of Florence Watt, for whom, police say, he professed "a deep affection", Abernethy will be tried at the next assizes court here.

Miss Watt, 30, worked for Abernethy when he operated a mill there of late, according to evidence yesterday. A car in which Abernethy and the girl were riding overturned off the road and plunged into the Trent Canal. The girl was drowned, but Abernethy swam to safety.

Mill Owner Questioned.

Provincial police questioned the mill owner, but he would neither confirm nor deny their suggestion Miss Watt had died in a suicide pact, two officers testified. One eye-witness, Jean Fraser, told a dramatic story of how the car, travelling 19 to 18 miles an hour, went into the canal, gradually sinking as Miss Watt screamed for help.

Hamilton Fraser saw Abernethy come to the surface and strike off for shore. He told Fraser Miss Watt was still in the submerged car. When it was raised the body of the girl was found, and the left front door on each side was open. The passenger's side was partly up.

Constable's Evidence.

"He told us that Florence had been bad," Constable Gordon Campbell said. "Then it was suggested that it might have been arranged—a suicide pact—he would neither deny nor confirm it. He said he had a deep affection for Miss Watt."

Berry Harry Thomson recorded Abernethy smarly when he asked him point blank if he loved Miss Watt. He added that Abernethy told him he "couldn't remember" how the car went into the canal. Medical evidence indicated the girl died of drowning; there were no marks on her body.

"Close guessing Jack" compliments fellow members of special Coronation Committee which held 82 last meeting last evening. It was announced by H. J. Allin, chairman of the finance committee that of the 4,100 medals purchased for distribution among pupils at local schools and officials of the city, all had been given out in proper issue.

These remaining medals will be distributed with the number remaining in caring for the large crowds at the Agricultural grounds on Coronation day.

At the wind up meeting a letter of appreciation from the committee published was expressed to Jos. Church, chairman of the general committee. A motion to this effect was made by J. O. Herity and seconded by Harry Thompson.

Other letters of thanks will be sent by the committee to all who cooperated in making the day such a signal success.

REVISED STATUTES CARRIES CITY ACT

Copies of the first edition of the Revised Statutes of the Province of Ontario to be published in the "First Year of the Reign of His Majesty King George VI" were received in the city.

Manchester, England, May 19 (AP)—Captain Freeman Hatfield, 74, veteran mariner who lost a long fight to escape from Nazi Germany, is expected illegally collecting $71,000 repatriation fund for Jews of Germany during the Great War, boarded a train for Ottawa today to face charges.

Membership Campaign in Quinte Beaches Association is Meeting With Splendid Success in City

Membership in the Bay of Quinte Beaches Association, Inc., has increased by leaps and bounds during the present membership campaign and sale of tickets, it was announced in the report of the membership committee of the organization at the regular meeting held in the M.A.C.A. last evening.

Eighty-one new members have been secured during the past week it was reported.

Following informal discussion and the laying of further plans for waterfront beautification, the meeting last evening was characterized by the discussion of whether the ones of cleaning and cleaning up the marsh-grown waterfront on the city's south door step should rest wholly with the Beaches Association or with the corporation. Feeling of many of the members present was that insufficient help and co-operation had been given so far by the city in this matter.

In order to further this first step in road construction into the beaches area which eventually will stretch from government dock just to Foster Avenue, Douglas Revy, member of the executive, was asked to take over the planning and laying out of the road from McDonald Avenue to Foster Avenue.

"You do that and I'll get a man to help you," assured Mr. W. B. Deacon.

Further assurance was also given by Mr. Herb Muir, speaking on behalf of the organization that the Y's Men's Club would take over a certain area for the purpose of landscaping or planting it if it is expected that Kiwanis Club of the city will also offer their assistance in doing or cleaning up a certain plot.

Torch of Freedom Given To Youth of Empire by Premier Stanley Baldwin

"Our Honor And All Our Hopes" Rest With Youth

DRAMATIC OCCASION

Possibly Last Time Baldwin Will Give Address as Premier

By FAT UESSER

Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, May 19 (CP, Cable)— Prime Minister Baldwin today left with the boys and girls of the British Commonwealth of Nations his faith for the Empire and "our honor and all our hopes."

He chose a great audience of Empire youth to declare what he said was his last public speech as head of the government of the United Kingdom. Urging the 8,000 assembled youths last night to take an interest in government, he said:

"And let me say this to you from London onwards—and all your lives—put your duty first and think about your rights afterwards."

It was a dramatic colorful occasion as the veteran Prime Minister stood, to lay down his burden, talked frankly and sincerely to the gathering in Royal Albert Hall of youth from all corners of the Empire who attended the Coronation and the Empire Youth Rally.

He told them they must defend democracy from attack from within and without; stated in simple terms his belief in religion and the brotherhood of man as vital factors in the world and declared the Empire would always raise its voice against the false gods of glorification of war and condemnation of peace.

Ordered Peace

His faith was the "faith of millions of all races from end to end of the British Empire. It was "freedom, ordered freedom within the law, with force in the background and not in the foreground, a society in which authority and freedom blended in due proportions; in which state and citizen are both ends and means."

RECIPROCAL TRADE SOUGHT WITH U. S.

Sir Ronald Lindsay, British Ambassador, Expresses Wish

New York, May 19 (AP)—Sir Ronald Lindsay, British Ambassador to the United States, said today Great Britain was willing to assure the American farmer of "favorable treatment" in British markets in return for a reduction in the United States tariff on goods from the United Kingdom.

The Ambassador said he was speaking "as the commercial representative of a country which does the largest trade with the United States—in other words as your best customer." Sir Ronald also said he earnestly hoped a reciprocal trade agreement would be concluded between the United States and Great Britain.

World Trade Luncheon.

Sir Ronald was a speaker at the world trade luncheon in observance of "National Foreign Trade Week".

Quoting 1933-1936 figures to show the United Kingdom bought United States merchandise valued at $886,-000,000 and sold only $736,000,000 worth in America, Sir Ronad declared:

"We are the greatest purchasers of imported goods in the whole world. We buy five times as much per head of population as the United States; and this is a striking fact even when all necessary allowance has been made for the different conditions.

Willingness to Import.

"It seems to me that in whatever tragedy we may look at the problem the argument is sound that this willingness of countries—within their means of payment and to the full extent of the needs of the standards and living of their population—to import from other countries is the key most of the difficulties which they can make to the recovery of world trade and prosperity—and it is the task of the United States between economics nationalism and economic internationalism."

The United Kingdom, Sir Ronald continued, considers her "permanent source of imports as a gain rather than a net loss of national wealth, "as a trade which is and not a falling standard of living." There are, however, limits to such a demand for higher protective tariffs, both from agriculture and from industry, and it would be a mistake to assume that it could be resisted" by the free distribution amongst pupils of local schools and officials of the city had been given out in proper issue.

These remaining medals will be distributed with the number remaining in caring for the large crowds at the Agricultural grounds on Coronation day.

At the wind up meeting a letter of appreciation from the committee published was expressed to Jos. Church, chairman of the general committee. A motion to this effect was made by J. O. Herity and seconded by Harry Thompson.

Other letters of thanks will be sent by the committee to all who cooperated in making the day such a signal success.

MOREL MUSHROOMS PICKED NEAR STIRLING

Rains and warm weather have spurred mushrooms and other edible fungi to early growth in the rural sections of the district this year. On the farm of Miller Gault, Stirling, yesterday, several fine specimens of morels were picked by the owner.

POLICE DISPOSE OF SITUATION

A rather embarrassing situation was easily disposed of by Sergeant Arthur Harman at the police station last evening. A woman and her husband called into the station together, the woman's face showing signs of ill treatment, her mouth bleeding slightly. The wife complained that her husband had struck her in the face with his hand on Front St. Sergt. Harman scanned the situation, took a good look at the man and placed him under arrest charging him with being under the influence of liquor. Then his wife pleading she did not want her spouse locked up, but her pleadings fell on deaf ears and out of no avail. The man will face charges of intoxication in a subsequent police court.

CALL CONVERTED TO FIRE ALARM

Shrieking sirens cleared the way for apparatus of the Belleville Fire Department shortly after eleven o'clock this morning as they raced to 79 Pine Street in answer to a fire alarm. Arriving there firemen were nonplussed to discover no signs of fire, the house locked, and no visible signs of habitation.

Further investigation revealed the fact that a call had been placed for a doctor and the emergency summoner had been converted into a fire alarm.

LARGE CONSIGNMENT PICKEREL FRY PLANTED IN THE TRENT RIVER

Through the efforts of the Campbellford Fish and Game Association, the pickerel population of Trent Bay was increased this week by the addition of an estimated 2,900,000 fry liberated just below the dam at Healey Falls. The fish, about three quarters of an inch in length, were received from the Codrington Hatchery.

URGES VICTORIA PARK BE LIGHTED

At a general meeting of the Belleville Athletic Association last night, being held in the club rooms this week, a recommendation was passed urging co-operative effort between city council and the Belleville Board of Park Management to have Victoria Park relighted for the summer season and that it be introduced and passed by the general assembly. The meeting will be featured by the introduction of a new sailing committee of the club, and the launching of a program for the season's racing.

DONATIONS RECEIVED FOR CHEESE EXHIBIT

At a meeting of the executive of the Central Ontario Exhibition Association being held in the Front Street office of Mr. J. L. Irwin on Friday evening, the district prize for the Dominion-wide cheese exhibit to be held in Belleville in December will be mapped by officers.

It was announced today that small grants and donations have already been received from points throughout Canada, in such numbers that success of the exhibition, the first of its kind ever held in Canada, is virtually assured.

WAR AGAINST SPRUCE SAW FLY NEW JOB FOR LOCAL LABORATORY

Entomologists of the local Dominion Entomological Laboratory are preparing for what is expected to be their busiest year in parasitical culture and shipping from this city to the forests of the Maritimes as the result of the announced decision of the Dominion Government to declare a war of extermination on the spruce saw-fly whose progress in Canada's forests has been so much so marked during the past year or so.

Watchers to the number of 2,500 are being placed in standing timber in the east to detect the first signs of the tiny insect which will be fought with parasites sent from this city.

DISTRICT GRADUATES FROM THE O. A. C.

Included in the list of 108 graduates who received diplomas yesterday in the graduation exercises of the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph, is the name of D. A. Paul of Napanee, who has been awarded the John Bright Scholarship as highest in general proficiency in animal husbandry in the third and fourth years.

Other graduates from this district are: R. B. Aylsworth, Napanee; J. W. Parry, Bellville; F. M. Carnegie, Demorestville and E. E. Huff, Bloomfield.

Obituary

MRS. ALFRED BLAKE-FORSTER

(England)

(Formerly Miss Jane Cunnington)

The death occurred at Chingford, England on Tuesday May 18th., of Jane Blake-Forster, wife of Major Alfred Blake-Forster.

The late Mrs. Blake-Forster was formerly Miss Jane Cunnington and was born at Belleville her parents being the late Mr. and Mrs. William Cunnington, who were residents of this city for some years. The family left Belleville in 1910 and at Toronto over thirty years ago. Mrs. Blake-Forster, as a young girl was popular with many friends in Belleville and those who knew her here will deeply regret to learn of her death. The family were members of St. Thomas' Church.

Speaking of Mrs. Forster passing are her husband Major Alfred Blake-Forster who was formerly connected with Stanley Barracks, Toronto, and who has been living retired in England for about fifteen years; two daughters, Miss Mary Blake-Forster and Miss Jane Beth Blake-Forster at home in England; one son, Mrs. Elizabeth Belleville, Vancouver; three brothers, Messrs. Richard, William, and Gilbert Cunnington, all of Toronto.

ROBERT J. NICOLLS

(Toronto)

Robert James Nicolls, Lieutenant in the Toronto Fire Department, and husband of Mrs. Nicolls, nee Miss Quiggs of 33 Barton Avenue, Toronto, died suddenly in that city on Tuesday, May 18th.

Friends of the family in Belleville will regret to learn of their bereavement.

MRS. JANE HUFFMAN

(Frankford)

Frankford — (Special) — The funeral of Mrs. Jane Huffman, who died on Sunday in her 83rd year was held on Tuesday afternoon, May 18th. Rev. Lane was in charge of the services in the home and at the graveside and in Frankford cemetery Mrs. Huffman lived practically all of her life and was a member of Trinity. A son Floyd Huffman of Frankford survives. Her husband, Peter Huffman predeceased her some years ago. The bearers were J. M. Dafoe, D. R. Ketcheson; A. B. Losey; Harry Turley; Ellis Green and James Casemant.

POLICEMAN ASSISTS HOME OWNER TO BREAK INTO HIS OWN HOUSE

Under ordinary circumstances the work of a policeman is to prevent crime rather than crime breaking, but last night P. C. Arnott, on the beat, was called upon to assist in the breaking and entering of a private home in Belleville, and it was quite all right. The constable was merely assisting a local citizen in distress.

After the theatre crowd had dispersed from the downtown section of the city last night, a motor car, occupied by a lady and her husband approached P. C. Arnott on Front St. "We're in a rather difficult situation, you see are locked out of our own home," explained the husband. It seems the lady and her husband had attended the theatre, leaving their house maid to care for the welfare of the children. It seems the maid in question was very hard of hearing and the family could not arouse her, by ringing the door bell or by telephone.

To simplify matters P. C. Arnott accompanied the distressed pair to the local fire department, procured a ladder and returned to the residence. P. C. Arnott assisted the resident in gaining entrance to his own home through an upstairs window. After entrance had been gained the ladder was returned and Constable Arnott returned to his patrol duties mumbling—"What's life, first you try to discourage house breaking and the next thing you know a man has to assist it." Yes the life of a policeman is sometimes quite versatile.

WORRIED BY PIMPLES AND ECZEMA

Obtains Unblemished After Six Weeks of Kruschen

"For the past two years," writes a woman, "my face was covered with hard pimples and red blotches, and I also had eczema on my neck and arms. I tried lotions, creams and ointments, without the slightest effect. Then, fortunately, I decided to give Kruschen a trial. Within six weeks my face was without a blemish, and I have not had a sign of eczema since. I take Kruschen regularly every morning, and would not be without it."—(Mrs.) J. A.

Pimples and eczema are frequently due to impurities in the blood—brilliant poisons which sluggish body organs are failing to expel from the system. Kruschen Salts help to keep the blood pure by stimulating normally the organs, thus preventing the accumulation of impurities in the blood.

Newman J.P.N.C. and the presentation was made by Sister Twiddy. The recipient made a suitable reply.

A singing contest in which several groups representing the months of the year was staged each group displaying talent.

Dainty refreshments was then served to all present and the large birthday cake appropriately decorated was cut by Sisters Ethel Frost and Alberdina Carter (nee Frost) to the delight and two of the charter members.

During the evening Past Grand Master Chas. F. Frost, on behalf of Mrs. Frost and Family presented the two walnut gavels to the Quinte Lodge in honor of its anniversary.

REBEKAHS HOLD BIRTHDAY PARTY AT THE TEMPLE

Celebrate 24th Anniversary of Inception With Many Visitors Present

SECRETARY HONORED

Sister Asselstine Presented With Lady's Purse by Lodge

On the 22rd of May, 1913, Quinte Rebekah Lodge No. 132 was instituted in this city by Sisters May Ralston and S. Tuttle with Sister Brandt as installing officer. There were 18 charter members and of this number are at present active members all of whom have been Noble Grands. Sr. C. Frost was the first N. G. of the lodge.

At the Oddfellows Temple last evening the 24th anniversary was fittingly commemorated with a large attendance of members and visiting Rebekahs from other lodges. That the local organization has expanded and flourished can be gathered from the fact, that the membership at present is 154 in good standing. Previous to the carrying out of an interesting programme in the spacious lodge rooms a brief business was held with routine business transacted.

F. H. Chamber Presides

Bro. F. H. Chamber the Past Grand of Belleville Lodge No. 81 Oddfellows presided over the function and was certainly in his element in the right place. He has always taken an active part in the lodge ever willing to do what he could for its advancement. In opening the programme he stated, that he considered it an honor to be selected as chairman upon this auspicious occasion. He gave a concise report of the Quinte Lodge from date of its inception up to the present period particularly the number of lodges above. A two minutes silence was observed for the departed members. The programme which followed was varied in its character and interesting.

Hearty Welcome Extended

Sister Janet Asselstine, Noble Grand, being called upon extended in all a hearty welcome and requested the visitors to visit the lodge at any time.

Going to the Rebekah Assembly of Ontario was proposed and responded to in an interesting manner by Sisters Fraser of Frankford Lodge and Wade a Past Grand of Rebekah Lodge.

Bro. Bro. A. L. Geen, a Past Grand a Trustee of the Quinte Lodge proposed the toast to the Charter members was then drunk and his remarks were most fitting and cordially received. Those responding were Sister E. Neale, P.G., and Bros. R. H. Ketcheson, Past District Deputy Grand Sire, C. F. Frost, P.N.G. of the lodge.

A toast to visiting members was fittingly proposed by Bro. R. H. Ketcheson and responded to appropriately by Sister H. Naylor, Trenton, Sister Wade and Sister McGuire.

A vocal dance was becomingly executed by Miss Lorraine Claire in Highland costume and she was compelled to respond to an enthusiastic encore.

Sister Edith Sandercock, V.G., gave an interesting recitation depicting scenes at the Coronation of King George and Queen Elizabeth. Sister Margaret Bell gave readings. Bro. G. Jeanneret, P.N.G. delighted all by recitations given in his inimitable and affable manner.

Solos were rendered by Mrs. Percy Cornell, Mila May and a piano solo by Miss Phyllis Twiddy all of whom did their numbers themselves. Community singing was included and the accompanists were Mrs. James Reid and Mrs. J. F. Bradley.

Presented With Purse

At the conclusion of the program a pleasing ceremony took place when Sister Asselstine who has been for years the financial secretary of the lodge was presented with a handsome lady's purse. The address was read by Sister Mary Newman J.P.N.G. and the presentation was made by Sister Twiddy. The recipient made a suitable reply.

A singing contest in which several groups representing the months of the year was staged each group displaying talent.

Dainty refreshments was then served to all present and the large birthday cake appropriately decorated was cut by Sisters Ethel Frost and Alberdina Carter (nee Frost) to the delight and two of the charter members.

During the evening Past Grand Master Chas. F. Frost, on behalf of Mrs. Frost and Family presented the two walnut gavels to the Quinte Lodge in honor of its anniversary.

Large Crowd Attends Opening Tourist Camp

Grounds Look Attractive With Newly Painted Tables and Buildings

BAND CONCERT GIVEN

Last evening was not only officially opening night of the Belleville street city tourist camp for the season, but was also the opening time scores of citizens of Belleville took the occasion to inspect thoroughly the grounds and newly remodelled and decorated buildings. Many prominent city residents whose number taxed the capacity of the grounds took part in the opening which was conducted by Mayor R. D. Arnott, and enjoyed the open air concert given by Belleville Municipal Band under the leadership of Lt. Fred Osborne, R.C.A.

In his welcome to citizens Mayor Arnott in his brief address expressed the invitation for residents to use freely during the coming summer the facilities of the camp for outdoor lunches and picnics, as much as it is for those visitors we will be privileged to entertain during the coming season", declared Mayor Arnott.

No charge, it was stated, will be made for such use of the camp, and hot water for tea and campfires will be supplied free of charge also by Camp Superintendent Vernon Carter, it was announced. There will be no charge this season for brief stop overs of tourists and the use of the camp.

The camp this year was provided with new flowers and with its, to rank among the finest in the province. Framed by a setting of trees and flowers, the cabins and chairs have been painted a distinctive and pleasing shade of green and trimmed with black border. The interior of the four kitchens in the cabins and at the entrance first aid room and other offices, have been painted a glossy white tint, also trimmed with contrasting black. New grills have been placed in the cabins and at the fireplaces to each door. Shower bath curtains will be changed daily.

An expression of appreciation for the loyal support the camp has received from the Belleville Agricultural Board, to Jos. Imlah for the use of numerous tables, to Alderman Harry Greenleaf, chairman of Tourist and Publicity was made.

TWO SECRETARIES ARE ON TRAVELS

Newark Girls Inquire For Home Town of Maple Leafs

Visit a couple of private secretaries—"secretaries" they say, the position of the job" smiled the Misses Eloise McKibbon and Yvonne Johnstone, two attractive young ladies becoming part of the conventional camping regalia, and who claim Newark, New Jersey, as their home, to an inquisitive reporter early today.

Apparently lovers of baseball, the young ladies made inquiries as to the venue of say games in the vicinity of the north country.

"Where do these Maple Leafs play" dark-haired Miss Johnstone asked. Upon being told, they said this was their first visit to Canada, and were anxious to see the squad which is making things tough for their favorite Newark Bear team.

"We figured that this would be the best time, our professionalism would not have to die in order to see a ball game, as it is that far away we will have to pass the game up."

The fair travellers are on their way to the north country to spend a three week's vacation.

TWO TRADITIONS

Those gathered at Temple bar to watch the King's coach, with George Broadbridge, perform the traditional ceremony of handing the historic sword to the sovereign were disappointed as it was abandoned. The crowds had been waiting and then rushed to the Thames embankment, but the King's barge had left on the return procession hours later.

Outside Buckingham Palace, a young woman standing on top of a pillar lost her balance and, after struggling desperately, fell crashing to the ground. She was taken away by police.

In Cheapside the spectators broke through the cordon but remained orderly as the King and Queen passed.

The Marshals, as upright as swords the centre of their car, although almost everybody failed to see them, received avowed acknowledgment to the cheering.

Once the route to be had passed troops were withdrawn from the streets and accounts of the rain, leaving the police in control.

Greeted by Fanfare

At the Guildhall a fanfare of trumpets greeted the King and Queen. They were met with a field marshal's uniform with the blue sash of the Order of the Garter across his scarlet tunic. The Queen wore a coat of gold lace trimmed with ermine and a small beige hat.

The Lord Mayor, in his ceremonial robes of office, with a heavy ermine collar, received them at the door. Then Mrs. Wilson, the Mayoress at his side, led the procession into The Guildhall. Behind them came the Queen, Mary, the Duchess of Gloucester and the saddle missing. The bicycle was removed to the police station for analysis.

Fourteen trandents were given shelter at the police station last night, while local police discovered the rear door of a local business house insecure while making their rounds early today. The proprietor was informed of the incident, but subsequent investigations revealed nothing had been disturbed in the premises.

TRAGEDY OF THE GERMAN AIR LINER

Camera Men Caught Every Phase of Hindenburg Disaster

Plunging earthward in a flaming mass to crash a blazing funeral pyre for passengers and crew the giant dirigible of the air liner "Graf Zeppelin" the Hindenburg is brought to the public with startling realism in the newsreels of the world's greatest air catastrophe since lighter-than-air craft were invented, now being shown at the Belle theatre beginning afternoon a late audience saw the flaming tragedy in all its gruesome details. It was not so much the fact that the passengers itself, perhaps, as the startling suddenness with which death transformed stately air-liner from a cruising pleasure craft into a blazing mass of wreckage hurtling earthward.

The Queen Queen is shown cruising about New York, her passengers enjoying life on the dirigible and making preparations for the landing which are materialized, she is shown nearing the mooring mast at Lakehurst, New Jersey. On the ground, scores of the ship's crew ground crew are seen running to-ward the landing gear in readiness for the mooring operation. A guy rope is grasped. Then without warning, a shriek of flame bursts from the tail of the ship. Rapidly, so quickly that the eye cannot follow them flames envelop the dirigible. Her nose reaches high in the air for a second as the ship creeps along her length, then, with a trail of fire in her wake, crashes to the ground, columns of black smoke rising from her burning mass.

Small figures dash from flames, their crew members rush from the ship. Photographers shielding their faces from the terrible heat take their cameras. The scene is lighted with a lurid glow as the flaming wreckage, a twisted mass of blazing wreckage.

"THE ROMANCE OF BOBBY BURNS"

BACKACHE

THE very best way to restore the kidney to their normal state is to flush away the poisonous water and obtain a small amount of Acurin, which is dispensed by almost every druggist. Dr. Pierce's A-curic is harmless and should be taken after meals. It is much more potent than Buchu. Read what Thomas Wilson of 46 Dimon St., London, Ont., said: "I had many a night's backache and I was always tired in the morning. Sometimes I could not get up the stairs and often had dizzy spells. Dr. Pierce's Acurin was put to the test at the trouble. The backache was gone, my kidneys acted normally and the dizzy spells disappeared. I had more pep, too."

CONCERT ASSOCIATION

Success of the Belleville branch of the Concert Association in their past season and in the membership campaign for the season 1937-8 is something of which music lovers in this city must be proud. The permanency of the organization is assured with the loyal support of those interested in this cultural form of entertainment.

Much of the success of the local association must go of course to those musicians who have taken hold of the work and made certain that Belleville will possess an organization assuring the music-loving public of periodical visits to this city of noted musical artists. With these music leaders have also been associated a number of music amateurs whose services have been invaluable in extending the interest in music in this city and in the district.

REFUSAL OF LICENCE

Refusal of the United tates Department of Commerce of a licence for an ocean air race from the United Sattes to France on the grounds that it is too hazardous will doubtlessly be endorsed by many persons who see in such contests greater danger than usual in crossing the ocean. Others will oppose such a view. Still the idea of competition would come to the top and dominate possibly at times during the race the question of safety.

The Department is interested in transoceanic flying on the same basis as railroading and other transportation services.

Air navigators over the ocean have ample opportunity for trying out the best that is in them in voyages across the sea. It would be no way to have an ocean race marred by a disaster to a plane.

IRISHMAN DISCOVERER OF AMERICA?

An Irishman now lays claim to the Irish discovery of America nearly one thousand years before Christopher Columbus drove the Nina, the Pinta and the Santa Maria across the unknown sea in the year 1492.

William M. Carroll, said at Buffalo this and other records had been destroyed, Irish navigator, explorer and adventurer, landed in the Carolinas in the year 545 A.D. He said that while many historical and other records had been edstroyed, enough was known to justify the contention that St. Brendan and forty monks crossed the ocean. St. Brendan's Day was on Monday.

Columbus is by the verdict of historians given the honor of discovering America when he landed at San Salvador on October 12th, 1492, but there are other names mentioned and it seems not at all unlikely that some bold Vikings and adventurers may have found their way across in earlier days but without permanent result to the world, for it was the Columbus discovery which ushered in the modern world. No sooner did Columbus make the crossing but it became the constant effort of men and nations to develop trade and to find if possible a way past the newly discovered land so as to shorten the route to India. But a greater discovery than a short route was made—a new world which rounded out man's conception of this earth and modified ideas of astronomy. Perhaps Bjarni and Leif the Lucky and others as well as St. Brendan crossed the unknown sea but Columbus was the first who in the spirit of science dared the crossing and left results forever.

If there were earlier navigators and adventurers who reached America, they did possess a spirit of adventure such as man has found in all ages. Columbus confident in his science had to keep his crews buoyed up with hope, for they had fears of the terrible unknown which they thought existed in the sea through which they were sailing. Columbus had the spirit of adventure backed up by science, which is a certain guarantee of success, even though the undertaking was most hazardous.

But Columbus the discoverer would have given the palm for bravery and courage and daring to any men who may have preceded him for they had only their dauntless hearts in their breasts and they had only their boats on the waters under them as they dared the unknown.

BLIND AGAINST BANDITS

Venetian blinds are now in use to foil bandits in Quebec City a banking house has installed cold-rolled steel blinds and a steel cage of 93 square feet weighing half a ton.

So-ince changes. The principle of the blind that kept out the sun off the front parlor in old Victorian days has been put to a modern use.

THE BECKONING WAY

Down the gray old road and winding
Past fair myriad-dimpled lake,
Through rich sunshine pale or blinding
There is yet one road to take;
Toward the little town of childhood
To the spot where you were born,
Once again to roam it's wildwood
And to rise at early morn;
Breathing quiet joy and rapture
When the dew is on the green
Trying youth again to capture
Building things that might have been.
Watching every stir at daybreak
Listening for the mills first sound,
Seeing cows their quiet way make
To their old familiar ground.

There is yet this simple pleasure
For the minds of everyone
Who are wont to spend their leisure
Where their varied lives begun.
There is yet some beckoning valley
Hamlet, town or watering place
Where the young in heart may rally
See some dear familiar face.

There is calling every wanderer
From the east and from the west
That home town that lies just yonder
That he'll always count the best.

MARK HELLINGER, IN NEW YORK MIRROR, TELLS THE STORY of a bull run which has its humorous side. Locale, a farm. Hired man comes in from the fields and tells the boss farmer that the farmer's wife is being chased around a ten-acre field by the bull. At once the farmer seized a pitchfork and started post haste for the scene just slackening speed long enough to ask the hired man how long the bull had been chasing his wife. The hired man scratched his head, thought a moment and then said, "About an hour and a half, I guess." "You fool," said the farmer, why didn't you let me know long ago." Said the hired man in rebuttal, "What's the matter, is your wife short-winded?"

ONE PICTURE IS WORTH A THOUSAND WORDS, says old Chinese proverb. Recent commentators have raised this estimate to ten thousand in keeping with the times and the advance of prosperity. Certainly the Coronation ceremonies were depicted more graphically and vividly in picture than in all the many million words used to describe the colorful scene. And in our opinion silent pictures are more eloquent that sound pictures, and the clamor of many words might well be hushed in the quiet contemplation of beautiful pictures with the brain keeping pace and interpreting the high lights and soft shadows in muted tone to the soul. There is altogether too much noise in the world today, and more need of more Charlie Chaplins in the motion picture world who can express worth while ideas and life stories without a greater clamor of sound and fury and many words. So when the Chinese say that one good picture is worth ten thousand words there is a great deal of truth in it, especially in their language, judging from the tremendous number of words, signs and symbols in the Chinese alphabet.

GREAT BRITAIN'S CORONATION CEREMONIES afforded the greatest spectacle the world has even witnessed or listened in on. Radio at its highest peak of development was utilized to the full to carry the Coronation message around the world —a striking lesson that Great Britain may be "slow" as some people enviously infer, but she is sure, dignified and effective as becomes the greatest Empire the world has ever seen. The Coronation ceremonies 1937 were perfectly produced, in a royal splendour unsurpassed, without a touch of the ludicrous, which could not-help but impress friend and foe alike. From a publicity standpoint alone the spectacle was worth much more than was expected upon it. Other nations will be seen looking feverishly for signs of weakening in the British Empire have their answer now, full and complete, and the answer is an Empire united to a man—with plenty friendly neighbors.

BIG QUESTION BEFORE THE DOMESTIC BOARD NOW is what changes are we going to make to the old homestead as our part in the Home Improvement Plan.

LOOKING BACKWARD

30 YEARS AGO

May 19th. 1917.

At a meeting of the Midland Press Association at Port Hope, Mr. J. O. Herity, editor of the Belleville Daily Ontario gave a most interesting address on "efficiency."

A valuable lamb owned by Mr. Bertram Docter was killed by a dog yesterday. The owner of the dog paid for the lamb and had the dog destroyed.

Mr. Clayton H. Mastin of this city has passed with honors the final examinations at the College of Pharmacy, Toronto. Congratulations to Clayton.

Mr. Harold Edwards, late of Smith's Falls, has come to this city to reside.

The Rev. Dr. Blagrave, Rector of Christ Church, has been appointed Honorary Chaplain to the Bishop of the Diocese of Ontario.

30 YEARS AGO

May 19th. 1907.

Mr. W. B. Deacon is in Toronto today on business.

Miss Edna Millard of London, Ont., is home on a visit to her parents.

Mr. C. N. Davis of Montreal is visiting his sister, Mrs. Donald McLean, Alexander Street.

Mr. W. A. Huffman, West Belleville, is spending a short time at Napanee with his brother.

Mr. Norman L. Turner, who has been employed in the Belleville Assay Office, received word this morning his appointment as Provincial Assayer at Cobalt. Turner is a graduate of Queen's University with the degree of Master of Arts.

Mr. W. E. Schuster is spending a few days at Toronto on business.

The steamer Alexandria called at this port today and left off a large amount of freight. Later she left for Rochester.

May 19th. 1897.

Mr. Russell Weiler and Mr. Jack Philpott will leave tomorrow for Vancouver, B.C., where they will join Mr. Fred Lingham of this city and proceed with him to reside in South Africa. We wish them bon voyage and success.

Mr. Charles P. McKay has leased the Carman Opera House for a term of three years.

Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Miller of Glen Miller are registered at Hotel Quinte.

Miss Ethel Matheson of New York City is visiting at the home of Mrs. McAnnany, Dundas street.

Manager J. Baird of Hotel Quinte has a very fine mount and makes a creditable appearance when on horseback.

The Rev. Newton Hill, of Omemee, former pastor of Queen Street Methodist Church, Toronto, has been invited to become pastor of the Tabernacle Church here.

May 19th. 1887.

Quite a crowd gathered at the hospital lot last evening to witness baseball practice, but were disappointed. The lot is too small and not suited for the game. The team will practise on the Agricultural grounds tomorrow afternoon.

A night blooming Cereus belonging to Mrs. A. Carman, College Hill, flowered last night. The unfolding of the bud was watched by quite a gathering of friends from the neighborhood.

Mr. W. J. Wilson of this city has accepted a position in the offices of Messrs. De Gaye & Company, Toronto, and left for that city last evening.

The steam barge Reliance is loading lumber at the Eagle Mill for Oswego.

The Choral Union under the direction of Mr. Canfield will visit Trenton tomorrow evening and produce the oratorio "Ruth" at the Queen Street Methodist Church.

Mr. W. R. McRae has a number of young kittens without tails as his story. Being without tails is quite natural with this variety of kittens.

SPLINTERED GLASS BUCKLED STEEL SHATTERED NERVES

Lucky no one was killed — He thought his tires would last through the Summer — A Blow-out dragged this car to destruction

Why risk your life—and the lives of your family
GOLDEN PLY BLOW-OUT PROTECTION Is Free

HARDLY a day passes without loss of life on the highway. And if we gamble with human lives—and lose—you pay a terrible price. Accident insurance is some prosecution—but generally it remains for someone else to collect. Why not get the Blow-out Prevention Insurance offered by the Golden Ply in Goodrich Silvertowns!

Blow-outs give no warning

You cannot tell in advance when or where you might have blow-out. For high-speed blow-outs start inside the tire where you can't see them. Heat generated by today's higher speeds is the start of the trouble. This terrific heat may cause a separation of the rubber and fabric. A blister forms, sooner or later—BANG! it's a blow-out. And where your car might land, nobody knows.

To keep pace with today's higher speeds and the more intense heat developed in tires, Goodrich engineers invented the Life-Saver Golden Ply and built it into every Goodrich Silvertown Tire. This is a layer of special rubber and full-flooting cords scientifically treated to resist heat. By resisting internal heat, this amazing Golden Ply keeps rubber and fabric from separating. It keeps dangerous blisters from forming. And when you prevent the blister you prevent the high-speed blow-out.

Protection costs nothing

These priceless life-saving Goodrich features, plus months of extra, trouble-free mileage, are yours to enjoy the minute you have a set of Goodrich Silvertown Tires on your car. And remember—you pay no price premium for Goodrich Silvertown—not a cent more than for other standard tires.

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma was sewing on her sewing machine and I said, Hay ma, what's you think, me and Shorty Judge was having a catch and the ball went in Mrs. Sower's front window and she wouldn't give it back to us.

That is, some folkes are just naturelly mean, and Mrs. Sower is a shinging example, ma said, and I said, Sure, ma, I bet she was born mean and started getting it right away and never stopped.

Now Benny, I forbid you to talk about older people in that manner even if it's true, ma said, forbid it.

If I call her up and explain to her in a nice way that boys are only boys and balls cant be expected to go strate forever, it may have a desirabe effect, she said.

Meaning it mite make her feel like giving us our ball back, and I said, It was mostly Shorty's fault for not being able to reach up high enough to catch it. Fellows have no rite to be that short unless they want to take all the responsibility, I said.

Now that's hardly fair, ma said, people cant be held accountable for their lack of size, and others should be considerate enough to throw down to them, she said, and I said, Anyways, it was proberly all Mrs. Sower's own fault.

Well I must say I cant see my logic at all to that, ma said, and I said, Sure, ma, the ball was moving slow as anything, so she must have some awful cheep kind of glass in her window or else it would never of broke, especially with such a big noise for such a little shock.

YOUR MONEY MAY NEVER GO THIS FAR AGAIN

THE BIG, ROOMY PACKARD 120, the powerful Eight that is the sensation of the industry. It offers you the style and luxury of a Real Packard, endowing Packard identity. It will sell less than a Packard and run like a Packard! Long after your last payment has been forgotten!

The Packard 120 Club Sedan for five passengers

IF YOU are hesitating about buying a car, Packard wants to give you this friendly warning...

This year the surprising low figures shown at the right will buy you this big, luxurious Packard 120—a straight eight, 120 horsepower car, into which has gone more honest Packard quality, and more economy of operation, than anyone thought ever could be offered at such a price!

But—your money may never go this far again!

As you probably know from the newspapers, rising material and labor costs foreshadow higher motor car prices. So far, Packard has been able to offer you this rare and thrilling Packard at a sensationally low price—so low, in fact, that for three years the industry has been saying, "it can't be done."

Frankly, we don't believe these low prices can be maintained another season. We urge you to come in now and drive the outstanding car in its price class . . . to get the facts on how easily the Packard 120 may be bought . . . and to see actual figures which prove, finally and completely, that the Packard 120 is an unusually economical car to operate and maintain!

ASK THE MAN WHO OWNS ONE

PACKARD 120
Here's what a Packard 120, as illustrated, costs here in Belleville
$1805
Complete, including License
Delivered price, including all standard equipment, and state and local taxes
If you, like many others, prefer to purchase your Packard out of income, the necessary down payment on the car is only $600. Your old car, if of average value, should cover or exceed this amount, leaving monthly payments no higher than $84.86. Equally attractive monthly terms are available on the other seven beautiful Packard 120 body styles.

What's Wrong With Your Bedroom?

Psychologists claim that the room in which we sleep is important to our rest. Certainly a tastefully decorated room may give us a satisfaction that is restful to the spirit.

How often is there some detail of a room that disturbs the occupant, yet nothing is done about it. A wallpaper that isn't suitable—a badly planned closet—worn floors. It is not necessary for the housewife to feel that depleted finances prevent the righting of such wrongs. Under the Home Improvement Plan funds may be obtained from Canadian banks for improvements, alterations or additions to homes.

A bedroom in one house was changed from just another room to an interesting sleeping apartment. The walls were re-papered in soft green with silver flowers. The white woodwork was changed to silvery grey and the floors were scraped, finished and waxed. Electric outlets were placed conveniently, allowing lamps to be placed easily at useful points.

A novel arrangement of the furniture, added to the improvement made in the room. A dressing table was placed directly under the window and the beds placed on opposite sides of the room.

The rug was the same tone as the walls and chairs and bedcovers were of a soft blue. The furniture was dark walnut.

With little expense, a bedroom was obtained that was a source of pride to the owner and a room definitely created for rest.

PRESENTATION

There were one hundred, and twenty-five friends and neighbors gathered at the home of Mr. Jas. McCreary, Latta, in do honor to Mr. and Mrs. McCreary and himself who were recently married. Mr. Albert Gibson called the meeting to order and asked the bride and groom to take chairs in the centre of the room. Mrs. Donald Hall read the following address:

Dear Mr. and Mrs. McCreary:

It is with a great deal of pleasure that we meet here tonight to extend to you our congratulations and best wishes.

We have known you both for a number of years and have found you to be real friends.

Mrs. McCreary we are sure that you are still in our community for you have always been an active worker in all our organizations and we know you will still take a keen interest in the activities.

Mr. McCreary, you have been a good neighbor and friend and have always been very generous in help of any kind.

So this occasion offers us an opportunity to show in some measure our appreciation and respect, in which you are both held.

We ask you to accept this gift and hope it will be a constant reminder of your loving friends and neighbors who wish you every happiness and success.

Signed on behalf of your friends and neighbours— Horace Palmer, Mrs. Russell Gaskin.

The presentation of a handsome chime clock and a pickle caster was made by Mrs. Palmer and John Colden.

BOILS

Health Service of the Canadian Medical Association

Why do we get boils? Why is one boil frequently followed by a terrible crop of them?

Boils are due to a disease germ, oddly enough a germ which is almost always present on the human skin. If so, why does it cause a boil sometimes and not at other times, or in other people?

One important reason is that the unbroken skin is a wonderful barrier to the entrance of germs. Disease germs cannot penetrate this covering unless it be broken or injured in some way. If the skin be broken by a scratch, cut, or bruised, as by the squeezing of a blackhead or a superficial pimple, the germs are given an opportunity to penetrate to the deeper layers of the skin and a boil may result. If the infection spreads through the deeper layers a carbuncle is the result, sometimes, as in the case of a deep pinprick, the infection may go through the skin and get into the blood stream, in which case we get not a boil, but a cellulitis possibly complicated with blood poisoning.

Another factor is that of the general health of the individual, for the "resistance" of the skin. People who are rundown or debilitated, who have faulty digestion, or follow a faulty diet, who have certain constitutional diseases like diabetes, or who are overtired or worried, whose clothing is too heavy or hot, or who burn the candle at both ends, are prone to develop boils.

Once a boil has developed, great care must be taken to prevent the spreading of the infection. The boil should not be squeezed, particularly in its very stages before the "core" is formed. Boils should be kept covered with sterile dressings, not only to protect them, but to prevent the spread of pus should they spontaneously open. The unbroken skin should be kept free from contamination and the hands should be scrupulously cleansed both before and after doing any dressings.

Why do some people so frequently break out in school teams? More than one explanation has been put forward for this, one explanation being that because of crippling boils. Skin abrasions and overheating may be factors, but greater care should be taken to avoid passing infection from one player to another. Common towels and soap, borrowing of clothing, and overheating during uniforms and close contact during the rougher probably play as great a role.

In addition to the proper care of the boil itself, the general health of the patient and his hygiene should be considered. Diet, body elimination, rest, exercise, clothing, fresh air—all must be checked. Sofelimes vaccines are of considerable benefit, by raising the body resistance to this particular germ.

Questions addressed to Health Service, Canadian Medical Association, 184 College Street, Toronto, will be answered personally by letter.

DAILY SHORT STORY

Typewriter Doctor

By Ruby Douglas

The cashier of the Brookville bank looked up from his desk as Sylvia, his competent little stenographer, entered his office humming gayly.

"Why the mirth on Monday morning, Miss Sylvia?" he asked.

"The old, old reason—joy in having created something!" she told him.

"Tell me—let me be joyful, too," persisted the cashier.

He had known Sylvia since her childhood. Theirs was a friendly, family acquaintance as well as a business association.

"I will—but you won't like it," Sylvia laughed.

"Concerned the idea of getting married, I suppose."

Sylvia raised her hands in protest. "Not at all. But the effect on you will be just the same. I am going into business for myself."

The cashier listened while the girl unfolded her plan. She had come to the bank Saturday morning like a flash of lightning with the unknown element. She had recognized it at once, as an inspiration, and all through the week-end she had been turning it over in her mind until now it was a concrete plan all formulated and ready to put into action.

"I shall be a typewriter doctor, I gather," said the cashier when she had finished her outline, and there was an attractive way to call it. There is no one in town who can mend a machine. You know yourself what a nuisance it is when the typewriter gets out of order. We have to send to the city and not only pay the mash expenses but wait till he finds it convenient."

"Oh, I think you have hit upon a splendid idea. I—of course we hate to lose you, but we can't expect a girl with your ability and ambition to go on working for some one else at perhaps twenty dollars a week. Go to it Miss Sylvia, and we will give you all the support we can."

Thus Sylvia severed her connections with the Brookville bank but she took with her all the good will of the officers and employees who, one and all, promised to help her to get launched in her new venture.

She found a diminutive office on the main street and called herself a "Typewriter Doctor." She had a native mechanical genius and more than a little practical business ability.

It was not long before Sylvia was very busy, and she had found it necessary to make a few trips to the city in order to learn from the makers of various machines a number of intricate little peculiarities of their own typewriters. But all was quick and determined to succeed. Nothing seemed too difficult. She was happy and busy and she was experiencing the real thrill that comes with achievement.

One morning a young man appeared in her office.

"Good morning," she said cheerily.

The visitor explained that he was a writer and that he lived on a farm outside the limits of the city. His typewriter had become very badly in need of parts and repairs while he was in the middle of some work for a weekly publication. He asked whether he might bring in his machine and perhaps leave it for a few days. That was his problem.

Sylvia assured him that that was her work and she had several machines on hand that she could let him choose from. For by this time she had not only gone into the business of renting typewriters, but she had secured the agency of a neat little portable machine and was making handsome commissions on this.

If the young man recognized another finger of fate pointing the way to her pathway she did not admit it. She confessed to herself that she was glad Mr. Bob Saunders would have to return for his machine. She liked him.

In a day or two, Bob Saunders appeared again. He was buoyantly happy.

"You are a mascot as well as a good typewriter doctor, Miss Bates," he said.

"How do you know?" asked Sylvia, for his machine was not ready.

"I have sold the story I wrote on the rented machine for more than the price again of what I have even received before from the same publication. I've had inspirations by. "Now I can well afford to get a new one."

He remained in the little office longer than was necessary, but Sylvia had a job on hand and was lost in admiration of the deft, easy way in which she went about mending this machine, adjusting here, tightening there.

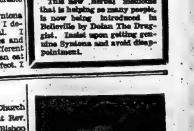
It became a habit—watching her. "Could you—perhaps—doctor the typewriting machine in your office, Sylvia?" he asked her one day after many weeks.

"I—might, if it needed it," admitted Sylvia.

"I think my you would—we—we could make a success—together," Bob wrote letter than he talked.

But Sylvia managed to undermine that. And her response was all that he had hoped for.

"And, because the doctor needs a partner," she told him afterwards.



Dorchester Lady Delighted With Syntona Results

Health Was So Poor She Could Not be Left Alone. Tried Several Medicines Without Results. Declares Syntona Made her Feel Like a New Woman.

Here is the splendid experience of Mrs. W. T. Hodgman, well-known lady of Dorchester, Ont., and after you read it you will know why she is so happy here.

"I was having awful trouble with my kidneys and stomach," said Mrs. Hodgman. "For years my kidneys called me up many times each night and I had dizzy aching pains in my back. My stomach also gave me a lot of trouble. It seemed every morsel of food would cause terrific attacks of gas and heartburn. Finally I became very nervous and rundown. I could neither sleep nor be left alone. I tried so many medicines without getting relief that I got so discouraged I felt miserable all the time.

"When I read of what Syntona was doing for so many people I decided to give it a good trial. I have taken, in all, five bottles and really now life seems so different. I feel like a new woman. I can eat anything now with no after-effect. I sleep soundly the whole night through and my nerves are the best they ever were. The aches and pains have all left me and I feel as well in every way. I am only too glad to recommend Syntona to any one suffering as I did."

MRS. W. T. HODGMAN

This new herbal medicine that is making so many people well is now being introduced in Belleville by Dobbs The Druggist. Inded upon getting Syntona Sylsona and avoid disappointment.

BONARLAW

Bonarlaw—At St. Mark's Church on Sunday evening last Right Rev. John Lyons, D. D. Lord Bishop of Ontario, preached to a large congregation which filled the church to overflowing and administered the Holy Rite of the Laying on of hands or Confirmation, to eleven candidates.

During the season was read by Canon W. G. Swayne, Rector of St. Mark's.

In his splendid and inspiring sermon Bishop Lyons stressed the importance of individual effort on the part of members of the Christian Church.

During the offertory Mr. Baker sang, "When the World Forgets", accompanied by Mrs. W. G. Swayne.

Sylvia Sidney and Henry Fonda sweethearts of "The Trail of the Lonesome Pine" return in this Belle Lamour film dramatic-packed drama "You only live once".

IT'S FUN TO PAINT WITH "CILUX"...

More and more people are bringing color into their homes, their lives! Some jobs are jobs for a Master Painter. And people find that as long as he uses paints developed by chemical experts, as in the Canadian Industries Limited laboratories, painting costs less than they think!

But there are lots of other little jobs about the house a man can do himself. The best tip is to drop into a C-I-L dealer and pick up one or two color cards. Do it tomorrow!

AT THE BELLE

Conflict, Thrills, Romance Vie in "You Only Live Once"

The saga of a woman who battled a whole nation by the side of the man she loved is depicted in a series of sharp, telling strokes in "You Live Only Once." Walter Wanger's United Artists picture which stars Henry Fonda and Sylvia Sidney and begins a two days engagement at the Belle Theatre tomorrow (Thursday), matinee daily.

Fritz Lang, the brilliant Viennese director who guided Miss Sidney through her histrionic paces in "Fury," again handles the megaphone on this production which is described as a stark, human drama which presents to startle Belleville and vicinity audiences with its realism and thrill them with its beautiful love story.

The screen play by Gene Towne and Graham Baker casts Miss Sidney as Joan Graham, who marries Eddie Taylor, a paroled convict and a "three time loser," who tries desperately to go straight.

Fights for Life

Unjustly convicted of a bank robbery in which several people are killed, he is condemned to die in the electric chair. Eddie makes a savage fight for life and for the young wife she's by him while he is hounded across the country like a hunted animal.

TORCH OF FREEDOM

In the next quarter century the big problems will be problems of government, he said. "So I say to you, young men, be in government . . ."

The Prime Minister said: "I have had my hour. I pass soon into the shades, but my life lies before you like a boundless ocean.

"We are passing, you are gyeppo of the future. We vest in you the duty of guarding and safeguarding what is worthy and worthwhile, in our past, our heritage and your tradition. You are in charge of our honor and of all our hopes."

Great Trust Passed On

It was a great trust and unless you rise to the trust there'll be little left for you or for your children to enjoy," he said. "And it will be the brotherhood of man today is often denied and derided and called foolishness. But it is in fact one of the few things in the world which God has chosen to continue the war and the world is profoundly in daily.

"We may excite it; we may deny it, but we shall find no rest for ourselves nor will the world until we acknowledge it as the ultimate wisdom."

LAST REMAINING

Caracasonne said such relaxations of the French marriage laws were granted only in the cases of high dignitaries. French law requires legal publication of banns—or notice of intention to wed—15 days before the ceremony in the town hall. Removal of marriage registers from town halls also is prohibited by French law. Therefore special permission from the country Chateau ceremony.

The invitation list and names of the wedding witnesses were expected to be announced today or tomorrow.

Double Wedding Party

A double wedding party to get around the absence of members of the Royal Family was understood to have been planned. One party would be at Cande after the ceremony, and the other at Wasserlonnig, in Luxembourg, where the Duke said he would honeymoon after the Duke of Kent and the Princess Royal were married. Lord Jellicoe and his bride shortly after.

Prince Paul of Yugoslavia, a close friend of the Duke, also was reported planning to attend the double celebration.

Ten rooms at the Chateu de Cande where the Duke and Mrs. Warfield are staying during preparations for overnight guests to the wedding. The number would expected to exceed a baker's dozen.

(A report from London said the Duke's party of 16 would include there would be about 20 guests from the British royal family, all personal friends of the Duke.)

Only Selected Guests

The guests were thought likely to include Mr. and Mrs. Herman Rogers of New York; Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Bedaux of New York and Paris, owners of the Chateau; Lord Brownlow, former gentleman-in-waiting to King Edward, and Lady Brownlow; Baron and Baroness Eugene de Rothschild, his Austrian uncle; Capt. Michael Wardell, London publisher; A. G. Allen, his attorney and Mrs. A. G. Merryman of Washington, D.C., Mrs. Warfield's friend.

London, May 19 (AP)—"There will be twenty guests from England at the wedding all of close personal friends of the Duke." Dudley Forward, squerry to the Duke of Windsor, told newspapermen today.

The Duke is divorced Mrs. and not in any official capacity," he added.

Provided, 25-year-old son of Sir Dudley Povoked, arrived in London from the Chateau de Cande yesterday. His visit was understood to be in connection with arrangements for the wedding.

PIERS IS CARRIED FROM RING AFTER J. KATAN WINS

Reverse Body Slam Knocks Wind Out of Little Dutchman

DUNLOP LOSES

Eli Fischer And Garobaldi Stage 45 Minute Draw in Semi-Final

Although John Katan, the former Canadian wrestling champion, up his fourth victory in a Belleville ring, when he pinned Henri Piers, the Dutch whonk, here in the combat in the main bout of last night's doings at A. C. Hall, the show at the Belleville Arena, the semi-final bout of the night, also saw two first rate men, Ralph Garobaldi, brother of the famed Gino Garobaldi of grapeshot fame, battled to a 45 minute draw with Eli Fischer, another local boy in Belleville wrestling fans and from Rutgers College, Brooklyn, the semi-final bout of the evening figuratively stole the show, that is according to some rabid wrestling fans, who later stormed the ring to repeatedly object to Katan's unorthodox tactics, which finally stood in bewilderment as Piers was carried from the ring after having been the victim of a reverse body slam, left the referee windless to determine the main scrap of the evening.

Conditioning began the crowds the wrestling bouts staged at the Belleville Arena under the auspices of Promoter Jack Corcoran Queensbury A.C., Toronto, were the best three-and-a-half hour exhibition afforded the fans last night when action packed matches were ushered from the time Belleville's arch-villain, Al Dunlop, was disqualified in the opening match, until reigned supreme over the multitude when Piers was left lying prostrate and helpless in the main bout, but again it can be reiterated, that the semi-final bout of the evening stole the proceedings and was packed with action and superb wrestling.

Piers a Favourite

From the outset, when Announcer Frank Domenico introduced the pandemonium reigned as each attraction, Henri Piers, the lithe and agile Dutch middleweight, was acknowledged the patrons' favourite. Katan gained the initial hold of importance in the late-grey haired and the boys settled gaunt to the show by rolling atop Referee Jack Corcoran who was "downed", without a count, however. Katan proved the aggressor during the early part of the bout with continued hammer-locks, that all but wrenched the arm from The Dutchman, weathered these attacks, to gain his favourite hold of the flying scissors, forcing Katan to take to the ropes for protection. The burly Belleville grappler to advantage a strip of adhesive tape wound his wrist and with it a continued rubbing across. Piers' eyes succeeded in finding him and leaving the Hollander an easy victim for an inside Japanese toe hold, that resulted in the first fall credited to Katan. The irritated patrons stormed to their feet in protest when referee Forbes regarding the employment of the adhesive tape on the part of the Katan but with no avail. Piers personally objected to the use of the adhesive tape around Katan's wrist, when the second round opened, the latter pleading for the use of the tape for the third man in the ring, that resulted in Piers receiving a broken nose—methods and personally tearing the bandage from the wrist of his opponent, to the great delight of the crowd literally howled with glee and satisfaction. Piers continued to be the aggressor, gained a flying body scissors and dropped Katan to the mat for a count and win the second fall to even matters. Piers returned to the favourite and again gained his favourite flying scissors hold and seemingly headed towards certain victory, when suddenly Katan toppled him over backwards, the force of the impact rendering Piers breathless and leaving him an easy victim for a reverse body slam. Piers had to be carried bodily to his dressing room, unable to rise from the sudden onslaught.

Fischer Strong Wrestler

Although Eli Fischer, the Brooklyn, N.Y., grappling product drew the wrath of the patrons upon his head for repeated infractions in the semi-final, the tall lithe German looked to great advantage in his battle with Ralph Garobaldi, in the semi-final Garobaldi's ability to absorb punishment and return to prove the aggressor made he repeatedly forced Garobaldi's favourite hold was the Japanese rolling cradle hold, which he repeatedly employed with marked success, while Fischer used more punishing holds, such as the bear-hug, Strangle hold and arm scissors. Whenever Garobaldi attempted the application of his favourite hold, however, he forced the burly Fischer to take to the protection of the ropes. The bout was declared with continued action and proved a crowd pleaser, one that is well worth repeating.

Continued unorthodox practices on the part of Al Dunlop resulted in his disqualification in the preliminary bout of the evening and saw Joe Maynard's hand raised in victory by Referee Forbes, despite the fact the latter two were standing outside of the ring. Dunlop lived up to his previous appearances locally and reverted to gouging and fooling when it was established he could not cope with the strength of the slow and methodical Maynard.

During the progress of the show it was announced that the next wrestling show at the Arena Gardens would be held next week at which time other high-class wrestlers known throughout the continent would appear.

FIELD OF THIRTEEN EXPECTED FOR 78TH KING'S PLATE RACE

Toronto, May 19.—(CP)— Battle honors, four consecutive and the prestigious King's Plate will be predicted today for the 78th running of the King's Plate at Woodbine Park before an estimated crowd of 20,000. It is generally believed that the field of 12 to the post for the oldest consecutively run race in the continent.

The gamesome, Red Pirate, Goldilure, Slycat and Golden Silence have gained entry, and are ready for battle over the mile and furlong route. All they need is a fast pace to produce honors before being pronounced fit.

Goldilure a three year old chestnut colt by Sweepster-Golden Lure, is in top form for the race, after a gruseas won last year by Nonsweep for H. C. Hatch of Aghincourt. The colt was trained well and provided rain does not turn the turf into slop, rallied through traffic jams and out of probable starters call him "hot." Yesterday Goldilure was given a slow breeze and today will go out for a final test to assure Billy Stanglen, Hatch trainer, that the spring's work has not been in vain.

Young Aboard Goldilure

Stirling Young, who has piloted horses successfully on Canadian and American tracks, will be aboard the fleet colt when the bugle blows for the field on the first.

Red Pirate, hope of R. S. McLaughlin of Oshawa, in his first stake victory, has shown top form for the assignment. Harry Giddings, Oshawa trainer, says the Pirate colt died more plate winners than any thoroughbred in the province, and which horse he will name to accompany the grandson of Sir Barton is expected, however, that Silver Jubilee, another colt boa'ing the Oshawa "R" colors would take the call.

C. J. Smallman's "Sleeper"—Slycat—has gained support during recent weeks by a display of stamina rarely seen on tracks as a juvenile and failed to hit the winner's circle, but has been consistently running a lively and a good break might carry him to the fore.

Jack Bradley, trainer of the Erindale, stable's Golden Silence hopes that the colt will repeat the form unearned sort of Rockville-Lady Creat travels best, and if the pace is not fast enough he romped home an easy winner in the Clarendon Plate, a two-year-old feature.

TORONTO HURLER ALLOWS TWO HITS TO DEFEAT BEARS

Leafs Cut Full Game From Newark's Lead in Loop

A TIGHT RACE

Only Five Games Separate First And Seventh Placed Teams

(By the Associated Press)

Newark and Toronto battling merrily for first place in the International baseball league, are far from being the only clubs with designs on the league leadership.

So tight is the race that only 5 1-2 games separate the first place Bears and the seventh place Syracuse Chiefs. Only club which doesn't figure in the scramble is Buffalo, at six of seven straight and first place, is Baltimore. The Orioles are 8 1-2 games behind the leaders.

Joseph Jagaillas Mulligan, a large Englishlander, gave the Maple Leafs a shove toward first place by limiting the Bears to two hits yesterday, Monday. Jagaillas was a little wild, he passed six batters, but until Babe Dahlgren hit a double in the seventh he was unhittable. The Leafs got all their runs off Vito Tamulis and it was 4-0 to the lefthander's lead to 1 1-2 games.

Montreal Royals, opening a series against Jersey City Giants, won a tight one, 5-4, over Rochester Giant leftfielder, gave the Maple Leafs a shove toward first place by limiting the Bears to two hits yesterday. "THE BRIGHT HILL"

by Clarissa Fairchild Cushman

It stopped him, and he turned, Donald, white faced, stiffened unconsciously against the wall, but Kerin stood well away from it, her head lifted, her back straight as she knees no longer trembling. "I have something to say—and I want you to listen to it. No— just listen for once, Carl. I do you the courtesy of listening to you."

"Well, I'm listening." Out the thin lips came the words, "I'm all set to. What is it?" He was tired, tired. There was nothing, anywhere, a man could really tie his life to.

"It's this." The clear strength of her voice surprised her; surprised Carl, for he opened his eyes and regarded her and said aloud, "I'm not a servant to be shouted at, Carl, to pick up your overcoat and cook you a meal because I'm told to. I am your wife. I am at your service only because I'm willing to be. I'm not to be shouted at, and Donald's not to be shouted at." Any wisher should be considered, my judgment in our mutual affairs should have equal authority with yours. That is—if I'm a wife, and not just poorly paid servant."

"Paid! That's it. That's always it—"

"That's enough! I know what you are going to say. I've heard it a thousand times. I don't need to hear it now." A small glimmer of admiration in Carl's blue eyes, but he did not affect her. "I think once food for all that Donald and I should receive from you the consideration that your work gets, the courtesy that every casual stranger gets. When you decided to go to Russia, I did all I could not to be in your way, all I could to help you, all I could to enter in to your problem. Not once did you consider my problem then, not once have you considered it since you came back. I insist that you do. That's all."

There was a silence. "Is that all?" asked Carl, "You had better get it all off your mind."

Kerin looked at him, a curious hardness running into her mind at the sound of his voice that at once slowly repulsed her, so indifferently did not consider her. She thought with a strange dispassionate clarity that his mind definitely did not include her. A thousand words would still be futile.

He was saying, "—I'll talk for a change. You resent my attitude. Well—I resent your. I resent the attitude that you're aroused in the boy against me. What do you call this that you're doing—making a scene with me right before him? Well, I'm not going to have Donald grow up under your coddling, and your setting him against me. Go on and take your job. Get out, if you want. But Donald's another matter." He turned to the boy, who was standing, white and silent, hanging on his words. "Do you understand that?" He turned back to Kerin. "Think it over—and come to your senses."

The door closed behind him.

For an instant Donald stood still, but as the footsteps died away he left the wall with a rush to throw himself on Kerin.

"Oh, mother—you won't go? Say you won't go! Oh, mother!" He pulled at her in a kind of frenzy. "Mother! Oh, mother! Say you won't go. You won't leave me, will you?"

Kerin hushed him, with her hands, her voice. "Listen, Donald. I never have to, now. You're going to be afraid of. Put on your things that required up thought. She was down the stairs a bare ten minutes behind Donald.

But there had been time for Donald to tell the news. Susan and Alan both met her at the door. Susan was not stormy. She was white. She pushed Kerin, who was too breathless to speak, into a chair. "Sit down. I sent Donny out with the children. Sit right there, Kerin." Then she drew up a chair and took Kerin's hands in hers. "Kerin dear, listen, love. Are you listening? There's a train at two-thirty. Why don't you take it?"

"I am." Her voice was tight, but her eyes, lifted to Alan, were unfaltering. "Alan—Carl said I could not take Donny."

Alan only looked at her, giving with his quiet eyes what reassurance he might. He could have been silent, dumfounded, before Donald's breathless, hysterical words and the terror he showed.

Susan patted Kerin's workroughened hands. "But that's ridiculous, Kerin. You must take Donald, of course. You know Carl, Kerin—how made he is one day and it's all forgotten the next. Listen. Alan can go to the bank for you right now, and get some money, and buy your ticket. Have you your check book?"

Kerin nodded, but the moment after she shook her head. "No—Susan! How can I go like this? Susan—Susan! Can't you just—just—"

"Kerin dear, let's not waste time. Write Alan a check. Send a love: You'll need the money anyway, and Alan we can talk."

As she was speaking, Susan was opening Kerin's black purse and drawing out the check book. And pen was in Kerin's hand.

"Make it for two hundred dollars, Kerin." It was Alan who spoke. Kerin looked up at him for a moment, and then she wrote.

For Susan's sake Kerin tried to be a little, and Susan, watching her, silent for once, could tell by her eyes that the sound of Donald's voice, laughing and natural with the other children in the kitchen, was a more final argument to Kerin than any words could have been. At any rate, when Alan came back he found Kerin sitting on the bed, while Susan was putting into Kerin's suitcase from her own wardrobe the things Kerin in her haste had forgotten.

Alan folded Kerin's hand over an envelope. "Your tickets, your change. Yes, Kerin," his bold lighting ened on her fingers. "I do really believe it's the best thing to do, to go. It's too bad to do it just this way, but if you go back and argue some more, what then? And I confess I was shocked at what Donald said, or rather, at what he felt. Better—sorrier, to get the boy away for a while. In another year he will be older, the whole thing may blow away. To stay here may fix upon the child a permanent antagonism. That's —" he patted her hand—"that's my belief, Kerin." He pulled out his watch. "And if you are going to catch that train, you've got to go."

Kerin drew a long hard breath; "Alan, you'll see Carl? You'll tell him? I can't seem to make him understand. I—I never seem to get more than a sentence out."

Alan smiled a little grimly. "I'll tell him. Don't worry. Well, is your mind set?"

She looked up at him, tears behind her tired eyes, a numbness in her tired brain. "I guess so, Alan. I'll just write Carl a note."

Susan on strangely silent feet, produced paper saying nothing in the critical moments of Susan's life, and left it to Alan.

Kerin wrote: "Dear Carl—I am sorry to do it just this way, but you must see that anything except my going is impossible. Also, it seems to me that Donald should go with me. I am his mother. Kerin."

Then the four of them were in the taxi, with Kerin's face pressed against the glass, Donald's hand against his mother's. Was Carl there—or there? If he were, she must stop the taxi and run to him. Anything, anything, but this running away! Yet even as she searched, she shuddered for fear she would see him.

And as the train pulled out, with straining eyes she and Donald looked beyond Alan, beyond Susan's tearful face, with identical expressions of fear and incredulity. He must be there. One could not escape Carl, not that easily.

INSTALLMENT TWENTY

Kerin had always thought of New York as an ogre friend. It was here that she had met Carl, while he was studying law and she was a junior in college and both were interested in settlement work; but no memory of that time entered in her mind as she and Donald came out of the station and met the blast of the August city face to face. Donald, ill restored breathless and speechless by Kerin herself scurried for a taxi and hurried to the safety of the hotel her father had always used on Twenty-eighth Street. From its protection, looking out at brick and asphalt, and a hurrying world she smiled, an uncertain brief smile, caught her lower lip in her teeth in the gesture of pleasure and anticipation habitual to her. There was uncertainty in her pleasure, regret in her anticipation; yet for all that she could not smother the sense that she stood now an independent woman, with adventure before her. She would go out, and with the wondering Donald renew her acquaintance with the city.

But it was not familiar; it was bigger, and oddly desolate, as if everyone who could had deserted it. And it was hot, hot, with fierce wavering heat waves from brick and cement and scorching asphalt. She escaped gratefully into the relative coolness of one of the great stores along Sixth Avenue, and following Donald's passion, capitulated to his escalators. She found herself among the dishes, Donald fats for two seventy-nine, for five ninety-four, and "but don't look at those! for four hundred and ninety-four. Brilliant with color, delicately sprigged, or severely classical, all these sets were within her grasp. No, not all; one. She must choose.

"Now, you know, Donny, we could buy just enough for us two of different sets. Say, one set for breakfast—the yellow sprigs! one for breakfast. Can't you think? And one set for lunch—I do so love that gay one with the red geraniums on it—and one for dinner—why, no date, perhaps that plain cream color?"

Donald looked at his mother with his quick capacity for understanding her. "Then we could always tell which we were eating—breakfast or dinner or lunch."

Kerin squeezed his arm. "Donny you are such fun!"

Such a fun—such fun, to look, and to know she could buy, and not to buy. They ate, extravagantly it seemed to Kerin, and returned to the hotel early for Donald's sake. At the door there was again that subconscious reluctance to go in, that slight bracing of Donald's hand that moment at the desk when they asked for the mail with an identical look of anxiety in their eyes, that moment of release when there was nothing—nothing. The hand of Carl had not stretched out.

Yes, this was fun, this shopping around; but expensive. She had all the clothes to get. Tomorrow she must buy. But not from Ma' Alice, she told herself; they would be just too expensive.

So on to-morrow she went to some fascinating shops—long-waisted dress shops she had seen, and the clerks called her dearie, and told her she look dinghy-elegant in her black lace, don't she, Sadie? Sure. Like a lady. Then she just what I said to Modom. In one store she was entirely prevented from looking over a delicious rack of fifty-dollars-marked for clearance, by the sheer scorn in the voice of her saleslady, a platinum semi-embonpoint, rather marked down for clearance herself. "Listen, dearie," the platinum lady said, "clothes like them ain't for people like you, Dearie—do you know how long I been selling clothes? Fifteen years, and I've been with Modom ever since he began when I was—was a mere child.) And if there's one thing I know, it's my masses and my classes. Now this here—at thirteen seventy-five—"

It was confusing, and discouraging. Kerin felt, after she had escaped the last dearie, that she hadn't the courage to encounter another, no matter how marvelous the clothes in the window looked. Besides, when she tried them on she could see, for over her shoulder in the glass, Sadie's accusing eyes. The next day they went to the aquarium and the zoo; and that was the beginning and the end of the third day. So the next morning Kerin took up the card Sue had given her for Mary Alice.

TARZAN'S QUEST

(Metropolitan Newspaper Feature Service)

Sborov was terrified as Tarzan bore him along the arboreal trail, leaping from tree to tree, from tree to trailing vine. "Take me down," he screamed. "I'll tell you both." "It will be you who will fall us if you don't keep still," the ape-man warned.

Suddenly Tarzan halted one broad bough. He listened intently, then sniffed the air like a hound on a scent trail. "Then the Jungle Lord dropped to the ground. "Follow this path," he told Sborov. "I'm going on ahead."

Again he swung treeward.

His sensitive nostrils brought him the scent of two white men. These, he presumed, were Brown and Tibbs. So, Jane was no longer with them! What had become of her? Tarzan's jaw set grimly. That information he would get from Brown before he killed him! . . .

Brown and Tibbs plodded on through the jungle, weary and disheartened. To them it appeared that fate was a mysterious sky-schemer, picking off the members of their expedition one by one. "Which one of us will be next?" the aviator wondered aloud.

WALL STREET CLOSE

New York, May 18—(AP)—Farm implements, oils, coppers and a few rails closed firmly on the irregular gains today as the rest of the stock market dropped.

Price swings in most sections of the Market were erratic. Slight gains at the opening were extended but as the session progressed shares fell back to show net losses of fractions to a point or more. Late trading brought some improvement from the lows.

Trading was at the rate of about 2,000,000 shares for the day.

Board Room Gossip

As supplied to Bigger and Crawford by Financial Service.

MARKET COMMENT

For the time being, the public has lost confidence in the market, a number of factors combining to bring about this situation. When consideration is given to the sound business structure, it can safely be stated that a bear market is not in the immediate offing. Consequently traders and investors are being presented with an attractive buying opportunity at the present time but it is only the exception who has the courage to acquire equities during a dull and declining spell.

For example, the paper stocks have declined appreciably from their high of the year. The outlook for this industry is brighter than ever but during a reactionary trend the favorable factors in any situation remain in the background. The equipment companies are doing an excellent business with substantial orders on hand and with every likelihood of additional business accruing in the coming months. The outlook for implement companies is promising. Several favorable dividend declarations have been made within the past few weeks.

Many additional factors can be cited to show that there is good cause for market optimism but the public will not be tempted back into the market until a good advance occurs. Nothing tends to restore confidence as quickly as falling prices.

The Financial World in an article this week on the outlook for the gold stocks states that barring a change in the price of gold, earnings in the current year should approximate 1936 levels. The journal estimates that on $30 gold Dome Mines could earn $1.19 a share; Hollinger 85 cents; Teck Hughes 36 cents and Wright-Hargreaves $1.15 a share. It adds however that this estimate has been prepared as information and does not express a prediction of what might—or is likely to—happen.

Mines has been on the future price of gold in recent weeks than on any other single subject. In all cases, the writers have taken various attitudes none of which bear any official backing. Leopold Joseph & Sons of London, England in their monthly letter, have the following to say on this subject in part:—

"Still one nation which cannot afford to see gold suffer is Britain. The producers of the Rhodes, Africa, Australia and Canada, would be flung back to economic chaos if gold were ever to slip or be forced down to a level that made the recent prosperity of the mines no longer possible. Employment and tax yield would suffer so drastically that industrial chaos would be the result.

"The ideal solution to this conflict of interests would be the world re-establishment of gold on currency rations allied to the present gold price. Nations would thus preserve their bookkeeping gold profits; the prospecting miniries would be maintained in their prosperity; commodities in general would come up, as it were, to the firm gold datum. The world would again be on a good working basis."

The desire generally is for the maintenance of the gold price at $35 an ounce as a lower level would not only arrest any market recovery, but what is more serious it would arrest the recovery business feels.

Jellicoe Has Good Drill Results

Diamond drilling has located important ore conditions 1,000 feet east of the highway on a shoot outlined by drilling some time ago. Two holes, 400 and 400 feet apart, have yielded important ores. A third hole, sited in between the two shoots, has been completed yesterday. This work indicates another high grade lense in the main ore zone with an additional 800 feet of ore remaining to the east boundary. Shaft sinking has attained a depth of 65 feet with continuation by means of permanent power plant scheduled to take effect at once.

Sisco

The directors of the Sisco Gold Mines are scheduled to meet on Friday next to take action in respect to the quarterly dividend. Some directors feel that Sisco can be placed on a regular 6 cents a share basis now but in quarters where the affairs of the company are well understood a five cent declaration is considered likely. Sisco net inter. Pet. 36%.

Imperial Oil reports for 1st quarter net might reach 7 1-2 cents for the second.

Hold Your Stocks

There are many major forces at work viewing the longer future which make for higher values. In the selected common stocks, states Babson's in their current letter, the prime importance is the gradual but insistent drift toward a lower dollar value. Behind this monetary tide is running strong. These are fundamentals that must not be ignored. Do not be swept away by the present unsettlement that is receiving wide publicity. Planned economy seems bound to bow eventually. The material facts of action and reaction stresses Babson in large type. While underlying forces are gathering momentum be sure that you have taken every precaution to protect yourself from inflation over the more distant future.

Obituary

WILLIAM McQUAIDE
(Kingston)

William McQuaide, 73, a life-long resident of Kingston, died at the Hotel Dieu Hospital on Tuesday morning. He had been confined to hospital for a week. His wife died and he suffered a fractured hip as the result of a fall. Mr. McQuaide was born on Barrie Street, Kingston, died on Russell street and lived on that street practically all his life.

In his earlier years Mr. McQuaide was a carpenter by trade and later in life his business was that of a member of St. Mary's Cathedral and was well known there. His wife predeceased him sixteen years ago as did a daughter, Mary, three years ago. Surviving him are six sons, Edward and Bertram of Belleville, Stanley, Thomas and Frederick of Kingston and Leo of Ottawa; three daughters, Ethel of Belleville, Mrs. R. J. McEvoy and Miss Eleanor McQuaide of Windsor; four sisters, Mrs. A. Robinson of Toronto and Miss A. McQuaide, Mrs. A. Gale and Mrs. T. Marchand, all of Kingston, N.Y.

LOUIS FILMORE PURDY
(Kingston)

Louis Filmore Purdy founder of the Tweed Milling Company, Ontario Street, now carried on by three sons, died at his home, 90 Edgehill Street on Monday following a long illness. Deceased, 87 years of age, had lived in Kingston for the past year, coming here from Trenton, where he had formerly resided. He had been in the lumber business at Coe Hill for more than twenty years, the firm of S. L. Purdy Lumber Company being well-known in that section of the country. In 1931 Mr. Purdy retired from active business and lived in Trenton until last year.

The late Mr. Purdy was born at Castleton, Ontario. He was a member of the Masonic Order of the Independent Order of Foresters and of the United Church. Surviving him are his wife, formerly Emma Parkhouse of Castleton; four sons, Claude of Kingston, Gordon of Hamilton, Leslie of Belleville and Harold of Kingston; one daughter, Mrs. C. S. Alyea of Trenton and one brother, W. F. Purdy of Peterborough.

CONCERTED ATTACK ON SPRUCE SAWFLY

OTTAWA, May 19.—(CP)—Government officials are renewing their attack on the spruce sawfly, the insect which imperils the raw material of the whole Canadian newsprint industry.

Surveying ravages caused by this European insect, which kills trees by eating the leaves, Dr. Arthur Gibson, Dominion Entomologist, declared today:

"The sawfly is undoubtedly the gravest menace to the Canadian Forestry industry. Forestry men now recognize it as a danger of greater gravity than forest fires.

"By the end of this year the sawfly will have destroyed 7,000 square miles of spruce in the Gaspe Peninsula alone, 71 has passed through New Brunswick and into Nova Scotia and is moving westward toward Ontario.

BY-LAW REFERRED BACK

Kingston, Ont., May 19.—(CP)—After deciding Monday to pave Princess street from Division to the city council, at another meeting on Tuesday evening, referred the matter back to the board of control. It was found the by-law had not been properly passed, as it called for requiring a two thirds vote of the council instead of a majority as has been started immediately and would entail an expenditure of $13,500.

Port Credit, Ont., May 19 (CP)—Designed to make someone's face red, the following advertisement was published by an irate motorist here whose car was booted by officers of the law: "Will the person or persons who removed five flags in front of Town Hall car please apply box 630, Port Credit, for sixth flag to complete set."

St. Thomas, May 19 (CP)—Premier Hepburn will be host next month to A. G. Street, author of "Farmer's Glory" and other books. Mr. Street is coming to Ontario from England on the invitation of his friend, Hon. Duncan Marshall, Ontario Minister of Agriculture.

COL. DREW WARNS

the Lewis outlaws from Washington.

No Issue with Tories

"I have not taken issue with the Conservative Party. I do not take issue in any way with the labor policy given at that of the Conservative Party by Mr. Howe. No one questions the fact that the Conservative Party stands for law and order. No one questions the right of labor to bargain collectively. No one questions the right of any Citizen citizen to join any lawful organization.

"The position I have taken in regard to the C.I.O. is in no way inconsistent with the broad labor policies expressed on behalf of the Conservative Party. My objection to the course followed is that there has been no statement of policy on behalf of the party in regard to the C.I.O.

Dominion Clear Statement.

"The steady penetration into Canada of this organization is not answered by any broad statement as to the rights of labor which have been so clearly established by law and custom that they are universally recognized by Conservatives and Liberal alike," continued Col. Drew. "If we were threatened by an invading army, those in authority would state their positions clearly. The question of whether or not we should defend ourselves would hardly be answered by expressing wholehearted belief in the continuance of peace. International unions, the right of labor to organize collective bargaining, methods of balloting, and the many other principles of labor's right is protect itself through unions are in no way an issue. They are established rights which no thinking person would attempt to question."

Col. Drew replied to the Toronto Star which ridiculed his view that the C.I.O. took its orders from John L. Lewis. He went on:

"The issue can best be answered by these words of Thompson of the C.I.O., for whom I have implicit faith. Speaking at Detroit on April 26, when he was explaining the purpose of the Oshawa strike, he said: "The strike was not settled at Grand Boulevard and Woodward Avenue, Detroit, between a foreign corporation and foreign agitators. Martin conferred there with General Motors and we used remote control from Washington while the conference was under way in Toronto'.

"I believe Thompson's statement! All the evidence supports its accuracy. And I'll be one who is belligerent in saying that the time has come for Canadians to decide whether we are going to run our own affairs and settled our own difficulties or be directed by remote control from Washington, exercised by these outlaws."

The American Federation of Labor has requested that the Canadian workmen to decide their own course. The C.I.O. has not.

"It was quite clearly demonstrated during the negotiation just before the termination of the Oshawa strike that Jacob L. Cohen, who was said to be representing Canadian workmen, could not ask an A. F. of L. man a question in agreement without consulting Homer L. Martin in the United States who, in turn, stated that the answers were subject to the direction of John L. Lewis."

Col. Drew claimed the C.I.O. is organizing on exactly the same basis as the Soviet Union organized in Russia. First they force their way into the heavy industries, then transportation, and finally communications with organization. In all collateral industries to give numerical support. Last Friday Lewis boasted that the transfer of power to the C.I.O. in the transportation industry is well advanced and that they are now organizing the communication services. Once that is achieved and the control of the whole fabric of national activity centred in one man Government may be paralyzed at any moment.

"I believe that it is the duty of Conservatives to take a firm stand against this threat. No matter what happens, the British principles will win in the end, but I think we should act promptly to prevent days of turmoil and the loss of hundreds of millions of dollars that would result from the closing down of basic things proceed to a point where the Premier Lewis' "remote control from Washington" would be in a position to call a general strike in Canada.

"In Canada today we face the most serious issue since the Great War. The C.I.O. threatens our national stability. Yet there are still those who refuse to believe that it is a subject for serious discussion.

"Canadian labor is sound. Canadian labor is British. And Canada can be the end will follow the right course. But Canadian labor can be temporarily misled by the demagogues of the C.I.O. just as an other group in the community may be misled. The greatest unlikely error is Conservative Party in Ontario can possibly commit is to attempt by evading this issue, to appeal to radical elements in the community. Those who want radicalism will look to radicals for radical action. Labor in the past has supported the Conservative Party because of its sound businesslike principles. Labor will still support the Conservative Party if it stands firmly by those principles."

Empire Life Co. Shows Big Gain In 1937 Business

The new insurance written by the Empire Life Insurance Company with head office in Kingston continues to reflect the general improvement in Canadian business conditions.

T. Boyd, general manager, reports that the paid-for business to date shows a gain of 41 per cent over the corresponding period of 1936, the increase being particularly apparent in Ontario.

A similar improvement has been experienced in a reduction of policy cancels and terminations resulting in a substantial increase in business in force for the four-month period.

SAILOR KING REVIEWS MIGHT OF BRITISH NAVY

140 British Warships In Coronation Review As One Million Watch

Seventeen Foreign Nations Represented by Naval Craft in Line to Honor His Majesty King George's Coronation Review

ITALY ALONE NOT REPRESENTED

Brilliant Scenes Over Ten Mile Stretch of Waters When King George And Royal Party on Yacht Pass Along Lines of Warships

Portsmouth, May 20.—(CP)—King George VI took the salute from 140 British and 17 foreign warships today. He inspected the might and majesty of the Empire's navy while an estimated 1,000,000 spectators watched from the sloping shores and varied craft.

About 300 vessels were drawn up in nine long lines, stretching from Le-on-Solent to Spithead. The weather was as good as could be, with sunshine and a light breeze that only fluttered the colorful pennants decorating the ships from stem to stern.

Inspected From Royal Yacht

The King inspected the vessels from the royal yacht Victoria and Albert, which steamed through the lanes followed by the admiralty yacht Enchantress, with the British cabinet and Dominions Prime Ministers aboard. In its wake were the steamers Strathmoray, Lycaonia and Comrania, carrying 3,000 imperial representatives, members of parliament and foreign dignitaries.

Princess First on Top Deck

Hours before the review, Princess Elizabeth, up early, was sighted on the top deck of the royal yacht Victoria and Albert surveying the spectacular scene. Then, while her parents were still below, she went ashore with her attendants, eagerly asking questions of these about her. She was particularly curious about the British Broadcasting Corporation's apparatus for use in describing the review.

At 10.30 a.m. the King received aboard the yacht the Board of Admiralty, the commanders-in-chief of the home and Mediterranean fleets, the commanding officers of the Canadian, New Zealand and Indian units, the senior officers of 15 foreign men-of-war and representatives of the merchant service and fishing fleets. The King was presented and shook many with all. The King gave coronation medals to the foreign officers.

Hon. Earl Rowe Refuses Details of Conference With Hepburn

POLITICAL BUDGET

Asserts Public and Separate Schools Betrayed by Political Trickery

Port William, Ont., May 20 (CP)—Hon. Earl Rowe, Ontario Conservative leader, declared in a speech here last night he had conferred with Premier Mitchell Hepburn recently at the premier's request.

Mr. Rowe said he would not reveal at this time what had transpired at the interview but hinted he might be "would not start a three-legged political race with one of his feet tied to the Conservative party."

The Conservative leader addressed a meeting at which Port William Conservatives named Frank H. Spence, former member of the Ontario legislature, as their candidate in the next provincial election.

Mr. Spence has carried the Conservative standard in Port William provincial election three times and was elected in 1929, serving three consecutive terms. He was defeated in the election of 1934 by Mr. Crawford, present Liberal member.

Attached Record

Mr. Rowe attacked the record of the Hepburn administration. He declared the government surplus was a political one, made at the expense of taxpayers by drastically reducing the most essential of social and welfare services.

He termed removal of the Separate School Assessment Act "a triumph of Orangeism over Catholicism" under which he said the premier had shown himself without courage to keep his pledges and go before the electors. He asserted both public and separate school supporters were "betrayed by his (the premier's) political trickery which now has enmeshed him and doomed him to defeat at the next election."

Mr. Rowe charged liquor is out of control in Ontario, claiming saloons and "diver" licenses are being licensed to operate for purposes of party patronage and to enrich the provincial treasury that a surplus might be shown. He said the liquor policy has been one of reckless maladministration.

Criticized Action

He criticized the province's actions in the recent strikes at General Motors plants and said the province had erred in not keeping out of the strike. He declared the government had at first been swinging far to the left to gain office Mr. Hepburn is swinging just as far to the right to satisfy the big interests of the province.

Mr. Rowe left after the meeting for Kenora, Ont., from where he will go by automobile to Fort Frances, Ont., near the United States border. Late he will travel 2,000 miles by airplane into the Red Lake mining area.

22-DAY STRIKE SETTLED

Toronto, May 20 (CP)—Terms of settlement of the 23-day strike at the Ontario Knitting Company plant were approved at a mass meeting of the 350 union strikers today. They will all go back to work next Tuesday.

QUEEN MARY NEARING 70TH BIRTHDAY

Dowager Queen Mary, mother of King George VI, celebrates her 70th birthday on May 26. Daughter of the late H.R.H., the Duke of York and H.R.H. Princess Mary of Cambridge, she married the late King George V on July 6, 1893.

Duke Seeks Anglican Priest To Perform Religious Rite

Both He And Mrs. Warfield Desire Religious Ritual After Civil Marriage—Several Clergymen Refuse

Monte, France, May 20 (AP)—A close friend of the Duke of Windsor said today that he and Mrs. Wallis Warfield would be met on their honeymoon by several members of the Royal Family.

After June 3, when the Duke and Mrs. Warfield are married. this source said, they will leave the Chateau de Cande immediately by automobile for Biarritz.

Reunion With Royal Family

The reunion with the Royal Family will take place there, the informant declared. He did not disclose, however, which members of the Royal Family will be present.

The bridal couple will stay three days at the French shore resort and then sail for Yugoslavian waters by yacht. After a tour of the Dalmation coast they will go to Wasserlosnburg Castle in Austria.

Monte, France, May 20 (AP)—The Duke of Windsor and Mrs. Wallis Warfield are trying to find an Anglican priest to marry them in a religious ceremony following the civil ritual of their wedding June 3, their spokesman disclosed today.

Herman Rogers, the spokesman, said several Anglican clergymen who had been asked to officiate had declined. But from other sources it was learned Rev. C. H. D. Grimes, rector of the Anglican Church in Vienna, might be chosen.

IRISH FREE STATE IS LOSING TRADE, COSTELLO SAYS

Claims Non-Attendance at Imperial Conference Causes Loss

DE VALERA REPLIES

Costello Says Canada And Other Dominions Get British Trade

By JOSEPH DENNIGAN

Dublin, May 20 (CP)—A charge the Irish Free State was allowing trade opportunities to slip through non-attendance at the Imperial Conference whereas Canada considered trade so important she sent a group of ministers and the Empire minister to discuss problems of arrangements, was made by John Costello of the opposition as the Dail Eireann night adjourned for the week-end.

Ad. trade figures proved, Costello said, Canada knew how to do business. He read extracts from an official blue book on the publicity and other activities of the Canadian Trade Commissioner in London and argued that the Free State was "cutting off its nose to spite its face". While the Free State wrestled with tariffs, Canada and the other Dominions slipped in and collared the Irish share of the British market.

President De Valera, in a speech the opposition declared was directed at delegates to the imperial conference rather than the Irish public, re-stated his policy in regard to Great Britain and the problems of partition, peace and land annuities.

Although matters of interest were being discussed at London, he said, the Free State was not represented because a gross misunderstanding would result through attendance.

"If we were represented we assumed the Anglo-Irish position had reached a point where the Free State is able to sit in as a people whose differences have been settled," he said.

Convoy Loses Trace Of Possible Contender; Yacht is Thought Safe

Radio on Endeavour Breaks Down in 65-Mile Gale

40 HOURS' SEARCH

Endeavour Proceeding Under Own Sail For Scene of Race

Newport, R.I., May 20 (AP)—Endeavour I, possible British contender for the America's Cup, parted her tow line last Friday when about 1,000 miles off Newport, lost contact with her convoy, the yacht Viva, and proceeded under her own sail for the scene of the approaching international sailing classic.

This was learned today when the Viva arrived alone.

Captain Wallace Grint of the Viva allayed much of the apprehension over safety of Endeavor I and her crew of nineteen by saying the big sloop reported "all well" and she was proceeding on a southwesterly course at six knots.

Radio Message Lost.

Captain Grint said he searched more than 40 hours for Endeavor before heading for Newport alone. Apparently, he said, Endeavor I's radio broke down and this made the task of finding her in a 65-mile gale virtually impossible.

Viva, cascading to Captain Grint, last took in radio communication with the big racing sloop, Friday evening. She then reported her position as already 30-35 marks, longitude 44.53 west.

"There is no reason to believe she is in any difficulty," he said.

Rome and Budapest Pledge Friendship

Budapest, May 20 (CP-Havas)—Pledges of friendship between Rome and Budapest were renewed today by King Victor Emmanuel of Italy and Hungarian Regent Nicholas Horthy.

At a magnificent banquet here for the Italian monarch and Queen Elena, Admiral Horthy, head of the Hungarian State in the absence of a Royal line, declared last night the constructive policy in the Rome protocols uniting Italy, Austria and Hungary "will become, with the powerful alliance of a German Empire, a solid pillar of peace."

He added the Rome protocols had already justified themselves and expressed Hungary's admiration for Fascist Italy.

MERRILL FLIES TO ROCKCLIFFE

Makes Trip From Toronto to Ottawa in One Hour, Forty Minutes

Ottawa, May 20 (CP)—Dick Merrill, trans-Atlantic flier, made a perfect landing as he set his plane down at the Rockcliffe Air Station, four miles south of the city at 3:08 p.m. He was accompanied by his co-pilot, Fred Lamble on a flight here from Toronto.

Merrill and his companion took one hour and forty minutes to travel the 240 miles from Toronto.

On completion of the condition of the Rockcliffe Airfield, Merrill said it was one of the best natural landing fields he had ever seen. Only a landing field with concrete runways would be better, he added.

He said he and Lamble would take off from the Rockcliffe Airport at 4 p.m. E.D.T. for a direct flight to Newark.

Their visit to the capital was in the nature of a non-stop flight and upon their arrival they were received by aviation and other government officials.

Toronto May 20 (CP)—Dick Merrill, Trans-Atlantic flier, took off from the Toronto Flying Club field at 12:15 this afternoon, headed for Ottawa. He was accompanied only by Jack Lamble, his co-pilot. He will not attempt a non-stop flight as planned but will fly from Ottawa to Newark, N.J.

Merrill had planned to have Prime Minister W. Lyon Mackenzie King as a passenger on a return trip to Ottawa, but changed his plans last night because the weather for that trip might be too dangerous. The plane of his sister monoplane almost cracked up as it struck a mudhole in taxiing at the flying club field here yesterday.

SENT TO TRIAL ON SPRING CASE

C. W. Patterson Charged With Manslaughter in Spring Gun Death

Hamilton, Ont., May 20 (CP)—C. Wray Patterson, of Blackheath was committed for trial today by Magistrate H. A. Burbidge on a charge of manslaughter resulting from the death of Frederick Thake from wounds suffered when a spring gun which he charged in Patterson's general store.

At preliminary hearing today the evidence was that of Dr. G. A. Bell who told of being called May 9 after Thake had been shot. Dr. Bell said Patterson told him he set a spring gun in the west end to visit his mother and that "someone had been shot."

Patterson was greatly excited and upset when we found that it was Thake who was shot," the witness testified.

Only One Witness Heard.

"That is all the evidence I need to commit the trial," the magistrate said after Dr. Bell had concluded. "I don't see any reason for wasting time and money by dragging it out."

Walter Thackle, defense counsel, asked to question Officer Sherville in doing so, he brought out the fact the shotgun pellets taken from the deceased's face were number 8. Those found in a wooden beam in the store were number 4.

SYNOD OPPOSES SUNDAY RADIO ADS

Asks For Programs of Religious, Classical or Educational Nature

Kingston, Ont., May 20 (CP) Members of the Anglican Synod of the Diocese of Ontario placed themselves on record as opposed to Sunday radio advertising.

They adopted a resolution submitted in the report of the Council for Social Service given by Rev. A. E. Smart of Portsmouth as chairman that "in the opinion of this Synod no Sunday broadcasts be allowed in connection with radio broadcasting on Sunday and that the programs on Sunday be limited to religious, classical or educational character."

An appeal for more adequate and generous support for the moral and spiritual care of persons confined in the various penitentiary institutions was made. A resolution was adopted, moved by Wilson Jelly of Napanee, Mrs. Thomas Leach of Amherst Island and Miss Jean Thornley of Kingston, urging the provincial government to provide for the care and segregation of the large and rapidly increasing number of sub-normal people in this province."

Empire Troops Catch Eye; London Anxious for Parade

Capital of Empire Would Like to See Formal March

SOCIETIES INSIST

London, May 20 (CP)—London wants to see more of the Empire troops here for the Coronation.

The press persists in its demands for a formal march through London streets. Important bodies such as the Royal Empire Society, the Overseas League and the British Empire League are talking up the matter.

Generals Sign Letter

Letters to the editors of newspapers urge similar sentiments. So the Empire contingents. One letter on the subject published in the Telegraph today was signed by Field Marshals Lord Milne, Sir Philip Chetwode and Sir Cyril Deverell.

Difficulties stand in the way of such a march, however. Per one thing most of the men are holidaying in various parts of the country and do not wish to return to London until immediately before sailing for home.

Londoners claim they have not had ample opportunity of seeing these men from the outposts of the Empire in the Coronation procession they held a secondary position to United Kingdom units, and their only other formal appearance—the march to Buckingham Palace to receive Coronation medals from the King—was extremely brief.

Canadians Little Seen.

The Canadians particularly have not been seen to any great extent because, unlike the Australians, New Zealanders and Rhodesians, they did not march from station to barracks on their arrival. Instead of going to London the Canadians arrived quietly at Camp Pirbright in Surrey and slipped into London a couple of days before the Coronation.

SAYS HEPBURN WITH FINANCIERS

Hon. Earle Rowe Says He Won't March With 'His Fascist Principles'

Port William, Ont., May 20—(CP)—Speaking of the Ontario Hydro Electric Power Commission during an address here last night, Hon. Earl Rowe, Ontario Conservative leader said that "a political commission has been running the world's largest public utility enterprise on which the Ontario municipalities are entitled, it have no representation."

He described Premier Hepburn as "a man who swung drastically to the left up to office and is now swinging frantically to the right to retain it."

School Tax Referred to

"When we are elected," the Conservative leader said, "we will tear down the black sanction and replace it with the colors of honesty integrity and loyalty of British justice and fair play."

Mr. Rowe said the Hepburn government's separate school legislation was a "triumph of cowardice of political expediency and surrender."

Liner Lists Thirty Degrees As Grain Cargo Shifts

Eight Men Unloading Grain Barely Escape Death

200 MEN UPSET

London, May 20 (CP)—The Canard-White Star liner Ascania, lying at Surrey Commercial Dock, suddenly listed to an angle of 30 degrees early today, her forepart crashing against the bank.

Two hundred men engaged in unloading grain were thrown from their feet. Eight of them, in the hold, barely missed being buried in an avalanche of grain.

All hands worked feverishly to right the ship. The list was caused by shifting grain and resulted in slight damage to the grain elevator pipes. The ship's return schedule will not be affected. She left Montreal May 12.

Canadian Corps Reunion for 1938

Toronto, May 20—(CP)—A Canadian Corps re-union even bigger and better than the 1934 re-union here is being planned for civic holiday week-end, 1938.

Preliminary plans were discussed last night at a meeting of the corps' council. Arrangements were also made for the annual drumhead service at Riverdale Park here July 27 and a series of simultaneous corps dinners across Canada in November, similar to last year.

Convicted in Moscow of Espionage And Sabotage

EXECUTION OF 44 SPIES REPORTED

Moscow, May 20 (AP)—A communique announced today forty-four persons, convicted of carrying out espionage and sabotage plots "according to the orders of the Japanese Secret Service", were executed at Semipalatinsk in the far East.

The execution of the largest group of conspirators to be shot in many years was carried out May 19, immediately after the conclusion of their trial before the military collegium of the supreme court.

Why the Weather?

By Major A. H. Thiessen
Science Service Meteorologist

"A mackerel sky,
Not twelve hours dry."

Of all signs of approaching weather clouds are the best. Everyone sees such cumulus clouds (large wool packs) grow of a summer afternoon and declares, "It looks like a thunderhead. This may mean a storm very soon, within a few hours, then a windsquall with rain or hail perhaps, and all is over." But the appearance of a mackerel sky (rows of high white cirrocumulus, looking stripes on a mackerel) a many people's heads, is unexpected in several hours hence and to last a while. We have a very dependable rhyme of the same tense as the above complex especially is needed for those who follow the sea:

"Mackerel sky and mares' tails
Make lofty ships carry low sails."

FRANK LAMERONT IS SEVERELY CUT

Vehicle He Was Driving Crashes Through Fence and Down Bank

Tweed, May 20 (Special)—Frank Lameront, Stirling, sustained severe head and hand wounds from flying glass, when the car which he was driving failed to negotiate the turn leading onto the bridge from Actinolite, the vehicle going across the sidewalk and plunged through the bank and into the river, two feet going into the river. The man was taken to the surgery of Dr. Robertson, where seven stitches were taken in his head. He also suffered a severely cut hand. Lameront was taken to the home of Edgar Jones, near the scene of the accident, where he is now resting. Chief Clare Hayes was called and investigated but as yet no charges have been laid in the case. The car was a complete wreck.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO, May 20 (CP)—Pressure is high from the Lake region northward over Hudson Bay, also on the Pacific coast. Elsewhere it is low, especially over the Prairie Provinces and the Lakes. A disturbance of exceptional intensity centred near the coast of Maine and moving northeastward. It is causing strong winds with rain over the Maritime Provinces and the Gulf of St. Lawrence. Showers have also occurred with local storms in the western provinces, with showers occurring in many districts while in Eastern Canada it continues cool.

Lake Superior—Fresh east and southeast winds; fair and cool today and Friday with occasional rain.

Manitoba—Cloudy with showers in most districts Friday, partly cloudy, possibly a few scattered showers; not much change in temperature.

Saskatchewan and Alberta—Partly cloudy today and Friday with local showers and thunder; not much change in temperature.

Grandfather Discovers Body When Searching For Missing Boy

RESUSCITATION FAILED

Minto, Ont., May 20—(CP)—Ronald Cook, four, drowned in six inches of well in a 30-gallon can in the barn of his grandfather, Fred Cook, near here, today. Minto is about 25 miles north of Belleville.

The lad, fond of his grandfather's pigs, was apparently trying to get out some feed for them when he leaned over too far and slipped head first into the big can.

The child's feet were left sticking out the top of the can, which tied to his discovery by his grandfather about half an hour later.

Provincial Constable W. H. Mellrath said the can was an old-fashioned style about two feet across the mouth. Surplus milk for pigs was poured into it. When the child fell in there was not more than six inches of swill in the bottom of the can, the constable said.

Dr. J. S. Demorest of Stirling investigated but declared an inquest was not necessary.

Sacrifice Jobs Or Allegiance to U. A. W.

Windsor, Ont., May 20 (CP)—Employees of Walker Metal Products here will be asked Thursday, must decide today whether they will scrap their allegiance to the U.A.W. and return to work tomorrow or sacrifice their jobs.

Any who will not turn up for work tomorrow will have their time cards removed from the racks and will no longer be hired by the job, H. M. Gregory, Manager of the plant, announced today. The company is determined not to recognize the union.

POPE PIUS TO BROADCAST

Castel Gandolfo, Italy, May 20 (AP)—Pope Pius ordered arrangements today for a world-wide broadcast of the speech he will deliver May 31 at the inauguration of the new pontifical academy.

The occasion will be the Pontiff's eightieth birthday. He is expected to make an important statement of Catholicism's position in regard to science.

City and District News

FIREMEN CLEAN UP LIVING QUARTERS

City firemen discarded fire-fighting paraphernalia temporarily today as they made preparation for the annual spring cleaning of the fire halls. Living quarters are undergoing a strenuous "clean up" and will be re-decorated in becoming shades of apple green and white.

'BOUNCER' HOLWAY MOVES TO TRENTON

W. P. "Bouncer" Holway, well known veteran hockey player and O.H.A. referee, left Belleville today to take up residence in Trenton, accompanied by his wife and family of two children.

For a number of years "Bouncer" and his brother "Toots" Holway have operated gasoline stations in Trenton and Belleville, but recently "Bouncer" assumed full ownership of the Trenton station, while "Toots" will carry on as the local proprietor.

In departing Belleville Mr. and Mrs. Holway leave behind them a host of friends, all of whom wish them every success in their new home in Trenton.

LILACS BLOOMING

Trees in and about the city are rapidly assuming their summer clothes of new green foliage. With the arrival of warm weather and sunshine stately maples and elms will soon be in full foliage. Lilacs are bursting into bloom and within a few days these fragrant flowers will adorn the homes of lovers of these blooms.

OLD LIVERY STABLE IS BEING DEMOLISHED

One of the few remaining testimonials to the horse and buggy era in the form of a livery stable and vehicle shed is being dismantled at the rear of the Walker Motors, Ltd., Store. Here it was that "Dobbin" rested while rural visitors did their Saturday night shopping in the days of yesteryear.

Flagging in the breeze of the skeleton-like structure is an old sign bearing the inscription, "I am not responsible for articles left in buggies or wagons. All articles must be left at the office - to be called for."

LOGGING CONDITIONS WERE BAD THIS YEAR

Writing to the Canada Lumberman, a correspondent from Hastings County declares that weather conditions this spring, as far as logging is concerned were the worst experienced in this county in many years. "Loggers were afraid to take out heavy cuts. During March there was the biggest snowfall of the season, and now cold weather makes it possible for the individual operations and firms, who had the courage to take a chance, to get out nearly all their logs from the bush. Some firms sold thousands of logs on the stump." The prospects for the coming season are promising," stated the writer.

LAY MEMBERS ELECTED AT 71ST SYNOD FOR THIS DISTRICT

"At yesterday's session of the seventy-first Synod of the Diocese of Ontario, held in Kingston, Archdeacon McLean of Picton, and Dr. H. S. Magee of Smiths Falls, were elected lay members to the executive body representing this district.

W. S. MARTIN, STIRLING MASTER OF GRAND ORANGE LODGE OF ONT.

W. S. Martin, one of Stirling's oldest citizens and long prominent in the Orange order in this district, has been recommended for honorary membership in the Right Worshipful Grand Lodge of Ontario East. The recommendation has been made by Frank Jagger, County Master of Ontario East.

PRESENT THEATRE TICKETS AS REWARD FOR PERFECT CHEESE

According to announcement of district cheese inspector John A. Murray, a new method will be used instead of presenting cheesemakers of his district with prizes at the end of the year for scoring. Instead, under a new plan by which makers and factory proprietors will benefit, will be inaugurated. In future the first week any factory receives a 94 score, the maker and patron of that factory will receive free tickets to a theatre. The second week the factory gets a 94 score, the maker and patron who sent the most milk that week will receive ticket. Forty-five per cent of cheese scored in Campbellford district last year received a 94 score.

CLOTHING DONATIONS WILL BE WELCOMED

With the advance of summer, suitable clothing for the season is again in demand at the Central Relief office, Campbellford. Gifts made either by telephone or by personal calls at the local office. "Donations of summer clothing will not only be welcomed, but gifts of heavier attire will also be gladly accepted and called for", it was stated today by Campbellford officials.

MANUAL SWEEPING OF STREETS THOUGHT SUPERIOR TO SWEEPER

Not least of the compliments being tendered gratuitously to the city hall during the past week or so to city fathers of present council for the amount of labour work that is being done since accepting office, are those tendered Alderman C. Clapp for the improved condition of Front street since hand-sweeping and daily flushing was inaugurated some time ago. Under the present system, thorough cleanins of the streets the pock and eggs were quoted at twenty cents the dozen. Red and blue raspberry ices were offered to a slow moving market at five cents each. Farmer's butter sold at two pounds for fifty five cts. Fresh lake trout and whitefish were quoted at eighteen and twenty two cents per pound respectively.

LUMBER FIRM WILL NOT MOVE FOR YEAR

Though considerable timber territories have been acquired in the Hunterville district by Hubbel and Son, lumber dealers of Bancroft, it is not the intention of the company to locate their plant there for another year at least, according to the latest announcement. The Company has commenced the season's sawing operations at Paudash Lake and work is being continued night and day. The firm expects to turn out around 4,000,000 feet this year, which will be about two-thirds hemlock, three and nine, with the balance in hardwood. The mill is expected to run steadily until about the middle of next September. An estimated 4,000,000 feet of timber from their limits is expected to come to the mill before removal.

PAINTING OF TRAFFIC LINES TO START SOON

Traffic line painting will not be commenced in the city until about the end of May when pavement surfaces will be sufficiently heated and dried, it is stated by the department of Public Works. This year two grades of scoling paint will be used to determine the best quality, said to be used on alternate sides of the street. Some forty gallons will be necessary for the year's work.

REPAIR CRACKS IN GOVERNMENT DOCK

Deep holes and cracked surfaces of the government dock, complained of by bay truckers during last summer's shipping season, are being refilled and repaired this week with fresh concrete.

CHEESE FACTORIES IN FULL PRODUCTION

Cheese factories in this central district have started in full the production of cheese it is indicated by reports from outlying districts and also after inquiries have been made from now on. According to W. J. Morrow, Peterborough, dairy instructor for that district, the majority of factories are now conducting. It is announced that Campbellford Cheese Board will meet on Saturday next at 11.15 o'clock at the St. Lawrence Hotel.

NEW ADDITION FOR J. & J. CASH COMPANY

POTATO BUG PARASITES TO BE SHIPPED TO FRANCE FROM HERE

Scourged with a plague of potato bugs which have been making way on their potato patches during the last year or so during which time their numbers have greatly increased, farmers of France through their government have made an urgent appeal for Canadian entomologists to help them out of their troubles.

"Stink bugs", predatory insects whose particular prey are the potato beetle in this country, are being bred especially for this work at the local Dominion Entomological Bureau for shipment to France on a reciprocal basis. To help in the work of control of the potato bug, other parasitical insects will also be bred here and shipped abroad.

Parasites for the control of the scurfy in the timber districts of the Maritimes, upon which the Canadian Government last year has declared a state of the emergency will be bred here to the number of some 40,000,000 this summer for the work, it was stated today by Mr. A. B. Baird, in charge of the Bureau.

Tabernacle Extends Call to Rev. D. I. McClintock of Brantford —Calls Subject to Approval of Presbyteries And Transfer Committee

The congregation of Tabernacle United Church has accepted the unanimous call of Rev. I. B. Naylor, to take effect on June 30th. A call has been extended to Rev. D. T. McClintock of Wellington Street United Church, Brantford, to succeed Mr. Naylor as pastor of Tabernacle Church. Mr. McClintock has had wide experience and comes highly recommended as a sane, evangelical preacher of outstanding gifts.

Prior to serving in Brantford, he was for six years minister of Chalmers United Church, Toronto. Rev. I. B. Naylor has received an invitation to become minister of Wellington Street Church, Brantford.

It is understood according to members of the Belleville Presbytery that the calls are subject to the approval of the Presbyteries concerned and the Transfer Committee of the United Church.

DEATHS

JOHN H. JOHNSON

The death occurred early this Thursday morning, May 20th, at his Belleville Genito-Urinary, of John Henry Johnson, late resident, 297 Front street.

The late Mr. Johnson was born in Prince Edward County 70 years ago, his parents being the late Mr. and Mrs. John Johnson. For some years he resided at Kingston and for the past three years had made his home at Belleville. He was a member of the United Church and was well esteemed by his friends.

Surviving him are his widow, whose maiden name was Miss Sarah Jane Bowen; three daughters, Mrs. Johnson, Napanee; George Johnson, Bloomfield; John H. Johnson, Belleville; two daughters, Mrs. Charles Ridge, Flint, Mich., and Mrs. Marion Kirk, Sault Ste. Marie, Ontario; two sisters, Mrs. William Westervelt, Picton; and Mrs. Nelson Fowler, Picton.

The body of the late Mr. Johnson is resting at the Belleville Burial Company Funeral home, Campbell street.

ALBERT A. EGGLETON

Wednesday afternoon the funeral of Albert Andrew Eggleton took place from the residence of his son, Mr. Percy A. Eggleton, in the 9th concession of Thurlow Township. Service in the house and at the graveside in Clarke's Cemetery was conducted by Rev. H. H. A. Turner of West Huntingdon. The bearers were Messrs. Percy A. Hagerman, L. Bird, E. Reid, M. Crale, E. Donald and S. Hough.

J. ALFRED G. HUDON
(Leaden)

Many friends in Belleville of J. Alfred (Fred) George Hudon, who a few years ago, was associated with the Bank of Montreal here for four years, will deeply regret to learn of his death which occurred after a brief illness at London, Ont., on Wednesday, May 19th.

During his residence in Belleville the late Mr. Hudon was very highly esteemed by all who knew him and popular with many friends. For the past few years he was in the service of the Bank of Montreal at London.

Surviving to mourn his passing are his mother, two sisters and many friends will be extended, are his widow, who prior to her marriage was Miss Mercedes McLellan of Belleville; two daughters, Miss Jean and Helen at home; two sisters, Mrs. J. Newland and Miss Florence Hudon, both of Kingston; one brother Mr. Leo Hudon.

Announcement of the funeral, which will take place at Belleville, is made elsewhere in this paper.

DUKE SEEKS

(Anglican church officials at one time questioned Grimes as to why he chose to use the Lord's Prayer as a Christmas Scripture lesson from the lectern of his church last December.)

Both the Duke and Mrs. Warfield were said to desire the religious service besides the civil ceremony.

Temporary Plans

Rogers said the religious wedding, if it is decided upon, would be performed immediately after the civil rites. After the civil nuptials the couple return to the Chateau. Rogers said, the Duke and Duchess and their guests would go directly to the cathedral, an adjoining room, to be united by religious bonds.

Rogers, however, insisted nothing has been fixed yet." He indicated the entire program might be completed today and that if Grimes were asked and accepted, he probably would officiate along with other wedding guests.

The Rev. Wilfred Selby, British minister at Vienna, and Lady Selby have been invited, Rogers disclosed.

Grimes Rogers as Witness

Rogers said he himself would be the witness for the Duke, while for Mrs. Warfield, whom he sheltered at his home during the height of the abdication turmoil, and that Major Edward Dudley Metcalfe, equerry to the Duke, would be witness for the Duke.

The wedding ring, Rogers said, was being made by a Paris jeweler and was expected to be delivered within a few days.

Mayor Charles Mercier of Monte, was expected at the Chateau within the next few days to rehearse the secular ceremony which he will perform in French, according to law.

17 British Guests to Attend

London, May 20 (C.P.-Havas) — Seventeen British guests will attend the wedding of the Duke of Windsor and Mrs. Wallis Warfield at the Chateau de Candé, in France, on June 3, it was revealed today.

It was understood they would be the following:

Lieut.-Col. Piers Legh, aide-de-camp to the Duke of Connaught as Governor General of Canada, and subsequently to the Duke of Windsor as Prince of Wales and King; Sir Walford Selby, British Minister at Vienna; Lady Selby; Sir Waller Monckton, attorney general to the Duchy of Cornwall and Lady Monckton; Lord and Lady Brownlow; Major R. D. Metcalfe, aide-de-camp to the Prince of Wales on his Indian and Japanese tours in 1921-1922, and Lady Metcalfe; Hugh Lord Thomas, Governor General of Canada, and subsequently to the Duke of Windsor as Prince of Wales and King; Sir Walford Selby, British Minister at Vienna; Lady Selby; Sir Waller Monckton, attorney general to the Duchy of Cornwall and Lady Monckton; Lord and Lady Brownlow; Major R. D. Metcalfe, aide-de-camp to the Prince of Wales on his Indian and Japanese tours in 1921-1922, and Lady Metcalfe; Hugh Lord Thomas, Governor General of Canada, and subsequently to the Duke of Windsor as Prince of Wales and King; Sir Walford Selby, British Minister at Vienna; Lady Selby; Sir Waller Monckton, attorney general to the Duchy of Cornwall and Lady Monckton; Lord and Lady Brownlow; Major R. D. Metcalfe, aide-de-camp to the Prince of Wales, and Lady Thomas, Paris, and Mrs. Thomas; Wing Commander E. H. Pilcher captain of the King's Flight, and Mrs. Pilcher.

Major Dick Alexander, keeper of the privy purse; Sir Godfrey Thomas, for many years private secretary to the Duke when he was Prince of Wales, and Lady Thomas; and Capt. Walter Greenacre, former equerry to the Duke.

LIPTON'S TEA

Rawdon and District

Rawdon—On Friday evening" a fair crowd gathered at Mount Pleasant Hall and thoroughly enjoyed the play entitled "April's Fool" staged by talent from Fetherbeds. Mrs. Fred Barnum introduced the cast of characters as follows: Amarilla Pennypecker, the Duffy's hired girl, Miss Gracie Wright; Mrs. Daggs, a neighbor, Mrs. E. Irvin; Elbert Phipps, a theological student, Mr. George Brunion; Martha Duffy, grandma, Miss Cora Petherbeck; Hezekiah, grandpa, Mr. Fred Fry; Ted Carter, April's Fool, Mr. Harry Keating; Homer Duffy, a business man, Mr. Arthur Petherick; Rita Duffy, his wife, Miss Doris Barnum; April Fool, the beloved young grand-daughter, Miss Pearl Kerr; Elizabeth, her mother, Mrs. Lindsay Anderson; Meredith Van Courtney, April's wealthy suitor, Mr. Don Barnum.

Act I. was a scene in the Duffy's living room at 6 o'clock on April October morning when grandpa and grandma discuss April's homecoming.

Act II. that afternoon when the son and daughter arrive to celebrate their parents' golden wedding.

Act III, a short time after the celebration when all the troubles are smoothed away and April weds the man of her choice. The play was full of humor and pathos and had a splendid moral.

Before the play Miss Evelyn Barnum contributed several piano selections and between Acts I and II a trio, "The Danube as Blue" was rendered by Mr. Don Barnum and his sisters Misses Evelyn and Helen.

Between Acts II and III two musical numbers were rendered by Miss Cora Petherbeck, piano; Bruce Irvin, guitar; Mr. Arthur Petherick, violin.

Miss Cora Petherick gave a vocal solo with guitar accompaniment "When My Dream Boat Comes Home" and responded to an encore with a musical number.

Rev. J. E. Beckel tendered a very hearty vote of thanks to the guest artists and Mr. Lindsay Anderson suitably replied. At the close the visitors were served lunch by the executive of the Young People's Society. The proceeds were $30.25.

Mr. and Mrs. James Sharp are very proud to announce the arrival of a Coronation grandson. The little boy has arrived at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Melville Donnan, West Huntingdon (nee Helen Sharp,) Mount Pleasant, on Wednesday, May 12th.

Little Gordon and Doris Donnan are spending this week at Mount Pleasant.

Miss Muriel Milligan took the pupils of the Allan and Williams School to Stirling on Wednesday to join with other schools in the parade in honor of our King and Queen. As a memento of the occasion each child received a medal which will be an heirloom in future years.

A large number enjoyed the radio broadcast but unfortunately very few of the farmers were able to take the day because of the necessity of getting the land sown. The season is already late and several farmers have a great deal to do yet as their low land is very damp and the continual rainy weather makes seeding and gardening a bit difficult. At night the bon-fire and skyrockets in Stirling were visible in the country, even though it was a rainy evening.

Miss Doris Rannie spent Coronation Day in Trenton.

Mr. and Mrs. Willis Montgomery and children were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. George Montgomery, Frankford.

Miss Dorothy Farrar and brother, Gerald of Trenton, spent the week end with Mr. and Mrs. Milton Wrightman.

Mrs. Edith Sharp, Wellman's, visited friends at Mount Pleasant over the week-end.

Little Joan Dracup is slowly progressing; she recently fractured her arm while playing at school.

Joan is the young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Dracup of Wellman's.

Mr. and Mrs. Herb Bateman attended the funeral of Mrs. E. Blackburn at Eldorado.

Rev. and Mrs. W. H. Foley have been holidaying in Normanville.

Mr. and Mrs. F. Jeffs and sons recently attended a birthday party for Mr. E. Smith at Bay.

Mrs. Frank Johnson of Frankford has been holidaying with her mother, Mrs. T. W. Snarr.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Dracup of Peterboro. spent a day with Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Dracup.

Mr. Frederick Beckett opened with "Love Divine," and all read responsively the first chapter of First Corinthians. Miss Bernice Dunham then presided and Rev. J. E. Beckel read the Bible lesson. A splendid Coronation topic was given by Mr. F. Beckett followed by a brief address by the pastor. Master Bobby Armstrong delighted with an harmonica selection. Miss Lucille Dracup rendered an appropriate instrumental entitled "God Bless the King." Miss Mina Dracup staged a contest, "Names of Trees" and the meeting closed with the National Anthem.

Mrs. Cyrus Summers was a recent guest of Mrs. Butler Rupert.

Mr. and Mrs. Edgar McGovern entertained folks from Warkworth on Sunday.

On Sunday afternoon at Mount Pleasant Rev. JJ. E. Beckel obone at his home on the anniversary of Pentecost "The Church Behind Closed Doors." Mr. John Cogrin sang "When the little lost sheep comes homes."

The continual showery weather is rushing the pastures and lawns and a good growth of luscious grass meets the eye all over the countryside.

Several lawns have been mowed and rapidly needs other trimming.

Very few have put in gardens made but several have planted their early potatoes. The climate here seems to run to extremes of dry weather one year and wet the next.

Mr. Sharp is holiday with Mr. and Mrs. Will Johnson at Wellman's.

Mrs. Irvsel Clancy attended the funeral of her sister, Mrs. E. Maccann at Bay.

Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Clancy and family spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Richard Haggerty, West Huntingdon.

Mrs. Mary Lott of Oshawa; Mrs Robert Warren, Montreal, and other friends attended Friday with Mr. and Mrs. W. Heath.

Mr. and Mrs. W. N. Nobes, of Walbridge, spent Thursday with Mrs. J. Wing.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell White and family, Toronto, spent Wednesday with Mr. and Mrs. H. White.

3RD SIDNEY

3rd. Sidney—Mrs. Henry Kells is a patient in the Belleville General Hospital, having had an operation on Monday. Her many friends will be pleased that her progress is satisfactory.

Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Ray and family spent Sunday with Mrs. Ray's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jas. P. Wellman. Mr. and Mrs. Richard Wellman of Madoc, who are moving to Peterboro in the near future, were also present.

Mr. Margaret and Master Billy Coulby of Belleville, spent the week end at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Orr.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Grills and Miss Irene Grills spent the tea hour on Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. F. Wilson, Bayside.

Mr. and Mrs. James Hinchcliffe and Mrs. John Hinchcliffe of Wallbridge, called on Mr. T. A. Hinchcliffe on Sunday.

The many friends of Mrs. James Ray regret that she is again in the Belleville hospital and hope for her a speedy and complete recovery.

Mrs. A. Laurence and Mrs. Henry Kells were recent guests of Mrs. H. Hubble who is confined to her home with a sore ankle.

Mrs. Lee Grills and Mrs. Selburne Westover were dinner guests on Monday of Mrs. Wilmot Bailey, second line.

Coronation Day passed very quietly on this line, some attending the ceremonies in Belleville and some in Trenton, others listening on the radio in their own homes. Mrs. S. Westover entertained some ladies to dinner on that day.

The heavy rain early in the week has again delayed the farmers in their spring seeding.

Mrs. Frank Grills spent Monday afternoon with Mrs. H. Hubble.

Several from this line attended the nurses' graduation in Belleville on Friday night.

Miss Margaret Kelle, who is teaching at Actinolite, spent the week-end with her mother, Mrs. Henry Kells.

Dr. and Mrs. Hess of Hastings spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. S. L. Terrill.

A large audience from Stockdale, Frankford, Roseneath and Wooler interested in the Young People's Union gathered to see the three dramas, "Jephtah's Daughter," dramatized by Wooler; "Simon the Leper" by Stockdale and the "Maid in the Window" by Roseneath. At midnight the latter, Mr. McDougall of Cobourg criticised these dramas from a profession director's standpoint.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. English and Billy, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Scott, Herrington of Peterboro, called on Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Terrill on Sunday afternoon.

Ken Morwood of Albert College, Belleville, spent Saturday with Theodore Poulter.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Montgomery are slowly convalescing.

Mr. and Mrs. Allan Gunter of Simcoe spent a few days with Mrs. Mary Pot.

Earl Terrill returned home after spending a week at Baptiste Lake.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Scott returned hime from Florida.

Mac Sharpe is spending a few days with Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Terrill.

Mrs. L. H. Rowe is accompanying Miss Flora McDonald, music instructor of schools in the musical festivals held this week-end.

Owing to the rain many farmers are waiting to put in the spring grain.

Mrs. Katharine Sharpe is spending this week with her daughter in Smithfield.

Mrs. Clarence McMasters attended the funeral of Mrs. Alfred Mack, Darragar in Belleville on Saturday.

A large number of the Young People's Union met in Colborne on Tuesday evening to see the first play in "Biblical Drama" contest for final.

KING REVIEWS FLEET

Today was a great day in the British navy. At Spithead the might of the Empire on the sea passed before His Majesty King George Sixth, former sailor who served in the North Sea fleet during the Great War and went through the great battle of Jutland.

Crowned a week ago yesterday His Majesty the King today received the homage of the fleet. Its mightiest ships passed in review.

Like his father, King George Fifth George the Sixth is a sailor King. For this reason the navy must have peculiar appeal to the ruler, whose empire lives on the strength of its communications on the oceans and seas.

Though the advent of the airship era is here, it has not eliminated the importance of the navy.

ENVIRONMENT VERY IMPORTANT

Personality is influenced seventy per cent by environment and thirty per cent by heredity, say doctors which have tested one hundred pairs of identical twins, one hundred pairs of fraternal twins and nineteen pairs of identical twins who had been separated in infancy and reared apart. Three professors at Chicago University have reported these findings. They also state that "human intelligence is not definitely fixed at birth by genetic factors but may be distinctly affected by such environmental factors as education and social position. Personality traits, such as temperamental and emotional attitudes are affected by environment to an even more marked degree.

These findings which are important to parents and those who have the care and training of the young, stress the environment under which families are reared. The course of lives is modified by factors in the surroundings and company the young keep.

Accordingly the duty is imperative upon every civic organization to see that the surroundings of the homes, the setting in which pleasure is provided, indeed the entire surroundings of the young lives, are properly moulded. This is the greatest task in the world and unfortunately knowledge of this is limited.

The story of the mother of the Gracchi who was asked "Where are your jewels?" and who replied "Here" as she rested her hands on her two sons, should ever be the attitude of parents and of those who legislate and build. This is the most important duty in life. Good surroundings exert the most potential influence and these good surroundings are within and without the home. There must be the good home and there must be the good city in order that the environment may be proper, so that distortion and twisting of young lives from the normal may not be possible.

All parents have not the privilege and opportunity of bringing up their children as did the mother of Tiberius Gracchus and of Caius Gracchus. The duty remains however for individuals and communities and state to surround the young with that which will develop the best in them. Science and modern sociology are doing their utmost to bring to common knowledge such facts.

AMATEUR GARDENERS READY

Amateur gardeners and those who like to spend time in garden and on lawn, growing vegetables, flowers and shrubbery and improving the appearance of their property have been delayed in their season's work just as the farmers have been by the excess of rainfall for the past few weeks and the backward spring weather.

The warmer weather expected now will speed up the activities of this type of workers who will be compelled to work longer to catch up lost time.

Gardens and lawns today are in a much more satisfactory condition than when the "backyard" meant anything but a thing of beauty. Today most backyards will stand the most rigid inspection. To have a disordered backyard is a sort of disgrace today. No self-respecting citizen wants one of them. This change has come in a decade or so with the widening of local interest, the campaigns of clean-up and recognition that improvement of property is the cheapest means of preserving it. There are other reasons for the cleanlier condition of towns and cities, sanitary improvements, collection of garbage, disappearance of old barns which for years marred landscape, construction of new homes with basements which house articles formerly sheltered in sheds, more general use of water for lawns.

So today people spend more time on their lawns and gardens.

WILDWOOD, DESCRIBED AS A HARDENED LITTLE RESORT TOWN AND FISHING PORT between Atlantic City and Cape May, has a woman Mayor, 41-year-old Doris Warren Bradway, a Republican, and proud of it—no pussyfooting about Mayor Doris, she is a Republican, first, last and all the time, in good and evil report. She became New Jersey's first woman Mayor in 1933 and has had to fight for her political life every minute since. Time magazine gives Mayor Bradway two columns with pictures, under the caption of "Extraordinary Mayor" and states that her official acts have been the subject of investigation no less than ten times by Grand Juries, legislative and judicial bodies. Mayor Bradway has met her enemies in every kind of political contest devised by them and emerged victorious, and with a larger majority at the polls than ever. Last May, still under indictment for assorted alleged official misdeeds, ranging from illegal disbursement of municipal funds to taking gasoline from the city's supply for her own use, she got herself elected by a landslide for four more years. Mayor Bradway is a very irritating thorn in the side of the New Jersey Democrats who have sought unsuccessfully to smash her Republican "machine". They even had her husband, a rooster inspector arrested for alleged "vote stealing", but did not get very far, a token that they take their politics very seriously down where the big mosquitoes grow. When Mayor Bradway was first elected she weighed 251 pounds, but realizing that she must train down to stay in the big fight, she started a swimming and a general reducing campaign, which shook off 102 pounds and two extra chins. Says she: "I am not going to resign unless they get as many signers as voted for me last May.....I want to do what's best for the greatest little city in the world."

POWERS ELEPHANTS TRAINED AND DIRECTED AS ENTERTAINERS IN MANY LANDS by a Belleville man, the late Will Powers, and now the property of his widow, have arrived at Dallas, Texas, from overseas, and will be a star feature of the Pan-American Exhibition which opens there on June 12. Powers elephants have been overseas for a number of years, appearing in the British Isles and every country in Europe for extended engagements. Unlike the man who came into possession of an elephant, and had an elephant on his hands which ate all day and ate all night, and altogether was a costly elephant on his hands, Mrs. Will Powers found that her legacy of a bunch of elephants provided a steady income for her besides a very colorful life, although she employs trainers to put the pachyderms through their tricks and seldom travels with them now.

DISASTER PICTURES SUFFERED SEVERELY from the censors in Canada, who feared that Canadians might be severely shocked by some features of the tragedy showing the victims in various stages of suffering, and bodies hurling through the air as passengers and crew leaped from the doomed air ship to escape the flames. Of course there is no law compelling folks to view news-reel moving pictures of a gruesome nature.

MORE MOVING PICTURES OF THE "ROMANCE OF BOBBY BURNS" TYPE will always be acceptable. Rabbie's experience among the "gentry" of Edinboro toon, where he found friendship and jealousy and snobbery, and hesitated not to lash the ignoble in his poems afforded thrilling scenes for the silver screen, and, brief and beautiful as is the screen story, there is sufficient to show that Rabbie was a man for a' that and a' that, a robust hearty Scotch lad with a heart of gold and a character much stronger and worthier than that of his detractors.

QUOTED MAE WEST

"Hello Jack, I'm back. Know of any jobs?"

"Hi, Winnie, I thought you were with that adding machine company."

"No; I went in, but they gave me a test —gave me a lot of examples to do on the machine. But when I finished, I just wrote 'Mae West' on the bottom of the sheet and walked out."

"Mae West—why did you write that under the examples?"

"I done 'em wrong."

SOCIALIST PROFESSOR FORMS NEW SPANISH CABINET

INDALECIO PRIETO — DR. JUAN NEGRIN — LARGO-CABALLERO

Formation of a new "win the war" cabinet with Dr. Juan Negrin, Madrid college professor, as premier followed disagreement between former Premier Largo Caballero and the Communist forces of the government. The communists refused to support the government because Caballero insisted upon holding both the premiership and the war ministry portfolio. Dr. Negrin, former minister of finance in the Valencia government, formed a cabinet which did not include any members of the General Workers' Union or the Anarchist Federation. It included three Socialists, two Communists, one Catalon Left Republican and one Basque Nationalist. Indalecio Prieto, Socialist air and marine minister under Caballero, was appointed National defense minister, combining the air, marine and war ministries. (This makes him virtual dictator of war affairs.)

Stirling and District

Stirling—St. Paul's Young People's Union held their final meeting before the summer recess in the Church Parlors on Monday evening in the form of a social evening when one of the most interesting programs of the season was presented to a large number of members present. The rooms were artistically decorated for the occasion wit ha profusion of apple blossoms. Miss Mary Hulin, president of the organization was in charge of the meeting which opened with a brief song service and prayer by the Rev. W. J. Scott. The first number on the program was a humorous reading by Mr. Chas. Dracup, well known elocutionist, who offered "The Prairie Heroine," by Robert Stead. At this time Mrs. H. Moore and Mr. Donald Scott, forming a piano team, offered a group of instrumental duets that were greatly enjoyed, the group included such popular numbers as Londonderry Air and "The Old Refrain," by Fritz Chrysler."

Travel Talk by Rev. W. J. Scott

The main feature of the program was an interesting travelogue given by Rev. W. J. Scott. Some 30 years ago Mr. Scott made a trip through part of Egypt and described the nature of the land and scenic beauty and the many wonders to be seen on a trip six hundred miles up the Nile to Nile River. Here one treads the very lands upon which once walked such famous Biblical characters as Abraham, Moses, Jeremiah. The land into which Jesus was taken by his parents to be free from Herod. Small in population, there is a population of about fourteen million people. One marvels at the grandeur of such bodies of Pharoah and his queen, one is amazed at the engineering ability portrayed in its greatness. A tour of these chambers was one of the unique experiences as related by the speaker on his trip. When scientists of recent years discovered and unearthed some of these ancient temples and their great wealth, they were amazed to find paintings in marvelous preservation depicting characters well versed in ancient history. This was a most educational address and greatly enjoyed by all.

Miss Thelma Fenwick contributed a very humorous reading at this time in the program and the final number was Community singing with Mrs. H. Moore at the piano. A contest "Kingdoms" was directed by the president to climax a most interesting program. Several of the ladies assisted in serving luncheon and social period was enjoyed by all.

St. Andrew's Y.P.C.

Activities of the Young People's Guild of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church closed for the Summer recess with a meeting of unusual interest and fine social period. Mr. Roy Ross presided and opened over the meeting which opened with a song service. Mr. Lorne Johnston led in prayer and the Scripture lesson was taken by Mr. Ross Scott. Shirley Montgomery offered a recitation entitled "It's Spring," and the next number was a vocal duet by Misses D. Rodgers and Mary Tulloch with Mrs. Williams at the piano. Mrs. J. A. Koffend then favored the gathering with an instrumental solo, "Gleam of the Gem," a descriptive selection composed by Rhadbert Coates.

Speaker is Mrs. H. Rollins

The speaker of the evening was Mrs. H. Rollins, who chose for her subject the "Life and Works of Canadian Poets." Selecting three of the country's poets, Mrs. Rollins reviewed the early chapters of their lives including their academic training and gave in each case an example of the work for which each had become famous. Miss Carman and Chas. G. D. Roberts were New Brunswick's contribution to the long list of famous Canadian poets. Others mentioned by the speaker were Archibald Lampman, who was born in Ontario, and Wilson MacDonald and Duncan Campbell Scott, of Ottawa. This was a fine address and held the attention of the large group present as the speaker read portions from the works of each of these distinctly different writers.

Other musical numbers on the program included a vocal duet by Wm. Dermidy and Arthur Duncan, with Mrs. R. H. Williams at the piano and instrumental offerings by Mr. R. Williams which were greatly enjoyed.

During the business part of the meeting which included the secretary's report as read by Miss Winifred Ward, it was decided by vote that activities of the organization would be resumed from the first Monday in October. Two thought provoking contests, one directed by Wm. Dermidy and the other by Mrs. Duncan, Montgomery, were means of entertainment provided for the social period, after which several of the ladies assisted in serving luncheon at the long table provided for accommodate all the members and officials present.

Miss Mae Currie Speaker at Carmel

The regular weekly meeting of Carmel United Church Y. P. U. was held in the church on Friday night under the direction of the Missionary Department headed by Miss Marjorie Carlisle, who occupied the chair for the evening. After the usual song service, the leader led in prayer. The guest speaker of the evening was Miss Mae Currie of Stirling, who delivered an excellent address on the missionary work of the church, leading her thoughts on the following text, "Go ye into all the world and preach the Gospel." The final number on the program was a musical contest directed by Miss Carlisle, assisted by Mrs. Arthur Fryer at the piano. The meeting closed with the Mizpah Benediction.

Safer Feedings for YOUR BABY with Libby's HOMOGENIZED Baby Foods

HERE'S THE REASON

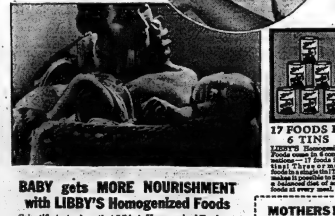
LIBBY'S Homogenized BABY FOODS may be fed MONTHS EARLIER

To protect babies against nutritional anemia many doctors recommend Libby's Homogenized vegetables as early as three months —weeks earlier than strained foods—to give baby the needed minerals. Your doctor will tell you when to start feeding Libby's Homogenized Foods to your baby.

Imprisoned Nourishment is Set Free by Homogenization

BEFORE Homogenization Whole food cells like this are found in strained foods. Nourishment is imprisoned by a tough wall around these cells. Baby's body finds it essential to learn to build a strong body.

AFTER Libby's Special Homogenization This is what happens to a solid food when it goes through Libby's Special process. Notice how the cell walls are broken. All nourishment has been set free for quick, easy and complete digestion.



Fewer Digestive Upsets with LIBBY'S Homogenized Foods

Babies are so little, so helpless—no wonder they're easily upset! No wonder mothers welcome Libby's Homogenized FoodsThat smoother, finer texture makes them much easier to digest. Clinically tested and approved by supervising specialists.

Mothers—here is a great discovery which makes baby's solid foods finer... smoother...safer. Only Libby's exclusive method of Homogenization makes possible this wonderful method of preparing baby's solid foods. Because scientific tests show that Homogenization makes baby's vegetables, fruits, cereals and soups far easier to digest, far more digestible than the usual strained foods, and allows earlier feeding of a solid food diet, doctors recommend Libby's Homogenized Foods. Your doctor will tell you when you may begin to feed your baby Homogenized foods.

Your grocer sells them, priced so low that your baby can have the health benefits of these fine foods every day.

BABY gets MORE NOURISHMENT with LIBBY'S Homogenized Foods

Scientific tests show that Libby's Homogenized Foods are easier to digest than the finest strained foods. Baby gets far more nourishment from Homogenized fruits, cereals, vegetables and soup. And he uses much less energy in getting the valuable vitamins, minerals and other essentials needed to develop strong bones, firm muscles.

What's Wrong With Your Bedroom?

Psychologists claim that the room in which we sleep is important to our rest. Certainly a tastefully decorated room may give us a satisfaction that is restful to the spirit.

How often is there some detail of a room that disturbs the occupant yet nothing is done about it. A wallpaper that isn't suitable—a badly planned closet—worn floors: It is not necessary for the housewife to feel that depleted finances prevent the righting of such wrongs. Under the Home Improvement Plan funds may be obtained from any Canadian bank for improvements, alterations or additions to homes.

A bedroom in one house was changed from just another room to an interesting sleeping apartment. The walls were papered in soft green with silver flowers. The white woodwork was changed to silvery grey and the floors were scraped, finished and waxed. Electric outlets were placed conveniently, allowing lamps to be used readily at useful points.

A novel arrangement of the furniture, added to the improvement made in the room. A dressing table was placed directly under the window and the beds placed on opposite sides of the room.

The rug was the same tone as the walls and chairs and bedcovers were of a soft blue. The furniture was dark walnut.

With little expense, a bedroom was obtained that was a source of pride to the owner and a room definitely created for rest.

DAILY SHORT STORY

His Birthday

By Jane Osborn

It was on the eve of Griffith's birthday. He probably wouldn't have thought about it if Mother, who was off on a year's visit to France with his father. The letter had reminded him of the fact that he was going to have a birthday and a money letter had slipped from the letter. It was for a hundred dollars and the letter had explained that it was a present to mostly need the money but I am hoping you'll take it and spend it—do something that you really want to without thinking whether it is extravagant or not. Do you remember what fun you and I used to have on your birthdays?"

So when George sat in his bachelor apartment that evening he fell to thinking of those birthdays long ago. From the time that he was a very little boy his mother had devoted the entire day to him. There had been the delicious cake and steak so in the ordinary course of events that he never ate quite as much of his mother as he wished. But when his birthday came he was always somehow disposed of all other duties and from early morning until bedtime was his own. And it could not do just what he wanted to do—and no one need know what they had done if it was something that should be hidden—and seldom might be a cautious, and a mighty good one she was—shy, curly-haired, freckle-nosed little Edith, who lived next door to Griffith's father's architect's office was the concurrent witness to all her exhibitions. At least George thought that was what she thought.

Well, he went to his office, and when he said good morning, Edith smiled and George rather surprised himself by asking her if she had a great deal to do. Perhaps she could get time to go with him to the big rental company to see the new church in which they had each in their own way had a hand. Edith had a good deal of time on her hands, but while she hesitated, she decided that she could make the work till midnight to get it done. Then she said she would go with him.

George and Edith took a taxi to the garage where George kept his car that he used only when he went to the country, and while they sat together George smiled to himself to think that he really was there with Edith. Ordinarily he wouldn't have thought of asking her—because ordinarily he never acted entirely with an idea of his own personal satisfaction. He called on certain girls because for some reason or other he thought it was his duty to do so. And there was no earthly reason why he should be spending time with Edith, except that he found pleasure in doing so. His didn't even think that she cared about it.

So it was that, after they had seen the church together and talked about it as one architect to another he asked Edith to have luncheon with him—because at the time it seemed as if nothing else in the world would be so pleasant. Then they went on another drive in the country. He asked her to dine with her with him and to go to the theatre. Edith said that she couldn't. She had work to do that night and besides—it seemed strange that you really wanted to be with me," said Edith. "I've often thought it would be nice to be with you, but you're barely looked at me."

George, sitting in his car beside Edith, explained about his birthday. Then he drove to Edith's home and stopped the engine. "Edith," he said hoarsely, "I've been a fool. I've been in love with you for months. I believe I can never live without you. Forget the work—I'll help you with it tomorrow. It isn't so pressing. Make the day mine. Dine with dinner and go to a show with me and before we go, I promise you'll marry me." And Edith promised.

HALLOWAY Y. P. S.

On Thursday evening, May 13th, about forty members and guests of the Halloway Y. P. S. partook of a delicious banquet at the church. The tables were decorated with coronation colors and the banquet provided by the losing side in the attendance contest, the leader of which was Mrs. Don Dose.

At he close of the repast, a toast to the church was proposed by Miss Marie Townsend, to which Miss Doris Horton ably responded.

Later a program provided by the winning side under the leadership of Mr. Coleman Townsend was presented in the church. Mr. Earl Snider, President, for the past season, acted as chairman. Miss Mary Carter contributed two humorous readings. Miss Marion Cecar Clapp rendered a vocal solo accompanied at the organ by Mrs. Clapp. A reading was given by Alberta Cochrane and a vocal duet by Miss Pricie Horton and Mrs. Coleman Townsend, accompanied by Miss Doris Horton. This was followed by a violin solo by Mr. Cecar Clapp.

Everyone joined heartily in singing the National Anthem, thus bringing to a close a successful and enjoyable season of the Halloway Y. P. S.

CENTRE, VICTORIA AND REDNERSVILLE W. M. S.

The Centre, Victoria and Rednersville W. M. S. held their May meeting on Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Melvin Pulver. Mrs. L. Brickman, the President, opened the meeting by reading the call to worship and a hymn was sung. Prayer was offered by Mrs. Brickman, Mrs. H. Pulver, and Mrs. R. Giles. The minutes were read and the business transacted. A letter of thanks was read from Mrs. Adam thanking the W.M.S. for a birthday card. A letter was read from Mrs. Waldron concerning the convention to be held on June 19th, at Bloomfield.

Mrs. H. Pulver had charge of the program and gave the Scripture readings from Mark 10. The Devotional Study "Jesus and the Way of Service" was read by Kathleen Giles, Lena Austin, Brickman sang a solo, "In the Garden With Jesus." A hymn was sung and prayer by Mrs. H. Brickman. Mrs. L. Brickman. Mrs. Roy Giles gave the Study Book assisted by Mrs. H. Pulver. Chapter six was given and different stories were read. Collection was taken and amounted to $6 cents, flower collection to 15 cents. After a hymn Mrs. L. Brickman closed the meeting with prayer from the Missionary Monthly. There were not as many present as usual. The ladies of group 2 served fruit and candy and were given a vote of thanks.

MISSION CIRCLE HAS MEETING

Last evening the Mission Circle of Tabernacle Church met at the home of Miss Phyllis May. After the regular business the following program was enjoyed.

The Scripture lesson was read by Jean Shorey and Phyllis May gave the devotional study. Readings with the presentation of the boty as a living sacrifice, Edith Bird gave an interesting talk on the Coronation, more particularly with the home life of Her Majesty, Queen Mary.

Gladys Pomeroy gave an interesting talk on the dedi we owe our country.

Jean and Betty Shorey sang a duet, "Sweet and Low, Wind so soft to silver." A chapter from the Study Book entitled "Monkeys and Monkeys." A lesson in co-operation was given by Rachel Fox. Two contests were played. A lovely lunch was served by the committee in charge. A vote of thanks was extended to Phyllis and Mrs. May for their kind hospitality.

ST. ANDREW'S W. M. S.

The May meeting of St. Andrew's Presbyterian W.M.S. was held in the church parlor on Monday, Mrs. Charles presiding. Mrs. Ransom conducted the devotional period and Appropriate reading of Psalm 72. Mrs. Hunter, president of the Provincial gave a splendid detailed report of the annual Presbyterial convention at London. Mrs. R. Morris and Mrs. A. Weir rendered a vocal duet accompanied by Mrs. Mackie. Mrs. George Hall kindly invited the members in her home for the June meeting. Mrs. Ransom's prayer served refreshments and a social half hour was spent.

TABERNACLE W. M. S.

The president Mrs. Gerow presided at the May meeting of Tabernacle W.M.S. when Mrs. Hall read the church notices. The children of the Baby Band and their mothers were present. Mrs. Nunn sang a solo, "In the Garden With Jesus." A hymn was sung and prayer by Mrs. Hall. Readings by Mrs. L. Brickman. Mrs. Roy Giles gave the Study Book assisted by Mrs. H. Pulver. Chapter six was given and different stories were read. Collection was taken and amounted to 36 cents, flower collection to 15 cents. After a hymn Mrs. L. Brickman closed the meeting with prayer from the Missionary Monthly. There were not as many present as usual. The ladies of group 2 served fruit and candy and were given a vote of thanks.

MOTHER ADMITS MURDER

Because she wished more room in the cramped apartments for the man she loved, Mrs. Helen Tiernan of New York, has confessed she murdered her eight-year-old daughter and attempted the murder of her ten-year-old son Jimmy (above). Both children were cruelly cut about the throat and then left to die. Kerosene with which to destroy the two children failed apparently because the wet leaves which had been stacked around the bodies. Jimmy, his jugular vein saved from being severed by only a fraction of an inch, was saved from an agonizing death when discovered in a thicket with the body of his sister.

RUDY'S NEXT "MRS."

If whispery circulating at Miami, Fla., are "on the level" as the whisperers owe they are, you are looking at the next Mrs. Rudy Vallee. The pretty lady is Miss Valeren Woodward, of Miami. She is a brunette and a former model. She and Vallee, reports say, intend to join the No. 1 crooner in New York on his return from coronation engagements in London.

Lincoln, Neb., May 20 (CP)—Who is the meanest individual in the world?

Many residents here agree he is the man who stole Spike, a white collie-Spitz dog that devoted his life to leading his blind master, Mrs. W. D. Bancroft. "Spits" lived for a week, but Mrs. Bancroft, mystified by the dog's suffer any longer, ordered him killed.

"You Only Live Once"
A Dramatic Theatrical Hit

A dramatic thunderbolt hits town today when "You Only Live Once" brings Sylvia Sidney and Henry Fonda, the sweethearts of "The Trail of the Lonesome Pine," back to the screen at the Belle. They're in a pair of film portrayals that promise to make cinema history.

Teeming with punch-laden situations, fiery romance and kaleidoscopic drama, this film production of Walter Wanger for United Artist release also adds another vivid feather to the cap of Fritz Lang, the director who gave you "Fury," "M," "Metropolis" and other unforgetable pictures.

A starkly human drama of emotions in the raw from the pen of Gene Towne and Graham Baker, "You Only Live Once" tells the story of a man and woman in love who defy a whole nation.

Fast and Furious Drama

Sylvia Sidney has her best role to date as Joan Graham, who loves Eddie Taylor, a convict released through the efforts of Joan's lawyer, Stephen Whitney, public defender, who also loves the girl. And Fonda, as Eddie, displays a dramatic power unhinged at in his previous roles.

The young couple are married and Eddie makes a desperate effort to go straight. But he loses his job for a light infraction of the rules..... chiefly because he's an ex-convict.

Then a masked bandit stages a daring bank robbery, in the course of which several people are killed. On the scene is found Eddie's hat. Eddie is arrested, tried and convicted, he is sentenced to die in the electric chair.

Savagely determined not to die for a crime he did not commit, Eddie makes a dramatic effort to protect his life and the manner in which his young wife sticks by him as the pair are hounded through the country like two hunted animals makes for fast and furious drama that builds to a breath-taking climax and happy and daring denouement.

Cast Excellent

The supporting cast is uniformly excellent, headed by Barton MacLane, famous "heavy" who scores in the sympathetic role of Stephen Whitney, Fonda's rival; Jean Dixon as Joan's sister; William Gargan, as the prison Chaplain; the late "Chick" Sale, Warren Hymer, Margaret Hamilton, Guinn Williams, Jerome Cowan, John Wray, Jonathan Hale and others.

Lang, a master at telling the audience, experienced in the story, achieves some unusual and sometimes startling effects without jarring the smooth-running tempo of the drama.

Magnificent photography, credited to Leon Shamroy, lends rare beauty to the picture, especially in the scenes laid in the mountain retreats. "You Only Live Once" is the cinematic thrill of a lifetime. It will give you a jolt..... but you'll love it.

Excellent Featurettes

Two excellent featurettes are announced for exhibition on the same program including Edgar Kennedy and a host of funmakers in an uproarious multiple - reel comedy "Jocks and Reels." Radio's favorite Monday night program Hillbilly's "Community Sing," will be presented on the same program with your old friends Wendall Hall, Billy Jones and Ernie Hare leading the festivities. You must come and join the fun and.....sing!

TRAINING DIET OF PLATE CANDIDATES ALMOST COMPLETED

Toronto, May 20—(CP)—Training diet of about a dozen thoroughbreds expected to start in the King's Plate finished here today as Woodbine Park where the historic classic will be run Saturday.

A pair of colts—Goldlure and Red Pirate— stand as favorites in the mile and a furlong battle for the King's 50 guineas and the major portion of a $7,000 added money.

Trainers grooming colorbearers for the tough assignment will run five furlongs tomorrow to breeze. Expected starters have been tested over the full route and found in good conditioning spirits.

Red Pirate, owned by R. S. McLaughlin of Oshawa, stepped into a favorite role when Pagan King, winter book choice, failed to show his stride the stamina required to cover the distance. Pagan King may start in the event as Harry Giddings, McLaughlin's trainer, has not definitely announced withdrawal of the big black gelding.

Red Pirate started only twice last year and won on both occasions. He came out of winter quarters in good condition and took to training in workmanlike manner.

Goldlure, also coming

Goldlure gained a reputation as a two-year-old when he won the first three starts of his career. He failed only in the Coronation stakes and the Clarendon plate, juvenile tests. Trainer Bill Bringloe has concentrated on the colt but may also name Gozier or Budron if Goldlure shows signs of fading.

Half a dozen other expected starters must also be considered in the betting. They are:

Golden Silence—A threat over a heavy underfoot. He won the Clarendon plate last year in mud. Saddock deep.

Aldwych—She favors a distance and breaks near the front on a fast track.

Sycat—He has shown great staying power and beat during workouts.

Cease Fire—He finished training in top form. He hasn't matched Red Pirate's workouts but is impressed over an in and out juvenile.

Gold Guard — An unknown quantity. He has never faced the barrier and may be J. E. Brown Seagram's surprise.

Tetka Oka—A long shot from the stable of R. N. New. He has been passed over by experts but has rounded to form.

ORILLIA TERRIERS OPEN SEASON WITH A WIN

Toronto, May 20—(CP)—Another season of wide-open play and high scoring seemed in store today as the Ontario Amateur Lacrosse Association wrote the results of early games into its record books. For the past two years—in which Orillia Terriers have stood out—the Province's lacrosse has been featured more and more for close getting.

In line with that trend, Terriers defeated Toronto Marlboro 22-18 last night to open their defence of the Mann cup, Canadian Senior Trophy.

The result was jotted down beside a 17-7 win St Catharines achieved over Brantford Monday.

The champions looked as good as ever and many days ahead of Marlboro in conditioning. They stepped to an early four-goal lead and were checked seriously only in the second quarter, when Toronto narrowed the margin to two

POSTPONED RACES MUST BE SAILED BEFORE LABOR DAY

New regulations were adopted by the Belleville Yacht Club at a regular executive meeting held in the club rooms last evening when it unanimously passed legislation regarding the postponements of sailing races throughout the coming season. In past seasons all postponed races were sailed at the conclusion of the racing season after Labor Day. Under the new regulations, however, all races postponed throughout the sailing season due to adverse weather conditions, etc., must be re-sailed and completed before Labor Day, if the points concerned are to count in the season's aggregate which, in turn, determines the club winner in each sailing class.

Preliminary negotiations to include cruising racing group within the club have also been discussed, following the purchase of two new dinghy craft by local yachtsmen. New punt sailing craft have been provided in the clubs' flotilla, having been built during the past winter months. Yachting, especially punt sailing, has been skyrocketed in local waters to such an extent, that this aquatic endeavour is rapidly regaining its former prominence of many years ago, when sailing on the Bay of Quinte was renowned throughout the realm of aquatic sports.

As has been the custom for the past few years, the Belleville Yacht Club will commence its sailing activities, in all five classes, on May 24th, with races being the order of the day every Wednesday afternoon and legal holiday until Labor Day. Sailing before a spanking breeze is one of the most thrilling sporting events known to man and will be provided local citizens of Victoria Park commencing Monday.

KI-Y SOFTBALL

West End and Wildcats were victorious in two Ki-Y League games played last evening, the West End club defeating the Junior Y's men 6 to 2, while the Wildcats downed Bridge-Builders, 10 to 14 in a high scoring match. Following the former game, Coach Ingram and Manager Hall gave notice they would protest the game, claiming a mistake was made in the batting order.

At Queen May grounds the West End nine scored five runs in the initial frame and added three more in the third inning, Jr. Y men failing only successfully solve the delivery of the West End's pitcher in the second and Wildcats pushed across their lone two tallies.

The line-ups:

West End—Langabeer, Symons, Reid, Ingram, Sleigh, R. Reid, Weseen, McGuaid and Salisbury.

Junior Y'smen— Fitzgibbon, Cowman, Hall, McGuire, Rogers, Wilkin, Burkholder, Cook and Bell.

Scores by innings:

West. End ..... 503 00—8 runs
Jr. Y'smen ..... 020 00—2 runs

Umpires—Weller and Langabeer.

At Queen Alexandra grounds Bridge Builders and wrung both clubs and when the smoke of battle had subsided the Wildcats emerged victors by a 10 to 14 count. Extra base knocks were the order of the night including a circuit blow. circuit blow. This game was in the bantam series, while the former was a midget game.

The line-ups:

Wildcats — Denton, Faulkner, Plummer, Graham, Ransome, Sword Watson, Massey, York and Burns.

Blue Birds—A. Adams, Even, O'Brien, Taylor, Cowan, D. Adams, Graham, Schrider, Doyle, McCabe and Sheppard.

Umpires—Mark Storms.

RIPPLE AND DEAN MEET AT FIRST BASE AND START SWINGING

(By Whitney Martin)

(Associated Press Sports Writer)

St. Louis, May 20—(AP)—If some unidentified individual hadn't hopped Joe Medwick out in left field and hung it on Don Gutteridge's eye, there would be little indication today that the "Battle of the Century" was staged before 26,289 shivering fans at Sportsman's Park yesterday as Carl Hubbell, lean Oklahoma southpaw, turned in his 23rd straight victory of the old and new seasons at the expense of Dizzy Dean and St. Louis Cardinals, 3 to 1.

The good old days when the coming to town of John McGraw's "Giants" meant open season for flat fights were revived by Frankie Frisch's current model yesterday, with the unshakable co-captain of the Cardinals, but aside from the individual battle, took a back seat to Gutteridge, other pleasure fighters pitched no-hit games.

There was no hint of serious trouble until the Giant half of the sixth, when a wild pitch called on Dizzy which ultimately resulted in three Giant runs.

Players Meet at First

In the ninth when Jimmy Ripple, Giant centre-fielder, came in the dirt to avoid a particularly hostile pitch, there was a hint of danger, when he glanced toward the Giant dugout, recalled, then hustled down the first base line.

It was foul, and he tried it again, luring Dizzy over to cover bag as he neatly rolled fair.

Dean and Ripple met, and started swinging without waiting for the going. What happened thereafter is remembered by nearly 27,000 howling fans as a wild confusion of rushing figures, swinging arms and wild shouts. The dugouts emptied like they were turned upside down.

The two-man battle became a free-for-all, and when police and the umpires finally had restored order, the question of what to do about it all arose. It was decided to banish those two and let the original contenders remain in the game.

Shirt tail flying, one shoe off, the scrappy Carl paid Frankie Frisch's demonstrated Dizzy's delivery, called a balk.

Frankie: how could that be a balk," he yelled.

"That's no balk," Dizzy chimed in. I shoulda won that game 1 to 0. We was robbed."

The following article is contributed by H. R. "Bert" Frink, well-known authority on motorcycling and one of the charter members of the Quinte Motorcycle Club. Mr. Frink thoroughly explains the conditions that confront George Pepper in his bid for higher motorcycle honors at the Isle of Man next month. Mr. Frink's contribution reads—

"With George Pepper now safely in England for the greatest race of his life, a little information about road-racing in general and the tourist trophy races in particular might be of interest to his many fans in the district.

Road racing for motorcycles began in England in the early 1900's. It was quickly recognized as being the best competitive method to prove the road-worthy type of motorcycle as it stressed every part of the machine rather than a few components alone, as did other events. ...

Due to the initiative of the Isle of Man authorities and the narrow-mindedness of the English government the Auto Cycle Union organized the race in "the Island", over a narrow twisty dirt road that must have been highly unsafe, even at the low speeds of those days. It is amazing to reach the point that one of the early races were won by furious work with the pedals which assisted the feeble engines!

No races were held in the Island during the War but soon after the race was organized on its modern day basis. The present "Mountain course" of 37 2-4 miles was chosen, and the Manx authorities have ever since cooperated in every way possible, of which more anon.

The present course climbs Snaefell Mountain (1,400 ft) and winds through many villages in its circuit which is lapped seven times during the race. There is one straight stretch of about two miles in length, and there are over 100 bends or corners, varying from the double gooseneck bend at Governor's Bridge which limits the speed to about fifteen miles per hour, to the fast bumpy downhill bend at the infamously unlucky thirteenth milestone, which is taken at close to 100 m.p.h. An interesting oddity in the course is the presence of several humps—literally humps, from the top of which the machines make long terrifying jumps—a terrific test of frames and tires. Probably the most spectacular point for spectators is Ramsey Hill, a long straight run down a village street with an S bend at the foot of the hill. The sight of the riders shooting down this hill at about 110 m.p.h. is terrifying high in the air over the bumps, has made many a spectator faint and even caused more than one person known to ride behind the concrete posts which line the road!

The course is the most severe test of any racing motorcycle known. Many a foreign machine, invincible on the road race circuits of its own country, has come to the Island, its designer and riders full of high hopes. Almost invariably the machine has failed to stand the beating the course gives it. The long climb up the mountain, with the engine screaming at 6000 r.p.m. in second or third gear or the equally long drop down again at 115 or 120 m.p.h. may "melt" the engine. The soul-shattering jolts of the jumps off hump-backed bridges may bend the frame. Blow a fork break a fork spring. The brakes may burn out in the long fierce decelerating from 100 m.p.h. to 30 on the innumerable corners. In fact, the only notable exception to this rule was the wins in 1935 by the Irish "star" Stanley Woods on an Italian "Guzzi" of the 250 and 350 class respectively.

In many ways the T. T. is curiously out of date, yet any suggestion of a change arouses an outcry from the fans. The course itself is much too long, according to modern standards which regard a 7 to 10 mile lap ideal. The long course, which takes months of practice at high speed, thus places a heavy handicap on the newcomer and the foreigner. The riders are started individually at half minute intervals to avoid dangerous "bunching". This necessitates a huge complicated scoreboard in front of the grandstand to show the placings. A man may finish five minutes after the first man has finished and yet be the winner when the starting times between them are taken into consideration. A complicated telephone system with various points on the course, operated by Boy Scouts, shows on a scoreboard the progress of the leaders throughout the race.

From the rider's standpoint the race is at once the most gruelling test and the most thrilling competition the sport offers. Unfair tactics and "dirty riding" are of course completely unknown. Added to the "terrors" of the course is the knowledge that one's mechanical production machine must be raced against teams of the world's crack riders mounted on the latest and most modern racing machines that the famous factories can produce. This means that the "lone" long riders can lap the course at an average of well over 73 m.p.h. in the dirt, as well on the new tar-macadam course. Add to this the fact that their mounts will have at least 7 or 8 miles on the clock since new when they start the race, and the impossibility of a rider winning his first T. T. becomes apparent.—For such a rider as Stanley Woods, his son's own really "super" riding ability, and he would probably be mapped up at the top as a "natural scout" for one of the factory teams.

Every corner on the course has a narrow imaginary "line" cutting through it which will permit the highest speed on that corner. Every T. T. rider must have satisfactorily knows where this line is if he can see the whole bend and be supremely sure of it. The many hedges and walls that line the many sharp of the corners blind so that such a rider requires a great deal of practice before he can find that line around even the more important corners only.

Personally, I believe that George Pepper, has that necessary gift or talent referred to. His machine gives no trouble, and if he gets time for sufficient practice, and the race is run in fair weather, I believe that George will give a better account of himself than any Canadian sent over in recent years. Here's hoping he will and does!

Ed's Note—We are indebted to Mr. Frink for his enlightening account on the Manx racing conditions.

SAFE GOING AND Happy Landings!

JUST another few days and we drivers will be rolling along a little faster than ever—as Ontario's highway speed limit moves up to 50 miles per hour.

As every motorist knows, there are times when travelling at 50 can be actually safer than dawdling along at 10 or 15. But it pays to remember that speed is out of place on wet pavements—when nearing a busy crossroad or a curve—when you see children ahead—and after dark.

Stepping-up our speed also emphasizes the importance of having safe brakes, steering, headlights and tires. A few dollars spent today in having these checked and adjusted by your General Motors dealer may save you trouble and expense later on.

As motor car manufacturers, we at General Motors build every safety feature into our Chevrolet, Pontiac, Oldsmobile, McLaughlin-Buick, La Salle and Cadillac cars. Four-wheel brakes, Multibeam headlights, Knee-Action wheels, Turret Top bodies—all were introduced or popularized by General Motors to make motoring safe at all speeds and on all roads.

But no matter what the speed, the road or the car, the ultimate safety factor is the driver. Let us all do our part—by driving sensibly, by showing courtesy to others on the road—and we can be sure of safe going over this 24th of May, and of "happy landings" at every journey's end. GM-6X

TORONTO STOCKS CLOSE

Toronto, May 20.—(CP)—Looking more like a market than previously this month, the Toronto Exchange was fairly active today on a bulge in buying in the gold and the Base Metals also displayed moderate buoyancy. O'Brien closed nearly a dollar around around 9.35 and a long list of cheaper golds firmed 5 to 10 cents each. Papers, Utilities and Steels in the Industrial section all looked better.

The cheap Oils were stirred up by a report one company was getting a greatly augmented flow after acidding. There was no confirmation of the report but much of the buying was reported to have come from the West. Gains of 15 to 23 cents came out for Calgary-Edmonton, Home and Anglo-Canadian and gains for the penny issues including Calmont, Dalhousie, Mercury, Model, Highwood, East Crest, Norcen and others. Okalta gained seven cents. Senior Oils were steady to strong. International Petroleum gained 3-8 and McColl advanced the minimum fraction. Homestead added 4 cents. Royalite was up 3 1-2 points.

Canada Bread A advanced more than a point and other foods to do better were Canadian Canners, Lake of the Woods and Loblaw B. In the steels the close was up for Canadian Car, Dominion Steel, Steel of Canada, and Dominion Foundries and Steel. Banks were stronger and higher gains were posted for the Massey Harris stocks and for Cockshutt Plow. Massey Pfd. was up nearly two points.

The Great Lakes Paper issue stood out with gains of 2 to 2 points each and Abitibi Pfd pushed forward 3-4 of a point. Belgium Power A gained a point and the close was firm. Gains for Hinde and Dauch, Photo Engravers and Gypsum.

Senior Base Metals moved forward on fair buying. Nickel adding 1 1-2, Noranda 3-4, Hudson Bay 3-4 and Smelters 1 1-2. Falconbridge and Reed Ordila. Sudbury Basin and Coast Copper added 15 to 30 cents each.

MARKET COMMENT

The action of the market late Tuesday afternoon attests to the fact that the list is in a sold-out condition and that it would require very little constructive news of major importance to bring about a sustained rise. South Africa ministers journeying to the Imperial Conference will make a strong effort to secure some understanding as to the future of gold, a commodity in which that land as well as this country are vitally interested. The bringing to a head of the question of the gold bloc would be the most constructive factor that could develop as affecting security markets at the present time.

It is foolfardy to shut our eyes and buy just any stock because of prospects of substantial rise in the general averages. Though in a bear market, rarely every stock goes down, in a bull market not all stocks advance. After the expansion of 1921 we had examples of stocks that continuously sold lower, year after year. If we had examined these groups at that particular time, we should have found greatly over-expanded plant capacity as a result of war boom. We may still encounter similar situations in various groups today.

Copper metal on the London market has recovered somewhat from the levels reached on its recent rise. There has been some talk in the British capital of the advisability of a scheme limiting restrictions upon output of the red metal, but it does not appear to have emanated from responsible quarters. In view of the copper situation for April, showing that world stocks declined in that month despite increased output, such a step would seem not only unnecessary, but ill-advised.

Mining is a Heavy User of Power

Included in the annual report of the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission is some revealing data pertaining to the Ahtibi district. This district is the one formed around the Ahtibi Canyon development when the Province of Ontario took it over during the depression. The growth of mining in the north country is creating real new markets for power from the development. Gross revenues from the sale of power increased from $235,000 in 1933 to $1,411,000 in 1936. The mining industry did it.

On The Street

The American Press has carried for many columns on the Gold situation the last few days it would almost make it appear as though the war is being paved for an announcement from Washington on the basic leading question. Rahoon's says—"We are still bullish, not bearish, on the underlying long-pull trend for business, stocks and commodities....Dull days promote many rumors, recently stories have gone the rounds of a possible move to abandon the Gold Exchange week to five days, but there is much opposition to Saturday closing on the firm ground that sales volume is small enough as it is and that further to shorten the trading week would further cut into it.

SAYS HEPBURN

"Hepburn did not have the courage to resign and go to the country," he said, "by political trickery he has stopped the separate school supporters.

Right to Organize

Referring to labor policy, Mr. Rowe said: "The labor man in Great British right to organize and to bargain collectively. Britain does not call out battalions every time a man expounds his view in Hyde Park. I stand four-square for the maintenance of law and order but Mr. Hepburn marches with the Fascisteers, the monopred press, the power barons. I will not march with him and his fascist principles that destroy the foundation of our British-form of government."

Produce Prices on Montreal Market

Montreal, May 20—Prices moved higher on the local butter market yesterday. The first local auction of the season was held at noon at the Board of Trade, when 713 boxes of No. 1 Quebec butter sold at 22 1-4c, with 137 boxes of No. 2 selling at 1-3c less. In the afternoon the open market for No. 1 in cartons or 1-c.l. lots was quoted 22 1-4c to 23 1-3c, most houses asking the latter. This compared with a top of 23c on Tuesday. Wholesale houses announced an advance of 1-3c, effective this morning, in prices on small lots of butter to the retail trade, levels becoming 24 1-2c for solids and 25c for prints.

Graded shipments of eggs in l.c.l. lots were generally 24—21 1-2c for A-large, 20c for A-medium, 19c for B, and 18c for C, with carlots or storage packed 1-2c to 1c higher. Offerings were posted at the Commodity Exchange at 23c for A-large, and 20 1-2c for A-medium.

The cheese market was 14c to 14 1-2c for No. 1 Ontarios, current arrivals.

Transactions ran at the rate of about 1,300,000 for the full session, compared with 789,460 yesterday.

Obituary

FRED E. FOSTER (Chicago)

Fred E. Foster, brother of Mrs. Alfred Gillen of this city, died suddenly at his residence at Chicago, Ill., this Thursday morning, May 20th. The announcement of the passing will be received with sincere regret by many of the older residents of Belleville who knew him during the years he resided here.

The late Mr. Foster was born at Belleville, his parents being the late Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Foster. He was educated at the city schools and was active in sports. During the early days of bicycles he was an expert fancy rider on the high and low wheels. Eventually he entered the retail store, linensmithing and gentlemen's furnishing here after some years clapsed of his interests and went to reside at Chicago where he eventually established the Foster Fabric company. In this venture he was very successful; the business being entirely of a high class nature. During the passing years he paid visits to the city of his birth and Belleville friends were by old friends.

Surviving him are his widow and two daughters also his sister, Mrs. Alfred Gillen of Belleville.

The funeral will take place at Chicago.

Tokyo, May 20 (CP-Havas) — The Japanese plane "Divine Wind", enroute from London to Tokyo, landed at Taihaku, Formosa, at 2.10 p.m. (Tokyo time) today.

The plane left London May 14 with the photos and films of the coronation of King George VI.

The fliers left Hanoi, Indo-China, early today and flew over Hong Kong without stopping.

Deserving the Confidence of the Motoring Public

The old saying "he profits most who serves best" applies with particular force to the automobile business. For the average motorist includes cost of car ownership and operation in his daily budget of expense, and there never is a time when the car owner is not paying something for the advantage of automotive transportation.

The more thoughtful of car owners early find a reliable source of automobile motoring necessities—a place to which they can go for supplies or service with confidence. The most thoughtful automobile dealer early adopts the policy of so conducting his business as to deserve the confidence and good will of the motorist.

Our business grows day by day because we bring an Intelligent, up-to-date, capable service to all who need and use cars. Come in and see what we've got here—and take a good look at the new Pontiac and McLaughlin-Buick cars.

New London, Conn., May 20—(CP)—Joseph Waldereon can't be worm-baited hook into a sicsum. A trout and an eel raced for it. The trout won, but knocked the worm off the hook. The hooked trout and the eel continued fighting for the worm, and the trout twisted Waldereon's line around the eel.

Waldereon pulled them both up with the line, which was in a neat clove hitch about the eel. He has two witnesses.

MADOC

COMMUNITY CLUB NAMES OFFICERS

Reeve R. F. Bristol is Choice For President

Madoc, May 20—Reeve R. F. Bristol of Madoc Village was elected President of the local community club at a re-organization meeting held in the community hall on Tuesday night. Other officers were as follows:

1st Vice President: Don Whytock.

2nd. Vice President: Cam Wallbridge.

Secretary: Jas. Watson.

Treasurer: Dan Barry.

Chairman of Membership: Chas. Johnston.

Chairman of Publicity: Vaughan Jack.

Chairman of Recreation: Percy Gunn.

Chairman of Entertainment: Geo. West.

A contract with Bud Smith's Rocky Mountain Donkey Ball Club was endorsed and plans formed for a monster Diamond Jubilee celebration marking the sixtieth year of incorporation of Madoc Village on Dominion Day.

A large number of former members turned out and an effort will be made to contact the old ones who were not present and to get new ones to join.

Mention of the good work done by the club in the past was made by President Bristol.

The members of Trinity WMS. met at the home of Mrs. Pollard on Thursday afternoon with a splendid attendance of members and visitors. Following an opening hymn, the leader, Mrs. Corrigal introduced the theme of the devotional exercises "In the Footsteps of Jesus." The scripture reading Mark 1 13-17, Mark 2 13-17 by Mrs. Huffman was followed by the reading of the devotional leaflet by Miss Wood entitled "The Problems of our Youth," stressing the many problems having to be coped with were not created by our youth and should be more tolerantly understood. A solo seasonably entitled "Thank God for a Garden," beautifully rendered by Mrs. Hulin was followed with prayer earnestly led by Mrs. Malcolm Bristol for our young people. The hymn "Happy the Home Where Christ Reigns," was followed by a second silent prayer for our youth and missionaries, in foreign lands with Mrs. The President, Mrs. Hamm, assisted by the secretary Mrs. Broad and the treasurer Mrs. S. S. Ashley, who outlined a splendid financial report for the four months of the year conducted a brief business period. Reports were received from the Christian Stewardship convener, Mrs. Manly Fox, the literature convener, Mrs. Fleming and the Mission Band convener, Mrs. T. J. Burnside.

Following a hymn, prayer was again offered with Mrs. Manly Fox leading, for the welfare and happiness of children and youth of church and community. A hymn and prayer by Mrs. Corrigal concluded the program.

Miss A. Tumelty and Mrs. F. Fleming assisted the hostess in a splendid social half hour.

On Monday evening May 17 the installation of officers of Madoc Chapter No. 143, Order of the Eastern Star took place in the Star hall, Madoc. ISSUE BECLOUDED, SAYS EARL ROWE

Calls Hepburn's Labor Stand "Height of Nonsence"

PORT ARTHUR, Ont., May 20—(CP)—Premier Hepburn's Labor stand and alleged efforts to becloud the real issues with a red bogey of Communism" were described as "the height of nonsense" by Hon. Earl Rowe, Ontario Conservative leader, at the annual meeting of the Port Arthur Liberal-Conservative Association here Tuesday night. The meeting passed a resolution endorsing Mr. Rowe's labor policy of free association.

Speaking to the Port Arthur Rotary Club earlier he stressed that labor in Canada must be given a square deal if the interests of the country are to be protected. Mr. Rowe expressed the belief that worker should be able to join whatever body he wished as long as law and order were maintained. "The Conservative Party is 100 per cent. for law and order," he said.

Free Association Endorsed

"The issue is not whether Mr. Hepburn likes the C.I.O., or whether I like the C.I.O.," he observed. "Both parties throughout the history of the country have been zealously guarding the rights of workers to free association. It is part—it is the very basis of British justice."

"Lately, Mr. Hepburn has been making a desperate struggle to drag a red herring across the issue just before an election," Mr. Rowe said. "You will recall how he swung to the left before the last election, and now he is just as wildly trying to swing to the right."

"Free association is the right of labor," he maintained.

LANTERN SLIDES SHOW HAZARDS

Columbus Handley, Hydro Inspector, is Guest Speaker

The hazards of electricity were explained by lantern slides to the members of the Kiwanis Club at their weekly luncheon by Columbus Handley, Kiwanian of Kingston, who is electric inspector for this district, and those who were privileged to view the slides will realize in future to do the things they have done in the past when using electric appliances. Eddie Logan presided at the meeting with a large number of the members in attendance and the attendance shield still in possession of the Belleville club.

A number of the members are preparing for the annual invasion of Oshawa on June 9th, when the annual field day of effort will be held by that club, while a number of carloads will journey to Lindsay on June 12th to attend the get together arranged by the Lindsay Club. The splendid report for the past four months was read by Harold Cross and shows the club to be quite active in various lines. Mr. Handley spoke of the day was introduced by the President, Kiwanian Aspenwall. was the unseen helper and practically every property dependent on it but certain respect must be paid to the wonderful installation of electricity in a home is only safe if you know how to use it. The author-ity said it is safe as it is possible by improved wiring and other appliances and the audience showed many of the old types of lamps and wiring and compared them with the ones now in use.

The slides depicted the wrong way to use electricity dealing with broken cords using electric appliances while sitting in a bath tub or having a hand on taps or other articles, that are grounded. "You are only inviting trouble", said the speaker. The explanation of how to use appliances correctly was set forth in small booklets, which were distributed to the members at the close of the meeting.

RECIPES TO END CONSTIPATION

Every woman can protect her family from constipation troubles by careful menu planning. Often the cause of illness from constipation is lack of "bulk" in the diet. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN supplies this "bulk" in generous quantity.

You can use ALL-BRAN in so many delightful ways. As a ready-to-eat cereal with milk or cream, or sprinkled on cooked. Or make delicious bran muffins and breads—put it into griddle cakes, salads or use as a crisp topper on cereals.

Just be sure each member of your family has two tablespoonfuls every day—and forget the illness caused by constipation. Serve three times daily, in severe cases.

You can also forget pills and drugs that only temporarily relieve, and that so often fail unless the dose is constantly increased.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN also supplies vitamin B to help tone the intestines, and iron for the blood. Sold by all grocers. Made and guaranteed by Kellogg in London.

"Well," remarked Les, proprietor of the leading two-chair barber shop of Essex Centre as Mr. Picobac walked in, "did you hear the Coronation Broadcast?"

"I certainly did," replied Mr. Picobac, exhaling a fragrant cloud of smoke, as he took a luxurious seat in one of the two chairs. "And I wouldn't have missed it for worlds. I tell you it makes a man think."

"And what does it make you think?" asked Les, removing Mr. Picobac's pipe and laying it on the shelf under the mirror.

"Well, it makes me think how proud I am to be British . . . to be born a subject of the British Crown. And what's more, we are the most democratic people in the whole wide world and we've got the most democratic king. God Save The King!"

"Hear, hear," said Les, tucking in the towel.

Mr. Picobac chuckled. Then realizing that shaving operations had interrupted a mild . . . cool . . . sweet Picobac smoke, he stiffened to attention.

"Give me a quick one, Les," commanded he. "I've got important business down street this morning."

Dust-Clouded Skies of West Clear After Crop Damage

Montreal Men Hurt in Car as Dust Obscures View

RAIN IS NEEDED

Regina, May 19 (CP) — Dust-clouded skies of southern Alberta and Saskatchewan cleared today after high winds whipped the drought and sand and dust storms as far west as Calgary and north to Saskatoon.

The Strathmore district, thirty miles east of Calgary, reported serious crop damage when a storm lashed the district, wrecking small buildings and tearing down fences.

Two Montreal men, David Miller, 61, and his son Bernard, 27, were seriously injured near Strathmore, in an automobile accident caused by dust obscuring visibility. They were taken to hospital in Calgary.

The Strathmore storm lasted half an hour, rolling up huge dust clouds which covered the countryside like a pall of forest-fire smoke.

Calgary was on the fringe of the storm area and received only a light blow.

Clear skies and sunshine greeted farmers today as they surveyed wind swept fields. Rain is still urgently needed in southern Alberta and good precipitation would overcome damage caused by the dust and wind. agriculture officials said.

Thousands of acres of growing wheat in the drought area south of Regina were damaged in a storm yesterday. Light rain fell in the Saskatchewan capital today and the skies were clearing.

Little Benny's Note Book

After supper ma said to pop, The 19th of June, it's approaching faster every day, The 19th of June.

That's our wedding anniversary, pop said, It's engraved in my memory as it's engraved on my hart. And the more I think of your proposal to celebrate it all by ourselves the more the idea appeals to me. After all it's strictly ourown affair and nobody's bizsness but ours, and we'll just go off as you suggest, all alone to some dimly lighted but cozily corner and have a royal feast and toast each ither's good health and perhaps even our good judgement in choosing each ither in the first place. What would pay to be a little table in the Stilts roof? It was all your idea so you can pick the scenery, he said.

O Willyum, the Stilts roof would be just lovely, ma said. Of course it's a little expensive, but after all what isn't, I mean except the cheep places. I've been giving the matter a little ferther thawt and I think it would be spoiling the spirit of the event to ask in single sole that wasn't at our wedding and very few of those, she said, and pop said, Por Pett sake, did you mention something about being alone?

Now Willyum, 2 people that know each ither as well as we do could be alone in a crowd, not to mention a few select old frends, maybe 8 or 10, ma said. I'm sure there will be a nice notice about it in the Daily Speaker, they always mention the functions at the Stilts, aren't ylu excited, Willyum? she said.

I'm paralyzed, pop said.

And he got in back of the sporting page and stayed there.

New Yacht Club Proposed For Trenton and District

W. A. Fraser, M. P., is Selected as First Commodore

OWNERS, ENTHUSED

Trenton, May 20.—(Special)—Late last week, William Lick, who was a member of the Belleville Yacht Club last year and of the Oshawa Club previous to that, called a meeting of the local boating enthusiasts in the Gilbert House, for the purpose of explaining Trenton's favourable situation for a Yacht Club. A goodly number turned out to the meeting and were greatly enthused with Mr. Lick's proposal. He informed the gathering that W. A. Fraser M.P., of Northumberland had consented to back the project to the utmost and also that several of the ex-members of the old Trenton Yacht Club were in favour of commencing boat-racing on the Bay this summer. Mr. Lick, who acted as chairman of the meeting requested William Nelson to make inquiries about the reining of the abandoned Silver Isle, per dance hall on Front street.

The hall is pretty situated on the Trent river and with very little expense could be fixed into a cosy club-house. It contains the building is suitable for dancing, while boats could be kept on the ground floor. For a small sum a wharf could be built out from the rear of the building and the larger crafts could be moored out in the river. Only one fault marred the intended club-house from being ideal and that is the down swing bridge will have to be opened every time a sailing or tall masted boat enters or left the river.

The following were chosen to be elected as officers of the Club at a meeting this Thursday night:—D. T. Fraser, W. Lick, Grant Rathbuck Kidd, Percy Hazel, Good-win of the R.C.A.F., Fred Lyons Mayor H. Orth, R. R. Mollard, and Arthur Norrington. By a unanimous vote, W. A. Fraser was selected as Commodore of the new Yacht Club.

William Funston Speaks

At the regular Rotary meeting on Monday evening, W. Funston of Hamilton, president of Funston Tire Company of Canada delivered a very interesting address on the "Romance of Rubber". "Christopher Columbus discovered the rubber tree, when he landed on this continent in 1492", the speaker said, "but the Indians had been using rubber for centuries before that. Rubber was first used as a gummy substance and it was then that Macintosh made the first raincoat by pouring the sticky substance over cloth. Germans and millionaires did not become effective until the vulcanization process was accidentally discovered.

Rubber Tire Invented

A Frenchman put rubber rims on wagon wheels and Thompson invented the solid rubber tire. Before 1910 the rubber industry was a speculative proposition since it has now become a profitable industry. To-day it is one of the absolute necessities in the world. There are over 40,000 uses for rubber at present and the surface has only been scratched Ceylon maintains an inexhaustible supply of rubber. In preparing for the World War Germany failed to lay in sufficient rubber, which turned to be the most vital commodity she overlooked. "Without rubber the automobile industry would be paralyzed and I believe rubber has contributed greatly to the Allies victory," the speaker concluded.

Following the address, which known in these parts as an eloquent speech maker and story teller, introduced Mr. Funston, A. Kelly will have attended the Hamilton Rotary Club for 21 years without a single break, this June. A hearty vote of thanks was proposed to the speaker by Rt. Hon. R. Bedford, following guests, incoming President Fred Douglas and Secretary M. Haig of the Belleville Rotary Club and local visitors, L. D. Fox Jr., D. G. Alyea, R. J. Hunter, Douglas Hall, A. E. Godfrey, were welcomed by William House, J. Bower dealing with the business of the local organization, reported several letters, of appreciation from rural and Trenton public schools expressing sincere gratitude for the Rotary Club Coronation medal, presented each pupil taking part in May 12th celebration here, one week ago. Guest soloist of the evening was 12-year-old Fred Fowler, Peterborough. Master Fowler sang two numbers and received tremendous applause after each. Leslie Hearn accompanied at the piano.

Supreme Dictator Coming

S. J. Finger, secretary of Trent Lodge, No. 1096 Royal Order of Moose announced yesterday that late this month a Supreme Dictator's meeting would be held here. It is expected that leaders from Peterborough, Lindsay, Port Hope, Cornwall, Brockville, Smith's Falls, and Belleville will be present at the convention. Trenton organization members are busily completing plans for the meeting and it is expected that a large number will be initiated while the Supreme Dictator is here.

Simmons' Drug Store Rifled

Police department are investigating a peculiar theft case. A robber instead of breaking and entering Simmons' Drug Store broke out of the building. It is believed that the vandal was locked in the store at closing time Saturday night and after rummaging through a number of drawers and the cash register, which contained only a few cents, made his exit from the store by the front entrance. Week-end receipts were securely hidden in another section of the store, Mr. Simmons told police. Only a few minor articles were stolen. Officers found the store door open at 4.30 Monday morning reported it was locked tightly twenty minutes previously.

Court Session

A very small number of cases were disposed of in police court yesterday. Fourteen speeders were called and were assessed accordingly. A farmer was granted an enlargement of one week. Magistrate F. J. Butler presided over the court, Chief William Bain acted for the Crown.

First in number of 5,000 Scotch and white pine were planted on the south side of Mount Pelion yesterday, Ben Smith placed the initial tree in the hole. The workmen are replacing a portion of the 200,000 pines, that were planted some years ago but slowly died out one by one, until only a few thousand were left. Trees were filled by fires and vandals. Present reforestation program was made by Hon. Dr. J. A. Faulkner, Minister of Health, who procured the trees for the Trenton Chamber of Commerce, while one thousand of the tiny plants were donated to the Board of Trade by a local resident.

How To Overcome Piles And Rectal Soreness

If you are annoyed with itching piles or rectal soreness, don't neglect the cause or run the risk of an operation. Any itching, soreness or painful passage of stool in nature's warning and a proper treatment should be secured at once. For this purpose Dr. Chase's Ointment or any ordinary piles ointment may be used as directed. This Ointment, which is most universally quickly relieves the itching and soreness and aids in healing the sore, tender spot. Remember it is Dr. Chase's prescription you get in Dr. Chase's Ointment, so you can feel sure you are not taking the risk of only for anyone to risk an operation when a simple remedy, which is a pleasant to use may be had at such a reasonable cost.

REFUSES AIR PERMITS

Thrower of an effective monkey wrench into the planned New York-Paris air race is Colonel I. M. Johnson (above), U.S. Assistant Secretary of Commerce, who has announced that permits would be refused to pilots seeking to enter the Atlantic air race. The flight was scheduled to serve as the opening gun of the Paris International Exposition this summer. Reports from Ottawa indicate that Canada will follow the lead of the United States and also refuse licenses to pilots should the French air ministry make efforts to shift the take stated and said, "Rubber was named because it erased marks from paper and was given the term of Indian because it came from the land of the Indians. Natives of the northern part of South America played a game with a rubber ball in the year 1521. Brazil maintained the monopoly on the world's supply of rubber until the nineteenth century, when an English explorer, Henry Wickens of England smuggled rubber tree seeds and shoots out of Brazil. They were cultivated in England and later taken to the island of Ceylon to start the famous rubber plantations of the Malayan Isle", the speaker continued.

Ceylon Heavy Producer

Mr. Funston informed his listeners that at present, Ceylon produces 95 per cent. of the entire rubber utilized in the world today and Brazil the other 5 per cent. The rubber on plantations of Ceylon is scientifically grown, and the trees are beautiful to see. A rubber tree bears a pod the size of a pea and when the pod is ripe a gas forms inside of it and expands to explode the pod with a report similar to a 22 rifle. The seeds inside of the pod are scattered far from the mother tree because rubber trees cannot grow close together. Brazilian natives would spend six months of the year (which was the dry season) collecting sap from the rubber tree known as latex, and early in the seventeenth century, the industry grew so large that Manaos the city where all rubber was exported from was the richest metropolis on the North American continent, and was termed the "Paris of the western hemisphere". Rubber was first used as a gummy substance and it was then that Macintosh made the first raincoat by pouring the sticky substance over cloth. Germans and millionaires did not become effective until the vulcanization process was accidentally discovered.

Trenton organization members are busily completing plans for the meeting and it is expected that a large number will be initiated while the Supreme Dictator is here.

Simmons' Drug Store Rifled

Police department are investigating a peculiar theft case. A robber instead of breaking and entering Simmons' Drug Store broke out of the building. It is believed that the vandal was locked in the store at closing time Saturday night and after rummaging through a number of drawers and the cash register, which contained only a few cents, made his exit from the store by the front entrance. Week-end receipts were securely hidden in another section of the store, Mr. Simmons told police. Only a few minor articles were stolen. Officers found the store door open at 4.30 Monday morning reported it was locked tightly twenty minutes previously.

Court Session

A very small number of cases were disposed of in police court yesterday. Fourteen speeders were called and were assessed accordingly. A farmer was granted an enlargement of one week. Magistrate F. J. Butler presided over the court, Chief William Bain acted for the Crown.

First in number of 5,000 Scotch and white pine were planted on the south side of Mount Pelion yesterday, Ben Smith placed the initial tree in the hole. The workmen are replacing a portion of the 200,000 pines, that were planned some years ago but slowly died out one by one, until only a few thousand were left. Trees were filled by fires and vandals. Present reforestation program was made by Hon. Dr. J. A. Faulkner, Minister of Health, who procured the trees for the Trenton Chamber of Commerce, while one thousand of the tiny plants were donated to the Board of Trade by a local resident.

How To Overcome Piles And Rectal Soreness

If you are annoyed with itching piles or rectal soreness, don't neglect the cause or run the risk of an operation. Any itching, soreness or painful passage of stool in nature's warning and a proper treatment should be secured at once. For this purpose Dr. Chase's Ointment or any ordinary piles ointment may be used as directed. This Ointment, which is most universally quickly relieves the itching and soreness and aids in healing the sore, tender spot. Remember it is physician's prescription you get in Dr. Chase's Ointment, so you can feel sure you are not taking the risk of only for anyone to risk an operation when a simple remedy, which is a pleasant to use may be had at such a reasonable cost.

Conservative Convention At Marmora on June 23rd

West Hastings Association to Hold Annual Meeting at Same Time

ROWE TO SPEAK

Marmora, (Special)—A representative gathering of Conservatives from all sections of West Hastings' riding attended an executive meeting at the White Hall, Marmora, on Wednesday afternoon for the purpose of deciding whether or not a convention should be held to select candidate to represent the party in the forthcoming provincial election. After discussing the subject in question the unanimous decision was reached that a convention be called. A date for the meeting was set for Wednesday, June 23rd at Marmora. The annual Conservative meeting will be held at the same time. The Hon. Earl Rowe, Conservative leader will be the principal speaker at the nomination meeting. Should June 23rd be inconvenient for his attendance, the meeting will be held the following Wednesday, June 30. Executive members were present from Belleville, Trenton, Stirling, the Carlaws and Bancroft and all other municipalities were represented. Messrs. F. D. Johnston and R. Philpott of Brockville, organizers for EastOntario Conservative Association were also in attendance. R. Blaine Elliott, Brockville president of the Association occupied the chair with H. N. Ketcheson as secretary.

OFFICES OF DAIRY FIRMS ENTERED

Cash Drawers Were Broken Into But No Money Was Obtained

Two minor breakins were reported to Belleville last night, in both cases local dairies were entered, but nothing of value reported missing. Gaining entrance through an upper storey window burglars entered the Maple Valley Dairy, Station St., last night and although the offices of the building were ransacked and cash drawers disturbed, nothing was reported missing. As all cash required during the day's business is removed from the premises nightly, P. C. Taylor investigated.

Shortly after the above breakin was reported, the Ottawa Dairy, Coleman St., was also entered, by means of breaking a side window. Here the same procedure was enacted by the robbers and the identical results followed. Cash was undoubtedly the purpose of entrance in both cases, as nothing except the cash drawers and offices were disturbed.

Charged with violations of the Liquor Control Act, resulted in the unbreakable shattering the cell block at the police station last night with 13 transients.

The local police department has been confronted with a series of minor breakins in Belleville, reported during the past week or so, in all cases nothing of value, if any was stolen, but the repeated sequence of these breakins is being closely observed with hopes of ascertaining the guilty parties, however.

LINDBERGH SPENDS 10TH ANNIVERSARY OF SOLO FLIGHT QUIETLY

Would Rent, May 20 (AP)—Lt.-Col. Charles A. Lindbergh studiously avoided any of the fuss of celebration today on the tenth anniversary of his solo flight from New York to Paris.

He puttered about the garden of his country home, "Long Barn", in the manner of a man who has never achieved fame and never wants to.

"I did it. Why should I celebrate it?" Lindbergh was quoted by a friend as having answered when questioned about his plans for the anniversary of the flight he made a decade ago.

A steady stream of congratulatory telegrams poured in but there were no telephone calls. Lindbergh has ordered the telephone disconnected so that even well wishers will have no chance to disturb the peace and privacy which he sought in England after fleeing from the U.S. in December, 1935.

Lindbergh's only plan for the day was to spend it quietly—just as he spends most of his other days—with Mrs. Lindbergh and their baby son, Jon.

PRESENTATION

Mr. and Mrs. George Marriott (nee Joan Wellman of Hastings) were guests of honor at a miscellaneous shower tendered them at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Wellman on Tuesday evening, May 11th. Over one hundred friends and neighbors of the newly married couple including friends from Norwood, Havelock, Marmora and Bonarlaw were present and an enjoyable evening was spent in round and square dancing.

Refreshments were served around midnight.

The young couple received a large number of handsome gifts among them a pair of goose feather pillows, a quilt, an Irish linen bedspread, also many linen towels.

140 WARSHIPS

Visit Paid to Victory

Then the Royal Party, including the Duke and Duchess of Kent, went ashore and through the dockyard to visit H.M.S. Victory, the flagship of Admiral Lord Nelson at Trafalgar. They spent considerable time inspecting the old ship, which is now mounted ashore.

The King was attended by a bevy of admirals. He wore the undress uniform of an admiral of the fleet. The Queen wore a beige gown and fur-trimmed coat with a beige hat. Princess Elizabeth was bareheaded and had on a pink coat.

Souvenirs Presented

Aboard the Victory the King was given a souvenir paper knife and the Queen and Princess Elizabeth brooches. The Queen pocketed hers but Princess Elizabeth stopped to pin hers to her lapel. The Princess was also given a souvenir book dealing with the history of the Victory.

Meanwhile crowds were gathering on the jetties and sight-seeing vessels were pulling about the harbor. The dazzling pebble beach below the two-mile esplanade at Southsea, adjoining Portsmouth became a people packed grandstand. Hosts of the Hampshire and Isle of Wight shores supported more thousands.

Kent as Aide-de-Camp

Portsmouth, May 20 (AP)—King George VI., who 31 years ago was a sub-lieutenant on one of the warships in the royal fleet reviewed today the mighty might and majesty of the navy of which he now is commander-in-chief.

With Queen Elizabeth, 11 year old Princess Elizabeth and the Duke and Duchess of Kent, the newly-crowned monarch surveyed the polished, bellagged armada of about 140 British warships. Hundreds more in Spithead waters off here, arrayed for a gala review in honor of his coronation.

Battleships, cruisers, destroyers, submarines, aircraft carriers, mine-sweepers and home fleets with the foreign guest vessels, about 16 passenger liners and craft, large and small, were drawn herringbone fashion to Clarke line here where later yesterday the Royal party was to pass in formal review on the yacht Victoria and Albert.

The Duke of Kent was present as personal aide-de-camp of the King and the little princess. Elizabeth, Bedrese presumptive to the throne, was there because she had never before been to see and had persuaded her parents it was time she learned something of yachts and navies.

Princess Climbs to Bridge

She was the first one of the Royal party to arise on the reviewing yacht which they boarded yesterday. She immediately climbed to the bridge for her first sight of the spectacle.

Her appearance brought delight to spectators who used all manner of boats as sea-going grandstands to gape upon the Coronation review.

Only Ships Dressed

The 27,000 ton United States battleship New York ranked at attention at the head of the lane of foreign ships. Only they had dressed to be represented among the foreign craft.

North of the New York lay the home fleet flagship, the battleship Nelson, and still beyond was the Mediterranean fleet flagship, the Queen Elizabeth.

The largest warship among the foreign fleets was the Argentine battleship Moreno, 27,940 tons. Three times the tonnage of the foreign vessels was the French battleship Dunkerque, anchored next to the New York. The French ship has a speed of 30 knots and a main armament of eight 13-inch guns.

Japan was represented by her 10,000-ton cruiser Myoko with a speed of 33 knots and 10 eight-inch guns. Italy's contribution was the battleship Marat, 23,600 tons. Germany's, the 10,000-ton "pocket battleship" Admiral Graf Spee which carries six 11 inch guns.

Even fishing fleet representatives were present. There were vessels from Scotland, North Ireland, Wales and Cornwall.

Kingston, N.C., May 20 (CP)—Will Jarman, local negro who says he once owned seven homing birds, described this method of catching them:

"You take a little gin, sweeten it as sweet as honey, drop a few drops in a few fowlers, and stand off and wait. The humming birds smell it and they get drunk themselves in getting to it. They get as drunk as coots. Then you take a net and a scouring bird fable to the ground, squawks a few times and birdies anybody to come and pick him up."

HIGH TIDE OF Spring

BLOSSOM TIME and bird time . . . . new leaves gleaming on the trees, and grass of unbelievable greenness springing underfoot.

Let's get outdoors!

There's magic in May sunshine that stirs desires to fulfilment. The flower-bed we've planned for years—we'll plant it NOW! We'll get new screens, the shining kind, and throw away the frayed old things that flies came through last summer. We'll get a new lawn-mower . . . a bird bath for the corner by the hedge . . . a lawn-chair or two, and a big bright umbrella with a tiny table for tea.

Can you afford all these delightful things? Of course you can! It's astonishing what values are offered in the stores this month. As you go through your paper you'll see them. Smart, cool, outdoor dresses . . . gardening hats and tools and gloves . . . croquet and deck-tennis and badminton sets . . . inexpensive that you can buy them NOW without waiting and wishing.

Read the advertisements. Plan your purchases. And let your Spring dreams come true.

"THE BRIGHT HILL"

by Clarissa Fairchild Cushman

Whose name turned out to be Martha, and who, for all she was slim in a pale yellow frock and clad in black burnished hair and brilliant in coral lips, yet possessed the hesitant Kerin with a delightful cry and said: oh dear! Mrs. Kingsbury! And where have you been? Linearly wired Sue and how's Ken, by the way? So Kerin told Sue about Sue, and about Alan, and about Sally's baby. Finally, it seemed that Mary Alice was, as Martha, married to a business man who was fat and wore a slightly bald and she adored him. And after that she and Kerin a word-robe.

Whatever it was that Sue had written there was no doubt that Mary Alice had a stink intelligence for clothes and that Martha had a sixth intelligence for understanding Kerin; for between Mary Alice and Martha, Kerin had neither opportunity nor desire to escape. In the first place she discarded Sunday's choice of a girdle, and slipped her into a sleek sheath without a seam in it. She took Kerin's hair and brushed it till almost all the curl had disappeared, exposed her ears indecently it seemed to Kerin, and coiled it low in the back. And upon this model she began building.

Kerin never realized that in the tiny closed room, surrounded by belts and mirrors, she never saw more than half a dozen things, because the were the right ones. There were two wool sports suits, one a soft honey brown with a topcoat, and one a dull raspberry rose, and soft hats went with them. Then these I can just about make you a present of, because I saved them from my summer sale for you when I got Sue's letter. Isn't Sue a love! All exclamation points." And then there was a slim sheath of black silk with no back, but with a soft cape of cloudy chiffon that half concealed the back, and with it a skilful black hat that made her hair gold. Kerin turned and turned before the high tiered mirror. "Is it really all right—quite all right? —no show of neck and curves a surface especially in back? But she caught her lower lip in her teeth and smiled to herself. She murmured half to herself, that she did love brown lace, and there was a sheer web of brown lace, a silly nothing of brown satin slippers, a puff of shining gold jacket to wear with it. She turned and turned, under the bright lights before the mirrors, before Donald's silent staring eyes, before critical eyes of Mary Alice. Now she was in a heavy winter suit and hat of soft green wool flecked with orange and brown, with a flash of orange blouse and scarf, and big beaver collar and cuffs that sipped on delightfully; and even clever green gloves like the suit. "One of my new fall models, this, but I had to let you see it. And now I will be seen it on you. I can't bear to think of some fall woman's getting it. Your figure, Mrs. Kingsbury! You can't know what a pleasure it is to put those things on you. I hope you'll let me send you to Kerin, my hairdresser. Then I shall put a label on you saying, 'See me? I'm dressed by Mary Alice,' and my future will be made. Annie, the night-brown silk with the gold collar. Now, come, doesn't that melt in the mouth? You have to have a figure to wear that, but as I say—and I shall date brown and gold as gold and then into our hair is wonderful. Brown and gold will certainly your colors. And now, Annie, the fur coat.

"Oh, but I can't. I can't possibly buy a fur coat, not this year." Kerin's voice was almost tragic in its enchanted silence, was feeble, but still protesting.

"Be still," said Mary Alice, and the coat was around her, a silky lengthened skin with a high cold rich sheen. "This," said Martha-the-friend, "you must have. I've set my heart on it. Wait till I tell you. It's a hundred and fif—" Martha corrected Mary Alice. "A hundred dollars."

"A hundred dollars!" Kerin's eyes opened in assessment. "It looks like a million." A hundred dollars. She could have it. She would have it. It was hers. Her teeth caught her lip and she turned before the mirror with unconscious mincing pride.

"You see," said Mary Alice, "I like this. It's not a new coat. The owner paid five hundred dollars for it, and while, her, money is no object, you know how these women are—a new coat every year, and what's to be done with the old one. Maybe get enough out of it to pay a bridge debt. So orders me to sell it out of town. So you see—"

"Oh—I've always always wanted a—leopard, is it? Isn't it—oh, isn't it just a love?" Even in the fierce excited heat, Kerin was reluctant to put it off.

"And that's really all you'll need as I figure it out. Now let's add up. There are sale prices on all but the green suit. That's a hundred and twenty-five. . . . Counting that—three hundred and eighty dollars, just. No—girdle, twenty. You'll have to allow another fifty for hats and stockings and such—and you'll need at least one brown hat, preferably two."

Kerin's heart was pounding. "I'll take them." She said recklessly. "At least, all but—perhaps all but the green suit."

"Oh mother!" said Donald.

Both women turned. For an hour they had forgotten Donald.

"Why, Donny!" said Kerin.

"—I like it," said Donald.

"But— a hundred dollars, Donny!"

"A hundred and twenty-five," said Mary Alice.

"I don't care," said Donald. "I like it."

"I don't care either," said Kerin. "So do I. I'll take it, Mary —Martha—Mrs. Findley."

"I answer to all. But at the moment I'll be Martha and make it a hundred. . . . Do you realize it is one o'clock? I wish you'd lunch with me. It's always a mistake to decide clothes on an empty stomach."

But even when fed, Kerin was powerless under the spell of those magic clothes that had so surprisingly obliterated that gap between herself and women whom she had unerringly admired. They made her feel, they made her believe, that she was one of them. She took a taxi to her hotel and took the clothes with her. She spread them all out, on the bed, on hangers, on chairs, and gloated over them. When the boy brought a telegram which she had neglected to stop at the desk she read it, only half Martha: "Protest against your going. Protest against your taking Donald. Hope you have by now reconsidered. Carl." She read it twice, but the message seemed meaningless involved. Her eye caught again the film of brown lace beside her on the bed, and she let her hand run under it. The telegram slid to the floor and skidded under the bed, and the next day the chambermaid swept it up.

INSTALLMENT TWENTY-ONE

But Mary Alice (and Martha took was not done with Kerin. She called Kerin at the hotel and told her that at ten she was personally taking her to Henri. And Henri took Kerin's hair, and he brushed it and tightened it and loosened it and coiled it, he bettered on one coil and then on the other, he shifted backward, he tilted forward, he narrowed his eyes and chittered his shears; and he spoke: "Et must be cut."

"Cut!" echoed Kerin faintly.

"A roll—a roll, Madame! A coiffure exquise!" And Henri kissed his fingers to the ceiling.

Kerin looked peacefully at Martha, who patted her on the shoulder. "Of course he shan't cut it if you don't want it cut," and then conducted a rapid conversation in French with Henri.

"It seems you have a marvelous knack in the back, and that he'll mold your head like no other in the world. He is good, really. It's his hands that he molds—that's his word molds—smart hair for the business woman—you know, hair you can live up to in a little town in New Hampshire." She pointed to the pile of Kerin's yellow bone hairpins. "Of course they make my head ache, but to look at them—there was another torrent of French. "He says he'll save your hair and you can pin it back on if you don't like it."

The dimple showed in the corner of Kerin's mouth. It seemed simpler not to admit she knew French. "The lamb to the shearer," she murmured. "Ut it off."

"Then I'll run. You come to the shop again and we'll lunch. There's still the brown hat, and there's shoes, and if you need lingerie I know the smallest place."

Kerin looked at her with gay eyes. "And there's curtains and dishes and floor mops and pots and

DUCE AGREES TO WITHDRAW TROOPS FROM SPAIN

Proposals by G. Britain For Spanish Armistice Meeting With Success

Germany, Italy Ready to Discuss Truce in Spain

NATIONS SOUNDED

Pressure of Friends And Families of Soldiers Prompts Decision

London, May 21 (CP)—Simultaneously with reports British proposals for an Armistice in the Spanish civil war were meeting with success, the Reuters Press Agency dispatches from Gibraltar today said reports were current that Premier Mussolini had informed the Spanish insurgents Italian troops will be withdrawn from Spain.

The Associated Press quoted "well informed diplomatic personages" as saying both Italy and Germany were ready to join in general discussion of the British scheme both for an armistice in Spain and for the withdrawal of foreign volunteers.

Families Urge It Duce.

Mussolini's decision to withdraw his troops from the Iberian Peninsula, the Reuters dispatch said, was attributed to pressure of friends and families of Italian soldiers in Spain, of whom thousands have been reported killed in action, and to discouragement at the military stalemate there after nine months of fighting.

June March, the Spanish capitalist credited with having financed the original insurgent uprising, sailed on the liner Conte Di Savoia from Gibraltar for Italy last night.

Belgium to Negotiate Soon.

For several weeks the British government, through its accredited legations abroad, has been sounding out the attitude of the various powers on its armistice plan.

In Paris Roman Catholic and Socialist sources suggested the Belgian government would start direct negotiations with the Spanish government and the insurgents.

The plan, it was said in Paris, calls for dispatching of international commissions to Spain and gradual application of the truce until it covers all government and insurgent held territory, simultaneously disarming and sending home foreign soldiery.

Skeptical Over Truce.

However, Germany and Italy were both described as being skeptical over the possibility of a truce, holding Lightning: All have seen this most terrific manifestation of nature. Lightning is a discharge of electricity from cloud to cloud or from cloud to earth. It is the same as that obtained from any electric machine. A lightning flash does not oscillate between cloud and earth like an alternating current as we have thought and taught. It is a discharge downward of negative electricity. The branches from the main discharge do not always reach the earth, indicating that some of the charge is left in the air.

WINFIELD H. ROSS NAMED AS DRIVER BY TWEED JURY

Officer Says Driver Explained Passing Car Blinded Him With Dust

NO LIQUOR FOUND

Eye-Witness Say Car Was Zig-Zagging on High way

"We the jury empanelled to enquire as to when, where and how Mrs. Emma Root came to her death find that Mrs. Emma Root came to her death on the evening of Sunday May 2nd on Provincial Highway No. 37, one and one half miles south of Tweed Village as the results of wounds received when hit by an automobile owned and driven by Winfield H. Ross of Belleville."

Held at Tweed

This verdict was rendered at an adjourned inquest held at Tweed on Thursday afternoon before Chief Coroner Dr. J. J. Roberson of Belleville and attended by a large number of spectators, who remained while the jury was considering the evidence and drafting a verdict. B. C. Donnan, K.C., interrogated the several witnesses presented, while R. D. Arnots appeared for Mr. Ross and I. D. Corcoran for the relatives of the deceased. The inquest had its dramatic moments, when Mrs. William Baker, daughter of the late Mrs. Root broke down, while giving testimony and in kindness Dr. Roberson and Mr. Donnan did not continue the questioning, believing that they had sufficient evidence before them to give a verdict.

THEFT OF CAR PUZZLES OWNER

Car Without Ignition Key Stolen While Others Untouched

Although two other automobiles parked nearby had the ignition keys left in them, an automobile owned by B. F. Lloyd, 159 Bay St., Toronto, and in which no ignition key was left, was stolen from the residence of Mrs. Jean Graham, Trent Road, some time last night.

Provincial Police were notified of the incident and issued a full description of the automobile was broadcast over the provincial province. The vehicle was a 1936 model Ford coach bearing Ontario license number 1937 and the rear of the car were two valuable sets of golf clubs.

What puzzles Mr. Lloyd and the police is the fact that his car had been securely locked last night while two other automobiles, the property of Graham family, were parked nearby and the ignition keys left in them. Mr. Lloyd was a guest at the home of Miss Graham.

Edward Abdicated, Says Shaw, Because of Coronation Rite

Irish Playwright Speaks of Ceremony as '1000-Year old Tomfoolery'

COMMENT ON WEDDING

London, May 21 (AP) — George Bernard Shaw said today that the real cause of the abdication of Edward VIII was his refusal to go through with the Coronation ceremony and "its thousand-year-old tomfooleries".

The dramatist, giving his own theory of the abdication in a letter to the magazine "Time and Tide" described the Duke of Windsor's decision to marry Wallis Warfield as "a diplomatic necessity".

Calls Symbols Obsolete.

Shaw referred to the Coronation symbols as obsolete because they "represent the King's investment with powers he no longer wields" and added in scathingly sharian manner:

"The clothes used are the clothes of William the Conqueror and Queen Matilda transformed by the generations of costumiers into fancy dress symbolical of nothing but the Russian ballet.

"(Edward's note: "Transmogrify—a humorous coinage—to change completely with absurd effect."—Ed.).

"If I were in the Royal succession, I would renounce fifty limited monarchies sooner than be crowned with a ritual," Shaw wrote.

Marriage Diplomatic Stroke.

"I was not at all surprised to learn Edward VIII had flatly refused to endure his thousand-year-old tomfooleries and that this and not his romantic conception of marrying the American lady was the real cause of his abdication."

The British public got its first hint today of a rumored dispute between Edward and Baldwin in the Commons by over attendance at the Duke of Windsor's wedding to Mrs. Warfield June 3.

The Daily Express, under a front-page heading in bold type, "The Duke and Royal Family: Allegations in U.S. Press," produced in its last edition quotations from a number of New York papers. The Express added strong denials that the stories of a conflict were true.

Two 50,000 Watt Broadcasting Stations Planned

Warning Given Motorists Extra Care Needed Under Revised Speed Law Limit

Hon. T. B. McQuesten, Highways Minister, Urges Drivers to Use Care And Courtesy as New Law on Speed Goes Into Force on Monday, May 24th.

TORONTO, May 21—"The amendment to the Motor Vehicles Act permitting increased speeds of 30 and 50 miles per hour in municipalities and rural sections respectively will go into effect on May 24th," Hon. T. B. McQuesten, Ontario Minister of Highways, announced yesterday.

At the same time, he issued a strong warning to motorists that the new speed rates represented "the maximum permissible speed at which motor vehicles may be operated."

Mr. McQuesten pointed out emphatically that the new speed limits were designed to meet the most ideal motoring conditions, and that motorists would have to slacken their pace in situations which called for care, courtesy and the safety of pedestrians and other drivers, if the chance of reckless driving was to be avoided.

These speed law changes, however, were entirely dependent on "ideal conditions," he stressed. They could not take into consideration the many and varied situations which constantly arise on the highway and call for extra caution and slow speed, nor did they cover any defective equipment, such as lights and brakes, on a driver's automobile.

"Ideal conditions" would not include whizzing past a country schoolhouse, where children might be on the highway, at 50 miles an hour, Mr. McQuesten cited as one example to illustrate his point, "and no driver would be able to justify such speed at 30 miles per hour through a town on a busy market day."

Summing up the conditions under which the new speed amendment would be operated, the minister urged car drivers to bear in mind constantly that the revised rates were "maximums for ideal conditions," and that every motorist on streets or highways would be called upon more than ever to exercise care, courtesy and common-sense every minute he was behind the wheel of his automobile.

Naval Escort Refused For Honeymoon Cruise

British Government Said to Have Refused Request of Owner of Yacht Idoul it Not Alive it in Spanish Waters Without Naval Protection—Sources State Church of England Ma y Appoint Minister For Religious Ceremony

Monta, France, May 21 (AP)—The British government was reported today by a source close to the Duke of Windsor to have refused to grant the protection of a naval escort for a honeymoon cruise down the coast of civil war-torn Spain.

The government was said to have made this decision because of reports of naval incidents growing out of the Spanish conflict.

The original honeymoon plan was said to have called for the Duke and Duchess-to-be to leave Chateau de Oande immediately after their wedding June 3 for an automobile trip to Biarritz, French resort on the Bay of Biscay whose waters also wash the Spanish coast of northern Spain.

After three days at the watering place, the couple were to cruise down the Spanish coast, through the Straits of Gibraltar to the Mediterranean and the Dalmatian coast of Yugoslavia.

Owner Insists.

The owner of the yacht which the former Edward VIII planned to use, had insisted upon the naval protection. There was a possibility the Duke might change his honeymoon plans.

While the question of finding an Anglican clergyman to perform a religious ceremony despite the Church of England's objections to Mrs. Warfield's being twice divorced, still was in the air, other preparations for the wedding proceeded.

Should the Duke be unable to find an Anglican clergyman willing to perform the religious ceremony on his own responsibility, a source close to Edward said the Church of England may appoint a minister.

The cold flurry was caused by the arrival at a Tours hotel of a Scottish clergyman named Ritchie. The report immediately arose that he might perform the ceremony but he quickly expelled any such ideas, saying "Is Edward in France?" he asked. "I did not even know where he was gone."

Lloyd Thomas a Visitor.

Lloyd Thomas, Minister in the British Embassy at Paris, arrived at Chateau de Candé.

His presence led some quarters to believe he might be attempting to solve the problem the Duke and Mrs. Warfield are thought to have encountered in finding an Anglican priest to marry them in a religious ceremony.

Thomas, equerry to Windsor when he was the Prince of Wales, was a luncheon guest at the chateau. He owns the Grand National winner, Royal Mail.

London, May 21 (AP)—Agents of the Duke of Westminster declined today either to confirm or deny reports the Duke of Windsor planned to visit Westminster's yacht, the Cutty Sark, for his honeymoon cruise.

(A source close to Windsor in France reported the owner of the fiftish yacht he planned to use for his cruise through Spanish waters had installed a naval escort he provided. This, the reports from Monta and the British government had declined to provide. It was indicated permission for the yacht's use had been withdrawn).

Hon. Earl Rowe to Attend Marmora Cons. Convention

Definite assurance that the Hon. Earl Rowe would attend the convention of the West Hastings Conservative Association at Marmora on June 23rd, at which a candidate for the riding to contest the next provincial election will be named was received by local secretary, H. H. Ketchenson today from campaign headquarters. The convention date has thus been definitely set for June 23rd, it was announced.

It is expected that about 200 delegates will attend from the riding, with Belleville represented by between eighteen and twenty. Notices are being despatched from the local office today.

RELIGIOUS RITE PLAN IS DROPPED IN DUKE'S WEDDING

Reason For Decision is Not Given by Spokesman

CIVIL SERVICE ONLY

Minister Plenipotentiary at Paris Visits At Chateau

Monts, France, May 21 (AP) — There will be no religious ceremony to unite the Duke of Windsor and Mrs. Wallis Warfield, a spokesman announced tonight.

Herman Rogers made the announcement. He refused to say why the plans for a religious service, to follow the civil service on June 3, had been abandoned.

Visit At Chateau

It was known, however, that the Duke and Mrs. Warfield had been trying without much success to find an Anglican priest who would marry them in the face of the church's stand against re-marriage of divorced persons.

Hugh Lloyd Thomas, minister plenipotentiary in the British Embassy at Paris, visited at the Chateau de Candé today, presumably on the question of a religious service. But Rogers would not say whether Thomas' presence had anything to do with the decision not to have such a service.

JOHN WALLACE, 81 SUICIDE VICTIM

Retired Marine Engineer Despondent For Some Time

Trenton, Ont., May 21 (Special)—The body of John Wallace, 81-year-old retired marine engineer of Sand storey after eight o'clock this morning suspended at the end of a rope which had been thrown over a rafter in the woodshed of his home on Dundas Street East.

The body was discovered by Mrs. Wallace, wife of the dead man. She immediately summoned Coroner Dr. J. W. Farley who pronounced, following examination, that life had been extinct for approximately two hours.

The deceased had been despondent through ill health for some time it was stated today. Mrs. Wallace, who has been a constant watch over his movements since his lapse from his normal movements, missed him about seven o'clock this morning. A hurried search of the house did not reveal where about until the gruesome discovery was made by the aged wife of the home.

Born in Iroquois, Ont., the deceased showed an early inclination for ships and sailing. At the age of fifteen he joined the crew of the Great Lakes freighter and followed the sea continuously for his lifetime. Attaining the position of Chief Engineer, he sailed the lakes for a number of years. He retired from active service in 1914 when he came to Trenton to reside. His wife, is the only immediate survivor.

Hornby and Vercheres Sites of New Stations, Brockington Announces

Private Stations Limited to 1,000 Watts Power

LONGER PERIODS

Cases of Interference to be Dealt With by Conference

Regina, May 21 (CP)—Plans for immediate construction of 50,000-watt radio broadcasting stations in Montreal and Toronto areas and for longer broadcasting periods and improved programs are announced by L. W. Brockington, Winnipeg, chairman of the Board of Governors of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation.

In an address broadcast over the C.B.C. network last night, Mr. Brockington said new 50,000-watt stations at Vercheres, Que., just east of Montreal, and Hornby, Ont., 30 miles northwest of Toronto, are expected to be completed by October 1. Those points were chosen because they are national centres of broadcasting activity.

1,000-Watt Limit.

The chairman said the corporation will recommend to the government that all new issues and increases in power for private stations be restricted to 1,000 watts. The C.B.C. will construct and control all high-powered stations in Canada, he said.

Other high-powered stations are expected to be constructed in the Maritimes and Western Canada within the next two or three years, he said, and it was hoped the government would consider construction of a high-powered short wave station to enable broadcasting to other parts of the world.

Agreement Negotiated.

Mr. Brockington said a new agreement was being negotiated with the telegraph companies whereby corporation broadcasting periods would be extended from the present six hours a day to from twelve to sixteen hours effective by Oct. 1.

By that date, too, he hoped national programs and exchange programs with Great Britain, United States and France would be increased.

Conference On Interference.

In connection with interference with reception by foreign countries, Mr. Brockington said a conference similar to recent international conversations in Havana, Cuba, would be held in Canada in 1938. It was hoped agreements would be signed making each country to operate on assigned channels without interference.

The Winnipeg barrister said the only positive rules of C.B.C. censorship were that attacks on race or religion and talks on birth control. He declared W. Corporation's policy is to encourage fair presentation of controversial questions.

Mr. Brockington said the meeting of the C.B.C. governors, just concluded here, was in line with the policy of meeting in various parts of Canada.

TRAINING OF YOUTH

Vatican City, May 21 (UP)—Pope Pius XI has written a letter which he will publish at any moment a White Book on the German government, prelates said today.

The diplomatic paper has been in preparation for several months, they asserted, and is designed to give denunciation and condemnation of the activities of the Vatican-German concordat which is the point of attack in Hitler's regime and not of the Holy See.

The concordat, signed July 8, 1933 by representatives of the Vatican and Germany outlined the sphere of the church's activity in Germany, especially with regard to training of youth.

(Church spokesmen since have charged the Nazi government violated the concordat by attempting to deny the church the privilege of religious training for Catholic youth.)

City and District News

BAD ROADS DELAY HIGHWAY WORK

Highway construction projects, especially those in the northern part of the county will not get under way for some time yet, it was stated by officials today, for the condition of roads, some of which are well nigh impassable due to the recent heavy rains, is given as the main reason. Only of the construction companies, which started operations yesterday was forced to relinquish its activities until conditions improve.

MOVIE CAMERAMAN MAY SHOOT PICTURES OF KID KAR DERBY

Roy Task, ace cameraman of the Associated Screen News of Canada, with headquarters in Montreal, enroute to Toronto where he will "shoot" motion pictures of the famous King's plate race at the Woodbine track on Saturday morning, paused in the city for a few hours yesterday to look over the ground with a view to taking motion pictures of the Kid Kar Derby to be held here on May 24th under the sponsorship of the Kinsmen's Club of Belleville.

Task made extensive inquiries regarding the Dominion Day regatta which will be held in Belleville on that date, and stated that in all likelihood he would get the double assignment shooting pictures of the Derby here in the morning and going to Picton in the afternoon where he will take shots of the featured power boat events.

CATCHES PICKEREL ALONG ROSSMORE SHORE

The Bay of Quinte can also produce some fair-sized pickerel during the present open season. As proof W. B. Locking of the city exhibited two nice specimens caught while trolling along the Rossmore shore early last evening. The fish, caught on a simple June bug rig weighed about three and four pounds respectively. It was reported a larger one had also hooked but had managed to free itself after a near-capture.

TRANSPORT TRUCK UPSET IN DITCH

En route from Bancroft yesterday, a large MacKay transport, fully loaded turned over in a ditch near Havelock after striking a soft shoulder in the road. Wilfred Muskiow the driver escaped in safety with only a few minor cuts and scratches.

BANK BUILDING GETS COAT OF PAINT

Following considerable renovation and repairs to the inside recently, the Bank of Montreal building is being given a toning up on the exterior by the application of a pleasing buff coat of cement paint on stone and woodwork.

TURTLES ABOUND ALONG WATER FRONT

In spite of efforts of local and district sportsmen in the past to reduce their numbers, this year's crop of snapping turtles is a pleasing fisherman and shoreyer to be larger than ever. The turtle have arrived earlier this year and in greater numbers, congregating in the bay and harbor being met by many rafts in solid packed ranks. They are liked as a pest of game fish destroyers and nuisances.

EARLY MUSHROOMS BEGIN TO SHOW HERE

First of the season's crop of mushrooms is now showing up from the city parks and lawns by alert searchers who sally forth at daylight, and yet the harvest is a small one, but indications of a heavier growth are apparent. One of the favorite spots in the old dump just east of the government dock was found last year they grew in profusion.

BENCHES ARE PLACED IN VICTORIA PARK

Victoria Park was declared officially open for picnic purposes today following the placing of benches taken out of winter storage by workmen of the Parks Board. Youthful swimmers have been using the diving tower and platform at the park end for several days past.

LOCAL FAIR TO HAVE FINE NEW MIDWAY

Greatly enlarged and containing many new features and changes in several departments, the prize list of the annual Belleville Fair, was issued to the printers today by Secretary R. H. Ketchason. This year the Fair will be held on a slightly new midway, that of Jackson's of Regina, and will be featured by a new and up-to-date vaudeville.

34TH BATTERY TO GO TO CAMP JULY 9TH

The 34th Battery of this city will leave Belleville for Petawawa Camp on July 9th and will be the last battalion to leave the city, according to the latest reports. It is expected that a period of about one week will be given. This year it is understood batteries at the camp will begin night firing of the gun under actual battle conditions. Militia orders contain announcement that the 32nd Battery of Kingston will also leave that city on July 9th. The 3rd Gananoque Battery will leave at the same time, but the 56th Battery of Napanee, and the 46th Battery, Merrickville are not expected to go to Petawawa this year.

LEGION TO SPONSOR GOOD-WILL TOUR

Peterborough branch of the Canadian Legion has decided to take head this year in sponsoring a tour to various branches of the Legion in Eastern Ontario in an effort to promote greater inter-city good will. Their visits will include Belleville, Campbellford and other municipalities in this area. local officials have been advised.

BOOKLET ON FISH OF EASTERN ONTARIO BEING CIRCULATED

A Booklet entitled "Preliminary Studies of the Fishes of Eastern Ontario" has been prepared and edited by G. C. Toner of Gananoque, a graduate of Queen's University, and is being circulated by the Eastern Ontario Game and Game Protection Association. The booklet includes a list of 102 species of fishes that can be found in waters in the Ontario and Upper St. Lawrence drainage system.

CO-ORDINATION ASKED OF CITY RESIDENTS

With special efforts being made to beautify the spacious lawns in front of the Armouries, the public is requested to refrain from walking on the grass. A new carpet of lush green grass is now growing there, adding much to the general attractiveness of the city. Co-operation on the part of the public in refraining from taking the "short cut" from East Bridge Street to Pinnacle Street" will assist those in charge in making those splendid lawns the things of beauty they were in former years.

NOVA SCOTIAN HELD ON CONVERSION CHARGE

Wanted in Nova Scotia on charges of embezzlement and conversion, Donald R. Kirkland, alias J. B. McDonald, of Dartmouth, N.S. was lodged last night in Belleville by the Royal Canadian Mounted Police. A warrant charging Kirkland with the conversion of over $1,000.00 from his employers, an oil company was received. He was recently issued by the Dartmouth police.

Kirkland was arraigned before Magistrate E. J. Butler K.C., in today's police court and remanded in custody for one week. L/C. J. C. Matthews, R.C.M.P. informed the court that charges of a similar nature might be laid against Kirkland in Picton, where he has been employed under the same line of business as he was previously employed in Nova Scotia. The local detachment of R.C.M.P. is awaiting further orders from headquarters in Ottawa regarding the disposition of the charges in Dartmouth.

Kirkland may be returned to Nova Scotia before facing charges of theft in this district.

CANOEISTS UPSET IN MOIRA RIVER

Boys Thrown Into Water as Canoe Overturns Craft

Two local youths, Teddie Elliott and Ernie Nolan, received a sudden and premature ducking in the chilly waters of the Moira River yesterday afternoon. The two lads were negotiating the river in a canoe and had successfully paddled down the river to a point a few yards below the lower bridge when the current became too strong and in turning around the frail craft capsized, throwing the occupants into the water. The lads eventually swam ti their canoe and subsequently reached it after floating down to Victoria Park. The lads intimated that although their ducking was unexpected and rather sudden, no ill effects were felt.

Driver Not Called

Miss Marcella Craig, 199 Lingham Street, Belleville, a passenger in the Ross car and Mr. Ross were the first to reach the scene. Miss Craig stated in court but neither of them was called. After conclusion of the evidence Mr. Donnan stated to the jury that they were not a petit jury and they were not to affect guilt, "I believe you know your duties and I will not discuss the case with you", said the Crown Attorney. Mr. R. J. Thomson, ex-M.P. and foreman of the jury, which was composed of Lee, William Beatty, J. A. Thompson, William Courtney, Wallace Moon, Simeon Bowles, Gerald Quinn and Charles H. Kerr were not long in arriving at a verdict.

Chief Constable Clare Hayes of Tweed, who investigated the accident with Provincial Constable William H McBrien and Traffic Officer Samuel Irvine gave in detail all the facts of the case that they were able to learn. Constable Hayes was asked by Mr. Donnan as to the condition of Mr. Ross at the time, when by first saw him and the officer stated "he was intoxicated."

Asked for his reasons to substantiate the statement, the officer replied that he was unable to detect his speech was incoherent and halting, his eyes were droopy and his breath reeked of intoxicating liquor. As for Miss Craig the officer testified, she appeared to be sober but that she was not intoxicated. The officer stated in evidence he was called to the scene of the crash on Sunday evening, May 2nd, and reaching the home of Mrs. Marsh, one and one half miles south of Tweed found that willing hands had carried Mrs. Ross into the house and upon arrival he felt her pulse and believed her to be dead. "A stranger was standing to one side", said the officer and "I noted that he was the driver and he handed me a purse containing his operator's permit. He was staggering and short of speech. On more than one occasion he was asked for his name and the pulse and heart once or twice said "she is not dead."

Tweed Marks of Car

Chief Hayes told the court of tracing the tracks of the car from a bag of lime filled the tracks and of later finding a shoe, later identified as belonging to Arthur Thompson, aged 5 who was accompanying Mrs. Ross at the time, but escaped with a few lacerations and bruises. He also stated that the car had come to rest 82 feet, from where a pool of blood was found in the roadway and a trail of blood to the shoulder of the highway. The officer told of placing the man into other cars on a charge of criminal negligence and of warning him about driving he might say would be used in evidence against him. The officer stated he had to drink and he told me "he had a couple of glasses before he left Belleville. His conversation was generally about him losing his job. Asked by his counsel what the car the officer replied in the affirmative and stated that no liquor was found in the vehicle." Miss Craig was questioned by the officer, who stated the drinks had been taken at her home in Belleville.

Driving Not Car

Turning to a description of the car, Officer Hayes stated, that Ross was driving a new Dodge Sedan, and on the underpart of the running board there was in the form of an S the full length of a width of about one and one quarter inches. Chief Hayes stated there were two wounds each about one and one quarter inches wide on the head. The driver of the car was asked, who the lady passenger was and it was stated by witness, that he said she was a transient he had picked up in Belleville. Chief Hayes assured the court, that when Provincial Constable McBrien arrived on the scene Ross was again questioned he was warned, and that anything he said would be used against him.

Measurements Given

Traffic Officer Samuel Irving gave measurements in conformity with the evidence given by Chief McGee, surveyor for the Department of Highways, that the road was 22 feet wide at the point of the accident and that marks of a car commencing in the ditch, the ditch for a distance of 15 feet and then on the road for 21 feet, the second time the car was in the ditch it was for a distance of 32 feet and again on the road for 21 feet and the third time in the ditch for 100 feet east and then back on the road and the car travelled a distance of 32 feet from where the body of Irvine stated, that when he saw Ross at midnight in the barber and that he heard him ask Chief Hayes "to make it as light as possible" and he was told him "not to talk". Victor Jonas, garageman at the scene of the accident, gave mechanical condition and had only one loose when he examined it.

Saw Car Going By

William Baker saw the car going by as he was sitting on his front steps and his attention was called to the car from the fact that it was travelling on the shoulder of the highway and that the lights were not dimmed. He determined it was the same car as passed his home from the direction he saw the stop lights go on, when he went out at the gate and there were no other cars on the highway at that time. He admitted hearing a girl scream and on reaching the scene found his mother-in-law lying wounded on the highway.

Mr. Baker testified he formed no opinion as to the man's condition. Provincial Constable McBrien stated, that when he saw Ross he was walking straight but that he smelled strongly of liquor. At first Ross told him, the officer testified, that he saw a lady walking on the road and it was dusty and that he pulled to the left but was blinded by the dust but the next morning he said he was completely blinded by the dust and did not see the lady until he had struck her. "At first Ross told me he had not introduced signed by Ross and read to the court, that Ross admitted the same at that testified to by the officers.

Heard a Thud

James Cullen, a farmer living near the scene of the crash, per-parring to milk the cows, when he saw the car approaching and then heard a "thud" and saw a black object fly through the air. "The car then ran to the scene and found Mrs. Root lying on the roadway. He identified both Mr. Ross and Miss Craig and gave his opinion, that Ross was intoxicated. Asked what made him think Ross was in that condition, the witness said that he was feeling Mrs. Root's pulse several times and once leaned down to hear her heart beats but listened on the body of the dead her body. He also made the statement, "she is not dead, she is not dead". Mrs. James Cullen stated she heard a roaring noise as the car came down the hill. Bridget Rashotte with Mrs. Mackness was called and was unable to identify and saw Mrs. Root walking on the road facing the north and then heard something, that had two wheels down in the ditch. She heard a "thud" and saw a figure stop the car and walked back and saw Mrs. Root lying on the road and then went into Marsh's house but formed no opinion as to the condition of Ross as she was in the house. Mrs. Mackness gave corroborative evidence. Mrs. William Baker was called but after a few questions she broke down and Mr. Donnan stated his case believing the jury had enough evidence to render a verdict.

THREE LOCAL YOUTHS SENT TO REFORMATORY

Appearing for sentence Gordon Graves and Merritt Wood, two local youths were sentenced to reformatory after having pleaded a further indeterminate term of one year in the Ontario Reformatory, while a third, on a complice on charges of theft. Horace Bowler, also appeared in court for sentence.

Graves, Wood and Bowler had been arrested on May 6th, when a set of angle bears and other track material, the property of the Canadian National, was reported missing from the C.N.R. yards. When arraigned in court last week, Graves and Wood, it was reported in court, had previous criminal records of a similar nature. Before Magistrate Ed Wright to assess the more lengthy term to their sentence. Mr. Wright "I am very much against in this court", revealed Crown Attorney Donnan, when the case was stated in the lesser term being given Bowler. The trio are all local youths.

Obituary

LATE MRS. NETTIE I. IVERS

The funeral of Celadyn Nettie I. Ivers, wife of Mr. Arthur John Ivers, took place from the family residence, 15 Graham Street, Sidney, on Thursday afternoon, May 20th.

The service in the house at 3 p.m. was conducted by Rt. Rev. A. E. Pepper of Shannonville after which the remains were taken under the auspices of the Women of the Moose, Belleville Chapter to the Cemetery, the following officers: Senior Regent: Mrs. E. McGinness; Past Regent: Mrs. L. Collins; Chaplain: Mrs. T. York.

A large number of members were in attendance.

Interment was made in Belleville cemetery.

The bearers were Messrs. W. Edwards, T. York, J. Collins, F. St. Louis, H. Armstrong, H. McGinness, Belleville.

The funeral was largely attended and the floral tributes were many in number.

LATE MRS. MARY POWERS

The funeral of Mrs. Mary Powers, widow of William George Powers, took place from the Martin Funeral Chapel, Belleville, on Tuesday afternoon, May 20th.

The service in the chapel was conducted by Rev. G. C. Wright of Christ Church and interment was made in Belleville cemetery.

The bearers were the following nephews of the late Mrs. Powers: Capt. Thomas Hyland, Albert Hyland, Percy Hyland, Herbert Bowen, Everett Smith and Clifford Howie.

POLICE COURT

Eugene Shorli, 17 year old Belleville youth, was committed for two months in the common jail on a pleading guilty to the theft of four gold rings, when he appeared before Magistrate E. J. Butler K.C., in today's local police court.

Shorli originally committed the theft of the rings from the home of Miss Maude Bradford on Dundas St. and appeared in court on May 6th, at present on suspended sentence," stated Crown Attorney Donnan. Detective Inspector Miss Bradford personally appeared and displayed three of the rings, which she identified as Detective Leard.

"I have only did to my mother's wedding ring," brazilled Miss Bradford as she displayed a plain gold ring, that had been cut into two pieces. "True to this lad's tender age he and Shorli, who is also a suspended sentence, I would not like to see him sent to the reformatory," Mr. Donnan, which doubtlessly prompted His Worship in meting out the two month jail term.

$10.00 and costs was imposed in the latter case as well. Robertson asked for an extention of time to pay the fines, which was granted.

For driving in an alleged reckless manner on Dundas St. a local youth was fined $10.00 and costs and had his operator's license suspended for the remainder of the month. Two inebriates admitted their guilt when faced with L.C.A. charges, one intimating he was unable to pay the assessed fine and was given ten days in default.

WARNING TO MOTORISTS

At the last session of the Legislature the law respecting the speed of motor vehicles was amended. The effect of this amendment is to increase the maximum permissible speed at which motor vehicles may be operated. The amendment in question becomes effective on the 24th of May.

Motorists are warned that the new speed limits are the positive maximums speeds at which motor vehicles may be operated under the most ideal conditions. While the maximum speeds are to be 30 miles per hour in cities, towns and villages and 50 miles per hour outside, speeds much below these are necessary under many conditions. It is still an offence and considered reckless driving, for which severe penalties are provided, to operate at any speed without due regard for traffic, highway or light conditions.

Motorists are urged to exercise the greatest of care and courtesy and are warned that a wilful disregard for the safety of themselves or other users of the streets and highways will result in prosecution and withdrawal of the privilege of driving.

W. R. MORTON, PUBLISHER

CHALLENGE TO EMPIRE YOUTH

Youth of the Empire heard two masterly addresses on Tuesday night and on Wednesday in the heart of the Empire. Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin spoke at the Empire Youth rally in Albert Hall, nine thousand hearing him, while on Wednesday in Westminster Abbey and at an overflow in Westminster Hall His Grace the Archbishop of Canterbury pledged them to liberty, justice and peace.

It was really Baldwin's valedictory to a public life in the service of his country. "I have had my hour. I pass soon into the shade, but for you, life lies before you," he told the boys and girls. "You are the governors of the future", he affirmed. "I have had dreams and I am sure you have visions."

Youth never attended a more inspiring gathering than that. The people's head about to retire after honored service, was talking to those with their lives ready to be consecrated to their country.

One who had passed through the war era told them, "War does not settle the account. There is a balance brought forward. When the emancipation is achieved, new slavery may begin, and the moment of victory may be the beginning of defeat."

He steered the youth to the problems of government. "It is not only young men who dream dreams nor old men who see visions. In the next quarter of a century as you come to play your part in the great world, the big problems will be the problems of government. The peoples of the world, disillusioned by the horrors of the war, are all seeking eagerly, earnestly for what they conceive to be the best form of government in which their peoples may find happiness, security and develop their talents to their best. So I say to you, take an interest in government.

He spoke of the heritage of the past which was placed in youth's hands. He also held out the duty to youth not only to enjoy the accumulated wealth, material and moral, which will be tranferred to their account but also to hold and enhance it "because you are trustees in every sense of the noble word." He told the young men and women that in freedom within the law was the secret of the Empire's power and that democracy must be defended from within and without.

Then Mr. Baldwin gave the fine definition of the King, "as a symbol of the union not only of the Empire but of a society which is held together by a common view of the fundamental nature of man. It is neither the worship of a tribe or of a class. It is a faith, a value placed upon the individual, derived from the Christian religion. The Christian state proclaims human personality to be supreme; the service state denies it."

These are some of the noble words which Canadian boys and girls were privileged to hear from one who is high in the service of the state, a man honored as few are honored. It was his challenge to youth and his farewell to office.

The Archbishop of Canterbury in the vast Abbey of scores of coronations in the very setting where King George and Queen Elizabeth had been consecrated to their offices a week before, pointed the way to the future, as he stressed the wisdom of those by whose labors the nation and empire were built—the godly heritage youth now enjoys. "Was it for mere fool's play, make-believe or money?" he asked. He urged the youth to look with goodwill upon other countries and make friends with them. To achieve the ideals of justice, liberty and peace, there must be a loyalty within the soul, "that region of your life where you are alone where you are making your character and temper day by day."

Never did youth have so great a call to duty as the thousands from all parts of the Empire who heard these messages on the things of the spirit and of the temporal life.

The people are fashioned according to the example of their king; and edicts are of less power than the model which his life exhibits.—Claudian.

Royalty consists not in vain pomp, but in great virtues.—Agesilaus.

Wise kings generally have wise counsellors; and he must be a wise man who is capable of distinguishing one.—Diogenes.

Do you know what a man is? Are not birth, beauty, good shape, discourse, manhood, learning, gentleness, virtue, youth, liberality and such like, the spice and salt that season a man?—Shakespeare.

THE BLACKBIRD

The nightingale has a lyre of gold
The lark's is a clarion call,
And the blackbird plays but a boxwood flute,
But I love him best of all.

For his song is all of the joy of life
And we in the mad spring weather,
We two have listened till he sang
Our hearts and lips together.

VERY FEW FEATURE PLAYS PRODUCED AT HOLLYWOOD WIN UNANIMOUS APPROVAL from theatregoers. Even that smash hit "MAYTIME" which drew overflow audiences and in four days' engagement drew as large an audience the fourth day as the first, did not suit some people—didn't like it. Why? It might have been a touch of liver or indigestion, or failure to appreciate really fine music and acting, but whatever it was it afflicted very few of Belleville theatregoers. "Maytime" drew better than "Silent Barriers", a truly Canadian story, depicting the building of the Canadian Pacific Railway, a picture which made a great hit in the United States and should have packed them in the aisles in Canada. All this leads up to another kind of a moving picture story, which appeared in Belleville this week, and over which opinion is somewhat divided. Here's what we thought of "Call it a Day" outside of the difficulty of following the dialogue on account of the Oxford accent of the English actors, as expressed by a New York theatre critic, not paid to give favorable reports where they are not merited:

Call It a Day (Warner) is an amiable adaptation of Dodie Smith's gentle little comedy about one spring day in the life of the Hilton family. In the class of dramaturgy which depends upon making much of trifles, Call It a Day is about the last possible refinement. Not only does nothing actually happen in the story but the fact that at its end the Hiltons are exactly where they were at its beginning constitutes its denouement. This is because, in the interim, each has been touched, lightly as by the warm March wind, by currents in life that invite or threaten change. Seventeen-year-old Cathernie (Olivia de Havilland) has fallen in first love with the artist who is painting her portrait. Her brother Martin (Peter Willes) is interrupted in planning to run away from home by an invitation to dinner from the girl next door (Anita Louise). Roger Hilton (Ian Hunter), a dilligent and prosperous accountant, has a first-rate chance for extramarital adventure with an actress. Dorothy, his wife (Frieda Inescort), has received an equally alarming proposal from her best friend's brother, Frank Haines (Roland Young).

A clever tribute to that most rarely dramatized of virtues, the civilized inhibition, Call It a Day is gracefully acted and directed. Especially successful in creating the character of an attractive woman who is first and foremost an attractive lady is Frieda Inescort, most of whose previous roles in cinema have done her talents less than justice. Good shot: Mrs. Hilton and Frank Haines sitting down alone to the dinner at which she promised him the company of her happy and devoted family."

CHILDREN CHARGED WITH OBSTRUCTING VEHICULAR TRAFFIC by playing baseball on city streets were complained of by motorists and driven from the street by police. It has been stated that there are plenty public playing spaces in the city to take care of all the baseball players. That statement can be questioned. There can not be too many public places for the children to play in safety without bothering motorists or breaking windows —but these places must be a reasonable distance from the homes—Most children play in gangs representing a particular street or district and when they get out of that area they are in hostile territory and liable to ambush and possible anguish. Let's have lots of playgrounds for the kiddies, even corner lots will do if levelled and put in condition for "One Ole' Cat", Softball, or what have you.

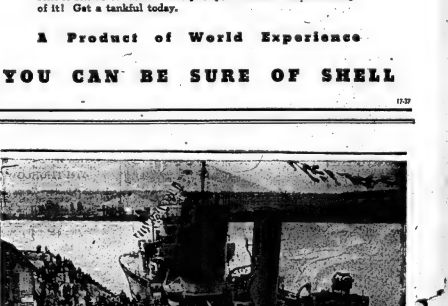
Smooth Running on the Riviera

Means Smoother Running in Canada

This Shell sign is a familiar sight to those who travel the picturesque road from Genoa to Ventimiglia on the Italian Riviera.

Does your car run "like a million" all the time? Or does it frequently lag and drag for no apparent reason? The answer may be in the gasoline you use.



Shell has gained vast knowledge about smooth-running performance on the most exacting highways in the world—on this road in the Riviera, for instance. This world experience is used to make your engine run smoother in Canada.

And so, with every gallon of Shell Gasoline you get something you cannot see. It is Shell's massed experience in 56 countries, sent to Shell's Canadian refinery for your benefit. Take advantage of it! Get a tankful today.

NEW CANADIAN DESTROYER DOCKS AT NEW WESTMINSTER

One of the features of Coronation Day in New Westminster—the royal city of British Columbia—was the arrival of the H.M.C.S. Fraser, new Canadian destroyer named after Simon Fraser, famous Canadian explorer. The upper photograph shows a section of the huge crowd which gathered in the rain to welcome the new ship while the lower photograph shows the destroyer as it entered the harbor.

Nash Adds All-Purpose Coupe to 1937 Line

This new all-purpose coupe has just been added to the 1937 Nash line. It was announced recently by C. H. Bliss, vice president of sales of the Nash Motors division of the Nash-Kelvinator Corporation. Two comfortable seats swing out from the rear of the body to provide room for two extra passengers, making the coupe a five passenger model with all passengers protected from the weather at all times. The spare tire is mounted in the rear deck, which likewise provides ample luggage space. When the extra seats are not in use the space behind the driver's seat is available for luggage. The model has been added to all three Nash lines, the Ambassador Eight, Ambassador Six and Nash LaFayette. Only in the Nash LaFayette series the all-purpose coupe is offered at a price far below that of any other car of similar body type.

"THE BRIGHT HILL"

By Clarissa Fairchild Cushman

The room, filled though it was with her homes and crates and trunks, nevertheless amazed her by its spaciousness. Its grace. Its richness. Its whiteness. Where the partition had been, they had put in a shallow cupboard being glass. I'll put father's schoolbooks there, she thought. She went around the room, touching it. The pretty windows, wide and low, the mantel, the white, open fireplace; the hall with its tiny steep stairs—they had opened a window on the landing and a pine branch against the sky as she looked up; and the kitchen—Oh mother!" It was yellow, a soft cream yellow; and the woodwork was yellow. An electric icebox fitted into an alcove; a little breakfast table and benches had been built in before the sunny window. All was so clean, so neat, so friendly.

Up the crooked stair, and around. Two little rooms, and the big room—hers. It had now, astonishingly, a fireplace in it. Per Deering, dollars flat if Mrs. Kingsbury wanted it. "And if you like our bony New England chairs it will be quite a bargain for you. And you'll find Amasa Gammage is almost honest."

Kerin facing the new day with great bravery and the assistance of the man with tools. The sun had gone. The house seemed very still. It was too empty, for one person, and a child. Unaccountably she turned her face to the wall and wept, just a little, quietly.

Mrs. Winters was in Maine, but she had left a note: the telephone number of a man with tools to open her boxes, of a man to fix the lawn, and an item that at 159 Hancock Street a departing teacher, Miss Cleary, had left a lot of furniture for a hundred dollars flat if Mrs. Kingsbury wanted it. "And if you like our bony New England chairs it will be quite a bargain for you. And you'll find Amasa Gammage is almost honest."

Kerin facing the new day with great bravery and the assistance of the man with tools. The sun had gone. The house seemed a bit appalled at the empty spaces of the house. After she had put Grandmother Dart's bed on one room and her mother's desk in another she was think a little longingly of Cari's great rockers. They certainly did fill up. She would go down and buy some things for lunch and maybe look in at 159 Hancock Street.

Where was Donald? Probably in the barn. But from the foot of the hill the cries of children reached her, and shading her eyes with her hand she perceived that he was playing baseball; in fact, he was just coming up to bat. Without a qualm she deserted him.

One hundred and fifty-nine Hancock Street turned out to be a few doors from the grocery and had the sign "Antiques. Amasa Gammage." At her call one of the biggest men in the world came up out of a cellar stairs first a thatch of grizzled, ragged hair then pale blue eyes, surprisingly genial, then a large walrus mustache whose dejection seemed to defy any power of his eyes to overcome it. His blue denim shirt was open at the neck to show a great brown throat; his hands were stained brown with varnish, and he held them from him as if even he knew they were dirty.

"Well, mam? Lookin' for chairs?" His voice, when he spoke, was hunkily confidential. His mustache might proclaim his desire to do considered a brigand; his eyes might invite you to think him a scoundrel; but his voice admitted him a sheep in wolf's clothing. "Miss Cleary's things? Wants a hundred dollars for 'em. I offered her fifty. She said I was cheatin' her—an' so was. But, whata I want with chairs? I got a million of 'em."

He turned slightly to one side, sighted a brown jug about ten feet away, and spat a long arc of brown juice accurately into its depths. Kerin was too fascinated to speak. His mild blue eyes turned back to her. "Interested in antiques?"

"No— Just furniture," said Kerin. "Furniture!" There was a world of contempt in that word. "Well, of course ou've gotta be eddicated to like antiques. A man come in here the other day and he says to me, 'antiques is all right he says if you don't have to sit in 'em and if you don't have to look at 'em, he says. One of them smarty professors he was, aboutin' his mouth." He turned and spat again, and Kerin watched, red, breathless. Shooting his mouth, she thought, was a timely phrase. The slot rang true. "Well, I says to him when you're buyin' antiques you ain't buyin' comfort; you're buyin' hairlooms." Miss Cleary's stuff! What's your name?"

"Kingsbury, Mrs. Kingsbury."

"Yeah—well—I guess that's the name. In the barn but—"

It seemed a great deal of furniture to Kerin. There was the old maple post bed complete (she did not know how lucky she was) with springs and mattress a big spool couch a golden cherry dresser, a long pine chest, a big carpet table, several little tables, and chairs, chairs, chairs. One was a tall spindly rocker that Kerin sat in with delight. "Chairs", murmured the brigand. "You can buy 'em for a nickle apiece, and that's too much for 'em."

"Will you send the things up?" said Kerin. "Today? I'll write you a check," she said counting, ignoring the increasingly disapproval of the drooping mustache.

"Well— Mr. Gammage looked around selected the window, and spat. "I dunno. It's Sat'day. Well—and seein' it's you. And if you need any more stuff just remember Amasa Gammage ain't in the business for his health."

"Oh, I'll be back," promised Kerin.

"To be sure, it was Saturday. Kerin stopped by and ordered a lot of groceries, and clutching bread and butter and a bottle of milk scurried home up the hill. Even a bottle of milk calls for a glass, she reflected. There were a lot of things she must still buy: for instance, kettles. Yet even as she thought of a row of shining new kettles in her shining kitchen, the dimple left her cheek. Nine hundred dollars! Surely a widow's purse—

INSTALLMENT TWENTY-TWO

For ten days Kerin groomed and polished the little house, and nobody came to disturb her busy solitude. Her only contact with the college was the man with the bag of tools. With Amasa Gammage she struck up a working friendship. He was fascinated when he discovered that she was going to paint all the spindle chairs and the spool day bed freshly black.

"Gorry! Them's antiques, mam. Them chairs got paitins on 'em as fine as ever see. It's a crime to go and paint 'em. Give 'em to me! I'll clean 'em up for you."

"How much will that cost?"

"Oh—I dunno." Involuntarily Kerin shrank as a stream of tobacco juice shot by. By Mr. Gammage's don't charge you very much, don't fix 'em very good. Say—three dollars apiece."

"But for three dollars I can paint them all. And Mr. Gammage—they're only chairs, after all."

Amasa Gammage looked at her and shook his head, the sorrow and errors of the world heavy on him.

"Nope." The walrus mustache drooped in utter despondency. "Chairs as is antiques ain't never just chairs. Well, suit yourself. But bimeby when you get the real spirit of antiques, don't say I didn't warn you."

As a matter of beauty, to which it might be said that Amasa Gammage was a stranger, the slender dull black spindles and slats of the chairs were perfect against the cream white walls and simple ruffled curtains. On the floor was a rug from "the trunk," a Moroccan piece of black and white design which made of the simple New England black and white room a startlingly modern creation. Over the mantel Kerin hung the glowing climax rug Susan had so much admired. In the little cupboard stood the great red and white chess men, with their red carved box on a table beneath them. Indeed, all the colorful bits from the trunk found a lovely setting against the simplicity of the little house.

ROLLED IN AGONY THROUGH INDIGESTION

A Nurse's experience

Nurses know more than ordinary people about relieving their ailments, but it wasn't until Nurse D. W., of S. . . tried Maclean Brand Stomach Powder that she found lasting relief for severe indigestion. "I have suffered for years," she writes. "From a very severe form of indigestion. Many a time I have rolled in agony for hours, bent double with pain, yet not daring to move for fear of getting it worse. My sister persuaded me to try a dose of Maclean Brand Stomach Powder, and I would not have believed that just a single dose would have had so instantaneous an effect. It soothed as I swallowed it, and relief was swift.

Even if your stomach trouble is as bad as Nurse's you can look for quick relief to Maclean Brand Stomach Powder. Be sure with the signature "ALEX. C. MACLEAN" on the bottle. 76c. 80

But though she rebelliously painted her chairs black, Amasa Gammage had nevertheless put his mark on Kerin. Haunting the "collections" of chairs and the piled desserts of one draw and two draw stands, she had begun to speak the language of old furniture, and to feel. If only faintly, the fascination of a "fine old piece". Mr. Gammage set her up with an old paint brush and some paint remover and sent her in her cellar, with infinite effort and very mediocre results, she learned the joy of seeing fine old wood emerge from blankets of ancient paint and varnish. It was stained in her hands, which, due would have warned her, would need to be those of a lady assistant dean in another few weeks, and her struggles were solitary, for Donald seemed to have faded into a gang of small boys that swarmed in the neighborhood back and forth and with whom, with concealed trepidation, she allowed him to "go swimmin'". So she sang as she worked from sheer exuberance of spirits.

Late one afternoon, swathed in a blue denim apron, her hands and cheeks flecked with brown stain, her mind intent on scouring a table down to the last detail, she was suddenly politely from the door that opened into her back yard.

"Pardon me, would you tell me where Mrs. Kingsbury is?"

"I'm Mrs. Kingsbury," Kerin called clearly, peering up the stairs. She appeared some long legs in gray flannel trousers, then a gray flannel coat, and then, ducking his head, he entered before, the tall dark-haired man with the gray eyes.

"Why!" said Kerin. "It's you!"

The tall man straightened in the gloom of the cellar and regarded her.

"Why, so it is! You're the lady with the honey hair!"

"Honey hair!" said Kerin.

"Absolutely. Buckwheat. Didn't you know?"

"I never thought." Looking at him she flushed suddenly.

He also seemed a little embarrassed. "You—you are Mrs. Kingsbury?"

"Yes" said Kerin. "Did you—did you wish to see me about something?"

"Yes. If it wouldn't be too much bother. It's about my niece. Alma Ashburn. She's matriculating this fall."

"I see", said Kerin primly. She's matriculating this fall."

"I see." said Kerin, primly. She indicated the stairs with the steel wool. If you'll go up—?"

"After you."

"Oh!" Kerin dropped her eyes in confusion and then seeing no way out of it laid down the wad of steel wool reached around in back and after some fumbling undid a large safety pin and let down her skirt. Then, with high head and crimson cheeks, she went b-the grave face and beaming gray eyes of her visitor and marched up the stairs. But pride deserted her in the sunlight. She held out her hands mutely and reminded her of the first time she had seen Amasa Gammage. It's varnish remover. You won't mind, will you, if I go and clean up?" Her eyes besought him not to find her ridiculous.

She slipped upstairs, while he turned into the old-fashioned modern room, the simple black and white room with its touches of crimson and with an ejaculation he stopped. He stopped and turning looked at the room at first swiftly and then in detail. He crossed and examined two Japanese prints that hung on a wall. He spoke softly to himself in his surprise. He looked at the glowing rug over the mantel; he crossed and examined the jade screen that Kerin had the evening placed before a window. He looked again at the quiet room: the furniture in such good taste was practically everything the few decorative things were almost priceless.

When Kerin came down he was looking in the bookcase. He did not even turn at her entrance. Over his shoulder he said some astonishing chesmen"?

PLAINFIELD

Plainfield—Rev. J. P. Everson and Mrs. Everson, Plainfield; Mrs. James E. Dixon, Mrs. Harold Mason, Miss June and Baby Robert of Belleville motored to Beaverton on Thursday where they attended the funeral of Mr. Everson's father the late William Everson, who passed away on Tuesday evening in the Ross Memorial Hospital, Lindsay, after an illness of some seven weeks. Mr. Everson was in his eighty-sixth year and had never known much illness. He was a native of Pensolee Township but had spent nearly all his life in Thora Township Ontario County. A private service was held in the home at 2.30 p. m. and a public service in the historic Stone Church near Beaverton at 3.00 p. m. Interment was made in the family plot in the Stone Church Cemetery.

Mrs. Matthew Tummon has returned home after spending the winter with her daughter at Crookston.

The many friends of Mr. Robert Rollins who has been confined to bed for nearly four months with a broken leg will be glad to know that he has recovered sufficiently to allow him to attend Sunday School again.

During the service at Zion on Sunday afternoon Betty Eileen Ray, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Ray was baptized by the Rev. Mr. Everson.

Mrs. John Shaw has returned home after spending the winter with friends at Corbyville.

WEST HUNTINGDON

West Huntingdon—The farmers sure are busy dodging the rain drops. Those who have low land have had to replant seeding. However, there is a great growth, and if this long the clouds will clear away and the sun will be shining and worries will vanish.

A number of real estate deals have been put through in this district. Mrs. Florence Geary has sold her brick yard to Mr. Herb Tummon of White Lake. Mr. Tummon will take possession in August.

The property known as Mrs. Wright's house on South Front St. has been purchased by Mrs. Albert Tummon and son and they have taken immediate possession.

Mrs. Woods and son have moved to Mr. James Wilson's house.

Little Miss Barbara Fargey had the misfortune to fracture her arm on Friday. At present she is gaining nicely.

Born: On May 13th, Coronation Day, to Mr. and Mrs. Melville Donnan a son, Robert George Allen.

The old Ridge Road is going to be dressed up to date. On Monday the concrete road crusher was erected on the hill adjoining Mr. Harold McGee's farm. A large number of men are employed. The hill is to be cut down and the gravel used for resurfacing the road from West Huntingdon to Stirling. Those who use this road will welcome the change. The extra amount of traffic of late has rendered the road hard to keep in repair.

Mr. Fred Sullivan of, Detroit, Mich., who a number of years ago resided on the farm now occupied by Mr. Foster Wilson, was buried in the family plot in Lake's Cemetery on Monday afternoon.

The Young People's Union held their closing meeting in the Grange Hall on Friday evening. The winners in the contest furnished the lunch and the lassies put on the program. Mrs. W. J. Pitchett, gave a couple of solos. A number of impromptu speeches proved amusing and interesting. Mr. Harold Thompson gave some musical numbers and lunch closed the meeting.

Mr. and Mrs. Milton Moorcroft and Mrs. Barragar attended the funeral of Col. D. Barragar of Belleville on Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Chester Sills, Lindsay and Mildred were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Sexsmith of Bells.

Miss Helen Wright spent the week-end with her sister, Mona, of Peterborough Normal School.

Visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Cain on Empire Day were Mrs. Sarah Stapley of Oak Hills, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Stapley, Roby and Wallace, Dirs. and Mrs. Arthur Stapley and Mr. and Mrs. Jos. Earl Fox of Centre.

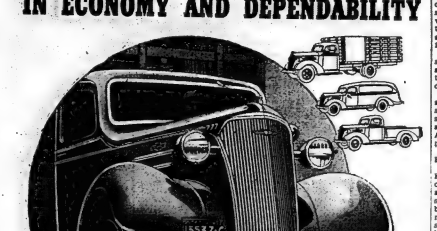
Mr. and Mrs. Luther Fox and family of Bells were the Sunday evening visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Fox of Centre.

The Misses Evelyn and Marjorie McIlmoy and Miss Gladys Cooke were Sunday guests of Miss Georgia Pitman.

The Bendeavors Class held their monthly social evening at Mr. and Mrs. Elliott Sexsmith's home on Tuesday evening. Due to some illness in the community a number were debarred from attending, but those who were present enjoyed the delightful program.

After singing, "Life's Railroad to Heaven," Mr. Frank Hammond led in prayer and Mr. Elmer Post read a portion of Scripture and gave a brief talk on it.

Twelve members answered to roll call and Mr. Clifford Elliott and Mrs. Floyd Sheffield each gave readings. Singing of a hymn and a prayer by Mr. Clifford Elliott closed the meeting. Two contests were enjoyed and lunch served.



Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Elliott and family spent Sunday at Mr. E. T. Sayles'.

Mrs. Chester Sills and Mrs. John Wallace attended an executive meeting in Madoc on Saturday, making plans for the W. I. rally.

The home of Dr. and Mrs. R. A. Wyatt at 288 Coleman street, was the scene of a happy occasion on Monday night, when a number of friends of Miss Maida Hannah, a May bride-to-be, honored her with a miscellaneous shower. Following an enjoyable evening spent with games and music, the many attractive gifts were presented to the guest of honor by Miss Mae Morris Wyatt. Miss Hannah made an appropriate speech of appreciation of the many gifts. A delicious luncheon was served at the conclusion of the evening by Mrs. Hannah and Mrs. Jessie Gasley, who were the hostesses of this pretty function.

The Rt. Rev. George Dumoford Barne, Bishop of Lahore, India; Mrs. Barne and the Rev. C. R. H. Williams, Bursar-Treasurer of the Kangra Mission in India, arrived in the city today and are guests of the Rev. A. Beauchamp Payne and Mrs. Payne at St. Thomas' Church Rectory, Dundas Street east. The Bishop will speak at St. Thomas' Parish Home this evening.

A large representation from the B.Y.P.U. of Victoria Avenue Baptist Church left for Toronto today to attend the annual rally of the Ontario and Quebec associations of the B.Y.P.U. which is being held over the week end. A feature of the meeting will be the devotional hour at Massey Hall on Sunday evening. This will be conducted by Mr. Bert Orr of this city, president of the Peterborough Association assisted by Rev. A. G. Sinclair of Victoria Avenue Baptist Church. Miss Phyllis May will be soloist. The other sessions of the convention at which over two thousand are expected to be present will be held in Walmer Road Baptist Church. Those from Belleville attending include Rev. A. G. Sinclair, Mrs. Robert Orr, Mrs. R. Andrews, Mrs. Ivan Church, Misses Eleanor Johnson, Dorothy Clapper, Nora Mabee, Jean Stephenson, Alice Knight, Alta Cherry, Violet Robson, Delia Anderson, Phyllis May, Nellie Blake, Gertrude Grant, Doreen Ferguson, Jean Thompson, Marjorie Adams, Elaine Lorne Andrews and Bill Hales.

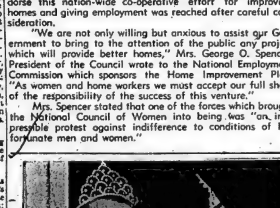
HOME IMPROVEMENT PLAN H I P

And .How to Improve It



A Series of Articles on Suggested Home Improvements Advisability, Value, Cost, Etc.

Solution of Problems Confronting Canadian Women

OTTAWA, May 21 — With the statement that "in the improvement of home conditions lies the solution of many problems now confronting Canadian women," the National Council of Women of Canada has endorsed the Dominion Government Home Improvement Plan. The decision to endorse this nation-wide co-operative effort for improving homes and giving employment was reached after careful consideration.

"We are not only willing but anxious to assist our Government to bring to the attention of the public any project which will provide better homes," Mrs. George O. Spencer, President of the Council wrote to the Home Improvement Plan Commission which sponsors the Home Improvement Plan. "As women and home workers we must accept our full share of the responsibility of the success of this venture."

Mrs. Spencer stated that one of the objects which brought the National Council of Women into being was "an irresistible protest against indifference to conditions of less fortunate men and women."

FAIREST QUEEN IN THE SUNNY SOUTH

Prettiest of all the queens of the mid-south is Miss Anne Taylor, of Brownsville, Tenn., who was named "Miss Dixie" in the contest held in connection with the Memphis, Tenn., cotton carnival—a pageant of progress and prosperity.

Needleworkers Busy Completing Series of Quilts

Using a novel way to raise funds for their work the members of the L.O.B.A. have taken to quilting and are busily engaged in completing a large order of twenty-five of these very popular articles. The pieced or appliqued quilt is brought to them by its owner and the group undertakes the intricate and exacting task of quilting.

At first they had much to learn, such as the proper way to roll the four frames at once so that the quilt narrowed down into a small square but now they can complete a quilt in five hours using designs suitable to that of the quilt—in contrast to it, so that the back is as picturesque as the front. They have worked on quilts with such pretty designs as the star, fan, pinstree, fireside, basket, cartwheel, wrench, and Dutch girls. These quilts have gone as far as Harding, Kentucky, others went to Chamount, N.Y., Watertown, N.Y., Simcoe and Toronto. The ladies complete one each week.

Yesterday the quilters Mrs. Ceigler, Mrs. Bankey, Mrs. Turner, Mrs. Savage, Mrs. May, Mrs. Buck and Mrs. Reid, were working on the fence pattern in blue and gold. The pattern for quilting was outlined in white chalk, which easily brushed away when the quilt was done. The quilting was done in the Orange Hall, after which the ladies gathered for a "pot luck" supper and attended lodge meeting.

Stirling W. I. Elects Officers

The annual meeting of the Stirling W. I. was held on Friday afternoon or last week in the Community Hall. Twenty-three members and one visitor being present. The President Mrs. W. Hunter, called the meeting. After the opening exercises the business matters were dealt with. The first was appointing Mrs. Matheson as the correspondent through the Stirling Weekly Herald. $5.00 was donated to help to defray the expenses of Stirling Coronation Committee. The Secretary, Mrs. R. Williams read the report of the last year's work and itemized same, the result was a balance of $10.63 on hand. The auditors reported books correct. Mrs. C. Clancey of Wellmans conducted the election of officers and Gena Spry acted as Secretary. The officers were as follows: Mrs. Clancy, Mrs. W. West; 1st Vice, Mrs. J. N. West; 2nd Vice, Mrs. T. Cranston; Secretary-Treasurer, Mrs. C. Clarke; Directors, Mesdames R. Williams, H. Tulloch, L. Rodgers, A. Chandler Dist. Director, Mrs. R. Williams; Representatives to District Annual, Mrs. Wm. West, Mrs. R. Williams; Mrs. J. J. Wilson, Mrs. Geo. Leery and Mrs. R. Gould; Auditors, Mrs. R. Williams; Song leader, Mrs. J.J. Wilson; Auditors Mrs. G. Leery and Mrs T. Dancey. Mrs. Wm. West tendered a vote of thanks to the past officers. It was decided to have the printed programmes. There was $100.00 voted to the Horticultural Society but as it was not used it was decided to rescind the motion and use that money for painting decorating the hall. The National Anthem was sung and the meeting adjourned. Lunch was served.

PICTON

Picton — Early Monday, death called Judge Wm. Hefferman, well known resident of Picton in his eighty-first year. He had enjoyed splendid health and death came suddenly, due to a heart attack. Mr. Hefferman was fond of gardening as a hobby and even this year had one of the finest and most advanced gardens in town. He is survived by three sons; Captains Thomas and Arthur of Picton, Master of Tonnawanda, N. Y., Jeremiah Hefferman, K. C. of Edmonton, and one daughter Miss Mary Hefferman at home. The deceased was born in Ireland coming to Canada as a young man. Mrs. Hefferman died about fifteen years ago. Mr. Hefferman was a devout Catholic and the funeral service was held in St. Mary's Church on Saturday morning with Rev. Fr. Meehan saying requiem mass. Interment was made in Mount Olivet Cemetery.

Mr. James Walker of the C. D. S. who underwent a very serious major operation on Monday in the local hospital was reported a little better yesterday afternoon.

Many friends from Picton attended the funeral of Mrs. George Hudgin at South Bay United Church on Wednesday, May 19th. The deceased, who before her marriage was Hattie Wright, passed away at her home at Long Point on Monday in her fifty-seventh year. She is survived by her husband and one son, Dr. Edwin Smith conducted the last services, funeral service and interment took place at Cherry Valley.

Current report about town is that the Picton Coal Company, owned by Toronto interests, has been purchased by Collver and Ruff.

Mr. Enos Dowsley of Bloomfield has built two fine cottages on Mc-Donald's Point on West Lake and made a beauty spot of the island. Fishing for pickerel has already begun and Bass, Grass, and Muskey beauties are caught every summer.

MARMORA

Marmora—Messrs. C. H. Buskard R. E. Bonter and W. J. Cottrell attended the Ontario Diocesan Synod in Kingston on Tuesday 29 Lay Delegates from the parish of Marmora. Mrs. Buskard also accompanied her husband to the city and visited relatives there.

Mr. J. H. Wright, who has been receiving treatment in the military section of Kingston General Hospital was transferred to Ottawa on Tuesday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. P. Gray and Mr. L. R. Rundle are visiting relatives at Newmarket.

Eyesight and Efficiency

When eyesight suffers, all other dependent senses must become impaired also. Bad vision tells upon one both physically and mentally and efficiency slips away more easily through faulty vision than from any other cause.

To improve your efficiency improve your eyesight. You cannot lose efficiency without losing money—competition is too keen for that. You must retain your hold, you cannot afford to let slip the advantages which a lifetime's labor has brought you. And the first step is to improve your vision. Much can be done with glasses.

TALKS ON SOCIAL CREDIT THEORY

Dr. Frank, Peterborough, Guest Speaker at Literary Club

Tweed, May 21—The final meeting of the season of the Literary Club of the United Church was held jointly with the Men's Brotherhood on Monday evening. Despite the heavy rain there was a very good attendance. Mr. Clarence Graham, president of the Brotherhood presided over the meeting. Miss C. Moffat sang "Pale Moon," and "Until."

The speaker of the evening was Dr. Frank of Peterboro, who gave an excellent address on "The Theory and Application of Douglas' Social Credit." Dr. Frank is a thorough convert to Social Credit as proposed by Major Douglas and has made an exhaustive study of the scheme. He has written a book on the subject.

"There is a great need," said Dr. Frank, "for a close study of our economic problems. Social Credit provides a hope for humanity and it is simple and practical solution for social and economic ills. It will remove the cause of 50 per cent. of our insanity, 50 per cent of crime, 75 per cent of our suicides and all wars.

Major Douglas, contended the people who have made the real contribution to potential human happiness than any other man since the dawn of the Christian era. Social Credit goes to the root of our troubles. It is the fact that the majority of people who have not known want in the midst of despair and shame of those who have experienced it. For most of us the depression is over but for 250,000 Canadians it is not over, and never will be. Social Credit is not an economic system. We in Canada have a great opportunity to set an example to the world. Our war armaments and armies but in the last line of our defences to make everyone economically secure. If we have things to take their natural course as seems to be the tendency, the best that can be achieved will be a repetition of what has been.

The major ill of Canada is not underproduction but underconsumption. Social Credit aims at individuals would buy but for the lack of purchasing. To those who say that Social Credit will tend to interfere with ownership and capital Dr. Frank replied that capital they would be untouched.

Money, as the speaker, need have no intrinsic value, Less than 3 per cent of money in Canada is backed by gold. Most of our business, 97 1-2 per cent, is conducted on financial credit rather than on currency. Money is nothing more than a ticket to facilitate the transaction of business.

Canada's bonded debt has increased in the past 20 years from two to ten billion dollars according to statistics obtained from the Dominion Bureau of Statistics and the interest charges on this debt now amount to 30 per cent of the entire production of the country.

Under Social Credit the financial credit must be made equal to real credit which is the total productive capacity of the country. Dr. Frank made it clear that Social Credit will provide for every individual is not to say something for nothing but should society not benefit by it?

The National Dividend which will provide a decent living for those unemployed through no fault of their own.

Foreign trade would not suffer through Social Credit. It is a fallacy that a country can get rich by exporting more than it imports. All goods sent out of the country represent wealth which must be paid for by the carrying charges on our enormous debt. More goods would be consumed at home under proposed scheme. There is a potential market of from three to five million people in Canada who cannot buy under our present economic system but who would become a market in reality under some such scheme as Social Credit.

Technically and scientifically the world is well advanced towards middle twentieth century, but economically it is in the middle of the fourteenth century. We must act wisely and quickly, or, predicted the speaker our civilization will go down as surely as that of ancient Greece and Rome.

Regarding the Aberhart proposal of Social Credit for Alberta, Dr. Frank said it is premature to ask the question that the reason Alberta cannot pay the promised dividend is because Social Credit is a National scheme not provincial.

A great many joined in the discussion which followed this address. A vote of thanks was moved by Dr. A. J. Thompson and seconded by Mr. Silas McCrae.

The Marion Coon Evening Auxiliary met at the home of Mrs. Leslie Gordon on Tuesday evening. The theme of the program was "World Order and Peace" worship service, led by the President, Miss Isabelle Campbell, was interspersed with suitable hymns.

Miss Hazel Grindell B.A., read the scripture lesson. Miss Elizabeth Stuart B.A. read Miss Mansfield's Prayer for the King's Reign" and an article "The Coronation of Our King and Queen" which traced the ceremony of coronation from the early days when it was a simple ceremony, to the present day when a solemn religious service features the coronation.

Miss MacQuarrie read Edgar Guest's poem "The Big Problem." Mrs. C. R. Porritt read an excellent address on "Our Duty to Humanity." Miss Campbell discussed the concluding chapter of the Study Book, Miss Blakey and Mrs. G. E. Way also read poems of Edgar Guest's. The meeting was closed with special benediction.

Lunch was served by a committee, composed of Mrs. Porritt, Misses Bessie Gordon and Reta Pallister.

A new hairy business has been opened in Tweed by Hubert Wagar, a former resident of Tweed, for the past several years Mr. Wagar has been conducting a successful baking business in Cleveland. The new business will be located at the rear of J. E. Drinkwater's grocery. New and modern machinery is being installed in there the public of a product of a high degree of excellence.

Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Wagar and daughter Miss Marjorie spent several days in Quebec on business last week.

Mr. Sid Arber of Queen's University is at home following completion of final examinations.

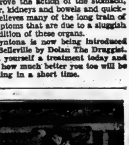
Hamilton Manager Makes Remarkable Statement

Brought Quick Relief From Constipation, Backache and Pains in Limbs. Tired-out Feelings and Nervousness Also Disappeared, He Says.

MR. A. C. AIKINE



Mr. A. C. Aikine, 62 King Street east, Hamilton, now comes forward with his truthful and remarkable story of the splendid results he has experienced by using a few bottles of the new Syntona medicine now being introduced here at Dolan's Drug Store.

"When I started taking Syntona I felt in a rundown condition," said Mr. Aikine. "I felt tired out and was often had headaches and backache. I didn't sleep soundly at night and was bothered with pimples and boils. At times my legs pained and ached and it seemed I was always had to be taking something for constipation.

"Friends advised me to try Syntona and about three weeks ago I got my first bottle. Since then I've felt better almost every day until now I am completely rid of each one of those troubles and I feel like myself again. I've never had much experience taking medicine but I certainly can say that Syntona did wonders for me and I cannot praise it too highly."

Hundreds of persons have taken this new medicine with the same good results as described here by Mr. Aikine. It contains 12 of Nature's Fine Medicinal Herbs that improve the action of the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels and quickly relieves many of the long train of symptoms that are due to a sluggish condition of these organs.

Syntona is now being introduced in Belleville by Dolan The Druggist. Get yourself a treatment today and see how much better you too will be feeling in a short time.

Sports Roundup

Stan Bordagaray of the Cardinals not Wally Berger of the Braves is the outfielder the Giants are dickering for.....(but the fisticuffs the other day may have delayed the deal).....Benny Huffman, now catching regularly for the Browns, way behind the plate for Bridgewater College, a small institution of only 250 students, a year ago..... Here's that Joe Louis again. It is true that Al Weill intends to turn down a guarantee of $50,000 for Lou Ambers to defend his lightweight crown against Pedro Montanez.....Quick Watson, shot.

One Major League Manager who doesn't grow old is Jimmy Dykes of the White Sox.....Lou Ruel is on the way to Detroit to meet batman weight champ Shorty Hamber to close for a title shot against K.O. Morgan under Jack Kearns' auspices.....Slats will take the bout if they can agree on a date before July 15th.....Otherwise he is going to London to fight Peter Kane for a $15,000 guarantee.....Have you bought your ticket to the Braddock-Schmeling fight yet?.....Officially, President Ford Frick had to slap on a fine or two for the riot in St. Louis.....Privately and confidentially, he probably wishes he had been on hand to see it and report it for the press as he used to do before he became an Exec.

CORBINS DEFEAT AAJMAAS BY 10-6

Hurler Carson For Losers Develops Wild Streak in Fifth

Wildness on the part of Bill Carson, junior moundsman, coupled with some consistent hitting in the latter stages of the game cost the Aajmaas Juniors their second start in the local senior softball loop last evening, when the Corbins squad rang up their initial victory of the season defeating the Aajmas kids 10 to 6 at Corbins Flats last night.

The clubs battled along at practical even terms with Aajmaas leading by an odd run until the fifth when Corbins pushed two across and added three more in the sixth as Carson developed a wild streak. Johnnie Bawden was on the hilltop for the winners, allowing six hits, three of which came in the initial frame. Bawden whiffed eight and walked two while Carson issued four free tickets.

"Shine" Ethier led the hitters with two singles and a double. Cy Sharpe getting a double to open hostilities for Corbins. Stan Amo's circuit blow was the big hit registered by the junior Aajmaas. Corbins scored four runs in the initial frame, while the Aajmaas kids came back to score three and the game developed into a pitchers' battle until Carson went wild.

The Townsend-couched kids bowed the ball for three costly errors, while the Corbins played good ball behind the steady hurling of Bawden. Reid of Corbins collected two singles, each coming with the bases loaded.

The provincial champion Perfevals tangle with the Belleville-Sparks in a regular league fixture tonight at Coleman Park.

The line-ups for last night:

Corbin, Hardware—Barring, ss; Ethier, 2b; Sharpe, lf; Reid, cf; Reid, lf; J. Bawden p; Tuttle c; Jenkinson rf and Mc Bawden 1b.

Aajmaas Juniors—Adams 3b; Peets and Rowbotham c; Cooper 2b; O'Dell 1b; Amo cf; Mansfield ss; Barring lf; Yap rf; Carson and Noakes p, and Westfall.

Score by innings	R H E
Aajmaas	011 100 0— 3 6 3
Corbins	410 023 x—10 9 2

Umpires—Thomas and Knott.

Players are Given Certificates At an Executive Meeting

South Hastings Ball Loop Ready to Fly Off Lid

MAY AFFILIATE

Canniffton, May 21—The executive of the South Hastings Baseball League met here last night for the purpose of giving their final season approval or disapproval regarding the eligibility of the different players named on the various teams' players' lists. Every team in the league was well represented and discussions entered into were for the most part decided on with hardly a dissenting voice.

Before the business got under way Mr. R. Gilbert of Napanee, O.B.A.A. vice president, enlightened those present with a very interesting talk on the benefits of that body, outlining very clearly the procedure necessary should the South Hastings League accept the O.B.A.A.'s invitation of joining the Intermediate C series, providing the league decided in favor of affiliating with that body it would give the winning team an opportunity of continuing on in the provincial playdowns with the ultimate goal of winning the championship.

All Players Passed

Every name on all five team's player's lists was passed with only an odd question being asked as to where so and so hails from and what position does he play. Numerous changes were in evidence as secretary Art Hall read out the names, the most prominent being the change of uniforms of Bud Wilkins and Murray Gay of last year's Canniffton team to the colors of the Pontoo squad. Latta have most of last year's roster on hand again with the addition of a few new faces, notably Speedy" St. Louis of Belleville and Gord Brydson of Black Hawk hockey fame. Canniffton have most of their old team back again with the additions of Ernie Smith, an old home town boy, and "Dusty" Flagler, Shannonville have taken in a few of the McRose personnel, they having given up the ghost for this year. Belleville Kiwanis juniors were represented by "Twig" Woodley, who was in favor of extending the final player listing time until June 15th. The meeting was given allowing managers to switch names on players' lists until the aforementioned date, new players not to participate until they are sanctioned by the executive.

No decision was reached relative to affiliating with O.B.A.A. for as entrants must not necessarily be in before July 15th, considerable time is given to arrive at an agreement on the matter.

Kiwanis juniors will play a double header on opening day being hosts of the rejuvenated Latta squad on the morning of the 24th at Belleville to start the league off and taking part in the sports' day at Foxboro in the afternoon, when they play the Foxboro nine in the second fixture of a twin bill, while Canniffton and Shannonville will be the attraction in the initial contest.

STERLING BRAND OF BALL PLAYED

Hinde And Dauch Away on Right Foot in Mercantile Loop

Trenton, May 21.—(Special)—A sterling brand of ball was played by members of the Hinde and Dauch Association last night when they defeated Stoney Lonesome 12 to 5 at Glendon Park. The game was filled and the sidelines were well lined. First mercantile league baseball fun of the season was swatted out by Bert Blight in the opening stanza of the game, when a snappy blonde backstop connected with one of Ralph Weldon's fastballs for his mate, Whitely was on second bag. Both streaked across the plate for safety on the ball, which was retrieved well out in the outfield. The pastimers settled down from then on and by the time the the initial inning closed they counted five over the home plate and were leading by three tallies. Stoney Lonesome batsmen failed to get on the second and third session to conclude their opening, while the Hinde and Dauch served seven runs off Bowler's delivery before the game closed. Bowler, who was given the sacker of the paper team blasted out a homer in the fifth off the bliny with a runner on base duplicating Blight's feat of the opening stanza. Batteries were: Hinde and Dauch, Lott, c; Anderson, p; Mills 1b; Campney, 2b; Ray 3b; McKenzie cf; Waldron lf; Schmeist, ss; Turner rf. Stoney: Hinde, c; Grey 2b; J. Gallant rf; J. Sherrard 3b; R. Bowler p; R. Sherrard lf; Weldon ss; Miller unpired behind the plate and O. Ward was on the bases.

LOCAL BOWLERS ON EAST TEAM

Five Will Play Against South African at Kingston

Five Belleville lawn bowlers were included on the Eastern Ontario lawn bowling teams to represent the district in a tournament versus a team of South African lawn bowlers, who will tour Canada next month, and play at Kingston on June 21st. In a "good will" tour to Canada 80 lawn bowlers from South Africa will tour Canada from Halifax to Vancouver, their Eastern Ontario tournament being in Kingston at which Belleville bowlers and bowlers from other parts of Eastern Ontario will participate as opponents. The five Belleville players to represent the local lawn bowling district in the tournament versus South Africa matches will be Chas. N. Bulman, Arthur Meeks, Bert Wray, Joe Black and Fred Harper. Ten other members of the local club were also invited to the banquet, that will be tendered the South African bowlers at Kingston.

Last evening in the Belleville Chamber of Commerce Building lawn bowlers from Kingston, Belleville, Stirling, Deseronto, Campbellford, Brighton, Norwood and intermediate points convened and completed arrangements for the entertainment of the South African lawn bowlers during their stay and tournament in Kingston. George Walkin, president of the Belleville Club occupied the chair during the business discussion. Every detail pertaining to the matter of visiting the visiting South African bowlers' visit to Eastern Ontario was taken into consideration to assist the "good will" tour's success. The tournament marks the first inter-Empire lawn bowling meeting ever held in this district of the province. Owing to accommodation and facilities the Kingston Lawn Bowling Club was voted as the most logical city in which to entertain the distinguished guests.

Following the meeting President Walkin announced a general meeting of the Belleville Lawn Bowling Club would be held in the Y.M.C.A. tonight at which time plans for a gala opening of the lawn bowling season would be the topic of discussion. The local lawn bowling club will open its season's activities on Victoria Day with inter-club bowling. The greens whitened will and are in splendid condition for play. Some 60 new members have joined the local club this spring.

CALLING 'EM

Between the Lines

By Ken J. Colling

"Doc" Welsh, ruling maestro of the Latta "Combine" in the South Hastings League, is centering his pre-season activities on bolstering the hurling staff. All ready Skipper Welsh has Carl Casey, former Belleville National hurler and Callaghan, a Tweed product, signed on the dotted line, these two moundsmen bearing the burden of the Latta flinging staff last year. To add more prestige to his pitching corps, however, the "Doc" has all but signed "Speedy" St. Louis also, thereby giving his charges three proven moundsmen. The Latta team opens the season at the Fair Grounds on Victoria Day in the morning versus Coach "Twig" Woodley's Kiwanis kiddiets.

The Foxboro scribe doesn't think much of the nickname of the Belleville Lacrosse Club, namely the Braves. After casting the odd sarcastic remark in our general direction the Lifflock City scribe goes on to relate—The reason Harry Meyers, the sailing tar from the Belleville Braves, With such centers represented as Kingston, Napanee, Bloomfield, Stirling, Deseronto, Oshawa, and, oh yes, Belleville it might be a better idea to tag the team the Cosmopolites or maybe the Gypsies, after that. Anyway We trust the lads in Quinte livery are not acquainted with each other come time to greet the local lads on the field of honor."

Up in Oshawa the U.A.W.A. automobile workers' union No. 222 is sponsoring their lacrosse team and a mighty fine squad of gilded-stick artists is available, Oshawa having been represented in the senior O. A. L. a year or so ago. "Kelly" Degray, "Darby" Daniels, Cowley, Barron, Mudge and a host of other proven material will be included on the "Oshawa" line-up. Ernie is playing their home games in the Oshawa Arena.

Annually Victoria Day sees the innovation of sand-of-door sports throughout the district and weather permitting May 24th this year will be no exception to the established rule. Golf at both the Bay of Quinte and Belleville Clubs will auspiciously open with a men's handicap in the morning and a two ball foursome in the afternoon at the Belleville Golf while the Country Club has a two ball foursome only. The five local tennis clubs... one at the Country Club and the other on the Quinte Skating Rink property, Queen St., are contemplating gala openings. Incidentally the new club on Queen St. has six fine clay courts and are conducting a membership before the season advances far. This new club is the mecca of the junior tennis fraternity about the city. Pearl races and three games of softball are also on the Victoria Day sports program and it all looks like plenty of work for the sports department.

Ernie Gibbard, ex Vice-President of the O.B.A.A. personally attended a general meeting of the South Hastings Baseball League held in Canniffton last night and invited that league to affiliate with the O. B. A. A. Many of the clubs voiced favorable comment, but the matter will be decided later. In the meantime, however, the Canniffton club intimated they will not individually affiliate with the parent body. If the league as a whole turned down the proposition, will it delay the Canniffton club could augment its playing strength with a few of the better players from throughout the circuit. The S. H. is not signing any players' certificates before the general opening on Monday.

"B.B." chief amanter out the Oshawa Club in the Belleville gave the inside dope on the running of the "King's Plate Lacrosse" "Take it from me pablo Golden Silence will be on top, Goldfurs, second and Red Pirate close behind," predicted the chief onion sniffer. With so many "Golden" names on his roster, it looks like a "golden opportunity" for some person to reap a harvest of golden shekels, maybe.

As an aftermath of the Cardinal-Giants outbreak of the previous day, the umpires were taking no chances yesterday with the result Manager Frankie Frisch was ejected from Sportsman's Park before the first ball was pitched yesterday. Frisch, still burning up over Umpire Barr's decision regarding a balk the day previous, opened with a barrage of chatter that was anything but becoming to the grand old game of baseball, but as opposed directed his conversation too close to the ears of umpire Barr, not remiss "For outs de game, yu outta de park, wise guy," stated Umpire Barr as he pointed his horizontal thumb toward the clubhouse. The Giants went on to add insult to injury and trounce the Cards, as the Pirates are making a runaway of the senior loop, while in the American League the Cleveland Indians are tops today.

Howard "Dynamite" Wheeler, former Belleville leather-pusher of prominence, stole the General Motors Boxing Club's show at Oshawa last night. "Little Dempsey" can surely swing leather when he's in the mood and last night must have been one of Howard's moody nights, as he lifted a raffle featherweight to a fare-thee-well in a free swinging bout.

President Harry Moore of the C. O. Lacrosse loop, phoned in today to Judge Coleman and Canniffton with the league, necessitating another revision in the six-club loop, incidentally the local gilded-stick artists, augmented by five Kingston players, worked out in the College gym last eve.

RED PIRATE, GOLDLURE ARE SPLIT FAVORITES IN KING'S PLATE CLASSIC

Toronto, May 21.— (CP) — Faced by Red Pirate and Goldlure, the Navarro, 1½ temperamental thoroughbreds were expected to be named today to start honorably in the 19th running of the King's Plate.

The field, representing the best Ontario-foaled three-year-olds will battle for 50 guineas, donated by the King, and the major portion of a $7,000 added purse. At the end of the mile and a quarter grind, Lieut. Tweedsmuir, Governor General, attending in his official capacity, will present the winning owner with the plate.

Preparations were made at Woodbine Park, nestled on Lake Ontario's shore in Toronto's east end, to handle more than 20,000 persons. A fast track is not anticipated as spring rains have driven with the undercoat and when the weather did clear up soon enough time remained to dry out the turf thoroughly.

While Red Pirate, owned by R. S. McLaughlin of Oshawa, and Goldlure, sporting the colors of E. C. Hatch of Agincourt, remain split favorites, a couple of top-notch horses hold different opinions.

Frankie Mann, a triple plate winner and scheduled to straddle H. R. Bain's Isleworth, chose Silver Jubilee, expected to be Red Pirate's running mate.

A drawling North Dakotan, Pat Remillard, leading Canadian jockey in 1935 and 1936, was hot for Silver Jubilee, owned by F. Smallman. "He has done everything a man could ask," he said. "And he is the one I will be riding."

Following are expected starters: Fairwood Stable's Red Pirate, Pegan Kling; Silver Jubilee; H. C. Hatch's Goldlure, Coster; H. R. Bain's Isleworth, Cease Fire; J. F. Smallman's Stroat; Erindale Stable's Golden Silence, Sandalman. Free lease; R. H. New's Take Otie; J. P. Seagram's Gold Guard; and R. W. R. Cowie's Aldwych.

NEWARK BEARS OPPORTUNISTS OF FIRST GRADE

Defeat Leafs in 13th For Third Straight Win of Series

(By The Associated Press)

Newark Bears, a youthful and nimble group of opportunists, are leading the "knots of the loop" "ones" technique employed last year by their parent club, New York Yankees, with early success in the International Baseball League race.

Toronto Maple Leaf opened a four-game series with the Bears with high hopes of overhauling Oscar Vitt's Club and moving into first place. Yesterday, the Bears won a 13 inning game of the series, 7-6, in 13 innings and increased their lead over the second place Buffalo Bisons to 2 1-2 games. Leafs are in third place a game behind the Bisons.

Process of Cheese Making In Quinte District Described Over Air by Claire Wallace

Radio Commentator Taken To Foxboro Factory For Demonstration

GREAT CHEESE CENTRE

Description of Early Life of Belleville, Also Given

Vivid impressions of the cheese industry in Belleville district, hub of this important branch of the country's trade, were obtained by Miss Claire Wallace, well known Toronto radio commentator during her recent visit to this city and conducted tour of sixteen factories of the area. Impressions which were later broadcast throughout the nation in one of her late afternoon daily talks.

Linked with her expert description of the cheese industry was an illuminating sidelight on many historical events of Belleville in the early days.

Excerpts Given

Excerpts of the program which is reprinted are by courtesy of the Bristol Myers Company:

"At the invitation of the Ontario Cheesemaker's Association I went to Belleville this week end," commented Miss Wallace in her informal talk. "And early Saturday morning went visiting cheese factories to see how that famous Canadian cheddar cheese that the English people consume in millions of pounds every year, is made.

"Last year Great Britain took 70,000,000 pounds of Canadian cheddar. They ate between 85 and 90 per cent. of all the cheese made in Canada—because English people are great cheese eaters, while we Canadians less warm to meals.

"With such a demand in Great Britain for Canadian cheddar cheese, cheese making is a big and important industry in our country. There are 700 cheese factories in Ontario alone, with 180 of them in Central Ontario, so I was right in the heart of the cheese making industry when I visited Belleville.

Mr. A. L. Zufelt, former superintendent of the Eastern Ontario Dairymen School, now retired, and several others called for me at the Hotel Quinte shortly after eight o'clock in the morning and we drove out to the Foxboro cheese factory, one of the model ones of that district. Mr. Zufelt explained the process to me as we went along.

Describes Factory

"The cheese factory is a long, low building of cement, right on the Moira River. The main room is called the "make room". At one end is a window through which the farmers dump their milk. There's a weigh beam to receive it, and a chart upon which is marked the amount of milk and the patron. In the centre of the make room are two or three long vats made of wood and lined with tin. One of the vats was full. It had 6,000 pounds of milk in it. They tell me that an ordinary cow gives about 40 pounds of milk altogether during two milkings per day, so 150 cows had been milked twice to provide the 6,000 pounds of milk for that cheese vat. The milk was slowly being separated into curds and whey and being watched and raked through with wooden rakes by John Hall, John is manager of the factory. He has been making cheese for over thirty years. Now his son, Harold, is in the business, and they hope the son's two-year-old Fay, will follow in their footsteps when he is old enough, making the third generation in the cheese business. There were queer wire knives for cutting the curd, machines for moulding it, bandages for wrapping it, an extra room with furnace for generating the steam with which the curd is heated. (I suppose they would slay me if I said the cheese was cooked.) On the other side of the building an ice house with 100 tons of ice in it; and back of the make room, the curing room where, on wide, clean shelves in a warm temperature, dozens of light-amber cheese lay maturing. They weighed from five pounds to 100 pounds each.

Milk in Early

"The milk comes into the cheese factory at about six in the morning. It takes all that day and all the next until the late afternoon before the cheese is finished and ready for the curing room. And from six months to two years for cheese to be properly cured. So I couldn't see the whole process of cheesemaking but between Mr. Zufelt and Mr. Hall, I heard about it, and this is what:

"Cheese is a prodigested food made of milk. Now, milk in itself is a quality called casein which is not soluble—it can't be dissolved in water—and it must be changed to a soluble form. As calves live mostly entirely on raw milk and drink a wondrous way, has provided the calf with a quality in the lining of the stomach called rennet, or rennin. So when man is making cheese he just borrows and uses the lining of the calf's stomach. Only the stomach of the calf has this quality, and it is called rennet. Years ago cheese makers used to obtain the whole lining of the calf's stomach from Europe although some were sold also by farmers of the district when the calves they had slaughtered. Then they would soak it in brine, wring it out to get the rennet out of that. But they could never be sure of getting the same quality two times running. Now rennet is standardized. It comes from Denmark and Canada, and the United States in bottles or wooden kegs, an amber fluid costing two to three dollars and fifty cent the gallon.

Use of Rennet

"Rennet is the digesting agent in the milk that makes cheese. It is the active agent that does the work. But, rennet won't work in the milk either, unless there is some lactic acid in the milk to assist or goad it on. So the cheese makers first test the milk to see how sweet it is and how much lactic acid it needs, then he adds what he calls "starter," which gives the necessary lactic acid to assist the rennet to work, and of course, he adds the rennet.

"First the milk and rennet coagulates or turns the milk into a jelly or jelly form. The maker cuts this up into tiny pieces with wire knives, and steam heat is applied gradually until it reaches a temperature of 96 to 100 degrees Fahrenheit in about thirty minutes time. This is called "cooking" and it is held at this temperature for about another one and one-half hours. The curd being frequently agitated so that the curd will not be allowed to mat. After the whey is drawn off, the curd is allowed to stay in the vat another ... hours, or more, so that it ... become matted and firm, after which it is put through another machine know as a curd mill, cutting it into strips from one-quarter ... to three-eighths inches square. It is again held from one-half to an hour's time to further matture it. After that it is salted at the ratio of one and one-half to two and one-half pounds of salt for each 2000 pounds of milk. Then it is moulded or pressed into shape. The moulding is done in a barrel-shaped tin and the cheese cloth wrapper, or bandage put on the cheese. After the mould has been left an hour or so, they "dress" the cheese, pulling the cheese cloth up into shape and straightening out any wrinkles as they pull it to the top and fold neatly over.

Put Away to Cure

"When the moulding is finished and the dressing and some more moulding is undergone, the cheese are put in the curing room. There some of the moisture escapes, and more digesting goes on. In fact during the time a cheese for two years at least.

"The Canadian Cheddar Cheese they like so much in England, eating 70,000,000 pounds per year, is light creamy-amber in color. The bright, almost orange-colored cheese we see more of in Ontario, is colored with vegetable coloring. In England they don't like that orange-cheese so much. They prefer the amber. In Belleville they like it light; in Kingston the orange is preferred; in Toronto both kinds are used impartially. The cheese they prefer in England is at least twelve months old.

"Afterward we visited the Cheese Board in Belleville and saw Walter Morrow and F. R. Mallory dispose of a large number of cheese to buyers. Cheese is one of the healthiest foods in the world.

Mammoth Cheese Made

"I almost forgot to tell you about the largest cheese ever made in the world. It weighed 11 tons, or 22,000 pounds, and was made in Perth, Ontario in the year 1852 under the supervision of, G. G. Publow and J. A. Ruddick. Worth about 10 cents a pound then, it was $2200 worth of cheese. It was first sent to the Chicago Fair of 1893, then taken over to England and drawn from one end of the country to the other. Dr. J. W. Robertson was dairy commissioner of Canada at that time. Later the mammoth cheese was cut up and sold at fabulous prices.

Miss Wallace at this point turned from the cheese industry to a brief description of the beauties and natural advantages of Belleville, and its early history.

"Belleville is a very pretty city. It is in Hastings County on the Bay of Quinte, and the Moira River runs through the city. When the United Empire Loyalists settled in Upper Canada, the region which is now Belleville was a reserve for Mohawk Indians. But in 1790, Captain John Meyers obtained from the Indians a lease of land near the Moira and built a brick house and grist mill upon it. That was the first grist mill and the first brick house in Upper Canada and that was the beginning of Belleville.

House Demolished

Unfortunately Captain Meyer's brick house has been demolished. At first the place was known as Singleton Creek, but later changed to Meyer's Creek in honor of the Captain. In 1816 the name was changed once more this time to Belleville, in honor of Arabella, wife of Sir Richard Hiley, Lieutenant Governor of Upper Canada. In 1843 Belleville became a village; and that was first used. It became a town in 1850, and a city in 1877. Now it has a population of 14,000. The Daily Ontario Intelligencer, Belleville's daily paper, was established in 1834, and the Intelligencer one of the oldest papers in Ontario. Belleville people were the first to adopt bicycles for military purposes. The 15th Battalion used them.

Several Belleville people include Sir Richard Cartwright, Minister of Canada, Mrs. Susannah Moody, whose wrote "Roughing It in the Bush" and "Life in the Clearing" which was written around Belleville and district. Sir Gilbert Parker, the author, was born in Belleville, educated there, although he died in England, but he and his wife, after death were brought back and buried in Belleville. Belleville is a great fishing spot. And the Quinte Hotel is considered one of the best in Ontario.

"Belleville's Mayor is the youngest boy-Mayor in Ontario, Richard D. Arnold. Mr. Mr. Arnold is a barrister and attended Osgoode Hall, Toronto.

U. S. JUSTICE RESIGNS

Staunch Conservative and dean of the United States Supreme Court, Justice Willis Van Devanter (above) has announced his retirement effective June 2. Van Devanter's resignation reduces the number of Conservative supreme court justices to three and gives President Roosevelt an opportunity to appoint a Liberal justice to increase the Liberal strength to four. Mr. Roosevelt wants "greater liberality" in the court, and is asking congress to approve the increasing of supreme court justices to twelve.

REPRESENTS LABOR

Representative of organized labor on the new Ontario government's Industry and Labor Board will be Fred Bancroft (above) according to an announcement by Premier Hepburn. Mr. Bancroft, well known in Canadian labor circles, has served on more than 100 conciliation boards.

PROPOSALS

ting withdrawal of volunteers, if feasible, could be effected without a truce, to which both parties in the civil war are likely to object.

During their recent conversation here Foreign Secretary Eden and French Foreign Minister Yvon Delbos decided it was necessary to explore the first practical possibility of the plan and agreed to approach the powers to ask if they would support representations to Valencia and Salamanca.

Report Completed.

The technical sub-committee of the non-intervention committee, already created to consider ways and means of withdrawing foreign volunteers, was expected to complete its report at a meeting late today.

The utmost secrecy is being maintained about its contents but it is presumed to contain detailed proposals for concentrating the volunteers at various points in Spain preparatory to their departure from the country.

It was in view of these developments that British circles here received cooly and even with certain annoyance the Valencia government's demand to the League of Nations for a discussion of foreign intervention.

An airing of the charges of intervention now would only complicate the efforts to secure withdrawal of foreign volunteers on both sides, it was said.

The Show Windows of the Nation

The merchants of Canada have played an important part in national development. They were in the vanguard of colonization; their business is the axis on which modern trade and commerce revolve.

Every merchant's progress and the value of his service to the community have depended at all times on his ability to keep prospective customers informed of the kind and quality of the goods he could supply. Advertising has been essential to the profitable conduct of his business.

The efficiency of the local daily newspapers as advertising media has been demonstrated more and more conclusively as markets have expanded and the variety of competitive goods has increased.

Today the most successful merchants are those who advertise their products consistently and frequently in their local newspapers. They know the newspapers maintain an intimate contact with every home and that every consumer depends on his daily newspaper for reliable information concerning goods and services available.

Consequently, the advertising columns of the Canadian daily newspapers have become, in a very real sense, the show windows of the nation. They influence the purchases of more than two million families every day.

WALL STREET CLOSE

New York, May 21 (AP) — The stock market dragged itself forward at a dilatory pace today for modest gains in various sections.

Most current trade news appeared to have been discounted broken said. For example they cited the failure of many motor lines to budge following issuance of the report of a decline in automobile production this week.

Transactions were at the rate of about 800,000 shares for the full session.

TORONTO STOCK EXCHANGE CLOSE

Toronto, May 21 (CP)—The gold shares stepped into the spot-light today on the Toronto market and traded in heavy volume at advancing prices. They were trailed at a more leisurely pace by the base metals and the cheaper oils while the industrials lagged. Volume was about 100,000 shares greater than in Thursday's session, the late period more than making up for the dull morning action. The senior golds took part in the rally. Lake Shore touched 54 on fairly heavy trade and held a gain of more than a point till the close. Hollinger, McIntyre and Dome also closed higher.

About a dozen of the medium-priced golds turned over in quantity at price advances and about as many of the penny golds reflected the buying spurt and price appreciation. Gains of 5 to 10 cents were showing around the closing period by Central Patricia, Hard Rock, Moneta, Sladen, Slave Lake, Sullivan, Stadacona, Perron, Kerr-Addison, Pioneer, Hughes and Wright Hargreaves.

Gains in the base metals were mainly among the cheaper issues. Falconbridge, Read Oroille and Sherritt improved and Nickel, Noranda and Smelters were unchanged to slightly lower. Silvers were barely firm.

PROGRESS MADE IN H. I. P. OPERATION

Mr. P. A. Kuhn, Toronto, District Representative atone Improvement Plan Ontario Advisory Committee, was present at the regular weekly meeting of the directors of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce on Thursday and gave a brief and informative address on the progress being made in the operation of this plan. In Ontario, Mr. Kuhn stated, the plan is making very satisfactory advancement and the objective set in this province will be exceeded. This evening at the Chamber of Commerce offices, Mr. Kuhn will be present at a meeting of the general committee on the Home Improvement Plan in Belleville.

Ald. H. F. Jennings was also a guest at the meeting and led before the directors some interesting information regarding the operation of a town planning scheme in this city.

President Leo B. Riggs, president and the following directors were present: Messrs. H. W. Ackerman, H. E. Fairfield, E. P. Hamilton, J. G. Galloway, W. H. Morton, John McIntosh and Secretary-Manager J. G. Herity.

IN BED FOR WEEKS WITH BACKACHE

Quick Relief With Kruschen

It was advice from her mother that led this woman to take Kruschen Salts for her backache, and before she had finished the first bottle she was feeling better. This is the letter she writes:—

"About this time last year I had severe pains in my back and was prostrate for three weeks. I could not even rise in bed. I tried several well-known remedies, but to no avail. Then I wrote to my mother telling her of my trouble. She wrote to me by return of post urging me to try Kruschen Salts. I immediately bought a bottle and I can truthfully say before I had taken the fifth dose I could sit up. I kept on taking them and in less than two weeks I was about again. I am never without Kruschen now."—(Mrs.) A.—.

Unless the kidneys function properly, certain acid wastes," instead of being expelled, are allowed to pollute the blood-stream and produce troublesome symptoms: backache, rheumatism, and excessive fatigue. Kruschen Salts is an excellent diuretic of kidney aperient, valuable in assisting the kidneys to excrete acid impurities.

MARKET COMMENT

The market continues to act fairly well, although the volume of trading is light." The public is watching developments very closely and is ready to take a position immediately the list shows signs of moving ahead in a substantial manner. This was borne out on Tuesday afternoon when a very vigorous rally ensued and brokerage offices received more enquiries from clients than at any time in the last month. The market itself is at a stage where it would take only a few constructive developments to bring about a sharp rally.

A prominent financial authority takes the attitude that gold will remain the final yardstick of international values the only remote danger being that persistent accumulation in the hands of the few, through high tariffs and short-sighted nationalistic policies, may ably drive gold-less nations back into the age of barter. It is believed the leading nations of the world led by the financial brains of Great Britain have too much sense to permit that to occur.

The opinion prevails locally that the power stocks have been well bought in the last few months and that these securities are headed for higher prices in the comparatively near future. The output of electricity in the Dominion is at a higher rate today than in the boom of 1929 and the many leading units in the field are all sound financially, distribute satisfactory dividends and boast excellent prospects.

Overproduction in the liquor industry in the United States may cause Distillers-Seagrams to close one of its American plants and in turn would delaywthe inauguration of dividends on the common stock.

Banker Comments on the Gold Situation

In order to secure a sound opinion on the gold situation, Financial Service have discussed the matter with a leading official of a well-known Canadian Chartered Bank. His reply is given below:—

"I have not heard that the price of gold might be reduced to $27.56 per ounce but still don't believe that it is possible to make a reduction at the present time but continue in my belief also that some international action will have to be taken before long. I cannot conceive of the American Government being willing to continue to underwrite the world's gold mining industry by increasing its national debt at the rate of at least one billion dollars a year. You may have noted that recently London and Amsterdam have been buying gold and thereby relieving the pressure on the American market."

Produce Prices on Montreal Market

Montreal, May 21—Butter and egg prices had a stronger tone on the local wholesale markets yesterday. Cheese, potatoes and poultry were unchanged. High prices for cheese are having a stimulating influence on local butter levels, while note is taken of protracted rains, checking the normal progress in butter production, keeping the cattle more in the barns. Receipts were 1,239 cases of eggs, 87 boxes of butter and 1,208 boxes of cheese, excluding truck arrivals.

Sales at the Canadian Commodity Exchange were 100 boxes of Quebec fresh 92 score butter at 23 1-2c, with the market quoted at the close at 23 1-2c to 23 3-4c. Small lots to the retail trade were quoted by jobbers at 24 1-2c for solids and 25c for prints.

On the egg market graded shipments in 1c.l. lots were mainly at 20c for A-large, 20 1-2c for A-medium, 19 1-2c. for "B and 18-18 1-2c for C. Offerings were posted at the Commodity Exchange at 21 3-4c. for A-large, 20 1-2c. for A-medium, and 18 1-2c. for A-pullets.

The cheese market was 14c. to 14 1-4c. for No. 1 Ontarios, current arrivals.

Ammonia Fumes From Broken Gauge Drive Clerks Out

The powerful fumes of ammonia escaping when a gauge blew out in the refrigerating machinery of the Dominion Stores Ltd. Branch at 170 Front Street early today drove staff and early morning customers to the safety and fresh air of the street.

Fortunately Mr. W. Reynolds, manager of the store was near the machine which is located in a storeroom at the rear of the premises when the accident occurred.

"I was standing with the clerks to bar potatoes" Mr. Reynolds stated" when there came a noise like a machine gun rattle. I looked up and saw the liquid spurting from the gauge, the face of which had been torn away. Remembering a small valve which controlled the fluid, I rushed through the powerful fumes and closed it. This cut off the supply but sufficient ammonia had escaped to drive us from the store. Although I cannot tell at present, I do not believe that the stock has suffered from it."

City firemen were called donning masks to protect eyes and throat from the fumes they entered the building and closed all valves, and opened doors to cause a draft. Vinegar was sprinkled over saturated places to kill the potency of the liquid.

FRAUD CHARGE HAS BEEN LAID

On a charge of fraud an information was issued today against Isadore Hurd, 35, of Montreal, alias J. C. Wilson. The charges were laid following complaints registered by Mr. Mulcahy proprietor of the Belleville Metal and Waste Company, who charged that a man giving the name of Wilson had issued a cheque for $200.00 in payment for some scrap iron purchased by him yesterday. Detective Fred Izard investigated and it was subsequently learned that funds were not forthcoming, to cover the cheque issued by Hurd yesterday.

DAILY SHORT STORY—

BETTY

By Mary Carson

"By Jove! What a stunning-looking girl!"

David Thorndyke followed the direction of his friend Halliday's eyes—across the spacious dining room of Park avenue's most fashionable hostelry. He gave a start.

"What's the matter?" said Bob Halliday. "Know the fair dame?"

"I do and I don't," replied David. "Meaning?"

"I saw her in New Orleans two years ago, but never met her."

"Want to spout out the story? I'm a good listener. Besides" laughing—"the lady intrigues me."

Thorndyke gave a short grunt. "What bad allergy is it."

Halliday nodded. "You seem to forget I've been away for three years. I'm in earnest—more than you think. Who is she?"

"Betty Seton—rich—New Orleans—maiden aunt in the offing. That enough?"

"Certainly not. I want to know everything. Who's the man with her?" Looking over—"there's Kitty Dunbar now talking to her. If you don't loosen up Davy, I'll importune the gamin, Kitty."

"Zoulos is the man with her—Greek — painted her portrait, Spring—he calls it. Made a sensation—Paris Salon and all that."

Halliday jerked out: "Interesting. I'd like to bash his head in."

"Hold on, Sonny." David regarded his young friend quizzically. Don't get so violent. Calm down. Nothing the matter with the Greek. In fact, he's the hero of the piece. Saved the fair lady's life when her weak-kneed fiance failed to look after her proprosperity."

"So there was a fiance, was there?"

"To be sure," replied David. "Tall and slender with poetic dark eyes. Disappeared shortly after."

"After what?"

"After the attempted murder."

Halliday straightened up. "Y-s,?"

"Look here," said David suddenly, "are you after a big scoop, or is it sincere interest?"

"Really interested Davy. Honest Injun. Not a word goes in my column."

"All right then. Remember bygones are bygones."

Halliday bobbed his head.

"Because," continued David, "that little girl over there has half enough. I don't intend resurrecting unpleasantnesses for the benefit of a curious public. I know you newspaper men——Always picking your noses into other people's business."

Halliday sighed. "All right, Davy. Tell me all about the lady."

"It was at a Parisienne. New Orleans's famous Mardi Gras. Everybody quite drunk—more greatly in evidence that night. I had just arrived—exchanged lodge, and my friends—the De Trouxes—made me with them to prove that New York had nothing more glittering or gay.

"We hadn't been there long when this Betty Seton, waltzed in with her chaperon. For a brief moment the chattering ceased; then the lugs crowd burst into prolonged applause. I never saw such an ovation, except possibly for a popular diva.

"Betty smilingly bowed her acknowledgements.

David pressed his lips together. Not every ointment has its fly. There happened to be a shady, avowed hostess in the background, Lorelf Le Fonso, a voluptuous Creole, a certain Mme. Jusse from Valencia. She resented all this adulation.

"Besides the blond beauty's fiance had been quite amorous in Julie's direction before Betty's return from school—as the De Trouxes told me—and in spite of the rose coloured glasses of the attachment, it had leaked out. Everyone seemed to know it except Betty herself.

"She had a fiery, lithe Greek painter over there was seated near Betty's table on this particular occasion. Down in the Crescent city for local color, Betty's classic lines had bewitched him. Foreigner that he was, he made no secret of his starring."

Halliday's hand on the white cloth—clenched.

Thorndyke ignored it.

"Mme. Julie had a custom of pinning among her guests, handing each a flower. That night it was camellia."

"Yes?" Halliday's eyes were glued on David's.

"Betty's camelia was struck to the floor by Zoulos before Mme. Julie's hand touched the outstretched fingers of her hatred rival.

"What was it?" Halliday whispered hoarsely.

"Poison," Thorndyke replied succinctly.

"Poison?" echoed Halliday incredulously.

"Yes. Poison-ring. Zoulos saw Mme. Julie press the hidden spring. He had made a study of antique jewels. This ring, its beast was enormous emerald, aroused his curiosity."

"What did they do with Julie?" "Deported, Spain. Life imprisonment."

Silence a moment. Outside—New York—pulsing—throbbing.

"Davy," and how with this Great, is she, Davy?"

"Don't ask me, dear boy. All rules of romance point that way," said Dave. "What you going to do about it, Bob?"

Halliday rose. "I'm going to take my first step now. Kitty Talbot'll present me."

as Magee was sitting
Me and Freda Simkins and Gilsaes Magee was sitting on Sam
Cross's front steps listening to Sam lawk and wondering if any of it was true, and he said, What's you thinks, fellows, mosquitoes are out already. The first ones come out and if it's warm enough for them to see their shadow, they stay out.
Anyways one came in my room last night and it bit me so hard it made a bump as big as a baseball. So said.

Riley Anokes, when that guy aint lying he's just taking. Say off to exaggerate. Freda Simkins
said.

Meeting on account of Sam
Cross being the biggest liar around, and I said, Sure, good nite, even if a mosquitch stung you it couldn't raise a lump as big as a baseball.
So is that so, did you see it?
Sam said, and I said, No, but I just heard about it and that was enough.

Well I bet it raised a lump the size of a medium sized orange, Sam said, and Gilsaes Magee said,
Where's your million dollars and where's the lump?

Being a good liar, and Sam said, Well hay, does anybody want to bet me 3 cents it didn't make a bump as big as a egg, because if they do here's my 2 cents and you can ask my mother rite now and she can decide the bet and my mother's famous for telling the truth.

Do you mean a full size egg? I said, and Sam said, Yes a full size egg.

Like at breakfist? Fuds said, and Sam said, Well, some people mite like them for breakfist.

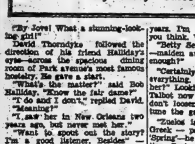
How do you mean, some people Fuds said, and Sam said, I mean whatever people likes them. Hunting birds lay eggs, dont they? he said.



The result being nobody bet Man and proving a natural born liar always has a advantage.

Stomach Upsets, Dizzy?

IF you're troubled with stomach distress, gas, and have no appetite, there's nothing better than Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. Mrs. John Blackmore, 5 Victoria St., Stratford, Ont., said: "Some years ago my health failed. I had weak and dizzy spells, would feel faint, had an all-gone feeling most of the time, my stomach was upset, I had a bad taste in my mouth, and was constipated. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and after taking it a short time my stomach, bowels and constipation were corrected and I had no more dizzy spells. My appetite improved and I gained in weight and in every other way." Now I am well.

MELVILLE

Melville—Mr. Williams, Toronto, also Mr. E. Brown, Toronto, spent the week-end at their summer cottage.

Mr. and Mrs. Mac French spent Friday in Belleville.

Mrs. W. Wood is spending this week in Belleville with her daughter Mrs. Don Mathews and wee son.

A number of the men were busy on Tuesday afternoon clearing up part of the church shed which had fallen down.

Mr. and Mrs. George Young and Glen spent a few days with the lady's parents near Bancroft.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Root and boys spent Saturday evening with Mr. and Mrs. C. Palmer and listened in to the rebroadcast of the Coronation.

Mrs. Collin Hardy spent Monday with Mrs. E. Margetson.

Mrs. H. B. Anderson and Mrs Jas. Morton spent Tuesday evening with Mr. and Mrs. Fred Morton.

Mr. Watson, Ottawa, Bell Telephone Representative was calling at a number of homes here on Wednesday.

Church service on Sunday morning was well attended. The service was opened by Rev. McRae by a call to worship, followed by responsive reading. The hymn "Praise the Lord" was sung followed by prayer. Mrs. A. Cruickshank gave a reading "The Do As I Please House." Hymn "Father Lead Me Day by Day" was sung and "Ready to Share in the Home" and "Ready to Share With Others" was given in short address by Rev McRae. The offering was taken by Leonard Root and Clarence Carley. Rev. McRae gave a talk on "The Royal Family at Home." Hymn "The Wise May Bring Their Learning" followed by "God Save the King" and closing benediction. The church was decorated with potted plants for the occasion.

Mrs. Helen B. Anderson returned home on Tuesday after spending the winter in St. Petersburg, Florida.

Mrs. Jas. Morton and Mr. Jas. Wickson spent Tuesday in Belleville.

HALLOWAY

Halloway—A delightful shower was held at the home of Mrs Fred Wannamaker in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Carson on their recent marriage. About forty guests were present. Mr. L. Bristol acted as chairman.

They were presented with a linen table cloth from The Women's Institute of Halloway, a Joseph Hodgens silver set, and many miscellaneous presents from their many friends. The address was read by Miss Alethe Horton as follows:

Dear Lucile and Albert—

As friends and neighbors of long standing it gives us great pleasure to gather in your home tonight, to personally extend to you both our heartfelt congratulations on your recent marriage and, to wish you all the joy and happiness in your future life together.

We have known Lucile from a child and most of us have been school mates and play mates with her. Lucile has always been a girl and willing to the demands we have made upon her in connection with the various activities in our social and church life and more particularly in our Y. P. A.

We would also commend Lucile on being a particularly good daughter and a good daughter ought to make a good wife. As hostess in her father's home for several years she is friendly and neighborly with all.

Although not so well acquainted with Albert, which fault we will soon overcome, we do know him to be industrious and not afraid of work. He is more than meeting us half-way in friendly overtures.

In honor of this important occasion in your lives, we would ask you to accept this gift that it may be tangible evidence of the deep regard and esteem we have for you both. And in offering these congratulations, we want you to be assured that, one and all, we wish you every good thing life can bestow on a young couple, starting with love and courage on their journey of life together.

Signed on behalf of your friends in Sidney

After the presents were opened refreshments were served and everybody had an enjoyable time.

AT THE BELLE

Toronto Critic Lauds "A Star Is Born"

Roly Young photoplay critic of the Toronto Globe and Mail speaks of "A Star Is Born" in the following glowing terms:

The papers are filled with stories of strikes and threats of strikes in Hollywood, but there is another and much more violent battle going on down there under the surface. Until his untimely death Irving Thalberg was Hollywood's one outstanding production executive, a genius with a magic touch when it came to making motion pictures. Since he has gone on, there has been keen rivalry as to who would inherit his pre-eminent position in the industry. This battle has narrowed down, I believe to Darryl Zanuck of 20th. Century-Fox and David Selznick of Selznick International. Currently it looks as though Selznick was one up with his production of "A Star Is Born" which is easily one of Hollywood's foremost productions.

In the part when Hollywood has presented itself to the public, it has done so with its tongue in its cheek, but this time Selznick holds the mirror up to the movies and reflects them as they really are, with all their opportunity, glamor, romance, back-biting, jealousy intrigue and heartbreak. And the result is a picture that you will long remember. "A Star is Born" is a parallel story of the rise of Esther Blodgett and the decline of Norman Maine. Esther is a screen-struck country girl. She has the movie bug and has it bad. Her family are unsympathetic with the exception of her grandmother. Granny was a pioneer woman and she believed that people got what they went after, so she turned her savings over to Esther and sent her off to Hollywood. But getting a start in Hollywood was a tough proposition, and Esther was about ready to give up when she gets a chance to be a waitress at a party being given by a big director. There she meets Norman Maine, the screen's great lover, who, although he doesn't realize it himself, is already on the down grade is drinking himself for a fall. He starts kidding with the waitress and eventually ends up by getting her a screen test. Their friendship grows and he gets her a chance at his leading lady. Esther, whose name has now been changed to Vicki Lester, makes good and becomes a screen favorite. She and Maine marry but there is bound to be tragedy as she continues to rise to the cinema heights and he slips down hill.

You'll weep copiously as the yarn unfolds. (I did darn it!) but there is just sob stuff piled on to play upon your emotions; it's real drama, sincerely and truthfully presented, and achieving tremendous force because Selznick has used the technique of understatement to emphasize his most dramatic and tragic situations. Their power is in their brevity and what they don't present rather than what they do show. The brief sequences at the funeral of a film star is a classic example of this.

"A Star Is Born" takes you on a Cook's Tour of Hollywood, to the Hollywood Gruaman's Chinese Theatre, the Trocadero Restaurant, backstage in the studios, behind the scenes at little "inside" cenes that will delight the average movie fan. In addition, it is in technicolor, which achieves a new importance. You aren't conscious of it at all, except possibly for a sunset scene that you will remember for years. In one other sequence there's a picture, and this one is black and white, which gives you a striking contrast. You aren't conscious of the color while the film is being shown, but a black and white movie seems strangely unreal afterwards. Thus it becomes the strongest argument yet in favor of natural-color movies.

The cast is superlative. In "A Star Is Born" a star is reborn, for it brings Janet Gaynor back with such a bang that the little lady is likely to find herself back where she was five or six years ago when she was at the top in such films as "Seventh Heaven" and "Sunnside Up". Then there is Fredric March, doing a wonderfully sympathetic job as the disintegrating screen star, Adolph Menjou is the suave movie magnate, and May Robson again comes through as a grand old lady. Andy Devine has a nice character bit, Illowise Lionel Stander as the press agent and Edgar Kennedy as the hotel proprietor.

All of which means we have tossed bouquets at practically everyone concerned except the director, William Wellman is the director, and all the praises that have been showered on the others must be divided with him.

"A Star Is Born" will be presented at the Belle Saturday Monday and Tuesday, matinee daily, with an interesting newsreel and Color Cartoon, "Mickey's Elephant."

THE WEATHER

Moderate to fresh west winds; partly cloudy with local showers. Sunday—Moderate to fresh northwest winds; clearing and a little cooler. Monday probably fair.

SAM WELLMAN, TRENTON, KILLED IN TRUCK CRASH

LIFELESS BODY IS FOUND BENEATH TRUCK WRECKAGE

Samuel Wellman, 40, Believed Killed When Vehicle Went Out of Control

HORRIBLY MANGLED

Last Seen in Trenton Last Night But Not Found Until Early Today

Trenton, Ont., May 22 (Special)—Crushed into a lifeless mass, the body of Samuel Wellman, 40-year-old farmer residing five miles north of Trenton, was discovered early this morning pinned beneath the wreckage of his truck in a ditch approximately four and one half miles north of the town on the Trenton-Wooler highway.

Wellman, who was last seen in Trenton at seven o'clock last night, is thought to have lost control of his truck, which carried across the highway and turned upside down in the deep ditch, pinning the body of Wellman beneath it. When found the body was lying in the wreckage of the cab of the truck. After missing from the battery, had run over the face and body causing a slight disfiguration.

The wreckage was discovered shortly after seven o'clock today by Ivor Kingston, an airport employee, who was on his way to work. Notifying the wreckage in the ditch Kingston continued on his way until he met a group of neighboring farmers. Together they returned and investigated the wreck, and found the body of Wellman.

Dr. J. W. Farley of Trenton was notified, as was Chief Coroner Dr. Hamilton of Brighton. Following examination, Coroner Hamilton declared that an inquest was unnecessary. The accident is thought to have occurred shortly before midnight.

Wellman leaves a wife and several small children.

Traffic Officer W. Whitby investigated.

TRUANT OFFICER HAS BUSY MONTH

A touch of spring fever among school children of this city was apparently the cause for a greater number of school and home visits being made by the city truant officer during the month of April. In his report 72 home visits were registered and 14 visits to schools. Three home permits and three employment permits were issued during the month.

Why the Weather?

By Mayor A. H. Thiessen, Science Study Association

Thunder storms! Thunderstorms are sometimes much alike, but they may be classified according to their formation. Thunderstorms are caused by the rapid rising (convection) of warm, moist air. The notable condition is brought about by the general of a warm layer of air at the surface and cool air aloft. The most general classification is the "heat" and "cyclonic". In the heat type the air is heated at the surface by strong sunshine. In the second, either cold air crosses warm air, creating instability and therefore rapid convection, or warm air overruns cold air and is forced to ascend. Allied to the latter are mountain thunderstorms in which warm air is forced up a mountain side.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO, May 22—Pressure is high over Hudson Bay and Straits, also the northwest States while moderate depressions are centred over the Pacific coast and the Lake Region. Local showers or thunderstorms has been fair with moderate temperature in the western provinces and showers have occurred in Ontario and some districts of the Maritimes.

Lake Superior—Moderate to fresh west to northwest winds; mostly fair and not much change. Sunday, northwesterly winds; clearing and a little cooler.

Manitoba—Fair today and on Sunday with a little higher temperature; probably followed by showers Sunday night.

Lake Winnipeg—Strong winds; mostly cloudy with showers in some districts tonight and on Sunday.

Alberta—Mostly fair today and Sunday with showers in many districts.

NEWS BRIEFS AND ODDITIES

Windsor, Ont., May 22 (CP)—This city of some 130,000 persons harbors "an unlimited number of cows" within its borders, according to a notation on an assessment paper of William T. Rosen in appealing before Court of Revision here. Premises of the cows he claimed, made it difficult for him to rent his house.

Lindsay, Ont., May 22 (CP)—Dog poisoning has already started in Lindsay this spring are continuing. Latest to lose a valuable dog is Mr. A. Carruthers, whose bull terrier was found lying in the dealer's yard, dead. This brings the total of poisoned dogs in the town this year to 15.

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., May 22 (CP)—Lack of wolf scarcity from this northern district was the reason given with a touch of irony by Mike Kalsone and Mike Kolesar, two Finnish trappers for the story of a little wolf racing beside Bay road with their truck for two miles. Finally it turned off in the dense bush.

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., May 22 (CP)—Clerks at a Sault grocery store district were puzzled by a stray young cat which had been hanging around there for two days. Then Lead week she gave birth to one kitten and this week, just after noon, the latter produced the other half of a set of twins.

Sydney, N.S.W., May 23 (CP)—E. J. Bryce was back at his Sydney home today, telling his friends he had seen a dog in Russia that does not bark.

Bryce said the barkless animal is a cross between an Australian Dingo and a Russian Siberian hunter—and has been produced on the 100,000-acre experimental farm at Askanda-Nova in southern Russia. Zoologists there, conducting there constantly in cross-breeding and artificial fertilization.

He said he had seen Australian black swans nesting in snow and Emus being bred for shipment to Turkestan as food.

Murray, Neb., May 23 (CP)—Mr. and Mrs. Frank Stader felt that they just couldn't afford to keep their son Jack in the schools so far from home. Later they discovered that by a purchase with their money they retraced their route. On the way they found the boy's schoolbooks. He had the pocketbook in his mouth. The stader purse went back to the Blake home.

RELIEF GARDENERS HARD HIT BY RAIN

Not only farmers of the district, but city residents with garden plots have been planted in neat rows of usual summer produce, have been demonstrating the present wet season and backward weather which has delayed their seeding.

Unemployed gardeners of the city, who have also been given free lots by city council in the hopes of growing enough produce to tide them over during winter are not the least hard hit of the workers. Rain has literally drowned out their seed gardens out in the lower places. There is the saving grace this year, however, that lower gardens of this type have been planted owing to former restrictions being placed on allotments of plots.

Last Minute Warnings are Issued to Motor Drivers

No One Allowed to Drive Over 50 Mile Rate Says McQuesten

SAFE DRIVING

Toronto, May 22 (CP)—Ontario's new speed limits—50 miles an hour on the highways, 30 in cities and towns—will be given their initial test today, with traffic expected to be at an early season peak for the holiday, provincial and local authorities issued last minute warnings to drive carefully at the higher speeds.

Last year automobiles killed 540 and injured more than 10,000 in Ontario and it was only over protection in some quarters speed limits were stepped up from 25 to 50 and from 20 to 30 at the last session of the legislature.

Enforcement To Be Strict.

"There is the law," Hon. T. B. McQuesten declared in warning it would be strictly enforced on the highways. "It was passed by the legislature and we must obey it. No one will be permitted to drive over 50."

Enforcement of the 30-mile limit in built-up areas, as the provincial statute, lies with local authorities and not the provincial police. Motorists were warned by the Ontario Motor League there would be speed traps "at specially every town and village", but Mr. McQuesten said would be used by the provincials.

Highest Limits.

Ontario, under the new set-up, has the highest limits in Canada, although the 50-mile limit is about the average. Prince Edward Island calls for "careful and prudent" driving; Nova Scotia's 40-mile limit is qualified by a "reasonable and proper" clause; New Brunswick has a varying maximum to restricted districts.

Quebec and Alberta ban speeds over 30, while British Columbia law sets the limit at 30 or rate prescribed by highway signs. Saskatchewan drivers may step up to 35 in passing only, while Manitoba calls for "careful and prudent" driving.

W.C.T.U. ARRANGES CONVENTION PLANS

The Women's Christian Temperance Union of Hastings, Prince Edward and Lennox and Addington Counties, under the leadership of Mrs. (Rev.) E. R. Acheson of Belleville is arranging an interesting program for the annual convention which takes place in St. Andrew's Church, Napanee, on Wednesday and Thursday next week.

The theme of the worship service "Indispensable Things" will be presided by Mrs. Gardiner, provincial superintendent. Mrs. John Wright of Brantford, Provincial President, will give an address on Wednesday afternoon. Miss M. Mallory of Napanee is billeting convener.

EMPIRE DAY IS HAPPILY OBSERVED

Empire day was appropriately and happily observed at Queen Mary Sunday afternoon when the Rev. G. G. Wright, Rector of Christ Church, at the invitation of the principal, Mr. C. I. Frederick, addressed the pupils in the senior grades:—Mr. Wright chose as his subject "The Coronation in Relation to the British Empire" but his address was most interesting and informative. He pointed out the great contribution the New World made by Great Britain was her example of how to live under the law and yet be free. During the proceedings Miss Anne Hogle gave a patriotic reading in excellent style which was much appreciated.

In the other grades in the school the teachers gave brief talks on "Empire Day" and Patriotic songs were sung and readings and plays given.

JUNIOR MEMBERS GO ON GALEY HIKE

Junior and "Prep" members of the Y. M. C. E. Hagerman, secretary of the "Y". The "preps" will also engage in team games. Lunches were taken by the groups with the intention of making the occasions all day sessions.

SENIOR MEMBERS HOLD SOCIAL AFFAIR

Dainbly decorated for the occasion with flags and streamers the gymnasium at the Y. M. C. A. was transformed into a place of beauty and the usual physical activities were replaced by a pleasant social affair last evening when the various members of the boys' association held an informal social evening and dance

The members of the High School section, Business girls' group and senior members arrived for the opening exercises, all groups being largely represented.

Short lights and music added to an attractive program, the pelli people of Miss Mary Ferguson's dancing classes adding delightful features with dance acts. The members of this group were—Helen Jones Forster, sailors hornpipe, Miss Ruth Hagerman, acrobatic dance, Miss Mary Lou Pigden tap dance.

The ladies of the Y. M. C. A. auxiliary tendered the delightful luncheon and the group adjourned at midnight, all reporting the evening a grand success.

Obituary

Harvey B. Chisholm
of Aldersyde Alberta

Information received early today by J. M. Chisholm of Thurlow Township brought word of the sudden passing at his home in Aldersyde, Alberta, of Harvey B. Chisholm, a former resident of Thurlow Township and a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. James Chisholm formerly of Belleville.

The late Mr. Chisholm was born seventy-two years ago in Sidney Township where he remained until twenty-seven years ago, moving to the Canadian Northwest where he remained until the time of his sudden demise. Two years ago he paid a visit to Belleville and district renewing old acquaintance.

Left to survive him are his widow, who was the former Miss Bertha Dracup of Rawdon Township, one daughter, Mrs. Harold Allen, Alberta, one brother, Mr. Roderick B. Chisholm of Iowa and two sisters Mrs. Provencal of Dauphine of Regina, Sask. and Mrs. (Rev.) E. M. Wilson of Havelock, Ont.

While funeral arrangements are not available, it is understood the late Mr. Chisholm will be interred in the West.

ANDREW C. McGEE

Stirling, May 22 (Special)—Word was received on Wednesday night of this week by Mrs. Elgin Jackman of the passing of her brother, Andrew McGee, at Calgary, Alta. Although deceased had made his home in the west for a number of years he was well known throughout this farming district where he was born.

Among the mourners are Messrs. Archie B. McGee, Stirling; George H. McGee, Bancroft; F. J. McGee of Stirling and Sam D. McGee of Strasbourg, Sask.

Funeral arrangements will be announced later. The body will be brought to Stirling for interment.

J. ALFRED GEORGE HUDON

The funeral of the late J. Alfred George Hudon, who died at Loughboro, Ont., on Wednesday, May 19th, took place on Saturday morning, May 22nd, from the residence of his mother-in-law, Mrs. Alex. McLellan, 166 Victoria Avenue, Belleville, to St. Michael's Church where Requiem Mass was celebrated by the Rev. Father G. E. Baker, who said also the committal service at the graveside in St. James' cemetery.

The bearers were Messrs. J. C. Rowlands, Sr., J. C. Rowlands, Jr., F. G. Dunphy, D. C. Donoghue, James Cowan and S. Short.

SPRING FLOWERS ON CITY MARKET; BROILERS POPULAR

Asparagus And New Vegetables Plentiful With Prices Steady

EGGS FIRM

Young Pigs Aplenty But Fail to Attract Saturday Buyers

If the housewives of Belleville suffer from a shortage of Spring flowers, plants and other floral embellishment it will not be the fault of the farmers and greenhouse owners of the city and district, for today the city market was flooded with a variety of blooms and greens that added a colorful touch to the sombre appearance of the mart.

Pollage, and the colorful pansies, in a set of boxes were offered to a briskly buying public at twenty cents per box. Marigolds, petunias and other blooms were quoted at fifteen cents the box. With potted geraniums going well at twenty cents each.

Adding additional green to the general color scheme was a large number of tomato, cabbage and other vegetable plants. Tomatoes were quoted at fifteen cents the dozen and cabbage at seventy five cents the hundred. Onion sets were quoted at the same price, while young strawberry plants ready for transplanting, sold readily at seventy five cents per hundred. Red and blue raspberry sets were plentiful selling at ten cents each.

Asparagus Plentiful

Asparagus again dominated the vegetable market. There was plenty to be had but the demand was decrease in price. Practically all the vendors offered and got from fifteen to twenty cents a pound for this vegetable. New spring onions were also present in large quantities as was rhubarb. These sold at five cents the bunch with new radishes commanding the same price.

New cabbage made an appearance on the market today and proved ready sale at ten cents the head. Potatoes, were on plentiful at last but prices maintained a steady level. Ninety pound containers were offered at from 1.50 to 1.90 each according to quality. Peck lots were quoted at 40 cents and 50 cents. Red seed potatoes were offered at two dollars per bag.

Winter apples sold well for this period of the year, with Northern Spies selling at twenty cents the peck and a fine quality Stark Delicious going at the same price. A fair quality or cooking apple was offered at one dollar per bushel. There are no staple winter vegetables offered for sale.

Broilers Sell Well

Some fine specimens of young broiler chickens were offered for sale in the inside market commanding prices which ranged from sixty cents to one dollar per pair. Chickens and fowl were quoted at varying prices, ranged from sixty cents to as high as $1.40 each. Eggs showed but little change from the prices of a week ago with "A" selects moving well at twenty cents per dozen. "A" extras showed a brisk movement at eighteen and nineteen cents with ungraded selects at the same price. Farmer's butter showed no change in price selling at two pounds for fifty five cents with some vendors quoting their stock at thirty cents per pound.

Fresh lake trout and whitefish featured the fish market, selling at eighteen and twenty two cents per pound respectively. Haddocks were scarce and were offered at two pounds for twenty five cents. Mullets were quoted at four for twenty five cents.

Young pigs four and five weeks old were plentiful, but were offered in a slow buying public at prices from three dollars to as high as $4.50. Young black and white pigs were offered by a youthful vendor at twenty-five cents the pair.

COMPLAINTS OVER TRUCK LICENCES

Committee Named at Picton to Draft Resolutions

Rural residents and a number of urban ones too, living in Picton and vicinity are still agog over an unexpected "boomerang" ending which featured a meeting called in the Royal Hotel the other night by Inspector Fabian of the P.C.V. Branch of the Department of Highways, for the purpose of explaining the rules and regulations governing Classes B and F of the P.C.V. Act to farmers who own trucks and other interested parties.

But the meeting strayed far from its original purpose. In a few minutes it had assumed the proportions of an indignation meeting with incensed farmers rising to their feet and complaining bitterly of the two classes of licence under discussion. So "hot" did the meeting become that at one time Mr. Fabian threatened to leave the rooms, but was prevailed upon by Mr. T. Ostrom, Mr. P. P., chairman for the occasion to remain. Mr. Bowerman appealed for fair play from the speaker, he said, was only carrying out instructions.

Several complaints were aired and the outcome of the meeting was the nomination of a committee to draft resolutions pertaining to the complaints and forward them to the Department.

LARGE AUDIENCE APPLAUDS MUSIC OF WAVE ORGAN

Robb Organ is Heard by Music-Lovers at Collegiate Theatre

The Robb Wave Organ of which much has been heard and which has stirred interest among leading figures in the music world as well as in the general music-loving public was heard in a public recital on Friday evening in the Belleville Collegiate theatre, Mr. Leo B. Riggs acting as organist. Mr. Riggs, said Mr. Morse Robb, the inventor, was one of the first to see the possibilities of the instrument in the purity and richness of its tone and it was fitting that he should be the artist who would give the public the first local demonstration of this instrument.

The recital held under the auspices of the Belleville Collegiate and Vocational School was opened by Principal MacLaurin who commended the artists and all associated with the arrangement of the program and acted with pleasure the Robb Wave Organ Company had achieved a most interesting instrument. He also noted that the Robb Wave Organ Company had been for Belleville an industry of which the city was proud.

Large as Opening Number

Mr. Riggs said he considered it a very high honor to have been asked to preside at the public demonstration of the organ. The organ was placed at the right stage, pedals being exposed so that the operation of the instrument might be clear to everyone.

Filling number to open the organ program and to reveal the rich pipe notes which the organ, which is entirely electrical, and is much smaller and less involved and intricate than a pipe organ, played the famous Handel "Largo," the rich solemn harmonies of this composition being faithfully brought out on the organ by Mr. Riggs. The second number which was to put to test the instrument as it was the well known Nocturne by Chopin, was a number of stirring selections to the accompaniment of Mr. Riggs on the pianoforte. One was the "Song of the Flea" a modern of the famous "Song of the Flea." Mr. Bullen's robust rendering of this highly colored piece of music by Mussorgsky was much appreciated. He also sang "The Canary Song."

Ocietie Sings

The quality of the organ was again brought out in accompaniments to the local ocietie of Messrs. Thomson, Moorman, Houston, Bazier, Howard, Duff, Evans and Vardy, Bancroft, Lloyd in the male chorus rendered "La Donna E Mobile" from Rigoletto, with dramatic verve and fine quality of tone. Mrs. Deacon was accompanist. Among the numbers on his second appearance was the lyric "I Hear You Calling Me."

Mr. Robb Speaks

Mr. Morse Robb, inventor of the instrument was then introduced on the reception given the organ which he and his son have shorted and working upon for years. He said it was a great encouragement to know that they had awakened the interest of the citizens of Belleville in their work. He explained that the organ is entirely electric and simpler than the pipe organ.

He related how back in 1927 Mr. Riggs who heard the instrument in its early stages, as it was developed praised the pipelike tones of the organ.

Mr. Robb was given enthusiastic appreciation at the hands of the audience as he closed the brief address which was delivered in the quiet manner. One might gather from one of the inventive type of mind what he possesses.

Playing the Rubinstein's "Kamenoi-Ostrow" on the wave organ Mr. Riggs gave one of the finest numbers of the evening as it revealed the full achievement and possibility of the instrument. His last series of numbers were "Serenade" by Isternmezzo, and the famous "Marche Militaire" by Paderewski.

The orchestral effect of the organ with two numbers "Little Lamb" and a hymn to be sung impressive setting. The wave organ was again used as accompaniment by Mr. Riggs with fine effect as it blended so closely with the voices of the singers.

POLICE BLOTTER

Following a motor accident at the intersection of Bridge and Front this week in which damage discovered one of the parties implicated was not in possession of a driver's permit, shortly before 5.00 p.m. last evening an automobile driven by Thomas Boyle, Bay Bridge Road, collided with a truck driven by James Lynch, Belleville at the above mentioned intersection. While investigations were in progress the police learned was unable to produce an individual operator's licence. Charges under the H. T. A. are pending.

WALL STREET CLOSE

New York, May 22—(AP)—A rise in Steels, Coppers and Motors frosted the stock market cake today.

Gains ran from fractions to 3 points or so. The opening brought a timid upturn. As the market got its footing the advance became more aggressive. In the closing few minutes of trading various issues slipped.

Transactions were about 450,000 shares.

In quiet trading Canadian Pacific and International Nickel improved slightly, while fractional declines prevailed in McIntyre and Dome Mines. Dominion Government 4s moved in a fair market. Canada 1952 1-64 of a cent to 100.13 1-3 cents.

Despite that a "gentleman's agreement" may be the means of reaching the object, a list of this was published this week by U.S. Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau who announced that he believed that such action was much more possible of realization through informal talks with individual nations than through formal international agreements.

HOG QUOTATIONS

Toronto May 22 (CP)—Bacon hog prices were steady at reported Dressed Hogs.

Canadian Packers, Kitchener $11.35; Loeb, Toronto $11.35; Hull $11.65; Chatham $11.60.

Liverweights: London $8.50; Hull $8.30; Chatham $8.60.

Dressweights: Kitchener $11.35; London $11.35; Hull $11.65; Chatham $11.60.

Board Room Gossip

As supplied to Biggar and Crawford by Financial Service.

MARKET COMMENT

It is remarkable how rapidly sentiment can change in the Street. The list has shown a moderate amount of strength in a few departments and many quarters have expressed the opinion that the market is ready for another extended advance. The majority however, agree that three or four months from today, the majority of stocks will be selling higher. Discrimination in making market commitments is generally advised.

Support For Gold

What is much more likely now is an agreement between leading countries to maintain gold at an even price and so stabilize both their currencies and their trade. In doing this, these countries will likely agree to buy gold at the present price whenever such is necessary to settle their debts and also to augment their reserves with any market surplus of gold in order to maintain the price and relieve the United States of the burden of having to take all the gold not immediately required.

As the United States will be a principal source of gold supply, international agreement it may be taken for granted that they will hold out for stabilization at the present price of gold. Apart from the President's own denials that he will lower their buying price for gold it can easily be seen, as the Government has pointed out, that the general business recovery has only been under way for a year and that prices have still a good way to go before reaching boom levels and that therefore it would be most unwise for the United States to adopt any such deflationary measure as a lower gold price. The mere suggestion of it has already shown how bad its effects would be, and to put it into practice within a few months of official denials would cause a severe economic setback.

Ever since the first raise of the lower gold price began to be heard at the beginning of last winter Financial Service has tried to emphasize the stability of such a course and the fact that, when compared with the spirit and statesmanship at present in American Government, it would be a most unlikely development. Unfortunately, however, logic failed to prevail, and in the spreading fear many people lost money. Londoni itself now appears to be convinced that the price is safe for a long while and has given evidence of substantial purchases of gold at $35 an ounce on her own account. Other nations have also come into the London gold market as buyers in the last ten days.

It may be pointed out that it is not improbable that the ends desired by the principal nations, as described above, may be achieved without recourse to a formal, signed international agreement. Frequently in negotiating such agreements difficult questions arise as to the specific safeguarding of various vested interests or the constituting parties which ultimately imperil the whole agreement. On this controversial question on an international gold standard it is therefore possible that a "gentleman's agreement" may be the means of reaching the object. A list of this was published this week by U.S. Secretary of the Treasury Morgentsau who announced that he believed that such action was much more possible of realization through informal talks with individual nations than through formal international agreements.

Foreign Buying

Wall Street interests with best foreign connections report a moderate increase of buying in American securities in London, although international markets remain disinterested. There is general agreement that fresh difficulties are unlikely to occur in the London market, for a three weeks' account now has started there. The floating supply of American stocks in London is said to be the smallest in several years so that any renewal of buying probably will be reflected immediately on our own market. British investment acquisitions also are reported to be quite large with interest directed especially to such Empire issues as Australian and Canadian obligations.

Asbestos

Shipments of Asbestos from the Province of Quebec for the first quarter of this year showed a gain of 22,000 tons over 1936 and more than 46,000 tons above the 1935 figures. Advices from London hint at a price increase to be announced in July, for 1938.

Produce Prices on Montreal Market

Montreal May 22—New Potatoes from South Carolina were reported on the local produce markets yesterday. Previously the source had been the British West Indies and Florida. Despite the broadening of new potato sources, old potatoes continued firm in price, with some quotations higher than on the previous day. Butter, cheese, eggs and poultry ruled steady. Receipts were 1,738 cases of eggs and 280 boxes of cheese, excluding truck arrivals.

Sales on the Canadian Commodity exchange were 150 boxes of Quebec fresh 92 score butter at 23 1-2c, which was the closing quote given. On the open market the range was 23 1-2c to 23 3-4c.

On the egg market graded shipments in 1c.l. lots were mainly 21 1-2c for A-large, 20-20 1-2c for A-medium, 18—19 1-2c for B and 18—18 1-2c for C. Offerings were fairly large. Wholesale exchange at 21 3-4c for A-large, 20c for A-medium, and 18 1-2c for A-pullets.

DOCTOR'S HOOD IS PRESENTED TO DR. HOWARD

Principal of Albert College Surprised by Local Board Members

TRIBUTES PAID

Very Happy Function Takes Place in Ackerman Hall

Ackerman Hall, Albert College, was the scene of a very happy occasion last evening when the local college board members and their wives gathered to honor principal Howard who recently was accorded the honorary degree of Doctor of Divinity by Queen's University. Visitors, faculty and students were all in their proper places about the tables when, Chairman Howard, completely unaware of the well-planned surprise party and the quiet entered the dining hall at the usual hour for dinner.

After the sumptuous banquet Mr. George F. Ketcon, chairman of the finance committee, explained the purpose of the gathering and called upon Mr. W. S. Deacon, valued member of the Board, to make the presentation address.

Mr. Deacon's Tribute

Mr. Deacon expressed his pleasure at being asked to be a guest at a function "to pay due honour to our friend, Rev. Principal Bert Howard, newly made 'Doctor'." He noted that the word "doctor" means teacher and that this degree is the oldest in the faculties of law and divinity and was first given by the University of Paris about eight centuries ago. It was the custom of conferring the degree of doctor on men who had passed and until the thirteenth century. The title in respect to medicine was not used until the fourteenth century.

The true meaning of doctor of teacher has not been lost sight of down through the years. Men have chosen to receive the degree who have made contributions to life, letters and learning. He said Mr. Deacon who went on to say:

Tribute to Leadership

"From the short while that we, as the executive of the Albert College, have known him, he has been married to us in such times as we have been passing through. His work, his leadership, his continuity of purpose, and his true spirit of leadership of the young men and young women who are in attendance at this school of learning have earned that we say that the recipient of one who is truly qualified for this very honorable distinction of Doctor of Divinity." He concluded with a great deal of pleasure and true feeling of sincerity that our wishes, I would ask our bursar, Mr. W. E. Ackerman, to arise as our friend with the distinct badge of this honor recently given him by Queen's University."

Dr. Howard Taken by Surprise

Mr. Ackerman handed Mr. Howard with a new purple and white hood, (the colors of the Queen's Divinity degree), the gift of the local board members.

Dr. Howard was taken completely by surprise, replied suitably, thanking the board members for their expression of appreciation and of the honour accorded him in this way. He also expressing his thanks to the faculty and student body for their loyalty and co-operation in the difficult times through which the college has been passing.

Board members who spoke briefly, included: Principal Emeritus Dr. Baker, His Honor Judge G. E. Deroche, Mr. C. H. Reid, and Mr. W. J. Morrison as well as Dr. McMullen who spoke on behalf of the college faculty.

A total of 475 white, and 419 colored cheese sold on the Belleville Cheese Board at today's trading at prices of 14 5-16 cents per pound.

Buyers present were Messrs. Taylor, Hart, Hunter, McCrory, Cook, Morton, Fraleigh, and Murphy.

NEW METHODS TO PUT OVER H. P. TO BE ADOPTED

Committee Given Valuable Information by F. S. Kuhn

PLAN HAS MERIT

PLAN HAS MERIT

Likely Some Competition to Give Appeal More Strength

Suggestions to bring forcibly before the residents of this district, advantages to be gained under the Home Improvement Plan, was made by the various group chairmen and chairwomen at a meeting of the general committee held in the Chamber of Commerce last evening with J. C. Heriby, president of the committee, presiding. Those present were F. S. Kuhn, district representative of the Central Committee of Toronto, Mrs. W. N. Ponton, Mrs. Mulligan, Miss Anna Bailey, Arthur Ellis, Lesse Stephenson, Garn E. Dobbs and Jack Williamson. Mr. Kuhn described the work, that was being done in other centres and answered a number of questions asked by those present.

Concensus of opinion of the meeting was to the effect, that a campaign similar to the work had been done in the city, in fact more so than for some years past, but that the time for doing good without application for a loan under the plan, was considered the opinion, that the workings of the plan should be widely advertised, was little known. All were agreed the Home Improvement Plan had merit but there would be need explanation and more advertising to make it successful. Suggested, that many loans would be taken out by the farmers after the seeding was completed, which is two weeks late this season. Mr. Kuhn suggested, that a meeting be held in the city in connection with the plan and Miss Audrey Williamson, to attend the meeting held in the city, a speaker should be given at least three minutes to explain the workings of the plan and the meeting adopted the suggestion.

Emmy For Children

Mrs. W. N. Ponton believed, that an essay by the school children would be a great help in advancing the plan. "This would get the mothers thinking in helping the children write an essay. "On what should do to improve my home" asked the speaker. Mr. Ellis also suggested, that the local committee try and influence the Fire Board to make the fair this year "Home Improvement Year" and this suggestion was favorably received.

Mr. Kuhn told the audience, that it was useless to expect help from the Central Committee in the way of funds but that the local committee would have to make arrangements for the money to carry on their work. The suggestion was made that this to be done, the first being a grant from the City Council.

Garn E. Dobbs speaking for the retail merchants, stated that he could not speak for the trade as a whole but was surprised to learn that the residents of the district knew about the H.I.P. despite the advertising that has been issued on the subject. He stated the difficulty of those doing improvements to their homes were using their own money but I believe the H.I.P. is going over without a help. "Personally I expect a big boom in the fall and things are better than for some years past," he stated. Arthur Ellis believed the H.I.P. had done a lot of good and as for my own particular business I considered it has not been as busy in several years. Mr. Ellis spoke about a number of by my customers but I am working with dealers who have customers, that have taken out the loan.

Lesse Stephenson stated he had talked with many people in the city and have heard criticism of the H.I.P. plan but that the plan has been boosted. "I think personally that things are going fine where I live" Mr. Stephenson stated that business was better than for some years past. It is a natural sequence after many depression years.

Business Quite Heavy

John Wilson was in favor of the plan but it was hard to say how much it had helped. He stated that business in builder's hardware was very heavy during the first four months and that prices had risen, there is a lull but only temporary. He told of sending samples to Kitchener and Brockville, who put on Home Improvement Plan work and he expected some business would be derived. He believed that those improving homes with their own money would have an effect upon others not yet improved and to possess the cash to apply for the loan and thus improve their property. Mrs. Ponton explained the proposition to the I.O.D.E. and advised the women to interest their room for themselves and thus start the ball rolling. Miss Hurley read to the Women's Canadian Club at Belleville appearing in the Ontario Intelligencer and also explained the workings of the plan, Mrs. Mulligan was believed that prices had been boosted after plan was announced and some owners were only making the improvements they contemplated.

Mr. Kuhn told the audience that naturally a demand created a higher price, but the workings of the plan was increasing more people all the time.

Mr. Herby believed the plan only applied to those, who really needed to have work done on their property and "purchase" same, a new roof should be added and the house painted. He believed the plan was succeeing in the district and was great credit due to the committee for the work they had already done, Mr. Kuhn stated he did not know that the loan in prize had been reached an that up to April 1st five million dollars had been loaned under the plan, one third of this amount being taken out between April 1st and 15th.

TROUT AND 'LUNGE FRY PUT IN LAKES

Shipped from the local Dominion Fish Hatchery, a large shipment of speckled trout and lake trout fry was received in Peterborough yesterday, and immediate arrangements have been made for planting the consignment. The maskinonge will be placed in Lake Katchewanooka, Deer Bay and Lovesick, Stoney and Buckhorn Lakes, a total of 100,000 fry being distributed. The same number of lake trout will be placed in Lake Catchacoma in Peterborough district.

SIXTY-FOUR POUND CARP IS CAPTURED

Sixty-four pounds in weight, measuring over five feet in length, and presenting a sturgeon in shape and appearance, what is believed to be the largest carp ever taken from local waters was captured in the Government Dock marsh by Walter Kelly of this city yesterday. While the fish, stunned by repeated heavy blows of a boat oar as it floundered in the shallow water into which it had made its way to spawn, was an easy victim.

Even veteran fishermen of the district took keen interest on the view the monster fish and marvel at its size.

3 Sisters' Ages Total 250 Years, Born in May, 2 on Same Day

Miss Alwylda Benson, 85, And Mrs. E. Bowerman 79, Celebrate

MRS. HEAZLITT 86

An event unique in the history of family longevity occurs today in the village of Wellington when two of a trio of sisters whose ages average eighty-two years celebrate the anniversary of their birthday.

For many years, Miss Alwylda Benson, Mrs. Emma Bowerman and Mrs. Alberta Heazlit, known to their intimate friends as the "Benson Girls" have lived happily and harmoniously under the same roof. Today Miss Benson and Mrs. Bowerman celebrate the eighty-fifth and seventy-ninth anniversaries of their birth respectively, their natal day falling on the same date. Mrs. Heazlit, observed her eighty-sixth anniversary a few weeks ago.

Mrs. John Bowerman of Bloomfield is the only other sister living of Mr. William Benson of Toronto is an only brother.

The Benson Girls'

"The Benson Girls" are daughters of the late Mr. and Mrs. William H. Benson, former prominent residents of Prince Edward County. Their mother was a daughter of David and Sara Van Blaricom, United Empire Loyalists who resided for a lengthy period of time in Demorestville and in the Front of Sidney Township in Hastings County. The sisters at home have resided together in Wellington for a long time are in good health, and take an active part in household duties and find time to raise flowers and vegetables in their garden.

TALLER RACE GROWING UP

What has been accepted as a fact by many persons who see so many tall youths in every part of the country, in both city and rural parts, is substantiated by the opinion of the school doctors in Great Britain that a new generation of taller and heavier children is now going to school.

The cause for this in Britain is the use of milk in school and the attention to physical training, say the medical men.

It is a surprise to learn that this growth is not of long standing. There has been steady and consistent development since 1920. But why 1920? Those who know a smattering of science know how science stresses slow growth especially in relation to ultimate changes as in the processes of evolution. So this statement comes as somewhat of a surprise or almost miracle.

Yet the facts are present—The average boy of fourteen, says Dr. Chettwood, School Medical Officer of Sheffield, shows an increase over his forerunners of three and a quarter inches in height and nineteen and a half pounds in weight. Girls show three and two-tenths inch. half inches and fourteen and a half pounds.

The M.O.H. of Hudderfield points to "wonderful results" of the milk scheme and of physical training, the average boy of twelve, he says, being three pounds heavier now than the boy of the same age ten years ago. Cambridge M.O.H. reports a general increase of nearly five per cent in height and weight since 1912 among school children since 1912.

The good and greater knowledge of the quality and merits of foods, the fresh air and the open air of today with sports and physical training have done something of the same in Canada. Evidence can be seen on every hand.

ROCKY LEDGE BEAUTIFIED

The rocky precipice corner of the Queen Mary School lot at the corner of Catherine and Isabel Streets is being transformed from a rugged unsightly spot, almost a "dump," to one of beauty by the Horticultural Society. Already the ground at the foot of the rock has been prepared and laid out and paths of stone built and roots, shrubs and flowers have been planted and steps are underway to climb the ledges of rocks and make of them rock gardens, rising to the level of the slope of the north-east corner of the school lot.

The corner will become a beauty spot as the season advances and its attraction will be enhanced year after year as the perennials begin blooming. On it the Society is concentrating its efforts this year.

Mr. Wesley Adams of the Horticultural Society staff has been engaged on the arrangements at this spote. As a result it will be one of the outstanding places of beauty in Belleville, it is stated by officers of the Horticultural Society. Provincial experts have looked over the grounds and offered advice as to the best means of utilizing the opportunity at this point for the finest possible demonstration of use of a rocky ledge.

The garden will have particular value in its proximity to Queen Mary School grounds as it tends to inculcate and develop a sense of beauty and of the importance of design in development of lawns and such a spot as this.

The Belleville Horticultural Society in this and like steps towards the beautification of the city will act as an inspiration to property owners and tenants and spur them to generous rivalry in improving the lawns and gardens of Belleville. There are numbers of gardens where the beauty of nature has been cultivated with the assiduous care and devotion of flower and shrub and tree lovers.

There are but three classes of men, the retrogrede, the stationary, and the progressive.—Lavater.

Blasphemous words betray the vain foolishness of the speaker.—Sir Philip Sidney.

The foolish and wicked practice of profane cursing and swearing is a vice so mean and low, that every person of sense and character detests and despises it.

The injury of prodigality leads to this, that he that will not economize will have to agonize.—Confusive.

The difference between the covetous man and the prodigal is that the former never has money and the latter will have none shortly.—Ben Jon.son.

TWO TREES

Two trees within the view
Of every passer by
Yet who has stopped to note
Their every sign—
As day or night communing they Move with each wind
And closer draw to-gether if
It be unkind.

Seeming to beckon humans
Who in haste
Walk neath their voices wise
And frantic waste—
Moments which spent beneath
Their shading hands
Would answer give to all
Sad hearts' demands.

For like to them each soul
Should cares confess
Unto like comrade spirits
Seeking happiness—
In sharing other's thoughts
Which day by day
Unite in twain of strength
All mortal clay.

That risen from the earth
As these two trees
Must fend against harsh winds
Cold Miseries—
Which milder far would seem
If some alone fend
Through every struggle had
A hand to lend.

NO BEER SERVED IN BEVERAGE ROOMS AFTER TEN O'CLOCK is the dictum handed down by the City Council of Brockville. Now Brockville is shortly to go on Daylight Saving Time, and it will be interesting to learn just what time Brockville beverage rooms will operate under. If D.S.T. then thirsts will have to be quenched before nine o'clock Standard Time—and the laddies when they come in from a spin on the river evenings will just have to be content with an ice cream soda, and sandwich, perhaps, at Wright's the old standby, known to the fathers and the fathers' fathers of the present generation.

LOOKS LIKE THE THOUSAND ISLANDS ARE TO BE BRIDGED, according to all reports. Contracts have been let and work has been started, although some hitch has developed over right of way. The bridge enterprise, last of several others which have gone before, looks more like business than any of its predecessors, although the earliest bridge scheme in Brockville vicinity progressed as far as a couple of stone piers on the Three Sister Islands, just opposite the Fulford cable, where they remain ago by the late Senator Fulford, and facetiously called by him "Fulford's Folly." The present bridge enterprise has been promoted by John G. Mitchell, of Lansdowne, a well known figure in governmental circles in Ottawa, where he has been secretary to some of th "higher-ups," deputy minister, etc. This bridge is planned to cross near Ivy Lea, above Brockville, and touching on several Islands with piers reach to the shore of the United States in easy stages, not far from Alexandria Bay. The Three Sisters project was started many years ago, over fifty years at least, and if the memory of the oldest inhabitant holds true, the promoter was one, Bob Harvey, who promoted the Brockville, Westport and Sault Ste. Marie Railway, (a road not as long as the C. P. R. but just as wide) a railway which never did reach Sault Ste. Marie. This bridge never progressed beyond substantial piers on the island, there yet, and the project died aborning, like many another of the children of Bob Harvey's prolific brain. Another bridge project to cross at Brockville using the Three Sisters as stepping stones, of recent vintage, with Senator and Editor George P. Graham as one of the Canadian directors, seems to have slipped out of sight following the rapid work of the Ivy Lea promotion in lining up both Canadian and Yankee support. Another bridge project for Prescott-Ogdensburg has not been heard of for some time, and other similar projects have faded from sight. Looks like the Ivy Lea bridge has chosen the psychological time and a very popular site, being in the centre of the finest scenic section of the Thousand Islands, Alexandria Bay, Clayton, Gananoque, Brockville, The City of the Thousand Islands.

The World Moved On

Francis Victor Shortis has been released from Kingston Penitentiary on ticket-of-leave. He was convicted of murder in 1926 and was to have been hanged early in 1926, but at the last moment his sentence was commuted to life imprisonment. He was 18 years of age when convicted and is now 29.

Shortis has been away from the world for 11 years. In one sense he has been in the world and out of it at the same time. When he was arrested in 1925 Queen Victoria was reigning, and Sir M. Bowell was Premier of the Dominion. While Sortis was in prison we have had as premiers: Tupper, Laurier, Borden, Meighen, Bing, Guardi and King again. Sir Oliver Mowat was Premier of Ontario and Hon. George A. Kirkpatrick was Lieutenant-Governor of the province when Shortis entered prison.

In 1895 the auto was merely in its experimental stage and it is not at all likely Shortis ever rode in one before being locked up. He may never have seen one at that time; there would be no radio, and no airplanes were in use. In most of the smaller places there were no electric lights then. At that time Toronto had ever thought of wrapping bread and a good stout loaf aid for five cents. In most communities milk was delivered in cans and poured into containers at the consumers' homes. Appendicitis was known as inflammation of the bowels, and if one were attacked by diphtheria then the only thing to fight it with was a sponge. There was no scientific immunity from the disease. The same with typhoid fever. For it was a common enough disease.

During the time Shortis has been in prison there has been a world war and the map of Europe has been changed. The Romanoffs have been wiped out in Russia; the Hohenzollerns have been driven out, and the living there alone, of the Hapsburgs has been sent to Austria-Hungary when Shortis was in prison the per capita debt of the people in the United States was $42.31, and during the time of his incarceration it has grown to $275. Either that will help or make much difference to him in his new-found freedom we do not know.—Peterborough Examiner.

Stray Bits

Old time newspaper men are sometimes heard to complain of the passing of the animal story from the columns of modern newspapers. Remarks the New York Times, editorially speaking, "Time was, not long ago, when a self-respecting newspaper couldn't go to press without its dog story, and its lion hunt, its freak biological specimen from Winsted, Connecticut. But the modern and casual survey of newspapers of this country and south of the border during the past week or month will show an advance rather than a decrease in number of references to animals ranging all the way from broadbrimmed tales, chimpanzees and bears, prediction for alcoholic beverages; the armadillo, the vixen, lions, tigers, the domestic cat, the elephant, cougars, blind dogs, trotting horses, running horses, laughing hyenas, mad dogs, toads, and snakes. Particularly snakes and their alleged habit of swallowing their young when danger impends. From now on it will be open season for stories of Fido and her sentiments. Already the first standing heads for the columns of daily newspapers are being set up, under which stories will run daily of where best to fish, the time to begin caught—with weight attested —, while copy readers are sharpening pencils and wits for the annual splurge of double column headlines describing bird's nest hunting and their denizens of lake waters all set to thinks of his own baiting average.

It saved you the effort of pulling a watch and turning shaped thingies out of your pocket by a corresponding massive chain, or if you must be that it gave you occasion for striking an impressive pose in your peg-top trousers and silk and spectacular dazzling audibly as to whether it was your watch or Lovey's clock that was a minute off.

Newton D. Baker told a story on himself at a New York luncheon one day recently, remarks the Cleveland Plain Dealer, and we have heard no good moral that we repeat it. It adds:

It was Easter Sunday, 1918, and the then secretary of war, visiting the battle front, was called upon for an impressive Easter service for thousands of men in Khaki, somewhere behind the front. After a great sermon on the Resurrection by Bishop Brent, Mr. Baker kneeled at rail of the altar and two uniformed privates knelt beside him and sang anthems in which sounded to Mr. Baker like the finest music he had ever heard.

He scribbled a note and that he wished to meet the two soldiers; that after the war he wanted to see about helping them to a real musical education. The note was duly delivered and he was introduced after the service. One was a tenor with the Metropolitan Opera, the other a baritone for the Chicago Civic Opera.

Letters to the Editor

Editor, Ontario Intelligencer:

Sir,—I would like to express my sincere thanks to Bandmaster Wright and members of the Municipal Band for their attendance at the official opening of the Belleville Cenotaph. I should also like to express also our appreciation to the Daily Ontario Intelligencer, to the Public Works Department for their valuable assistance in preparations.

The manager in charge of the Belleville Theatres has also asked me to welcome the public at the camp at any time during the season and I would be pleased to do so. Please remind me of this.

39 KILLED BY SHELL FIRE

Madrid, May 22 (AP)—Three hours of bombardment by insurgent field-ed at least 30 persons, wounded more than 100 and ripped private dwellings apart in Madrid today.

The shelling was one of the heaviest bombardments in many weeks.

Thousands of workers crept to their lofts under the deluge, seeking whatever shelter they could find and keeping away from the open streets.

On June 5th the Liberals of Alberta meet to choose a leader. The convention is of peculiar interest because it is reported that they are the only party at present with any hope of defeating the Social Credit forces, and that their success in turn must depend greatly on their ability to find a strong leader.

Headquarters reports indicate that E. L. Gray, who was deputy minister of Municipal Affairs in the Brownlee government, will be chosen to head the Liberal party, which has been without a leader since the elevation of Mr. Justice W. H. Howson.

Gray, if elected, will be in the succession to such figures as Arthur Sifton and Charles Stewart.

Provincial politics in Alberta only go back 23 years, but it would be difficult to find a state anywhere with more spectacular changes in types of political philosophy. From 1905 until 1921 the Liberals were in power without a break.

In 1921 the United Farmers of Alberta swept away the Liberals and governed for 14 years.

In 1935 the United Farmers were swept away even more ruthlessly than the Liberals had been, by the Social Credit forces under Premier William Aberhart.

I was told this week of a trifling incident in the summer of 1914, which, unnoticed at the time, probably altered the whole subsequent history of the Alberta political history.

In a convention held in West Calgary by the Liberals, to pick a man to oppose R. B. Bennett (then Conservative member before the name) it had been pretty well decided in advance that the secretary of the association, an enterprising man named Johnny Irvine, should be given the nomination.

However, in the course of the convention proceedings, Irvine arose to tell, clean-cut farmer from Carstairs, who said that he was from the American Mid-West, and presented some years before in Canada. He had heard Sir Wilfrid Laurier in 1910, had greatly sympathized with his reciprocity ideal in full, and had resolved to throw in his lot with the Liberals in this country.

The mysterious stranger spoke so ably and impressed the delegates that many of them felt that he should have been he who was given the nomination. However, the matter, as settled before hand, gave the nomination to Irvine.

The farmer from Carstairs was Henry Wise Wood, who shortly afterwards became President of Alberta of the Organized Farmer movement which swept the Liberals out of office, to which they have not returned to this day.

It is interesting to speculate what a different turn events might have taken if Wood, and not Irvine, had been given that honor.

Sometimes in the parliamentary library, one hears strange references to the bathroom or the "living room" as places in which to make search for required volumes.

The explanation is that before the protective staff of the Police took over the duty of looking after the building, the library had a housekeeper, who occupied the suite of rooms in the vaulted basement below the library.

And thereby hangs a rather amusing tale.

The library housekeeper used to tell the story of being awakened one night by an unearthly screech from the great chamber above. Hurriedly donning some suitable attire, he went upstairs and looked into the disturbance.

He found a terrified member of parliament who had fallen asleep while perusing some dry volume, and had come to grief until all the lights had been turned out. When he awoke he could not remember exactly where he was, and the eerie surroundings, the numerous alcoves, nooks and spiral staircases so confused and frightened him that he gave vent to the loud shrieks which the housekeeper had heard.

Did you know ... that Senator Sir Allen B. Aylesworth witnessed the bloody riots between Lennox and Addington riot on Declaration Day, 1849, although it is now the occurrence of over three-quarters of a century ago ... that Sir Allen Aylesworth was born in Napanee, request of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, and thus realized an ambition of the boyhood days ... I asked him if he had any secret or unfulfilled ambition, and he replied: "All I ever wanted was to become as good a lawyer as I could." Those who have followed his eminent career can best tell how successful he was, and with how little conceit in his statement ... there were some of a little book summarizing the family history, printed for circulation among the members of his own family.

TWO POLES BROKEN AS CAR LEAVES ROAD

Windsor, Ont., May 22 (CP) — Two men were injured, one critically, when a car driven by Geo. Crashaw, R.R. 1, Windsor, left the highway seven miles west of here at the village of La Salle, mowed down two large poles and wound up against a third. Crashaw is being held by police on a charge of "reckless driving." Crashaw escaped unhurt.

Mrs. Hilda Duggan, 24, Windsor, suffered a fractured skull and fractured left arm. Miss Mary Lawrence, 22, Windsor, has a possible fracture of the skull. Colin G. MacPherson, 24, Windsor, suffered a fractured nose and cuts about his lips and eyes.

NO SETTLEMENT IN RIGHT FOR MINERS

Ottawa, Ont., May 22 (AP)—With no settlement in sight, 437 striking coal miners who late yesterday rejected evacuation demands of international union officers spent their second night voluntarily entombed 380 feet underground in a sit-down protest against not being able to share work with idle miners.

Tweed and District

Tweed—Dr. Maurice O'Connor, who for the past year or more has been practicing medicine in Tweed was this week notified of his appointment to the staff of St. Lawrence State Hospital, Ogdensburg, N.Y. Since coming to Tweed, Dr. O'Connor has established an excellent practice, and his departure is viewed as a distinct loss to the local medical fraternity. Dr. O'Connor is a son of Dr. Fergus O'Connor of Kingston, graduating from Queen's University. He took over the practice of Dr. M. B. George, now located in Madoc. In his new appointment he will be connected with the Mental Hygiene Department.

Dr. M. G. Dales of Tweed is a patient at Belleville General Hospital where he is suffering from a badly infected hand and an attack of pleurisy. He will be confined to the institution for some days.

Mrs. Ralph Maguire was taken to Bellevilie General Hospital where an operation for removal of appendix was performed. She is making favourable progress.

The fiftieth anniversary of the formation of Tweed Rebekah Lodge No. 239 was observed with quiet ceremony this week. Visiting members were present from Madoc, Bellevilie Stirling and Thomasburg.

Rev. W. G. Hope Swayne, attended the 91st Synod of the Diocese of Ontario held in Kingston this week.

Congratulations to Ana Thompson, star girl athlete of Tweed High School, who made almost a clean sweep of the Senior Girls' section at the Sectional Meet held in Madoc recently. Ana won five firsts for a total of 15 points. Other point winners were: Peggy Rashotte, Ada Barry, Vera Drinkwater, Marion Tummon, Anna Kleinstuber, Ana Morton and Margaret Elliott.

Points winners in the Boys' Section included: Ronald Sayeds, Jack Tummon, Milton Vance, James Lajoie, Donald Bateman, Gerald Laffman, Andrew Kelly, Everett Jones, Bill Arber, Donald Parrott, Gerald Bailey and Eugene Doyle.

Ernest A. Jackson, who was found fatally shot near the home of his sister, Mrs. A. Barter, London, Ont., was formerly in the employ of A. H. Mouck of Tweed and also of the Tweed Company, Ltd. At the time of his death, Mr. Jackson was Secretary of No. 2 Branch of the Canadian Legion. A revolver was found beside the body of Jackson who was in 68th year. After hearing the coroner to the belief that suicide was the cause of his death.

The month of April for May breally since the establishment of the local Forestry Department is 4.23 inches for that month in 1929. To date in the present merry month of May the precipitation has been 4.36 inches. With several days still to go this May bids fair to establish a rainfall record that will take some beating. The local average for May stands at 1.75 inches. Farmers are bemoaning the heavy rains which are playing havoc with seeding operations. Already some are three weeks' late with seeding and some low fields are still too wet to work.

Vernon Patterson, young son of Mr. and Mrs. A. Paterson suffered a badly gashed foot when he stepped on a piece of broken glass while playing. He was given medical attention by a local physician but will be forced to be inactive for some days yet.

Coronation Day saw the birth of quintuplet Pekinese pups at the home of Mr. Wm. Clapp of Actinolite.

A local school teacher reports the following school-boy howlers. The teacher asked the class to write sentences containing the words "pudding" and herewith". The following sentences were produced by one child: 1—My mother is pudding the washing on the line.

2 My aunt can only herewith one ear.

The recent heavy rains have caused the water of Stoco Lake to rise several inches above the level of a few days ago.

Mr. Roger Rose as Special representative of the Robert Simpson Company has opened a place of business in Quinn's vacant store.

NERVE FOOD

Mr. Rose, who came to Tweed several years ago, was manager of the local Hydro System until last year. Since that time he has conducted a successful electrical business of his own. We wish him every success in his new venture.

(adv.) TF

Death came with startling suddenness to Mr. Archie Stewart of Tweed early on Wednesday evening. The deceased, who resided with his grandson, Alec Simpson, was in his 84th year. For sometime he had been troubled with high blood pressure and a heart condition for which he required medical attention but his condition was not such as to confine him to bed.

The late Mr. Stewart has been a successful farmer at Cashington where he spent most of his life. Since the death of his wife, four years ago, he has resided with and with his grandson. The funeral was held on Friday afternoon from the Frost's Funeral Parlours. Interment was made at Cannington.

Surviving are three children, two daughters; Mrs. B. Simpson of Kingston, Mrs. Jones of Calingwood and a son C. E. Stewart of Toronto.

Miss Jean Roberts, B. A. of Kilcheran, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Roberts of Actinolite has addred recently to her accomplishments as director of plays. In a recent competition held at Windsor the cast which she directed presented the play "The House with the Twisty Windows. It was highly commended by the adjudication for its excellence in every particular. Miss Roberts in a member of Kilcheran Collegiate Institute Staff.

The opening of the pickerel season has resulted in several fine catches of fish by local anglers.

Mrs. Charles O'Connor passed away at the age of 72 at her home in Windsor. The late Mrs. O'Connor was born at Stoco where she resided until her marriage, moving with her husband to Courtright and later to St. Thomas. In 1899 she took up her residence in Windsor where she has since resided.

The deceased is survived by her husband, two daughters: Sister Mary Francis Tresta, St. Joseph's Convent, and Mrs. James Murray of Windsor and one son Charles also of Windsor. Four sisters: Sister M. Seraphine, Mazer of Providence, London, Mrs. Mary Calarneau of London, Mrs. John Durkin, Detroit, Miss Elizabeth Bennett of Kingston and a brother Dennis Bennett, Toronto.

The funeral service was held from the late residence to Immaculate Conception R. C Church where Rev. Father Blande, assisted by Fr. McNabb and Fr. Chatterton celebrated Requiem High Mass.

Mrs. Joseph Sergeant, Tweed, is a niece and Mr. Wm. Durkin. Stoco, a nephew.

The Choir of Tweed United Church met on Thursday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Connor to honor one of its members, Miss Dorothy Barnett, June bride-to-be.

The following address was read by Miss Grace Reeves:—

Dear Dorothy,—

Your fellow choir members wish to felicitate you on your coming marriage and to extend to you their very best wishes for your future happiness. We realize that you are not as years go, you are old in point of service to the choir. During the time you have set a good example to many of us for faithful attendance at rehearsals and Sunday services.

Such faithfulness prompts us to take advantage of the happy event of your marriage to accompany our good wishes with this small gift. We are happy in the thought that you will still continue to live among us as good friends are too desirable to lose.

Every member of the choir signed the address.

Miss Helen Tummon then presented Miss Barnett with a beautiful linen luncheon cloth and serviettes.

Miss Barnett thanked the choir members for their thoughtfulness. A number of contests were enjoyed. Lunch was served by a committee of the choir.

Hungerford Township Council passed the following accounts:

A. Houzer, sheep killed by dogs 20.00; M. Merkw, valuing sheep 4.00; E. Trudeau 30.05; C. Ervin, cedar 49.60; J. Larkin pay list 339.90; Mrs. Wm. Cassidy 11.94; T. Courneyea pea road 8.00; Mrs. Wm. Noad and Miss Joey Noad of Smith's Falls are visiting Dr. and Mrs. W. A. Pailthorpe during their return from a winter spent in Mexico and California.

Mrs. Harvey Vance suffered a bad pain on the eye when she fell on Victoria Street. Medical attention was given by a local physician.

Dean Cullinane was the recipient of a purse of gold from the people of Old Hungerford Parish prior to his departure to assume his new duties as Rural Dean of Tweed. The following address was read by Mr. Thos. A. Kelly:

Very Reverend and Dear Father,—

It is with deepest regret that we, the people of Hungerford have learned of your near departure from the cradle of endeavour. The expressions of sorrow have been numerous, not only from your own parishioners but from the entire community. Our feelings today are such that no words are adequate to express the heart-felt sentiments.

We, your flock have long age recognized your purity of mind and heart and are justly proud of your Priestly capabilities. We are fully conscious of your many contributions and your diligent and persevering efforts among us. We have been guided to higher and nobler things by your wisdom and kindly advice. Your appointment is a proof of higher responsibility and your receiving of distinctive honours will demonstrate your ability and the wide-spread esteem, in which you are held.

We retrace the visits of the years and call to mind soul-stirring memories. As a pastor and a friend you have entered into the lives of rich and poor alike and nothing of either your spiritual or temporal concerns has ever been of minor consideration with you. You have planted fruitful seeds in our hearts and many they have become fruit into the precious flowers of religious veneration. You have fostered among your people a co-operative spirit and the evidences of the combined efforts of priest and people are manifold. We cannot but laud the important role you have played in promoting harmony both within and without the parish. Your deeds have been numerous and your influence boure noble. You have given to us a splendid hall which serves as a social centre for parish activities. The presbytery which you built is unexcelled by any in the Diocese and it in itself an accomplishment. This Temple to the Most High in which you have ministered unto our souls is your crowning achievement.

We recall that on your coming to us you were burdened with an undertaking which must have seemed gigantic but you surrounded it with unflinching courage which is characterized all your generous response to the call of duty.

Now that your task is completed and you have been called to begin anew in a more spacious field we pray that rich rewards of earnest labour may be heaped upon you in your further missionary work. But, be assured, we hope in God that you may be spared for many years to act amongst and minister unto the people of your new parish. We ask that you not forget us, but ever keep the people of St. Edmund's Parish in prayerful remembrance.

And now, in conclusion, dear Reverend Father, be assured that our ever grateful remembrance and, as an expression of our appreciation, we present you with this gift, rich with the affection of its donors.

Signed on behalf of the people of Stoco Parish.

Mr. Peter Mulroney made the presentation to which Dean Cullinane made fitting reply.

2,500 ROTARIANS SAIL FOR FRANCE

Nice, France, Plans For 8,000 at World Convention

New York, May 22.—The "flagship" of the fleet of fourteen ships carrying Rotarians of North America to the annual convention of Rotary International at Nice, France, June 6-11, the "S. S. Carinthia" sailed at five o'clock last evening with a party of several hundred officers and their friends.

Three ships have already started, and ten others are to follow, each with a large delegation of Rotarians. President Will R. Manier, Jr., of Nashville, Tennessee, heads the party on the "Carinthia" which includes most of those who have been chosen to be governors of the North American Rotary districts for the year, starting July 1st.

These district governors, selected at conferences in their districts in the past few weeks, will meet the head of the governors from other parts of the world at Montreux, Switzerland, on May 31st, for a week of consideration of Rotary affairs, preceding the convention in Nice.

Among the other large delegations organized for the trip to Nice are those of the British Isles, well over a thousand, and Toronto Provincial Europe, about an equal number. Plans have been made by the Nice Rotarians and the municipality for an attendance of around 8,000.

The convention will be formally opened by the President of France, M. Albert Lebrun, at 11 o'clock Monday morning, June 6. Business sessions will continue through Friday morning, after which most of the North American party will sail/see over Europe for sightseeing. Preparations for official receptions have been made for the post-convention trip-sailers. One of these will be held in the Eternal City, Rome, June 23, the Duke of Kent, younger brother of the King, will attend this reception to Rotarians visiting England.

Quinte Buttermakers' Club Holds Meeting at Napanee

Ralph Dudgeon Wins First Grading Competition of Season

C. BUCHANAN SPEAKER

The Bay of Quinte Buttermakers Club held one of their most successful meetings since their inception when they were hosts to their sister association, the Frontenac Buttermaker's Club. The meeting was held in the Agricultural Board Room at Napanee. Some 45 members were present. George Palmer of Depercello, Creamery, their newly-elected President was in charge of the meeting. The committee presented a very satisfactory programme in which Mr. C. W. Buchanan, Agricultural Representative for Lennox and Addington was their guest speaker. He was introduced by Roy Jose of Glen Roy Creamery, Bellevilie. Mr. Buchanan gave a very interesting talk on his experience as Agricultural Representative beginning in Kent County where tobacco and sugar beet are growing were the main occupations of the farmers, dairying being a very minor sideline. Going to Prince Albert next, he found dairying to be the chief enterprise of the farmers but practically all the milk went into fluid milk consumption for the cities and towns of the area. Very little butter was made and practically no cheese. Finally coming to Napanee three years ago he found himself in one of the best dairy sections of Eastern Ontario, and was encouraged by way to cheese factories, creameries and consolidation of factories he briefly outlined how the Department of Agriculture are aiding the farming industry of the province. Prof McQuilin moved a vote of thanks to Mr. Buchanan on behalf of the Club.

The cream and butter grading competitions of the season was also held. The Grand Champion of the evening being Ralph Dudgeon of Maple Valley Dairy Co., Bellevilie. who made a perfect score of 100 points in butter and a near perfect score of 99.97 points in cream for a grand total of 199.97 points. Wilfred Guernsey of Kingston Creamery, Kingston, was runner-up with a score of 197.77 points.

The next meeting of the club is to be held at Tweed Creamery on June 16th.

Mountie Heads into Arctic For 3 Years at Trading Post

Bellevilie Boy on Way to Be Great Slave Lake Post Boss

IS MAGISTRATE

Rochester, May 22.—It was goodbys for three years when Bert Spencer of the Royal Canadian Northwest Mounted Police bade farewell to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. MacKenzie B. Spencer, last week-end.

He had visited them occasionally at their home, 139 Avis street, in the city years since he first donned the scarlet and blue uniform of the mounted police.

He served as corporal and constable and two weeks ago got a tenday furlough. Chance to rest and visit friends and relatives before he set out to fulfil his new appointment—as magistrate of the Great Slave Lake Trading Post, 1,500 miles north of Edmonton, almost to Alaska.

"Mounty" Spencer, 32, tall and straight, left Toronto for Edmonton —four days away by rail. There he will take another train for 300 miles before he boards motorboat and dog sled for about 1,200 miles into wild Canadian north.

Bert Spencer came to Rochester from Bellevilie, Ontario, with his parents about twelve years ago. He got a job as timekeeper at Eastman Kodak Company, served on the police department.

Now he will be virtual "boss" of a trading post town of 400 inhabitants. Life and duty won't be all "getting his man". He will be magistrate, hold court, issue marriage licenses and see to the mail.

He will act as coroner and officiate at some burials. He will be arbiter and policeman for the rough-and-ready trading post, commanding two mounties of lesser rank.

Qualified in Canadian law through studies as a mounty, Bert Spencer's experience in Canadian police work has been wide. He began as a coast guardsman at Charlotown, Prince Edward Island. He spent a year and a half in training school in Rockcliffe, Ottawa, then became a corporal, then a constable in the mounted.

His ten day leave was climaxed on Friday night when friends and colleagues in the Canadian Legion gave him a party, and made him an honorary life-member of their organization.

He must stay at Great Slave Lake, Fort Reliance, Northwest Territory, for three years without coming out. Mrs. Spencer said today.

"He'll be lonesome up there, but if he stays at it there will be a real mean a good lifetime job in the mounted police,"she said proudly.

The Spencers have three other sons, Orville B. Spencer, University of Detroit and Frank Spencer, connected with a local oil company, and a daughter, Mrs. Pearl Knott. Mrs. MacKenzie Spencer, father of the mountie, is general manager of Domine Builder Sup, Rochester, N.Y.

Arrangements for the successful function were in charge of the entertainment committee of which Mr. R. J. Graham is chairman.

PRESENTATION

On Tuesday evening a number of friends and fellow employees gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Daly, 78 E. Moira St., who tendered a surprise party in honour of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Eves, who were celebrating the 12th anniversary of their marriage. A social time was enjoyed by all present, Mrs. W. Foley presiding at the piano. Mr. B. Langabeer was first for the gentlemen, after which Mrs. W. Masterson read an address and presented Mrs. Eves with a beautiful silver vase. Mrs. and Mrs. Eves were very much surprised, and both thanked their friends for their kind remembrance. After a very dainty lunch, and wishing them many more anniversaries, a very pleasant evening had passed by.

Weddings

CHILDS—MORBEY

Tabernacle United Church, beautifully decorated with colorful Spring blossoms and fern, was the scene of a lovely wedding at two thirty this afternoon when Sylvia Grace, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. T. Morbey, of this city, became the bride of Mr. Lawrence W. Childs, Hamilton, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Childs, Westcliffe-on-Sea, Essex, England. The ceremony was performed by Rev. I. B. Naylor.

The bride looked charming in her picture in her gown of white chiffon, fashioned on lines of classic simplicity, with finger tip veil. She wore silver sandals and carried orchids and lilies of the valley.

Miss Vera and Thelma Morbey, sisters of the bride, were bridesmaids and were pretty frocks of net, the former in green and the latter in yellow. They wore corsets of roses, cold sandals and lace mitts. Their bouquets were of yellow roses and sweet peas.

Mr. Harold Cox of Toronto was groomsman, and the ushers were Mr. Alfred Kirkby of Niagara Falls, Ont., and Mr. John Hurst of Hamilton.

Wedding music was played by Mrs. M. F. Duff.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at Fairmont Manor, thirty-five guests being present. Mrs. Morbey, mother of the bride, wearing navy sheer and corsage of sweet peas and cornflowers, and Mrs. A. Hayes, Toronto, wearing brown sheer, with matching accessories and a similar corsage, received with the bride and groom.

Later Mr. and Mrs. Childs left to spend their honeymoon at a summer cottage on Lake Erie, the bride travelling in a smart ensemble of black and white, the frock cut on princess lines, with black hat. Upon their return they will reside in Hamilton.

Among the out of town guests were Mr. and Mrs. A. Hayes, Mr. and Mrs. Marcel Cox, Miss Janet Cox, Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Porter, Mr. and Mrs. F. Cox of Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. K. E. Bond of Hamilton and Mr. Arthur Nash of Galt.

Only One Tender Received For Reroofing Two Schools; Whole Matter Referred Back

Trustee Hyde Against Hiring Outside Labor For Work

EXAMS NOW ON

Excellent Report Received By Board After Inspection by Department

Local Board of Education aware of the fact that repairing or reroofing is needed immediately on the roof of both Queen Mary and Queen Victoria School prepared specifications and advertised locally for tenders on the work.

Only one tender that of a local contractor was received. And upon the launch of the discussion of the Board at its regular meeting held last evening was hinged.

Standing firm on the resolve that as long as he was Chairman of the Sites Buildings and Repairs Committee under which committees tenders were called Chas. Hyde strenuously protested a motion to the effect that further tenders be called for time by advertisements inserted in Toronto daily papers.

"No job in this city will be done by outside labor while I am chairman. I object most emphatically to any labor being brought in from outside this city, except in cases, where local workmen cannot do the work required.

"Open this tender. If it is reasonable, accept it, if not, then do not accept it," continued Mr. Hyde, pointing to the lone, sealed tender which decorated the chairman's table. "If we delay on this matter it's going to cost us more hundreds of dollars."

Only One Tender

"We prepared specifications for this work of reroofing. Three local men procured them. Only one tender was turned in but this was a tender which was entered as a competitive bid. The contractor knew that two other men had secured specifications, but he did not know any tenders were being given in. I am objecting to the attempt against any outsider being given this work."

An explanation for the reason of only one tender being submitted was offered by Trustee Wm. Harrison.

"We called for tenders all right, and we got one. There has been no competition here in this matter. The other contractors, who might have bid on the work would not do so, because under our specifications they would have had to put a new roof over an old one. This they refused to do. If a new roof is put on, the bonding company should specify, that all damage done to building should likewise be paid for, as well as guaranteeing the roof for a certain period.

"In the matter of hiring outside bids, the taxpayer of the city should be considered, pointed out Trustee Ray Zufelt. "It's all right to have our own city men do the work and I am heartily in agreement with this. But we also should make sure that we are getting a dollar's worth for every dollar spent," he added.

Sand on Competitive Bid

Trustee Hyde—"This contractor knew that specifications had been secured by other men. He based his contract on a competitive price"

"If it were my roof, I don't think I'd allow another new one to be put over the old one"

Chairman of the Board H. J. Allin, "I share the condition of the roof I saw on the school, the leaking and so on. I would like to get a gesture on our part right now to have some experienced roofing man look over the matter and see if we can get by this year with patching or repairing. I'd be opposed to the matter right now of putting the new one on over the old.

"Would this work be guaranteed?" questioned Trustee Wotten.

"I'd like to see the contractor's kinds of guarantees from the various first class bonding companies. These people wouldn't put their name in it, wouldn't last because the bonding people's inspector wouldn't let them," assured Trustee Hyde.

"I'd like to see the Sites, Building and Repairs Committee, handle this matter themselves. As it is, it is just asking us to run the risk of master of which we know very little," interjected Trustee Harry Rollins. "Will a bonding company bond a new roof over the old"?

"Yes, all they need is again assured Trustee Hyde. "And they'll have to put it on there while it is being put on."

"I'd like to make an amendment to the amendment, that this matter be referred back to the committee, with power to act" moved Trustee Moncrieff. This was seconded by Harry Rollins and carried when put to vote.

"We've lost three hundred dollars right there" warned Trustee Hyde, who was steadfast in his determination that the lone tender should be opened and either accepted or upon its merits or discarded and others called for.

Final Exams On

In the regular monthly report submitted by Principal F. C. MacLaurin of the Collegiate and Vocational, it was pointed out, that final term examinations of the school have been under way since Thursday, May 13th, and will be completed by Tuesday, May 25th.

"As departmental examinations are being held, I would recommend, that regular classes continue in the Collegiate on Tuesday, June 15th., but that classes in the Commercial and Technical Departments continue with the regular closing period of June 30th. By closing the Collegiate School prior to June 15th., the pupils who have departmental examinations to write will be occupied with their examinations and the masters from the Collegiate who are released from actual teaching will be required to supervise over the pupils who are writing departmental examinations" continued Mr. MacLaurin.

"Inspector Anglin spent part of this afternoon with me in checking over the schools and discussing the term report, which will come into operation next fall".

"In this course all students, irrespective of the courses they may undertake, later on, will be required next Fall to take a General Course. That is all students entering the Collegiate and Vocational School next year will be Grade 9 students and will not be divided into Collegiate, Technical and Commercial departments. This will necessitate some changes in the text books and in the subjects taught; by the various masters, and new report cards will also have to be provided. All students also will be required to pass the High School entrance examinations before being admitted to the regular Grade 9", advised Principal MacLaurin.

Many Convicts Lei

As the lowest tenderer, E. Rutherford will be given the contract for covering the slate in the cloak room and the ash pit; the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company will be given the tender for the supply of the hose for asbestos and recommended replacements by Fire Chief Lynch. Prices will also be secured from the S. Mumings and Sons Limited-Kingsway Nursery for furnishing and placing a hedge at the south-east corner of the Collegiate, and price on pipe for a rail fence.

Through a letter, the secretary of the city engineer will be asked to make preparations for work at the schools during holidays which will include a roadway into Queen Mary School from Charles Street, and also the repairing of sidewalks at Queen Alexandra, Queen Mary and Queen Victoria schools.

Hart Brethren of the city have been given the work of painting six rooms at King George School; Geo. Madden the contract for painting corridors and stair wells on the first floor of the Collegiate and Isaac Stephenson, the tender for painting class rooms on the first floor of the Collegiate.

Belleville Collegiate and Vocational School was given a number one rating by School Inspector R. W. Anglin of the Ontario Department, but conditions in the school are unbearably overcrowded with the ratio of teachers and pupils out of proportion, it was stated in his report tendered the Board.

Nine teachers received a grade of "very good or excellent", six were graded "good" and four "fairly good" from the inspector.

"Art work in the school is very good and pupil's note books show some improvement over last year.

"Work observed in physical culture was good, particularly that in the boys' classes. The very dusty floors still constitute a handicap and menace.

Enrollment at Maximum

"The enrollment at the Collegiate Department is at a maximum, only excellent teaching service, four and nine years ago. It is 36 higher than the number enrolled at the end of previous inspection, and in spite of the increase the pupil-teacher (1-34) ratio of pupils to teachers is still above the maximum set by the regulations.

"The principal of a composite school such as this, with well organized programs, and problems, has an exceedingly exacting task. He should be free from all teaching duties, much, if any, of the teaching. Principal MacLaurin has a full time staff of 16 teachs each week and is in charge of 12 periods of teaching, and several others others, leaving only 18 school periods for transaction of general office duties. He has, however, very capable secretary and assistants, and the school is functioning for the high degree of success which the school has attained," wrote Mr. Anglin.

Again Asks For Sidewalk

In an appeal that something must be done toward constructing a sidewalk on the west side of North Front Street leading to his school, Principal L. A. Kells of King George School cited the two recent grave accidents near the school, and daily threat of more as proof of needed action in this respect. Two small pupils during the past week or so have been struck by cars while crossing the road. In both cases bad injuries were sustained, it was reported.

"Has any letter been sent city council on this matter this year," asked chairman of the Board, H. J. Allin.

"Not yet this year," advised secretary Findlay.

"Then for the fifth or sixth time I am moving the annual recommendation that such a letter asking for a sidewalk without delay, be sent the council," declared the chairman.

"I see no reason why a sidewalk cannot be built now that weld side" agreed Principal Kells.

H. B. FETTERLY GIVES REPORT ON MEET IN TORONTO

Delegate to Convention of Associated High School Boards

MANY QUESTIONS

Board Thanks Member For Fine Report Submitted For Perusal

As a delegate from this city, representing the Board of Education, Trustee H. B. Fetterly, who attended the sixth annual convention of the Associated High School Boards of Ontario held in Toronto, presented his report at the regular meeting of the Board. In expressing their appreciation of the account members voted the wish that it be printed in full in The Ontario Intelligencer. The report follows:

"The Executive met on the evening of May 6th with all ten members being present. The business of the year carefully discussed and the various resolutions that had been received were consolidated and arrangements made for presentation.

"The delegates assembled on May 4th in the Convention hall and after the regular routine business was disposed of, Mayor Broadhurst, Mr. Blake Miller of Aylmer, gave a very comprehensive address on the relation of Education to the conditions existing in many parts of the civilized world.

"He pointed out that many trained artisans are among those unemployed, that many through no fault of their own, but because of changed conditions are finding themselves penniless and forced to relief. He referred to the Revolutions in France and in Russia and compared the conditions in these countries with conditions in many countries of the world today. The masses were oppressed and had to live in a state of misery amounting to slavery, while the rich grew richer and luxury abounded. The intelligentsia became a seething mass of discontent until a Voltaire and Rousseau in France and Lenin in Russia caught the fancy of the masses and led them to the terrible excesses in the destruction of property and the wholesale massacre of the higher classes, which we call the Revolutions.

Educational Methods Change Voted

"He advocated a change in our educational methods and ideals, the introduction of Christian ethics into our schools and into society so that a similar result may be avoided in our own land.

"During the remainder of the session the time was spent in the discussion of resolutions and of topics suitable for the delegates. Some of the more important of these follow.

"A resolution from the Secondary Teachers' Federation for the establishing of a Board of Referees to deal with disputes between Boards and Teachers.

"The trustees were not in favor of this as it was bringing in outsiders to settle purely local matters and infringed on the powers of the local Board.

"2. A request was received from the Teachers Federation for the appointment of a Board of Referees to joint committee for the purpose of formulating a standard form of contract. In the present form a teacher must give notice or terms of dismissal of his contract on or before June 30th while the Board must give notice before the 1st of May.

"A motion was passed making the date the same for both but the association was not in favor of a compulsory standard form.

"3 A resolution was passed asking the Department of Education for school health services in Public Schools and asked that these services be extended to High Schools.

"4. A resolution that the Grants to Secondary Schools be reduced, particularly in view of the probable change in the course of study which will give much additional work. This amendment was accepted after considerable discussion.

"5 The discussion of the Examination System revealed that a great many of the High School have discarded the sessional examinations and are making their pupils term work more practical. Each Inspector keeps full and up records daily; if he wishes give examinations during his class periods. It was pointed out that these system of Examinations are not required by Departmental legislation, waste the time of both teachers and pupils while they are being held and require a large proportion of teachers' spare time to value the answer papers.

"6 The amalgamation of all trustee organizations—the Association High School Board", "The Urban Trustees Association", "The Rural Trustees" and the Ontario Educational Association" — received considerable discussion and it was finally decided that the Department of Education be asked to send out a questionaire to ascertain the opinion of the Boards themselves.

"At noon luncheon on Tuesday Mr. A. C. Lewis, M.A., B.Paed., Principal of the University of Toronto Schools gave an address on the co-operation between trustees and teachers and stressed the fact that the Principal is the business manager and should recommend the teachers to be appointed or dispensed with; that he should consult the Board in matters of policy and should be held responsible for the results.

New Study Course Explained

"At the dinner in the evening the Deputy Minister of Education Dr. A. H. Arthur, gave an address explaining how the new course of study was intended to correlate the academic with the manual and vocational Courses to the tremendous advantage of all students. This transition is to cover a period of four years beginning at the opening of school in September. Latin is to be dropped from the first year course and practical subjects taken in its place.

"It is hoped that by the end of the second year the Teachers will be able to separate the Academically minded pupils from the Manually minded ones and direct them into the channel from which they will derive the most benefit.

"On Wednesday we had an address given by A. J. B. Gray the Municipal Supervisor in which he tried to explain the relations of the Boards to the various municipal bodies.

"I wish to express my thanks and my appreciation to this Board for the honour of representing you and I trust that my efforts will meet with your approval.

Yours truly,
"H. B. Fetterly."

BUY FIXTURES ON INSTALLMENTS

Will Interview Hydro Commission on This Matter

Members of the local Board of Education pondering the question of how to get through the coming year without further cash outlay for needed repairs, which are such an urgent request by city council in order that the pupils receive as much as possible, will go shopping on the installment plan for lighting fixtures for rooms of the city's three public schools, it was decided at its regular meeting this evening.

"That is, we will if we can do business on that basis," was the general agreement of officers of the Board, when the question of needlights for the schools came up for discussion. But under an amendment to the by-law, this expenditure was taken out.

A strong appeal for lights for his school as least was made by Principal L. A. Kells, of King George School, in the matter of lighting and costs was introduced.

"They are needed far more than anything else is needed," stated Mr. Kells. "In the past six years we have been trying to make this insufficient lighting remedied. Unless something is done our children will continue to work under the greatest of disadvantages."

Trustee Russ Wotten—"The Hydro here will sell you an electric stove on credit and you don't have to pay for it, why isn't the credit of the Board just as good. Let us try that system, at any rate."

"It might be managed," agreed Trustee R. Stirrett.

"And we can pay for the work in installments, the same as other merchandise," added Trustee Wotten.

"In this case the joint committee of the Sites, Buildings and Repairs Committee will be named to interview Hydro on the matter.

WONDER BABIES

In their playground they chatter away happily by the hour but their audiences rarely exceed a dozen or a thousand. Their nurses understand them to some extent and the quints have a language of gesticulations all their own, perhaps because of the fact that they rarely utilize silence to emphasize a point.

Far from as pretty as touched-up advertising photographs make them, the Dionne girls are beautiful youngsters—just as any healthy three-year-old child with strong legs, laughing eyes and clear skin is beautiful.

Irresistible

Individually it is doubtful they would attract more than passing attention from even a lover of children except for their pets and happy smiles. But when the five roughish rompers are grouped in a room or their playground they are irresistible.

Visitors in the van of the 500,000 who will watch them play this summer experience a shock at their first glimpse of five children so much alike. There never has been anything like them before, of course, but the realization of that doesn't strike one until they actually are seen running around together.

The spring's influx of visiting Calander from its winter lethargy and the hotel and tourists camps are springing to life. "Kwini Kabins" for overnight tourists are freshly painted and the hot dog stands and souvenir counters that make a commercial "must" out of the quints' front yard are booming again.

Visitors from Every Clime

And the quints are drawing visitors from all four corners of Canada and the United States this year not solely because they are quintuplets. Beginning life as blockbuster curiosities, medical authorities agreed couldn't live, the Dionnes barely bloscomed into a stage where they attract the world's attentions as individuals as well as freaks.

Visitors flocking to their twice-a-day "shows" come away determined they will pick out their favorite, but they quickly learn identifying them in photographs and doing it on the spot with the five moving are different jobs.

The emphasise the point that it is true that in addition they are not just "The Quints." They are individual personalities each with attributes her own in the minds of her admirers.

This new attraction the Quints have acquired will pay dividends this summer in the Province Government which aided them when they were born May 28, 1934, in their father's three-roomed farm house without money and seemingly without a chance to survive more than a few hours.

Doctor to Tell Story

Increasing crowds will drive over Ontario roads to see them and a favored few will hear the story of that drama-packed night from the lips of Dr. Dafoe. He once called it a "miracle," but the quints "dreamlike, unreal," and Dr. Dafoe is able to tell the story.

The scene in the ill-lit farmhouse to which he was called after two of the babies were born will always be in his hazy in his mind. The birth of the third child and then the fourth, Dr. Dafoe said in "The Annals" sea-angel's wife "screamed and fainted at the sight"—Is still something of a nightmare to him.

But the weeks and months following are little less so. The babies—the quints were born prematurely—might have been discouraged. But he kept up treatment for attacks of "blue spells" which turned the babies blue and left them weakened. He brought them through pneumonia threat 66 their lives in a three-week period. Two contracted measles and almost killed them all in the fall of their first year. Then he saw them gain the mastery of germs through their various stages of detention and finally turn them over to their lives since they were four months old.

Hickory, N.C., May 22 (CP) —

The hot water system in Elbert Hotel here is working again, it was announced today.

Fire built a 5oier heating unit on the roof of his house. It consists of a 50-gallon copper tubing in a glass-covered, coffin-like box. The heat of the sun raises the temperature of the water in the pipes to high degrees. In the attic is a 500-gallon storage tank.

Dr. Dafoe discovered the first tooth and the five—Annette's on March 19, 1935, when she was 5 months and first steps in November of that year.

His wide adored also kept him busy up their fortune that will reach more than $1,000,000 before they are five. Now they have $572,765 in cash bonds and money due them under twenty-four contracts that had risen to $861,148. In the past year their wealth has been increased by about $300,000.

IN MEMORIAM

WOLLICK—In loving memory of our dear daughter Madeline, who passed away, May 23rd, 1936, age 22 years.
God knew that she was suffering,
That the hills were hard to climb,
So He closed her weary eyelids
And whispered peace be thine,
Away in the beautiful hills of God,
By the valley of rest so fair,
Some time, some day we know not when,
We will meet our loved one there.
—Ever remembered by Father, Mother, Sister and Brother.

AT THE BELLE

"A Star is Born" Takes Fans to Hollywood

All the thrills of a trip to Hollywood are provided Belleville and vicinity film fans at the Belle today, Monday and Tuesday, matinee daily in "A Star is Born," David O. Selznick's glorious technicolor production starring Janet Gaynor and Fredric March.

For this first great modern story to come to the screen in color is an vividly told, so convincingly played and so brilliantly directed by Wm. A. Wellman that you leave the theatre feeling as if you'd actually paid a visit to Hollywood.

Janet Gaynor and Fredric March have written-to-order roles and have never turned in performances to match those.

Janet emerges a lovely, new sophisticated personality.....with a new hair dress and wardrobe, also Esther Blodgett, the little country girl who comes to Hollywood in search of stardom, faces the 100,000 to one odds as an extra, and scores overnight to fame.

Comedy for March

And March, as Norman Maine, the hard-drinking, has a special extra moment, who helps Janet get her first break; falls in love with her and marries her, has a grand role which offers him plenty of opportunity for the kind of acting of which he excels.

The story which depicts all the thrills and gaiety and heartbreak of a climb to fame in Hollywood was adapted by Dorothy Parker, Alan Campbell and Robert Carson from a story written by Carson in collaboration with Director Wellman.

Adolphe Menjou is at his splendid best as Oliver Niles, the producer, and May Robson is grand as the fiery old grandmother who urges Esther to go to Hollywood and realize her dream of movie fame.

Brilliant Cast

Others who abhne in the brilliant cast are Andy Devine as an assistant director, Lionel Stander as a press agent, Owen Moore, Edgar Kennedy, J. C. Nugent, Guinn Williams and three important new Selznick "finds." These are Ellen Drew, Jenna, an English society beauty, lovely Margaret Tallichet, Hollywood's newest children, who worked on a studio secretary unit who was discovered and signed to a long term contract and the 13-year-old Lana Turner.

All the famous gathering places of the stars come to a very natural life on the screen in technicolor. There's the Trocadero, where the stars go to dance, the Brown Derby, Grauman's Chinese Theatre, the Santa Anita race track, the Hillcrest Bowl as it looks during the annual banquet of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences and many others.

Omer Kiam's costumes are breath-takingly lovely and Lyle Wheeler's settings are splendid.

Supporting the failed as color designer, W. Howard Greene gets credit for the magnificent photography and Max Steiner wrote the music.

"A Star is Born" is perfect entertainment. See it you must.

Sunday-Midnight Show

Romance, melody and laughter are the ingredients of "Shall We Dance," RKO Radio's new Fred Astaire-Ginger Rogers offering which is said to be their best since "Top Hat" in entertainment value. The midnight is announced for a Holiday Preview Sunday midnight show.

With a unique story that hinges on the hectic romance of a noted ballet dancer and an international revue artiste, and dances range from the comic slop on roller skates to gorgeous ballet ensembles, the picture is hailed as one of the finest film musicals ever made.

Edward Everett Horton and Eric Blore battle for the latter, others featured are lovely Ketti Gallian, Harriet Hoctor, America's premiere ballerina.

Six new tuneful Gershwin song hits that you never will be whistling to beat. Jenna, an English society

Arriving in San Francisco aboard the S.S. "Takeia Maru" was Count Michimasa Soyeshima, above, Japanese member of the International Olympic Committee en route to Poland to attend a session of the committee. The 1940 Olympic games will be held in Japan.

JON GANTZHORN, the sensational rookie shortstop of the Toronto Maple Leafs of the International League is leading circuit in runs batted in. Joe has shown such splendid baseball ability under the coaching of Dan Howley of Toronto Leafs. His hitting has been a feature of the Leafs' play so far this season.

Cubs and Bees Convinced No Suitable Substitute for Good Pitching is Apparent

When Hurlers Clicking Teams Go on Winning Streak

TEAMS MOVE UP

Three Clubs Tied For Top Position in Ameri-

By SID PEDER.

It took them a long time to find out, but Chicago's Cubs and Boston Bees are finally convinced that baseball has never produced a suitable substitute for good pitching.

For the entire first month of the season, both outfits fooled around futilely trying to buck the old belief, and both got nowhere fast. The Bees, experimenting with this and that, dropped to the National League cellar. The Cubs, trying to make up for pitching injuries by heavy hitting crashed into fourth place division.

Suddenly, however both have come to life simply by getting hurlers out there on the hill who can bamboozle enemy batters. At the moment, each boasts a six-game winning streak, chiefly because of top-flight flingers. The Cubs, with Lon Warneke back from the hospital and Roy Parmelee and Bill Lee doing their duty, have jumped from fifth to third place, in front of the Giants.

McFayden Finally Clicks.

The Bees, with Jim McFayden finally clicking and a couple of rookies, Lou Fette and Jim Turner, producing, have moved into second, taller, lapped past the Phils and Reds, and are now threatening Brooklyn's bathing Dodgers for fifth place.

And the surprising part about it is that neither the Cubs nor Bees are knocking down any fences with their own hitting. Warneke has averaged some seven hits and five runs a game during the current streak. Boston has about four runs and nine hits.

Neither of those averages is going to do any damage to the record books, but they have been enough to win ball games when the pitching is allowing the opposition five runs or less apiece, as the Bees' leaders are doing, or nine runs in the same number of starts, as the Cubs' sitbowers have.

The Cubs did the heaviest hitting in their streak yesterday in walloping the Giants 8-5, but it was as much the six-hit pitching of Lee Anderson and Bill Lee as their own 12 hits that did it.

The Bees, meantime, took on league-leading Pirates, and, with Tommy MacCreary, Boston first baseman with seven hits, came through with a 6-5 win.

While the National League standings were shifting, the tight circuit race in the American loop continued unchanged as Cleveland, the Athletics and Yankees all won to tie for the top. The Indians nosed out Washington, 4-3, in 12 with rallies in the late innings. The Athletics, paced by George Caster's four-hit pitching and Ted Williams' two-run homer, came from behind to beat the White Sox 7-6. The Yankees were carried to 11 innings before topping the Red Sox, 6-5, with Lou Gehrig connecting for his third homer.

Another long distance effort found the Tigers trouncing Boston Red Sox 4-3 in 11 innings in the aid of some effective pitching by Rookie George Coffman.

Johnny Rigney and Ducky Medwick mauled Brooklyn pitching with homers and led the Chicago White Sox to a 11-3 win over the Dodgers, while Spud Davis' pinch single enabled the Reds to beat out the Phillies 6-5.

On Quarter-Stretch

Eighteen temperamental thoroughbreds will battle over picturesque Woodbine race track today for the King's 50 guineas, the major portion of a $7,000 purse. Goldeye, owned by R. W. Hatch, and Red Pirate, sporting the silks of R. S. McLaughlin, are the favorites.

About 30,000 persons are expected to Woodbine for the opening of the Canadian racing season. A fast track is not expected as several will be played havoc with the underfoot. When Woodbine closes on August 14 it by switches to Thorncliffe race track here.

Summer racing dates for Quebec race track have been set. The program will operate between June 18 and July 5 and Dorval from July 19 to July 26. Dates for Connaught Park, near Ottawa, are July 31 to Aug. 18.

Thirteen two-year-olds will make their racing debut in the first race, R. S. Hatch will be represented by Godensburg and Caracola. R. S. McLaughlin's Dyrdoma will go to the post. All are 1938 King's Plate eligibles.

NUMBER 4

KIWANIS JRS. TO OPPOSE LATTA

Opening Game of South Hastings Loop to be Played on Monday

That familiar drawl of "play ball", that heralds summer and announces the opening of another baseball season, will usher in King Edward Park in Belleville on Monday morning when Belleville's zone baseball entry, the Kiwanis Juniors prepare to open the season's campaign. In an endeavor to revive baseball and interest the youthful generation in the game, the city councilmen in past years brought many honors to Belleville, the Kiwanis Club is again sponsoring a junior baseball league in Belleville and through its members are appealing to the sport-loving public of this community for their support in advancing baseball. The opening game of the morning will be the Kiwanis Juniors entry against Latta.

Manager Bill Cook has four members of his team, including Bob Kelleher, Ralph "Highpockets" McCabe and Ted Gosling to graduate from Albert College, all right-handers and "Lefty" Weeks, his battery mate, will be in the lineup for the Kiwanis Kids. Bill Whalen, Belleville's all-star baseball artist of yesteryears has been sharing the catching duties, with Whalen being also a member of the Kiwanis Club. Initial sack is a lad named Cooper, who hails from Philadelphia and who once worked out with the Athletics in the Big Top. Carson's local lad, who is hitting the ball with consistency. Russ Collins at second and Johnny Hagan at short and Jack Reppers from last year's junior squad and undoubtedly have their berths clinched. While two new-comers McQuade and Plummer are battling it out for the outfield positions. In the outer garden Coach Woodley has a galaxy of stars to draw from including Bill Gordon, Ray Donovan, Ronnie Warren, Doherty, Vandervaeter, McDonald, Hamilton and Sidney and Bill Shaw.

The Junior players of today are the seniors of tomorrow and the patrons of the good old game of baseball will be developed and boost the local juniors on Monday morning.

A general meeting of the club was held in the I.O.F. Hall, Bridge street with a good attendance. Several matters of importance were discussed and disposed of.

The greens will not be open until June 2 owing to weather conditions.

Very few if any of the greens in this district will be open on the 24th of May.

Fred Hindle, chairman of the games committee, explained to those at the proposed schedule for the season and if carried out will give everyone a full day of bowling. They worked hard and here's wishing him all success.

Fred Harper explained to the members the necessity of delaying the opening of the club until June 2nd, in order that the best surface possible was being done to get the greens ready.

The South African game will be played in Kingston on June 21. Five of our bowlers will take part and the Belleville rinks are invited to the dinner etc. Those who wish to go should hand their names in shortly. The first ten to apply will be accepted. Four of the players will be entertained by the Kingston club and games will be played on greens used by the best of visitors from the land of diamonds.

KI-Y LEAGUE

Three games of softball were completed in the local Ki-Y League last evening when the Point Anne kids won over the Terriers by the score of 11 to 9 while the Quinte Y.M.C.A. triumphed over the husky Rangers to the one-sided tune of 38 to 2. The third game played Ronnie Herman clouted a circuit blow to clear the sacks with bases full and give the Lucky Strikes a 1-0 victory over the Bluebirds.

DOUBLE BREAKS UP REAL DUEL

Belle-Sargent Defeat Last Year's Champs. by a 5-1 Count

Art Cole's double in the fifth inning put an end to a beautiful pitchers' battle at Coleman Park this afternoon when the Belle-Sargents finally triumphed over the 1936 provincial champion Percival stores by the score of 5 to 1. Per fire Ramey was knocked out in the fatal sixth inning with the score tier one all when Cole stepped to the plate with the base paths well populated. A single sent three runs across the home base, sufficient to ultimately win the game and elevate the "kick-makers" into a contending position in the league standings.

For five innings Con. Harris, for Percivals and "Buck" Miller for Belle-Sargents locked up in a stellar pitchers' duel. With the Belle-Sargents keeping down a barrage of bunts in the fifth frame that coupled with Cole's double netted the deciding four runs which proved sufficient to eke out a victory. Hits were a premium during the game as the moundsmen commanded interest. Batting for the Bell-Sargents was the sweatsmiths with two singles, while Cole's double was the only extra base hit. Miller, who relieved Harris in the fifth inning, was the only batter to connect for a safety in the initial frame following a hit and a walk. Harris was nicked for seven hits, however.

The Belleville Softball Association will open the season's activities of their new playing field on Coleman Plats for their games on Monday night when Bell-Sargents in the battle of the "kick-makers" at 6.30 p.m. while the Aajmaa Juniors clash with the Cisco lads at 6.30 p.m. on the No. 2 diamond. In the meantime, however the Percival Store nine meet the Lennox Laundry squad at Trudeau Anns in the afternoon of the holiday, but tonight, Point Anne battles the old Coleman Plat diamond.

The line-ups of last night's game: Bell-Sargent—Barrage 3b, McMaster, rf; Hughes rf, Rubell lf, Cole 1b, Robinson c, J. McGuire 2b, F. McGuire ss, Miller p. Percivals — Wilkins rf, Barrage 2b, Ramey ss, Clarke ss, Hammell cf, Riggs 2b, Scott 1b and Phelps lb, Thompson c and Harris p.

Score by innings R. H. E.
Percivals 1.0.0.0.0.0.0 1 5 3
Bell Sargent 0.0.1.0.4.0.0 5 7 2
Batteries: Bhiller and Cole; Harris and Ramey.

MAJOR BOWLERS HOLD BANQUET

Christie Cakes Honored After Winning Both Halves Title

Dave Tobe's Christie Cakes received honors and recognition as champions of the Major bowling league when they held a banquet in Aliegs during the annual banquet and meeting of the league on the Major League held at the Recreation Alleys on Thursday night. During the evening Leader Shiels was elected president of the Major League for the coming season by the 37-32. The Christie Cake quintette won both halves of the 1936-37 Major League league. The champion team was composed of Dave Tobe, Jack Shiels and Art Whalen. The runners-up in the Major League were the Belleville Fruit team.

For the spring league official scoring honors Jack Kee was the high average with a score of 357; Clarence Bryans the high single with a score of 125 and Jack Kee the high three string with a score of 371. Jack Kee was also the high average for the season with a score of 357; Clarence Bryans the high single with a score of 125 and Jack Kee the high three string with a score of 371. In the fall league, however, Joe Legault with 224 for 39 games won the high average honors. Those with a score of 367 the high single and Les Shiels with 809 the high three string. For the combined season of both halves of the league the high average honors went to Joe Legault with a score of 940; the high team average went to the Christie Cakes with 3113 for 18 games in the fall league and 3198 for 18 games in the spring league.

Prior to the major league banquet a meeting was held with Manager Leo Barrett of the Recreation Alleys as host. The following officers were installed as follows:—President for 1937-38, Leader Shiels, Treasurer, Art Wesley, Secretary, Walter Gaine. The entertainment of the evening was supplied by Joe Legault, Clarence Bryans and Corp. Roy of the R. C. A. P. Art Wesley and Walter Gaine of the league favored a vote of thanks to their host, Leo Barrett.

About the happiest person in Belleville today is Coach "Twig" Woodley, the reason being he has unearthed, discovered or found a likely looking junior hurler, he is thoroughly convinced. "Just like mentioned here before, fellow, that's what he is to me," joyously reported Skipper Woodley to us today. "Well it was like this. A rangy kid walked into the Y.M.C.A. office one afternoon recently to work out with our Junior, Thursday night and just when McCabe and Gosling, two other pitchers, had flew the coop. In disgust I sent the towering youth to the mound and before he had worked five minutes I had him slated to a certificate . I tell you the lads gigantic, colossal, yes even stupendous" raved Woodley until we interrupted and asked his name and history. "All I know is his name is Art Campbell and he's attending Albert College, but boy he's a honey and should make some noise

MRS. LABINE GIVEN TWO YEARS IN PRISON

Edmonton, May 22—(CP)—Nineteen-year-old Mrs. John V. Labine, whose defence in her trial for attempted murder was that she shot to "defend my honor" is under sentence of two years at hard labor in penitentiary.

She was convicted yesterday and sentenced by Mr. Justice W. C. Ives for flirting with John Alex Adolph Dreger, 48-year-old implement salesman, at the ball in Labine's Edmonton home, Mrs. Labine alleged Dreger attacked her at her husband's farm at Flat Lake, 130 miles north of Edmonton, when he called March 19 to adjust an implement debt. She and Labine testified the husband had told her to "shoot dead any man who attacked her."

Christianizing India Theme of an Interesting Address

Bishop Lahore, India, Heard at St. Thomas Parish Hall

LANTERN SLIDES

Whirling flashing swords of Tibetan monks grotesquely garbed, fantastic head-dress as they went through the slow mazes of a weird religious dance, high upon the "roof of the world" along the borderlands of Tibet and India in which they balanced themselves on the sharp points of their weapons without any visible injury highlighted a series of motion pictures and culminated a comprehensive insight in the life and progress of India and the work being done in that country of teeming millions by missionaries of the Church of England in Canada, given at St. Thomas' Parish Hall last night by Right Rev. George Barns, Bishop of Lahore and the Rev. C. B. H. Wilkinson of the Kinnaird Mission of the Diocese of Lahore.

The splendid work of the missionaries in bringing to the people of India which represent one sixth of the entire population of the world the word of Christ the advantages of science and of civilization were brought to the audience in a realistic manner through the medium of the screen.

Up-to-date hospitals, boarding schools and vocational institutions erected in the diocese of Lahore and staffed and maintained by Canadians were shown in the pictures of their various activities. In the shadow of the majestic Himalays Mountains native repatriates were seen at work being taught the fundamentals of civilization, through trained white and native teachers.

All Learned Trades

Carpentry tailoring, shoe-making form the principal parts of the curriculum of the various schools for boys, but printing, bookbinding, dressmaking and other equally useful vocations are also taught to the dark-skinned ladies.

Of special interest was the activities of the Divinity School, an institution erected for children of the "Criminal Class." Here the sons of robbers thieves and sometimes murderers, are being taught the better things of life, thus beginning to stop the effects of these schools become, that the Christian brotherhood and fraternise freely within its confines with the haughty Brahmns and other high castes.

Rare too were the scenes of life within a few feet of the camera as shown the various methods of treatment, the daily activities of the inmates and in one instance the close-up of the disease as it affects the body of a leper.

Of more than passing interest were the scenes of missionary work and life in that particular part of India. The primitive agricultural implements used by the Hindu farmer in raising his crops, the long tedious threshing operations and yet-slower methods of land cultivation by means of oxen were all highly entertaining. To a country fair the Rev. Mr. Wilkinson took his listeners. A single view word picture he enlarged upon the interesting scenes flashed upon the screen. Here one saw a primitive merry-go-round with crowds of laughing natives getting the ride. A native potter using a hand-propelled wheel fashioned intricate pieces of pottery including vases of marvellous shape out of handfuls of wet clay. A young farmer display small containers filled with various grains. A unique exhibit from a distant part of India and with a distinct Mongolian type of feature grazed in a native dance to the beating of small drums.

Ceremonies Shown

Pagan religious ceremonies were shown in a somewhat realistic manner. Superstition, ignorance and fear have a terrible hold as well on the minds of millions of natives. Idols of all kinds are the object of their worship. Some are elaborately decorated in silver and gold and accompanied by high priests were shown in a religious parade. Milling crowds of natives surrounded the idols as they were carried along on highly colored palanquins. Gods of pleasure and disturbance of the idols were cunningly arranged by high priests artfully concealed in various positions.

Throughout the entire series of pictures the awe-inspired splendor of the Himalayas formed a majestic background to scenes of primitive and modern life in this vast country.

The "Devil Dance" of the Tibetan monks which showed them turning slowly in a pagan rhythm to the sound of brass cymbals, and the following sequence featuring the sword dance by the monks. Mr. Wilkinson said one of the few motion pictures in existence of this mysterious land. These pictures were taken by a high government official at the risk of his life. Especially if ever before have pictures of this part of the world been shown in Canada.

Prior to the showing of the pictures The Bishop of Lahore in a highly interesting address painted a word picture of life and activities in his diocese. In simple yet impressive eloquence he described in detail the fine work being done by the Canadian missionaries. "Their work in the leper colonies is a splendid example of their ability to go at anything" he said. "Of the four leper colonies in India one is under the jurisdiction of Canadians. When I had the honor to visit it I was impressed by the atmosphere of happiness which pervaded the place."

Various Characteristics

Bishop Barns gave a graphic description of the various tribes which constitute the population of India. He brought out in vivid detail the various characteristics of the many peoples from the fiery Pathan of the hill tribes of Afghanistan to the peace-loving, tear-controlled people of his own diocese. "The untouchables" he said "that despised people of India who of late have been the pawns on the political chessboard of India are in the zone of Christian effort. There are sixty millions of them in India but very like us, have a soul, and can also hope to be reclaimed for Christ."

Rev. C. G. Wright rector of Christ Church acted as chairman for the evening in the absence of the Rev. A. Beauchamp Payne, who was confined to his home with illness. Canon Kaylor expressed the appreciation of the audience for the splendid address of the evening. Bishop Barns closed the entertainment with his blessing.

Marmora W. I. Elects Officers

Marmora—The annual election of officers of the Marmora Women's Institute was held at the regular monthly held on Wednesday evening at the home of Mrs. E. C. Prentice with President Mrs. Ward in the chair. After the singing of "O Canada" and the Institute Collect and reciting of the Lord's Prayer the roll call was taken. The roll call was "Suggestions for next years' programs" and some excellent ideas were forthcoming. It was decided to send a donation to the Red Cross Society to assist them in their work in the flood stricken areas of London. "Current Events" was ably taken by Mrs. Ward. Following the reading and confirmation of minutes of the previous annual meeting and the presentation of a very creditable financial report, (which after paying approximately three hundred dollars, leaves a balance of eighty-seven dollars) the district president, Mrs. Carl O'Carey took the chair. Before the conduction of the election of officers, Mrs. Clancy gave an excellent paper on "Good Citizenship." The officers were elected as follows:

President—Mrs. W. J. Spry.
1st. Vice Pres.—Mrs. W. Peck.
2nd. Vice Pres.—Mrs. J. Gordenier.
Sec. Treas.—Mrs. L. Green.
(re-elected for fourth term)
District Director—Mrs. C. Nickol
Directors—Mrs. E. C. Prentice, Miss M. Brown and Mrs. Ward.
Pianist—Mrs. P. R. Wells.
Press—Miss M. R. Hopkins.
Delegates to the District Convention were appointed as follows: Mesdames W. C. Spry, Clancy, O. Jarvis and L. Green.

The program of the evening following the election of officers was opened with a humorous reading by Mrs. W. C. Spry. This was followed up with a solo by Miss M. Brown and a C contest which was won by Mrs. L. Green. One new member joined the Institute. A vote of thanks was accorded to the District President and the retiring President after which refreshments were served.

Mistress of 'Abbey Dawn', A 'Leader Among Women'

'Jocelyn' in Whig-Standard Pays Tribute to Mrs. Wallace H. Robb

In the "Leaders Among Women" series in the Kingston Whig-Standard, a recent article by Jocelyn concerned a former well known Belleville resident, Mrs. Wallace Havelock Robb.

The article said:

In one of the loveliest settings in Ontario, "Abbey Dawn", I interviewed a charming and gifted woman, Mrs. Wallace Havelock Robb. Being the wife of one of Canada's best known poets on the literary staff, certain responsibilities one never dreams of, but Mrs. Robb is infinitely proud of her husband and their charming family.

Mr. Robb who has established the now famous "Abbey Dawn", is employed in the Kingston Penitentiary but his wife has played in helping him to reach this ideal place of seclusion. It is doubtful if any wife and mother receives more loving tribute from a family, than does this gracious and cunning woman whose first and last interest is in her family.

Mrs. Robb was born in Belleville, Ontario, the daughter of the late Mrs. B. Burrows. She received her education in Belleville and Ontario Ladies' College at Whitby. She was married to Mr. Robb in 1913, and lived for a time in Montreal where Mr. Robb's return to Canada after having gone overseas with the 207th Canadian contingent, they lived for some time in Czaenovia, N.Y., for three and a half years, and then, her husband, desiring to travel, "close to the land", she with him, with their two small children and a baby son, and motor camped over almost all around the country for one year. It was not an easy life, but her sole desire being to assist and co-operate with her husband, all else was forgotten and the little family gathered much happiness from their year of outdoor travel.

After a pleasant trip to New York City, where Mr. Robb was a guest over one week at Authors' Club, Mrs. Robb, on less than an hour's notice, went on the air to interview her husband, when Miss Anita Stewart, director of National Poetry Centre, broadcast his poems. Naturally, a shy and reserved woman, it was a most trying undertaking for her, but as always, her personal feelings were forgotten, in the thought that she might help someone else, especially when that someone else was her distinguished husband.

In an attractive little house close to "Abbey Dawn" Mrs. Robb proceeds with the interesting business of brass work, and here this clever woman spends much leisure, in the most delightful pieces of work, which she disposes of all who see them. The work has grown to great proportions during the last year or so, and no one can resist the visit to Abbey Dawn complete without seeing this exhibition of hammered brass.

They have an ideal family life at "Abbey Dawn" which is situated about five miles east of Kingston. Mrs. Robb's charming personality, ably by this lovely lady and made welcome by all who come in their call. Three children, Joseph, attending Queen's University, Miriam, a charming girl in her last year at the Collegiate, and a young son, Clifford, complete the family.

It is an age-old belief that the mother makes the home, and anyone privileged to be welcomed as a guest at "Abbey Dawn", can definitely feel the unmistakable touch of charm and hospitality, created there by that delightful lady, Mrs. Havelock Robb.

Hilaire Belloc, in his latest book, writes of the history of a strip of land on which the fate of empires and of religion has been decided. "The Battlegrounds in the Holy Palestine", tells the story of this land from the days of Abraham to the end of the crusades. Mr. Belloc sees the climax of history in the coming of Christ and His crucifixion but the end is the defeat of Europe in its one-sided contest between East and West. Written in the vivid style so characteristic of the author, the book will appeal to the casual reader as well as the student of history.His preface is a master-stroke of satire. "This book needs a brief apology. The writer has not only taken for granted that there is a God but also a design in the Universe and in the story of Mankind ....The only excuse he offers for his ignorance is that the present generation is tolerant of novel ideas and that therefore he may hope for indulgence."

The first biography in English of James Hepburn, Earl of Bothwell will challenge the attention of all who have followed with interest the violent and tragic events of this period in Scottish history. The Earl of Bothwell has been portrayed by many historians as an outstanding villain, but Robert Gore-Browne in "Lord Bothwell or Mistheil" shows him as a man quick in decision, typical of his age, incapable of literal rigue. With historical testimony heavily weighed against him by partisan writers, Mr. Gore-Browne's research in the documents has been most thorough. Imparts a much greater wealth of detail to the subject than is generally to be found in the usual life. The author began his biography Bothwell to be a villain but study of the facts convinced him otherwise. Howard Gray, writing in the Saturday Night is powered how much caution must be used in dealing with historical records, attach itself to any individual or faction of the Border age."

The story of an unusual journey is told by Heath Bowman and Sir-ling Dickinson in their book "Westward From Rio". These two young men undertook a unique land voyage across South America which local experts said was impassable. Their journey through the seven countries and covered 6,500 horizontal miles and 17,000 vertical feet. Seven varieties of locomotion were needed to complete the trip: boat, train, aeroplane, motor, motor, oxcar and plain shank's mare. The book is profusely illustrated, entertaining and the woodcut illustrations by Stirling Dickinson are outstanding features.

Stories of mystery and detection hold a strange fascination for the average reader. A novel treatment of famous cases is that presented in the volume "Anatomy of Murder" in which seven well-known writers of detective stories on an equal number of well-known and obscure crimes. In each case, the writer has endeavoured to throw new light on the subject, either by revelation of new facts or by comparison with more recent methods of investigation. Among the writers included are; Helen Simpson, Dorothy Sayers, John Rhode, Margaret Cole and Freeman Wills Crofts.

HOME IMPROVEMENT PLAN
HIP
And How to Improve It
A Series of Articles on Suggested Home Improvements
Advisability, Value, Cost, Etc.

As an example of the versatility and elasticity of the Home Improvement Act a press despatch from Richmond Hill, Ontario, tells of a family who improved their home property by having a large tree removed. This tree obscured the view and was a detriment, and in surveying the home property for needed improvements this was included and endorsed.

GLASS-EYED BANKERS DEFUNCT

Some folks have a dread of banks, picturing those good-natured, but businesslike bankers, as some kind of ogres whose bite is worse than their bark. When compelled to go to a bank on business they are surprised to receive a warm welcome by kindly gentlemen who listen carefully and very pathetically to their story and offer most valuable suggestions. Bankers with "glass" eyes went out of fashion a long time ago.

x x
NO ENDORSER NEEDED

Most bank loans are arranged on promissory notes with the borrower's signature, together with that of an endorser. Generally it is embarrassing to ask a friend to endorse your note, and it places one under an obligation with the prospect of return like favors being expected. Under the Home Improvement Plan the borrower's own signature is sufficient. No endorser is needed, an innovation which is pleasing to most borrowers under the Plan.

x x
IMPROVEMENTS TAX EXEMPT

Two citizens were arguing about the advantages of the Home Improvement Plan, pro and con. One argued that every cent spent upon improvements under the plan would bring increased assessment. The other argued that this was not so, that there was elasticity enough in the interpretation of the Assessment Act, and common sense, enough among assessors to refrain from attaching such a handicap to a government endorsed movement meant to provide employment for citizens out of work. The two arguers deadlocked and appealed to another citizen, listening in, for his udgment.

"Why, you fathheds," said he, "home improvements under the plan are exempt from taxation during the three years of the life of the loan, as provided by an amendment to the Assessment Act passed at the last session of the Ontario Legislature."

And that seems to dispose of that.

x x
PROCRASTINATION IS PROFITLESS

Folks have been putting off home improvements for some years on account of business conditions. The property has depreciated in consequence and it would be folly to allow this state of affairs to continue. The home investment must be protected by long needed repairs, and depreciation loss corrected by increased value.

x x
PROFIT FROM PLENTY PAINT

Save the surface, save all—slogan of the paint manufacturers and dealers, is a good thing to keep in mind while home improvements are being carried out under the government endorsed Home Improvement Plan, designed to provide work for the workless and more business for factories, like Belleville's, lack our builders' hardware factories, lumber retailers and all kind of building material factories, wholesalers and retailers, besides creating increased demand for furniture and house furnishings of all kinds, needed for new rooms and additions. Belleville's share of the profit from these millions are available now, ready to be put into circulation. Let's go!

How Long Can You Fast?

PLAINFIELD W. I.

The annual business meeting of the Plainfield Women's Institute was held Thursday, May 13 at the home of Mrs. Edmund Carleton with an attendance of twenty-seven. The meeting was called to order by the President and all joined in the singing of "O Canada' followed by the Ode. The minutes were then read, the secretary's book audited and the Sec. Treasurer's report given. Mrs. Harry Harrison then very ably continued her lecture on Canadian which was very interesting and instructive.

The officers for the coming year were then elected and are as follows:

President—Mrs. Donald Hall.
1st Vice Pres.—Mrs. Ed. Emmerson.
2nd. Vice Pres. — Mrs. Clarence Marshall.
Sect. Treas.—Mrs. Chas. Beatty.
Directors—Mrs. J. W. Hamilton, Mrs. W. Simmons, Mrs. P. S. Sullivan.
Press Rep.—Mrs. Chas. Beatty.
Pianist—Miss Elsie Hamilton.
Asst. Pianist—Miss Margaret Carleton. Director—Mrs. Harry Harrison.
Rep. to Dis. Annual—Mrs. E. Emmerson, Mrs. W. Simmons.
Alternate to Dis. Annual—Mrs. V. Elliott, Mrs. Wallace Sills.
Auditors—Mrs. Clarence Hall, Mrs. Violet Elliott.

The aprons for the apron contest were then judged by Mrs. Geo. Bailey of Stirling and Mrs. Robt. Dunning. Mrs. Raymond Sullivan was awarded first prize and Mrs. Harry Harrison second prize. The meeting closed with God Save the King and a dainty lunch was served by four members assisted by the hostess.

AIKENS W. A.

Mrs. A. M. Lawrence, 2nd. line opened her home on Thursday for members and friends of the Aikens Women's Association. The delightful weather added to the pleasure of the special "Coronation" address. Mrs. Warren Spafford and Mr. and Mrs. Dan Hoyle were present from Belleville, Mrs. (Col) Hendricks and Mr. Chas. Vanderwater from Marysville Hill and Mrs. Roy Duffin, Mrs. Roy Hinds, Mrs. Fred Meeker, Mrs. Harper Rollins and Mrs. Dr. Wall from Stirling.

The spacious rooms were tastefully decorated for the occasion with spring flowers and red, white and blue decorations in profusion with pictures of the King and Queen in prominence. The usual delectable dinner was enjoyed by all, and at 2.30 the meeting was called to order by the W. A. president, Mrs. Hart Nash who invited all to be seated. The opening number being "God Save the King". After the Scripture reading by Mrs. Aletha Parry, the minutes of last meeting were read by the Sec. Girl was answered with names of ladies who were guests at the Coronation. "The Maple Leaf Forever" was sung in a very pleasing manner by Mrs. Parry Hamilton, and the program that followed was fitting to the occasion, parts being taken by Mrs. Irwin, Florence Moody and Mrs. Spafford. Mabel Hubbs and Ada Maehlum, a duet, also solo "The Coronation March" was played by Mrs. Lee Grills and accepted by all present. During the collection and the reading it was decided to assist the Junior Choir in buying their books, and plans were made for the annual Church cleaning. Mrs. Frank Grills thanked the members of the W. A. for the flowers, cards and remembrances sent her during her recin illness and extended her best wishes for success to the officers and members of the Society.

The meeting closed with the Mizpah benediction.

The dinner collection was $.26

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma was sitting at her desk paying bills and things, and the telefone rang and she went to answer it and just then a fearse bunch of mice all in a bunch run in window next to ma's desk and her papers all skattered around and just took a way, and I hurry up quick closed the window and just then ma came back and she did not look at that, isn't it possible for me to get my back for a minute without reterning to some such gassly scene as this, now just look at my papers.

Well G wizzikers, ma, can I help it if it is the wind, I said, and ma looked at me like I was making up any fantastic Arabian Knights story and I told her the truth is closed tite and if there was any wind it would be about as blown in with your own resources and just look at the result just when I had everything nicely arranged for me, when are you going to develop a little judgement?

Well holey smokes, ma, good note I tell you, I said, and she said, Benny if I just tell you about fabricating a million cocken bull stories to explain something that explains itself only too clearly unfortunately. Now you pick those papers up and I promise you'll be more careful in the future or I'll change my mind about letting you go camping to your cousin Artie's for supper.

But hay, ma, I said, and she said, hay what, and I said, can call Artie up and tell him not to expect you.

All rite, ma, all rite, I'm sorry, I'll be careful, I quick said, and she said, That's better, now pick them up.

Wich I did, proving lots of innocent people are proberly lucky they didn't have to prove it.

DAILY SHORT STORY

Her Technique

By Edgar T. Monfort

"It's a lie! The wicked don't flee and they aren't punished, either!"

Clarice Mackay burst into the room and flung her little fingers into the palms of her hands to keep from screaming.

"Have you lost your mind?" asked Alice Dalmain, calmly looking at her roommate. "For a bachelor girl you certainly lack the poise that is part of our creed."

Clarice merely gave her friend a withering glance, threw her hat on the table and herself into the deep chair by the window.

"But it's the third time this week!" she said after a moment.

"What's the third time this week, asked Alice, glancing across at the slender little figure. Clarice was a lovely girl. Alice reflected, but terribly lacking in poise and so utterly dependent upon Jack Wilders for her happiness. Alice amended more fairly.

"You know that little widow, Mrs. Holcombe," Clarice went on. "Well, she was at the dance Hallowe'en night and I, like an idiot, introduced Jack to her, and the minute she spoke to him I knew it was all up with me. I could see him falling for her right on the spot. She has that pitiful little girl-oh-oh-I'm-too-little-and-frightened-to-cross-the - street - alone manner about everything she does. Oh, her technique is perfect. Don't fret, she's got him bound and gagged. I've seen her with him three times this week and I'll bet he's spent more money on her in that time than he has on me in all the two years he's known me. She's deadly. That's my dreadful secret about it. If it were some little lonely girl I could almost resign myself thinking about how happy Jack was making her, but that thing goes after every man in sight. I know her! And when she sees me she's so sweet to me I could kill her; drags me into the ring and treats me and gushes over me and simply ignores my icy manner. It's impossible to squelch her. Oh, Alice, I'm so wretched I could die! And the worst is she's so attractive and vampish she could marry anybody, and then to go and take Jack away from me, and after I'd introduced him to her."

Never mind, honey, soothed Alice. "Don't you pay any attention to her, and when Jack comes around be just as nice to him as ever. He'll get over it. A girl of that type can't hold a man—that is, not a sensible man—long. They'll all fall for her but the best ones soon find out there's nothing to her. He'll get over it before long."

"Get over it!" sneered Clarice. "You ought to see the adoring way he looks at her. He's head over heels in love with her, and she's just pulling him along for all she's worth."

"I wouldn't be too sure," said Alice, "and I'd let him see me with other men every chance I got. I'd go to dances and movies and anywhere I could."

"What fraud have I to do anything?" said Clarice with exasperation, "I only want to die!"

But all the same she did take Alice's advice and a few weeks later found herself one evening at a party, one of a dozen guests, among them Jack and Mrs. Holcombe. Jack's manner was strained and he seemed entranced in Clarice's presence, but the little widow was her usual gay, playful self. When she saw Jack talking to Clarice she went over to him and tugged at his arm.

"Naughty boy," she teased. "Coons away. You brought little Evelyn to the party and not Miss Mackay! I won't love coons any more, ever, ever again!"

Jack flushed and looked silly. Somehow he felt that she had made a fool of him in the presence of his erstwhile sweetheart.

Isn't he naughty, naughty, Miss Mackay?" she asked, looking mischievously at Clarice.

"I don't think so," the girl answered in her most cheerful manner. "I think he's nice."

"Thanks, Clarice, you always were a trump!" said Jack warmly.

For the first time in Mrs. Holcombe's shallow little life she felt defeated. With a toss of her golden head she turned away from the two and joined another group across the room. Clarice was happier than she had been in weeks. She put a gentle hand on Jack's arm.

"You'd better go back to her, dear," she said kindly, "after all you are her escort tonight!"

"Yes, but darned if I'll ever be again. That's the last time I take me back—for keeps this time," he said, turning away and going toward the window.

The next day he called Clarice Mackay up for a date, and more certain that she had won him back she told Alice all about the little incident of the night before.

"It seems to me the wicked generally punish themselves," said Alice thoughtfully. "She cooked her own goose that time by making him appear ridiculous in public."

"Maybe so," sighed Clarice, "but now I've got him back I don't care about anything."

"THE BRIGHT HILL"

by Clarissa Fairchild Cushman

She came beside him and opened the cupboard.

"They were given to my father," She picked up a knight and handed it to him. It was nearly four inches tall and the resting Chinese warrior was perfect accordant with upper lip and shield and all the trappings of war.

She folded him lumine on the place in his fine strong hands. "They are all perfect but one. One pawn has been broken off." She picked up the pawn in question and showed it and he picked up the pleasure. They all seemed at first glance alike sets of the great five-inch emperor but each one was subtly different in dress and expression.

"Marvelous," he said, and again, "marvelous".

She flushed with pleasure. "You can understand how I prize them. When I left my father I was poor and I carried them for more than two years all over Europe, and I never played with them almost every night." She indicated the carved red box they fit in that, each in his own place."

He looked at her attentively. "So you play chess. It would be an unforgivable experience to play chess with men like that—and with you," he added, and the laughing look came back to his gray eyes. "Perhaps—"

She looked up, smiling. "I would be glad to give you a game."

"Now? There's no time like today."

"Why, of course. If you'd like." She smiled up at him. "Do you like that? Today. I like everything to be to-day—now—this instant." She glanced out of the window at the long shadows.

"I'll tell you. It make tea, while you set up the man." She looked at him, and surprised on his face an oddly questioning look. She dropped her eyes in confusion. Doesn't one ask a stranger man to tea in Friendly yes, judging by his enthusiastic reply.

"I'll put the kettle on and then I'll set the board." She was back in a moment with a folded paper which she opened and thumb-tacked to a low table that Amasa Cammage had scored because its feet were sawed off. The paper was painted with black and white squares. "We used this, father and I. You have to have a specially big board for such big men." She could make, she thought, terrific, over-large biscuits with cinnamon in them. They would take only a minute.

They took tea, with the tea. He lifted the tray from her. "You must not give me, Mrs. Klingsbury, I'd find your things astonishing." He set down the tray and hesitatingly picked up a plain handleless cup and held it to the light. On its opaque ash-colored surface appeared in the light a translucent pattern of flowers. "Is this the kind of thing I mean." His tone was full of satisfaction. "Of course we've all have possessions but so few of us have things worth possessing." He surveyed the tea tray; plain painted in with a worn napkin on it. A second cup and saucer of ten-store Italian pottery, two thin old spoons, hot biscuits on an old handmade tray of beaten silver.

"That cup is for you," she said. "An emperor gave it to my father. Let's play, shall we, as we eat? I feel impatient. I haven't played for—oh—more than ten years."

Kerin almost had him in the first five minutes and after that he played warily, and yet his game was distorted for watching what he thought of as the pretty face of his partner. He had never seen a face as he thought, that so clearly told all a person's thoughts.

It was there in her eyes, he decided, and watched for that flash of her eyes to his that marked each move—satisfaction, triumph, consternation, dismay, the final acknowledgement of defeat.

"You play very well, sir. If I had brought up my knight earlier. You are a fine player." she commented naively.

Laughter lit his eyes. He was more than a fine player, he was one of the best. Next time—

"What are you doing tomorrow?" The words were out almost before he thought.

"Tomorrow? Oh—tomorrow!" Her eyes were dancing. "To-morrow is Saturday. I'm going to an out-of-town auction. My first antique auction."

"Driving?"

"Oh, no I haven't a car. Mr. Cammage is taking me. In his truck."

"Not Amasa —the long-distance spitter?"

"The very one." Kerin laughed a low soft laugh. "He's a friend of mine. He's promised to sing me was chanting all the way to the auction, and tell me what not to buy."

The man shook his head sorrowfully. "You can't go with Amasa Cammage to an auction."

Kerin looked anxious. I can't? Why not?"

Because you're a lady dean—little as you look the part. Why, this little town would be sore with it. Doubtless you are already the subject of gossip, had thinking about it. Don't you know that he's a widower with avowed intentions of finding his third? You don't want to come with me." He picked up his hat.

"Oh!" Kerin's dimple flew in and out. "It's sixty miles away. We were going to start at eleven."

"And stop for a confidential lunch by the roadside? No! no. I could not possibly allow it. I'll stop by at eleven. Bring sandwiches for two."

He put on his hat and went down the walk, while she watched him. At the gate he turned and came back. He lifted his hat again and spoke formally.

"My name", he said "is Gregory Leighton."

"Pleased to meet you," said Kerin. "And by the way, if you came to see me on business about your niece, I don't know a thing about anything."

"Then" he said seriously. "Then we won't have to spend tomorrow discussing business."

INSTALLMENT TWENTY-THREE

Dressed in the honey colored suit and hat which she had seen in the station, thought Kerin, a while one with a yellow blouse—she was ready when he called. Driving in the big car, whose expensiveness she had no means of gauging, with her companion as charming and gay beside her and herself in very quality and in consequential, she thought for a moment of that happy group of three she had seen in the station. And now this was she, Kerin Kingsbury, laughing and chatting in just that way, and the lean brown face and the keen gray eyes were leaning to her with flattering friendliness. And this again was she, Kerin Kingsbury, eating chicken sandwiches a- confidentially by the roadside.

At the auction, which was held in the back yard of a big white house calling itself "The Antique Dobboard, he stood at the back while she chose a chair next to him.

"Has anything good been sold yet?" she asked, cautiously looking at the cupboards and tables and beds and chairs.

"Just trunk," said Mr. Gammage in a hoarse whisper. "Truck bein' sold, truck doin' the buyin'."

Kerin looked around at a crowd she was to come to know by heart: the two elderly maiden-lady sisters who didn't deal but just sold a few things, and always met you at their door with hats and coats on, over which came to suspect, their mother's husbands; the handsome, gray-haired woman who was incessantly talking in an authoritative voice and whose high-water record for smart dealing, often reached the selling walnut lowboy for four thousand dollars: "The old lady who had it wanted to make me a present of it, but I said right out that that wasn't fair—and I insisted she take five dollars for it"; a riffraff of men dealers, smoking and standing together and looking intelligent at the things to be sold, and saying in a low patronizing tone, as if telling a secret, "It's been restored"; and the "summer people" brightly, perishably dressed, examining with under portions of ladies and the insides of dresser drawers and scratching off paint with their pen-knives, and saying loudly, "Perfectly charming. I must have it for Alice's room."

"And now folks, what am I bid for this little glass pitcher? Come, come now! Somebody make a bid. Five cents? Five cents! Ladies and gentlemen—are you joking? Five cents for a blown glass water pitcher? No—don't laugh, ladies and gentlemen, it's a bit more nerve than the rest of you."

"Ten cents," said Kerin, and was shocked to hear her own voice.

"Yours, lady!" said the auctioneer. "Let that be a lesson to you, ladies and gentlemen, to speak up. Now what am I offered for this old blue plate? Got a few nicks in it, but, that's the way they used to make 'em."

Kerin took the little bubble of greenish glass she had bought. It was light as a feather, and the glass ran all crookedly, like water. Amasa Cammage eyed it ingratiatingly. He hoped the auctioneer wasn't going to go on being cut this way. A bit of South Jersey glass, sure as the world, "It's truck," he said to Kerin, fixing her with his blue eyes, "but I'll pay you a half dollar for it if you like."

"I'm going to keep it," said Kerin, always. It will go in the trunk."

"Very severely-fire," said the voice of the auctioneer. "Do I hear a five dollar bill anywhere? Just raise your hand, wink your eye, wiggle your ear—"

"What's he selling?" asked Kerin anxiously.

"Just a chair." The walrus mustaches sorrowed. "I got millions of 'em. Five dollars," he said huskily, and spat liquidly at a barberry bub. "Just like the apple habit," he confided hoarsely to Kerin. "A chair a day."

Towards the end of the afternoon the perspiring auctioneer became truly dramatic. He walked up and down before his diminishing audience and wrung their hearts.

"Ladies and gentlemen: Do you see what I'm selling for only fifteen dollars and seventy-five cents? Do you? A solid mahogany side chair, mahogany, ladies and gentlemen". He lifted one end of it and dropped it and one leg gave dolefully.

"Where can you find 'em for any such price as that? Go out in the country, folks—go out in the backwood, in those old country houses, and offer 'em fifteen dollars and seventy-five cents! Why, they'd laugh at you. Only last week, ladies and gentlemen, I was driving around and I saw one of these cottages on a porch and I said to myself, I'll just see what she wants for it, and what do you think she asked for it? One hundred dollars! One hundred dollars—and it was walnut, folks, and this one." he raised the end and dropped it and the leg again protested painfully. "a solid mahogany".

"She told me seventy-five", said a voice.

"Sixty to me," said another.

"Did you offer her five cash?" asked another.

Really, thought Kerin, she ought to buy it, if it was as big a bargain as that.

Fortunately the voice of Amasa Cammage spoke sadly in her ear. "Victorian", he said with such contemptuous dismissal that Kerin blushed.

Kerin was the last to leave. Her companion (whom she had entirely forgotten) shoved her into the car, richer, or poorer, by a ten cent pitcher, a majolica plate, a blue bedspread, and a carpenter's bench and look, which, with many expressions of disgust, the auctioneer had sold as a favor to a friend.

"Why," asked Gregory Leighton, "carpenter's bench for a lady dean?"

"Because I need a hammer," said Kerin. Mr. Cammage will take it home for me, won't you, Mr. Cammage?"

Mr. Cammage would, gloomily, just as a special favor. There was a bunch of rabbetting tools in there of no use to the lady, and besides she'd never miss 'em. And my cupboard, if you will." Gregory Leighton, it appeared, was the owner of the rickety cupboard with the front doors all carved into panels; it had brought a tremendous price. And be careful of it, Amasa. It's a gem."

"Um—not such a bad piece" These summer people with their loose change burning their pants! Seventy-five dollars, the gentleman said, and Kerin Cammage himself remembering, with profound melancholy, when he refused to buy it for two.

Kerin sank contentedly into the car. "It was awfully good of you to bring me," she said, "I'm afraid I wasn't too much fun for you." She touched her pitcher with loving fingers.

"No?" The gray eyes were warming reassuring. "Why, it's I who have to thank you—for putting me in the way of that cupboard. Otherwise I would have missed it! Why, I wouldn't take any money for it."

"I know," said Kerin, and lifted the pitcher to her cheek.

It was with something almost like panic that Kerin, answering the telephone, heard Mrs. Winters' voice asking, How are you? that she was just in, and would Kerin come down to the office after lunch? Kerin shot her eyes in a desperate effort to remember how Mrs. Winters looked. In the fun of playing bridge, had a carpenter's bench and look, which, with many expressions of disgust, the auctioneer had sold as a favor to a friend.

Not perfect all but. Just perfect. Kerin knew was a little afraid that alone with me Donald might grow to be a —a mamma's boy. But since he's been here—why I've hardly seen him. He's got a game."

Mrs. Winters nodded approval; at the same time she said "Who are they?"

"Oh—Tom Somebody—"

"Tom Chorley."

"And Alec—Dear me—"

"Alec Shoemacher."

"And Gus and Snicky and—"

"They're all right," Mrs. Winters approved.

"Merey! Do you know them?" Mrs. Winters looked at Kerin. "Certainly I know them. The worst part of my job—and of yours, Mrs. Kingsbury—is that we get to know everything about everybody. One doesn't even ask. One gets told. We are the all-seeing eye, the all-hearing ear, the all-remembering brain—also the all-silent tongue. Sometimes I think it's the first requirement of being a dean—never not. Just to ask, never to tell."

"You won't have to remember," said Mrs. Winters. "You're that kind already."

It was amazing, had Kerin stopped to think of it, how naturally and imperceptibly she worked into her job. Born with the intuitive faculty to adapt herself to other people, she became immediately unconscious of the second mind in Mrs. Winters. The friendly decisiveness of the older woman flowed smoothly over Kerin and gave at once a pattern to her days. She was glad to come at any moment necessary to keep her appointments, her office hours, her correspondence, her standing in line at sorority teas, her chairmanship of dances.

"Your day will be too full, the best you can do," said Mrs. Winters, "but that makes for yourself inside the twenty-four hours of duty and leisure as you see it." And imperceptibly, under that firm, wise guidance, Kerin found herself dealing more and more capably with the problems of her office. The older girls, looking to, at first smiled vaguely and said Mrs. Winters. "You're that kind already."

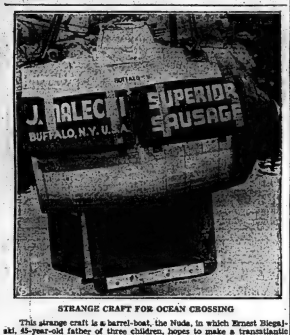
TARZAN'S QUEST

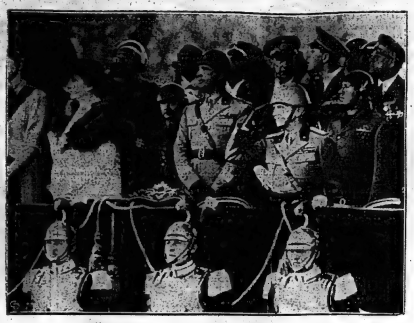
(Metropolitan Newspaper Feature Service)



News of the World as Told in Pictures

SOPWITH'S YACHT ADRIFT IN MID-ATLANTIC

Parting her tow-line during a 55-mile-an-hour gale in mid-Atlantic, the racing yacht Endeavour I., owned by T. O. M. Sopwith, British sportsman who was unsuccessful in his quest for the America's cup in 1935, broke adrift and was last seen under jury rig in mid-ocean, the convoy yacht Viva reported when she reached Newport, R.I., a few hours after Endeavour II had arrived from England. Sopwith had planned to race his two yachts against each other, with the loser of the pair being sent against the United States' defender in quest of the America's cup. Endeavour I, which was unsuccessful in the 1936 races, is pictured here under sail.



STRANGE CRAFT FOR OCEAN CROSSING

This strange craft is a barrel-boat, the Nude, in which Ernest Biegalski, 45-year-old father of three children, hopes to make a transatlantic voyage. The barrel is being lowered into Buffalo, N.Y., harbor, for a preliminary trip across Lake Erie to Cleveland, Ohio, preparatory to being shipped to New York for the ocean attempt.

MOTHER AND SON WIN ROLLER SKATING DERBY

Perhaps the only mother-son combination in the sports world, Mrs. Richard Hogaah and her son William, are shown above after winning the 2,700 mile roller skating derby at Public Hall, Cleveland, Ohio. They are from Louisville, Ky. A closing spurt by Bill gave them a one-point victory in the 23-day derby.

IL DUCE TAKES BACK SEAT FOR ROYAL FAMILY

LOYALIST PRISONERS IN SPAIN BUILD ROADS FOR REBELS

Snapped near Bilbao, strategic goal of the attacking Nationalist troops of Spain, this picture shows Loyalist prisoners re-building roads over which infantrymen of General Franco passed later in their relentless drive on the city. As quickly as the roads are destroyed by shell fire, so are they restored in this manner. Escape of prisoners is prevented by ever-watchful sentries as seen here.

COMPLICATIONS ARISE AFTER GENOVESE WINS TITLE

GORDOON WALLACE — TOP — SAMMY LUFTSPRING
FRANKIE GENOVESE
FRANKIE MARTIN — BABY YACK

Since Frankie Genovese of Toronto registered a surprise victory over Gordon Wallace of Vancouver, to win the Canadian welterweight title, the Canadian fistic world has become tied up in one big knot. Before the title fight it was agreed that if Frankie should dethrone Wallace he would give him a return match within sixty days. Now the big question is whether Wallace, who again injured his hand in the fight, will be in shape within sixty days. Another angle in this leather throwing business is the desire of another Toronto boxer, Sammy Luftspring, to get a crack at Genovese, whom he has beaten on two previous occasions. Frankie, due to his contract, cannot meet anyone in defence of his title until after the return match. With title matches coming off here and here, Baby Yack, clever Toronto bantam, wants a crack at the Canadian bantamweight title held by Frankie Martin of oMntreal. Martin is willing, it is reorted, to risk his crown.

SAILS FOR PARIS

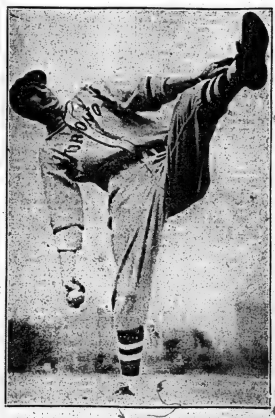
When the photographer snapped Amy Johnson, famous aviatrix, having her coiffure all dolled up for a trip to Paris, the ladybird was taking her first step in preparation for the New York to Paris air race in August. But the U. S. Bureau of Air Commerce has banned the trans-Atlantic derby from American soil. So Miss Johnson, wife of Captain James Mollison sailed for the French capital anyway where she has a special aeroplane already to go anywhere but across the Atlantic in the derby.

BOWLING CHAMP

Upsa Daisy! . . . and "upsa" seems to be the slogan, theme song and goal of pretty Daisy Stater, the pride of the Eugene Bowling League of Oregon. Daisy recently won the northwest international bowling title for women at the annual meeting in Vancouver, B.C. She has a three game score of 564, a mark that was the envy of many men at the meet. She bowls on three men's teams when she isn't leading the women's bowling league.

SEEK CANADIAN TAKEOFF FOR ATLANTIC AIR RACE

Dick Merrill



Jimmy Mattern

Simultaneous visits to Toronto by Dick Merrill and Jimmy Mattern, both ace United States trans-ocean fliers and both tentatively entered in the Lindbergh Memorial Race across the Atlantic which has now been banned by the United States Bureau of Commerce, was occasioned by efforts to secure permission for start of the race from a Canadian takeoff point according to Toronto reports. Should the plan be approved Merrill would reportedly fly a Canadian-sponsored entry. Merrill visited Ottawa before returning to New York, while Mattern, following a conference with interested Canadian financiers left for Burbank, Calif., to take delivery of a new $75,000 racing machine. The fliers are shown here.

SWEDISH PRINCE TO MARRY COMMONER

Junior Prince Carl of Sweden and his fiancee, Countess Elsa von Rosen, mother of three children, are shown above after King Gustav and the Swedish council had granted them permission to marry. Countess von Rosen is a commoner and her forthcoming marriage to the Prince will mean his denouncing all claims to the Swedish throne for himself and his children. Prince Carl, born in 1911, is the son of King Gustav's younger brother, Prince Carl, and a brother-in-law of King Leopold of Belgium.

PITCHED A TWO-HIT BALL GAME FOR TORONTO

After being cast off by the Boston Bees, Joe Mulligan, Toronto Maple Leaf pitcher of the International League, was picked up and nursed along carefully by Dan Howley. Mulligan showed his appreciation to Dan when he pitched a two-hit game for Toronto against the league leading Newark Bears. It was only through spasms of wildness that big Joe failed to register a shutout. During the game he struck out five of the Bears' leading sluggers and proved he was master of the situation.

SUPPLIES AND DEFENCE STUDIED AT CONFERENCE

NEW OBLIGATIONS NOT UNDERTAKEN BY THE DOMINION

Canada, It is Pointed Out Has Doubled Her Appropriations

PROBLEMS OF N. Z.

Quota of Supplies And Co-ordination is Studied

By GEORGE HAMILTON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, May 26 (C. P. Cable) — Canada, it was stated at Canadian headquarters today, is not undertaking any new obligations in regard to Empire defence.

Canadian delegates to the Imperial Conference have insisted on that Canada, in doubling her defence appropriations and thus safeguarding her own territory, has already made a substantial contribution.

Method of Co-operation

Differences of opinion, it was understood, have arisen in the conference over the method of co-operation. Some would like to see a central Empire authority set up in London, which would have authority to bring the various portions of Empire units into line.

The Canadian delegation is against such a step, and feels full co-operation can best be accomplished by the regular exchange of ideas and information.

New Zealand Problems

The conference for two hours this morning heard statements on the question by spokesmen for New Zealand and South Africa.

Alfred Duff Cooper, United Kingdom Secretary for War, outlined steps taken to bring the organization and equipment of the regular and territorial armies up to date. Viscount Swinton, Secretary for Air, made a correspondingly pleasant report in regard to the Royal Air Force. Thereafter Sir Thomas Inskip, First Lord of the Admiralty, told the story of the navy.

The conference is tackling defence from the viewpoint both of supplies and co-ordination. The defence policies of the various Empire units, meeting under the chairmanship of Sir Thomas Inskip, United Kingdom Minister for Defence Co-ordination, in a committee, on which all the Dominions are represented, will continue.

CARDINAL MUNDELEIN

Open battle between the Nazi government of Germany and the Vatican over alleged truce-breaking by agents of Catholics of Germany Catholics by the Reich, is believed certain to be the bitter verbal attack by Cardinal Mundelein of Chicago upon the Nazi Regime. It was admitted by the Vatican that the Cardinal's scathing denunciation expressed unofficially the attitude of the Holy See. Further attacks by Roman Catholic Bishops are now expected.

Clippers Make Survey Flight

New York, May 26 (AP)—The Pan-American Airways flying boat, Bermuda Clipper, left Port Washington Long Island, today for Bermuda on the first of a series of survey flights before establishment of a regular passenger carrying service.

About the same time a British Imperial Airways boat, the Cavalier, took off from Hamilton Harbor, Bermuda, for Port Washington on a similar survey flight. The air distance is 713 miles and the ship which have a cruising speed of 160 miles an hour are scheduled to reach their destinations in something more than five hours.

Franco Rejects Armistice Plea

Bayonne, France, May 25 (AP)—Spanish Insurgent Generalissimo Francisco Franco today broadcast a rejection of Great Britain's plea for an armistice in the civil war and withdrawal of foreign volunteers from Spain.

In a note broadcast from insurgent headquarters at Salamanca, Franco insisted demanded "unconditional surrender or war without quarter".

MANY ENQUIRIES FOR TOURIST INFORMATION

Visitor to Belleville during a brief stop over on a combined business and pleasure trip, Peter Allen, 134 Casino Place, Portland, Maine, points the distinction this week of being the first to visit the city this season in the visitor's book at the Board Chamber of Commerce.

Enquiries from points south of the border for information regarding tourist accommodation in Northern Hastings have strengthened during the past week or so, while a bumper tourist crop is confidently predicted by the Chamber for this year.

FIRECRACKER SUPPLY COMPLETELY SOLD OUT

Belleville's juveniles, and even the oldsters who entered into the spirit of the day, celebrated the memorial day of May 24th in banging up style it was indicated by reports today of local stores whose stocks of fireworks were depleted by the vanishing point late Saturday evening.

By the afternoon of May 24th, drug stores and tobacco stores which remained open reported bare shelves and finished supplies of fire crackers and other pyrotechnic displays, with even the most expensive lines completely sold out.

A complete canvass of the down-town section by one reporter during the early evening of the 24th, failed to produce a single purchase.

BALDWIN PLANS TO RETIRE SOON TO COUNTRYSIDE

Phlegmatic, Blunt, Rugged, He Has Endeared Self to Britons

LOVES THE COUNTRY

Announcement to be Made of Retirement on Friday

By EDWIN JOHNSON
London, May 25 (CP) — When Stanley Baldwin, "plain blunt squire", lays aside the triple burden of Prime Minister, leader of the House of Commons and chief of the Conservative Party, he will have few keener regrets than saying farewell to Chequers, his official country "retreat."

It is generally believed Baldwin will tender his resignation Friday when he lays the responsibilities of office to Neville Chamberlain, Chancellor of the Exchequer. He has already delivered his valedictory to his constituents and indirectly to the Dominions.

Loves Flowers and Trees.

Blunt, rugged, phlegmatic Baldwin has endeared himself to the average Briton as few of his predecessors have done. A typical Englishman, he has never made a secret of his love for the countryside. Free from the worries and distractions of his chief delight is to mull over his favorite subjects, trees, flowers and lakes, birds and livestock.

During his seventh premiership only the most urgent affairs of state have kept him from Chequers at week-ends. And there could be no more telling setting for his role as country gentleman than the historic Tudor mansion, hidden in the beechclad Chiltern hills.

Chequers Bequeathed to Nation.

Chequers was presented to the nation in perpetuity in 1920 by Lord Lee of Fareham, who was then considered sufficiently detached from politics to fill the office in this country." Mention might be made, it is not by a good idea to get a member of the British Royal Family, the Duke of Kent for instance, to allow his name to go forward for the office.

"If a member of the Royal Family was selected the devastating personal antagonism generated in such party politics would have little scope for play. There is every possibility a candidate like the Duke of Kent would be a popular choice.

There is no reason why the president in such circumstances could not become the active embodiment of the United Ireland idea for a prince-president could hold the office of governor of Northern Ireland as well."

BODY IS FOUND AFLOAT IN WATER

Manley Bovay, Trenton, Believed to Have Suffered Heart Attack

Trenton, May 25—(Special)—Believed to have suffered a heart attack and to have fallen in the water from the dock, Manley Bovay, 65, was discovered floating in the water near the Government Wharf, in Trenton, on Saturday evening by John Woods and Coroner Dr. W. J. Conger, who was called, declared an inquest unnecessary.

Mr. Bovay lived with his daughter, Mrs. Albert Holmes and was seen on the Front street one hour before his body was discovered. It is believed the deceased man was walking along the dock and after suffering the heart seizure fell into the water. Mr. Woods, who was fishing near by saw a dark object floating in the water and using his fishing rod managed to bring the body ashore. Dr. W. J. Johnston and Dr. Conger were then called but pronounced death given as the cause of death. Surviving besides his daughter, Mrs. Albert Holmes, and one son, Mrs. Wright both of Trenton.

KICK OF HORSE INJURES CHILD

Kingston, Ont., May 25—(CP)—Kicked by a horse at her home Shirley Greenwood, five-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Greenwood, of Wolfe Island is in a serious condition in the Hotel Dieu Hospital. The child apparently was playing near the horse when the accident occurred.

Annuities to Royal Family Approved by Parliament

Monarchy Says Churchill, is Most Effective Barrier Against Dictatorships th Right or Left

London, May 26 (CP)—Parliamentary approval was stamped today on the civil list that governs annuities to the Royal Family during the present reign.

A labor motion to have the civil list placed "at our own pleasure" pending an inquiry, in consultation with the monarch, tending toward simplification of court life, and a study of how the life of a democracy, was defeated 294 to 102 after which the financial resolution was approved without division. A money bill, it does not go to the House of Lords.

Monarchy As Guard.

Against Labor's plea for simplification of the court and attacks by the Socialists that it assisted the monarchy itself Winston Churchill, Conservative veteran, declared the monarchy was the most effective barrier against dictatorships either of the right or the left.

Clement Attlee, moving Labor's motion, said that Labor sought no republicanism nor did it want the monarchy to be "on the cheap." Labor, he added, hoped the royal family would prosper for many years to come.

People Demand Pomp.

His idea was that the monarchy should become adapted to new conditions. To stabilize the old, ordinary personality is a disgrace to the country," he said.

Churchill returned that an overwhelming majority of all parties wished the pomp and circumstance which hitherto associated with the English monarchy should not be changed from it.

The King and Queen had come forward in difficult circumstances, revealed by the abdication of Edward VIII, Churchill continued. They should be not confronted at the outset of their reign with a long committee inquiry.

Kent Suggested as President For Irish Free State

Might be Governor of North Ireland Say Alastair McCabe

'DETACHMENT' NEED

Dublin, May 25 (CP)—A suggestion the Duke of Kent be invited to become president of the Irish Free State within the new constitution goes into effect was made in a letter to Dublin newspapers today by Alastair McCabe, former member of the Dail (commons).

"In view of the fact that it will be practically impossible to get any man sufficiently detached from politics to fill the office in this country," McCabe added, "however, it not be a good idea to get a member of the British Royal Family, the Duke of Kent for instance, to allow his name to go forward for the office.

"If a member of the Royal Family was selected the devastating personal antagonism generated in such party politics would have little scope for play. There is every possibility a candidate like the Duke of Kent would be a popular choice.

GENERAL MANAGER OF BANK DIES

Dudley Dawson, Dominion Bank, Taken Ill While Playing Golf

Toronto, May 25 (CP)— Dudley Dawson, General Manager of the Dominion Bank, died here last night.

He returned from an out-of-town trip Saturday and in the afternoon played a round of golf at the Toronto Golf Club. He was suddenly taken ill at the club house.

Mr. Dawson's entire business life was spent with the Dominion Bank. Born in Toronto, he entered the employ of the bank at Uxbridge, Ont., in 1896. From that time he climbed steadily until he was appointed General Manager Jan. 26, 1933.

He was moved to Toronto in 1900 and six years later was transferred to Winnipeg. In 1915 he became Assistant Western Superintendent. Three years later he was made inspector and in the Head Office. From 1921 he served three years as manager at Vancouver.

He was appointed Superintendent of Branches in 1921 and Assistant General Manager in 1931.

Independent Church Idea Reported Groping

Manitheim, Germany, May 23.—(CP-Hatas)—The movement for the establishment of a National Catholic Church in Germany Independent of Rome, is growing, it was claimed today at the opening of the Fourth Council of the German National Catholic Church.

The "Old Catholicism" Movement, a schismatic tendency existing since the Vatican Council of 1871, has returned to life under the old slogan of "Away from Rome!" speakers at the Council asserted.

PASSES 3RD YEAR IN MEDICINE

Mr. Jack Empson has been successful in his third year's examinations at Queen's Medical College, Kingston.

PROSPECTIVE GROOM HONORED BY FRIENDS

Jack Grills, popular member of the Bellevile Fusilier Club, who is to be married this week, was the guest of honor at a banquet held in the Perfect Cafe on Saturday tendered by members of the club. Ray Arnott proved a very capable Master of Ceremonies and read an address to the prospective groom. President "Bill" Cook presented Mr. Grills, more familiarly known as "Tubby" to his intimate friends, with a beautiful electric table lamp, and a silver casserole dish. A suitable speech of appreciation was made by the guest of honor.

FARMERS HURRY BELATED SEEDING

With the arrival of warm, dry weather, farmers of the district rushed belated seeding operations over the week - end. In the northern part of Ameliasburgh Edward County many farmers were noticed busy on Sunday, where showers prevented any further operations, and in a few cases farmers continued work on Sunday.

During the next few days fifteen million brook trout will be transferred from greenhouses and hatcheds to the waiting fields of county farms. Plant growers are working feverishly, in some cases until midnight in an effort to get distribution of plants under way before the "rush" comes. By the middle of next week, it is expected, one of the largest outputs of tomato plants ever grown in Prince Edward will be "set out" over a large acreage.

FIREWORKS DISPLAY LIGHTS UP SKY FRONT

Spiralling skyrockets curveting in a wide arc to burst in a shower of colored lights; whirling pinwheels in a rotating blaze of bright colored Roman candles and other forms of the popular fireworks that mark the May Front and Erick's Island late last night as the youth and age of the city celebrated "Twenty Fourth" in traditional fireworks manner.

Echoes of childish laughter rang out on many city lawns where personal fireworks displays were staged. On the main thoroughfares the cracking reports of small "firecrackers" and various noise-making crackers were in evidence as practical jokers played innocent pranks on passing pedestrians. No injuries from the pyrotechnic celebration were reported.

21 DOGS DISPATCHED IN THE CITY FOUND IN FIVE MONTHS

The present year will be a record one for the number of homeless and unwanted dogs of the city, it is indicated by the report of Chief Thornton, made at the city pound, who during the past two weeks has received 21 dogs, the animals of all ages and sizes in the improvised gas chamber.

A wire-haired terrier is at present held at the pound after being picked up lately over the week-end.

SPECIAL BAND CONCERT AT ST. MICHAEL'S TO AID JUNIOR BAND

Following up their service work in the community, the Belleville Municipal Band under the leadership of Lt. 18 TONS WINDOW GLASS UNLOADED FROM GLEN ALLAN

Eighteen tons of window glass in assorted squares for a local firm formed the bulk of the cargo of the steamer Glen Allan, unloaded at the Commercial dock on Monday as the first trip of the season from Montreal. Paint heavy hardware supplies and various miscellaneous packets made up the remainder of the incoming freight. On her trip down, Monday, only 18 boxes of cheese were shipped from here to the east.

Thirty-three more inches of water in the bay and harbor and at the close of the shipping season last fall has facilated docking of boats this season.

BLACK FLIES BAD IN NORTH COUNTRY

Mosquitoes and black flies will be a scourge of the north country this season, it is indicated by the swarms of the flies which are already pestering residents in ever increasing numbers. Residents of the city who journeyed to northern lakes over the week-end found their holiday activities dampened by the pests. Plenty of moisture and filled swamps this season are given as reasons for the large numbers of mosquitoes.

According to reports of Harvey Gunter, of Wesleemoon Lake, never before has black flies been so numerous in that district as they are this year.

MANY ENJOY DANCING AT LAKE

One of the most popular centres of recreation over the holiday was Oak Lake, and the Oakino Pavilion dancing hall which was well patronized, the latest swing hits being played by Dan Fairman's Tuplets. The floor is one of the most modern building erected. Mr. Art Sargeant, brother of Alderman Sargeant, of Belleville, a young man who has had considerable experience in the entertainment line, and his conduct of the Casino Pavilion will be all that can be desired. Mr. Art Sargeant and his wife have joined the great army of trailer nomads and for the past three years they have made their home in a trailer, following the sun south in the winter and returning north with the swallow in the spring. They think it great fun and a perpetual holiday.

JUVENILE SENT TO BOWMANVILLE

Pleads Guilty to Eight Charges, Breaking, Entering, Theft

Apparently the result of reading the lurid kind of fiction is believed by authorities to be the reason for a local juvenile entering upon the life of crime, that terminated in the local Juvenile Delinquent Court, held before Magistrate E. J. Butler, K.C. today. The lad in question pleaded guilty to eight charges of breaking, entering and theft, that included the burglary of Leslie's store on Lincoln shoe store, Agnew Surpass, Reward shoe store, Smith's hardwars, John Shaw's and Dolan's drug store over a period of some weeks.

For the past month each Sunday morning between 8.00 and 8.00 a.m. a robbery had been reported to have taken place at that time. Entrance to the buildings always being made through an upstair window or rear entrance. Despite the fact police were in ambush, their quarry escaped their clutches until Sunday morning, when P.C. Evans saw his quarry on the roof of Leslie's store. A hectic chase followed during which C.; youthful burglar, fearingly slid down a 30 foot rope to the ground and escaped. P. C. Evans, however, made a full appearance following which Chief Kidd confronted word to the boy to report to the police.

When the boy appeared at the police station he flatly denied any knowledge of the robberies, but the descriptions given tallied with the youth's appearance and later admitted his guilt. Taking Detective Reid with him the lad was opened nearly a dozen pairs of shoes, that he had cached behind Frost Street stores after theft. Also cached along with them was a 30 ft. homemade rope ladder, burglar tools and other articles he had stolen.

The boy was committed to the Ontario Training School for boys situated at Bowmanville by Magistrate Butler today. He was placed in the custody of Inspector Huston. His father was present in court and stated the boy had been ill some five years ago, which might have resulted in his present mental state.

POLICE BLOTTER

On three different occasions bicycles were reported to have been taken over the holiday after being struck by motor vehicles, no serious injuries being sustained in any incident however.

Fred Bly, 45, Dundas St. aged 14 years, sustained a slight concussion after being knocked off his bicycle when struck by a motor car driven by A. Allen, George St. Young Bly was riding on Front St. and it reported to have collided with the left front mudguard of the car driven and assisted.

George Lang, 141 West Bridge St. complained some motorist had run over his parked bicycle on Front St. and damaged the bike to a great extent and had been run over, the rear wheel being damaged.

Stanley Archer, Belleville, reported he was riding his bicycle on the intersection of Bridge and Front Sts. when he was struck by a passing motor car and knocked to the pavement. The rear wheel of the bicycle was badly damaged and the motorist failed to stop at the scene of the accident. Archer stated to the authorities. The license plate number of the vehicle was procured by a passerby and provided Archer.

Three infractions of the L. C. A. were reported and will be dealt with in a subsequent court.

FORMER CRIPPLE NOW PLAYS TENNIS

Rheumatism in Feet Relieved

Here is a story of a young man who had almost given up hope of taking part in active sports with his fellow again. He tells how he had one remedy after another and how finally a former cripple is back on the jog way to recovery.

"Two years ago I started with pains in the feet which gradually got worse. I tried 'everything under the sun' but to no effect. While waiting for treatment one evening, another patient advised me to try Kruschen Salts. That was twelve months ago; the trial was not spoken, but the pain and swelling gradually left my feet, and in six months I amazed my friends by taking long walks into the country. This year I have played a great deal of tennis, a thing which I had begun to think I should never do again."—O.W.

Rheumatic pain and swelling is frequently caused by excess uric acid accumulating in the body. Kruschen contains two ingredients which are notable for their work in dissolving uric acid deposits. Other ingredients in Kruschen assist the internal organs to expel this dissolved acid from the system.

FIRE IN JUNK PILE STARTLES CITY FIREMEN

Huge Store of Iron Appeared To Be Burning Brisk-ly

EASILY EXPLAINED

Spectators and employees of Mr. Ben Safe, local scrap iron dealer, stared in astonishment on Saturday afternoon for four o'clock yesterday afternoon as flames and smoke shot high in the air from a huge pile of scrap iron at the Safe yards on South Pinnacle Street.

Firemen, scarcely believing their eyes, trailed hose lines into the burning mass for nearly thirty minutes finally succeeding in reducing the blaze.

The fire originated from a small blaze which had been started by the pile edge or the pile for the purpose of separating the wooden rims of the wagon wheels from the metal-rimmed iron tires. A fickle wind sprang up driving the flames into the pile. Lawyer pile or iron which measured approximately fifty feet square at the base and towered some twenty five feet in height.

A few minutes later flames crept up through the centre of the pile and soon the whole pile appeared to be ablaze.

The flames had ignited old wooden boxes secreted in the centre of the pile. High in the air shot flames and smoke. Realizing the danger Mr. Ben Safe rushed an alarm to the Fire Department which, on arrival, found a blaze after thirty minutes of strenuous work.

It is the first fire of its nature I have ever seen in my life" Fire Chief Gerrard stated last evening "and could scarcely believe my ears when the call stated that a pile of iron junk was on fire, and at first I thought we were the victims of some practical jokers."

70 CHILDREN AT FIRST COMMUNION

Monsignor J. F. Nicholson Spoke of Meaning in Their Lives

Seventy children made their First Communion at St. Michael's Church, at the eight-thirty Mass on Sunday morning. The children formed a procession, keeping perfect order from the Academy to the church, the little girls wearing white and their school uniforms. Music during Mass was beautifully sung by a choir of children, trained by the Sister in charge of music at the academy. Little Miss Dorothy Hall was soloist.

Rt. Rev. J. F. Nicholson, V.G., spoke to the children on the meaning of this day in their lives. It would always hold a place in their memories, as a day of happiness. After months of careful study in preparation for the reception for the first time of Our Lord in the blessed Sacrament, they now have been granted their wish. Each child had a knowledge of the sacrament which gave them the key to the meaning of this wonderful act of the Lord. Our Lord had said, that we must become as little children to enter the Kingdom of Heaven and these little ones were today our models and they must be the heart of Christ. He asked the children to remember all present in their prayers, and to always keep themselves worthy of this great day.

In the afternoon the ceremony of enrolment in the Scapulars was held for the First Communicants and also a number of adults. Monsignor Nicholson spoke on the significance of this badge worn down through the ages as a token of devotion to the Mother of God and reminded them that the month of May was especially dedicated to her. Albert Grand and Richard Gill repeated the Act of Consecration for the class. Music for Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament which concluded the day's solemnity, was sung very sweetly by the children.

THREE YACHTSMEN BATTLE STORM ON LAKE ONTARIO

For Over Two Hours Electrical Tempest Rages on Lake

Following a thrilling twenty-seven hour journey through the storm-tossed waters of Lake Ontario during which they battled a severe electric storm for over two hours, C. Rex Ashbaugh, Norman Clarke and Ernie Smith, three local yachting enthusiasts moored their twenty-five foot Marconi-rigged sloop "Cricket" to the dock at the entrance to the Murray Canal shortly before seven o'clock Sunday night. Starting Tuesday at 5.00 o'clock Saturday afternoon, the sailors headed for the open water of Lake Ontario. A brisk wind blew from the beam quarter and gradually increased until the "Cricket" had assumed the proportions of a modified gale. From the southwest thunderclouds loomed. Flashes of lightning lighted up foam-crested waves, Sam Hill in reporting in a diagonal course, the Cricket pointed her nose for Rochester, with the strong beama wind sending her scudding through the water at a high rate of speed. For upwards of two hours, under full canvas the small craft skimmed over the big waves, while thunder and lightning furnished a thrilling symphony.

Storm Subsides

In the morning a brilliant sun came down on the yachtsmen as they, the "Cricket" held to her moorings and moved the boat at the Murray Canal shortly before seven o'clock that night. Refusal of the locks authorities to open up until midnight held up the journey until early Monday morning, and yesterday afternoon the three yachtsmen anchored their craft at the home dock in Belleville.

"The 'Cricket' behaved admirably," Skipper Ash stated today. "She had a severe test and stood up well. We had a fine time and sails and we came under "sailpower" all the way."

RACING SEASON FOR PUNTS OPENS

Spanking Breeze Enables to Boats to Make Fast Time

The sailing season was officially ushered in on Victoria Day, Monday, when Victoria Day by the Belleville Yacht Club with the conventional opening cruise and race from a large gallery on Victoria Park. With a spanking breeze blowing the small large flotilla of punts dotted the bay, although only eight out entered into the day's racing. All classes were filled and the odd spill and dunking failed to mar the day's enjoyment. The Yacht Club officials were on hand to assist in the opening of the lengthy season and some fine racing resulted before the day's end.

In the class "Duke" Smith's Joka came down in front to win the Senior honors, with Ken Bowen's Rambler won by default, but raced over a distance of course. Another good sailing was seen in the Junior while in the class Cook

ROCKEFELLER SR. CROESUS IN OIL DIES AT AGE 98

Total Givings in His Lifetime Over Half Billion

North Tarrytown, N.Y. May 23—(AP)—Body of John D. Rockefeller was borne northward today to waiting members of his immediate family, carried with the richness, exclusiveness, and lack of public formality which characterized his life.

Privacy was the key-note of all arrangements for final honors to the man who, although a great philanthropist, lived secluded, a shunner of public notice.

The body was in special pullman car attached to a New York-bound express from Ormond Beach, Florida, where the industrialist-philanthropist died suddenly Sunday, two months short of his 98th birthday. He lay in a simple but rich mahogany and bronze casket, bedecked with a few lilies. Friends had been asked not to send flowers.

The train was due in New York about 6:00 p.m. (E.D.T.). The funeral pullman then was to be routed a few miles further northward to a private siding behind the 3,500 acre Rockefeller estate, Pocanico Hills, near here.

Service at Family Mansion

In the 47-room mansion on the estate waited his family, now headed by his only son, John D. Rockefeller, Jr., who is 62. The family had hurried from points as far away as the Panama Canal Zone to attend simple final rites in the great hall tomorrow.

Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick, pastor of the Riverside Baptist Church in New York, built by Rockefeller, will read from the scriptures; the Rev. Lester H. Bird, pastor of the Pocanico Hills Union Church, will participate; a few hymns best-loved by Rockefeller will be sung, and that will be all.

Late tomorrow the casket again will be placed in the special pullman and taken to Cleveland, where Rockefeller launched his fabulous career. He will be buried there Thursday with rites as simple as those arranged here.

His Last Illness

Ormond Beach, Fla., May 23—John D. Rockefeller, sr., founder of the world's greatest "oligarchy" ruled in death today—just 28 months short of his cherished desire to live to be 100. He would have been 98 years old July 8.

The aged man died Sunday at 5:05 a.m. at his winter home. "The Casements" after complaining that he felt "very tired." His physician, Dr. Harry L. Mervyday, attributed death to arteriolic sclerosis, a hardening of the heart muscles.

Died "Poor Man"

The nonagenarian Croesus, who rose from a $4.50-a-week clerk's mastership of a fortune estimated as high as $2,400,000,000, died a comparatively "poor man," a family spokesman said he left a "relatively small, very liquid" estate.

Since his retirement from active business at the age of 57 he had turned the bulk of his fabulous riches over to his only son, John D. Rockefeller, jr., or spent-largely in philanthropic endowments to the far ends of the earth.

In his life-time, out of the gold-en torrent that gained him the sobriquet of the greatest "money man" in all history, he had given away $530,820,000.

Other gifts by his son raised the total to more than $700,000,000.

The man who earned pennies at seven, dollars at 19 and untold millions at 40, pyramiding his savings into the Standard Oil Trust which once controlled three-fourths of the country's petroleum output, turned much of his energy in the last half of his life to giving his millions away.

"I believe it is every man's religious duty to get all he can honestly, and give all he can," he said once.

Institutions in far-lands benefited from his highly-organized beneficence—universities, hospitals, scientific research laboratories, churches and other worthy causes flourished under the gentle rain of Rockefeller dollars.

His greatest contribution was to the Rockefeller Foundation, which received a total of $182,851,480.90, while other organizations included $129,209,167.19 to the General Education Board, $53,911,891.62 to the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research and $34,706,375.28 to the University of Chicago.

Son of Horse Trader

The son of William Avery Rockefeller, jr., genial, easy-going farmer and peddler of medicines, with a reputation of a first-rate horse trader, John Davison Rockefeller was born in a farmhouse in Richford Village, Tioga County, in the Finger Lake region of upper New York State, July 8, 1839.

He was of the fifth generation in descent from Johann Peter Rockefeller, who came with his sons to America from near Coblenz on the Rhine in 1723. The family was originally French, named "Rockefeuille" or "Roquefeiz," meaning "Rockfeller." Bargained With Mother

The young man made his first business "deal" at the age of eight when he found a hen turkey which had strayed away from the family farm. The boy "bargained" with his mother so that he could keep the hen's brood for finding her. He raised the turkeys and sold them at a neat profit.

He got his first job at 18. Forty-one years later, after reaching a donation of "black gold" from the hills of Pennsylvania, he retired with a fortune valued at hundreds of millions of dollars.

ACCIDENTS OCCUR BEFORE NEW LAW GOES INTO EFFECT

15 Killed Over Long Holiday Weekend With Seven Being Drowned

CARS JAM ROADS

Officials at Border Points Quite Busy as Canadians Take to Road

(By The Canadian Press)

A death toll of 15 was tallied today in the wake of Ontario's celebration of the long victoria Day holiday week-end. The list included six traffic fatalities, of which two occurred before the new 50-mile-an-hour automobile speed limit went into effect.

No fatal traffic accidents were reported yesterday, first day of the new regulations under which motorists may travel up to 50 miles an hour on highways. Previously, 35 miles an hour was the maximum speed permitted. Pleasure-bent drivers jammed roads throughout the week-end but police at many points said boosting of the speed limit had little apparent affect.

Drowning mishaps took seven lives throughout the province. At Toronto, one man was killed on a railroad bridge at Bradford when he and his wife and son were trapped by a train while fishing from the span. A Sudbury district boy was fatally crushed by a land roller on his father's farm.

Five others entered thousands outdoors for recreation, to fish or hike, take part in sports or watch others perform. At all border points immigration and customs officials worked overtime with extra help to handle tourist crowds.

Busy at Border

In many places Coronation Day festivities, May 12, overshadowed Victoria Day observance, but fireworks created no set of records. Residents watched a parade of 400 horses and ponies and later heard Hon. A. G. Gardiner, Federal Minister of Agriculture, in Lansdowne Park.

Nearly 40,000 automobiles passed across the Windsor-Detroit border in the three-day period, while Niagara Falls reported a new traffic peak. The Fort Erie-Buffalo section handled 15,000 cars. Ontario Motor League headquarters in Toronto reported few calls for emergency service.

More than two score non-fatal accidents saddened the holiday for many persons. Automobile accidents alone in the three days accounted for injury to almost 50 persons. Six were treated at Chatham after two cars collided head-on. Five were in the hospital at Windsor, two were hurt at Kingsville, three were burned near Smith's Falls.

Two Niagara Falls boys were injured, one having his left hand blown off, when a home-made bomb charged with dynamite, exploded as they celebrated the holiday. Police at Sudbury investigated an explosion in Louis Platko's car in belief it may have been an attempt on his life.

The Death List

Three-day death list follows:

Wilfred Lewis, 19, of Leaside (Toronto), struck by locomotive on Canadian Pacific railway bridge at Bradford, 35 miles north of Toronto. Wife clung to three-foot ledge as train swept by. Son jumped to safety.

James Moore, 31, died when a heavy land roller crushed him.

Albert Turgeon, Woburn, Que., drowned in Kenora District.

Frank M. Aubrey, 27, drowned at Geraldton when canoe overturned.

Robert J. Laughlin, 22, Owen Sound, drowned in barge collision.

William Mackie's body believed found in river at Cobalt.

Laughlin Wiggins drowned in Ottawa River near North Bay.

Edward Trueman, 30, drowned in sludge tank in Toronto suburb.

Manuel Boyer, St. Tresume, found in river.

Irene Hyrkas, 38, Garson Mine, killed, seven hurt, head-on crash of two cars near Sudbury.

Manley Sero, 35, killed by automobile near Picton.

William Fisher, 19, Georgetown, killed in collision north of Hamilton.

Samuel Welman, 40, found dead beneath wrecked truck at Trenton.

Duncan McClellan, Moss Prentship, injured fatally by truck on highway west of London.

Mrs. Hilda Duggan, Windsor, died of motor accident injuries received last week.

ELDORADO

The regular May meeting of the Silver Links Mission Band of Cooper was held at the home of Mrs. A. Bird. Meeting opened with singing and the Lord's Prayer was repeated in Unison. The Bible lesson was read by Mrs. Bird and Mrs. A. Bird gave the Worship Story. The roll call was responded to with a 'Bible Memory' verse. The collection was taken and the study period was read.

A reading was given by Phyllis Parks and Fay Rollins. The minutes were read and business discussed.

The Study Book talk was taken by Mrs. R. W. Rollins. A reading was given by Hazel Prinzie. A contest was put on by Marie.

The meeting closed with the closing circle. Lunch was served and all enjoyed a social hour together.

Rear-End Collision Near Shannonville

Shannonville, Ont., May 25th—(Special) — Considerable damage was done to the fenders and bumpers of a car driven by C. F. Blatter of Oshawa following a rear end collision with a car owned and driven by Kenneth Axford of 3647 St. Irvine Street, Montreal, on the Shannonville-Kingston Highway two miles east of Shannonville early Saturday afternoon.

Blatter's car, it is stated, was proceeding east immediately behind Axford car, when the latter slowed down when the leading car slackened its speed. Blatter's car was rammed by the Axford automobile from the rear. The Montreal vehicle was slightly damaged.

Traffic Officer Sam Ervine, who investigated the accident, stated that a charge of reckless driving would be laid against Axford.

ELEVEN MORE ON EXECUTION BLOCK

Charged With Having Sabotaged Trans-Siberian Railway

Moscow, May 25 (AP)—Eleven persons were reported today to have been executed at Khabarovsk in the Far East yesterday as the number put to death in Siberia within the last few days on charges of sabotage under the direction of Japanese intelligence agents.

The death sentences were announced in a line communique published in the newspaper Pacific Star at Khabarovsk on May 19th. The news reached Moscow today.

The communique said the executions were decreed by a secret session of the military collegium of the supreme court, the same tribunal that sentenced 44 others to death at Novosibirsk, near Khabarovsk, on the eastern border of Siberia and Manchoukuo.

The charges were identical with those in the Svobodny case and included having participated in "Japanese spy, terrorist and diversionists-espionage organizations, acting under the direction and instructions of Japanese intelligence organizations."

The communique charged that the executed persons charged them with having sabotaged the trans-Siberian Railway.

INDIAN LABORER FATALLY INJURED

Manley Sero, Bloomfield, Riding Bicycle Struck by Car

Manley Sero, 35 year old Indian farm laborer, employed by Frank Huff, prominent Prince Edward County farmer, died in Picton Hospital early Sunday morning.

Bloomfield is three miles west shortly after ten-thirty Saturday evening when a car driven by Accent Hicks, of R.R. 2, Hillier, struck him from behind. Constable Sero who had been visiting friends at the farm of Fred Hubbs near Bloomfield, was riding his bicycle at the time, while sharp lightning lighted up the highway at intervals. Hicks is stated rode his bicycle down the Hubbs driveway to the highway swung across to the right side of the road and apparently failing to see the oncoming car, observed the machine directly in front of it.

Hicks brought his car to a stop within twenty-five feet of where the accident occurred, eyewitnesses stated, and immediately turned back to the injured man. The force of impact hurled Sero and his machine in the deep ditch inflicting fatal injuries.

He was rushed to Picton Hospital, where he died on Sunday morning. Chief Coroner D. S. Light-hall after investigation ordered an inquest, which will be held in Shire Hall, Picton, on May 31st.

Sero leaves a wife and three children.

BOMBING RAIDS KILL HUNDREDS

Forty Victims Die in Dawn Attack in City of Palma

Salamanca, Spain, May 25 (AP)—A series of air raids by government bombing squadrons in the past few days was reported today to have caused 300 deaths and seriously wounded more than 500 persons in insurgent held cities.

Reports reaching this capital of insurgent Generalissimo Francisco Franco said forty of the victims died today in a dawn attack on the city of Palma on the island of Majorca. More than fifty persons were wounded, the reports said.

An almost simultaneous raid on Lerida, some 85 miles northeast of Madrid, caused the death of 15 persons and injured a score more.

SON IS BORN TO MRS. LINDBERGH

Announcement Made Child Born on Coronation Day Eve

London, May 25 (AP)—Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh established a protective veil of silence today about his wife and their new born son whose birth May 12 was learned yesterday.

After disclosing the birth to United States Embassy officials, Lindbergh retreated into hiding from every-on his closest friends who wished to offer congratulations.

The only definite information in England was that cabled from the United States of the announcement made by an aunt of Mrs. Lindbergh in Cleveland, Ohio.

Miss Annie Cutler, the aunt, said Mrs. Dwight Morrow, Mrs. Lindbergh's mother, who is with her in England, had sent a letter that "only stated a son had been born" on the night of King George VI's Coronation.

Friends here recalled Lindbergh was a guest of honor at dinners to attend the Coronation ceremony in Westminster Abbey.

Frequent visits of Lindbergh to a London nursing home within the last few weeks stood as the only clue to the whereabouts of Mrs. Lindbergh after the birth was known.

It was generally understood the former Anne Morrow had given birth to the boy there and one report said she had been entered under the name of "Mrs. Charles."

Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh were married May 27, 1929, two years after his flight from New York to Paris. Their first son, Charles Jr., was born June 22, 1930. The second son, Jon, will be five years old August 16.

VICTORIA DAY

Victoria Day holds. Celebrated for one hundred years, for Queen Victoria came to the throne exactly a century ago, it has gained in significance and after her death in 1901 after sixty-four years of rule, the day continued to be observed and undoubtedly will be, as a tribute to this monarch, whose reign was the longest in British history and one of the most influential. She had been the only Queen to reign from the days of Queen Anne.

Queen Victoria helped to mould that vast Empire of half a billion people. Today the crown remains the sole tie binding independent nations. Something of what was seen in the recent coronation was due to her influence as one of the monarchs who have helped to build that happy family of nations, the Empire.

Victoria is the old Latin word for "victory" and the old Romans had a goddess of that name. Britain, better still, has had a queen of that name who lent direction to the unconscious expression of the Empire as we see it today.

JOHN D. ROCKEFELLER IS DEAD

To few persons living was there a day when the name Rockefeller was not a household word, from the day of oil lamps before electricity came into prominence. In the coming of the motor age the name of Rockefeller still stuck though it was the name of a man who was in his upper years and had long since reached the financial pinnacle.

Today the man who made the name of who gave the name this prominence is dead not many months below the one hundred year age he had aimed at.

John D. Rockefeller is an outstanding example of the man who had a set purpose in life. He set himself certain abilities and started on a little but fairly clear way to make wealth. This growth in riches was one of steady progress. He made during his life more than any of the great potentates of the Orient and raised up an oil empire which is one of the marvels of the world. But that was not all. Though he said that he believed it was a man's duty to make all the money he could as long as he made it honestly, he found another purpose—and he achieved it—he determined to live long. At length he lived on seventy-five per cent vegetables and his health was constantly checked by his doctors. Then too, great as the huge fortunes he made, he gave away during his life more than any other man—over half a billion dollars to medical research in the Rockefeller Foundation, to the work for child welfare, to gifts to churches, universities and other philanthropic interests.

Rockefeller held that the spiritual side of life was important. The church which later became Euclid Avenue Baptist Church, was at one time to be sold for two thousand dollar mortgage. Young Rockefeller, who became so rich later in life that he would almost have bought empires, stood in the door of that church, and asked members of the congregation for any gift, however small, to save the church from sale. After many months he had raised the two thousand dollars. Had it not been for Rockefeller who threw himself into the work the church would not have been saved.

Rockefeller knew the burden which went with gold. He knew that riches bring responsibilities. That was the load he placed on his shoulders for it went along with the burden of gigantic financial enterprises and also with the task of giving. That is the way of life. Even to the richest, money is not all. If those who desire riches alone thought it so, then again it is in the nature of things that they could not have made vast wealth for riches do never court the entirely selfish man.

Rockefeller stands out as one of the wizards of modern finance. He was a man of vast resources, great energy and keen perception, though naturally in the making of money in his day he stirred up opposition. Business today is regulated largely by governments and other business but in the young days of Rockefeller, it was more individual. He was blamed for his methods by many, for he lived in an individualistic way. He was blamed for ruthlessness in the acquisition of business. He chose the making of a fortune as his life work while others have other aims.

The man who was believed to be the richest of men will no doubt be remembered not so much for the wealth but rather for those philanthropies. That again is the way in which life works out.

BAREFOOT . . .

Little boy whose feet are barefoot,
You, who have no need of me,
I was once a laughing youngster,
Just as joyous and care-free;
But I sought the open highway,
Following the mirage old;
Thus I learned life's ancient lesson,
"All that glitters is not gold."

Barefoot, run the length of clover,
Wet with dew and spit of snake;
Climb the treetops in the orchard
And the apples earthward shake.
Truant, steal the hours from school-time;
Run where wild flowers drip with dew;
Let the waters of a clear pool
Thrill your body through and through
Wake with shout and happy laughter
Some-one's churlish, sleepy head;
Hear his spluttering words of anger
As you clear a pansy bed.
Wet your lips and whistle gaily;
Drain each golden boyhood hour;
Know the joy that comes from lifting
Cookies from a cooky jar . . .

Taste to fullness all youth's riches;
Soon,—too soon!—you'll find too late
You have thrown away so lightly
Golden key to boyhood's gate.

Lovely Janet Gaynor in "A Star is Born" is being welcomed by many friends at the Belle Theatre, Prettyman. Janet is seen all too seldom on the silver screen, which makes her welcome the heartier when she does come back. "A Star is Born" could very well be a true story of Janet's own life, for she has had her joys and sorrows, and many wounds and bruises in climbing the hard road which leads to cinema fame. "A Star is Born" is a beautiful picture and an appealing true-to-life story of the wife rising on the wings of ambition and talent while her husband sinks into obscurity, snobbiness and a feeling of uselessness as he takes up the role of the husband of the famous Mrs. So-and-So. "A Star is Born" is done in technicolor and is one of the most artistic photographic productions ever to come out of Hollywood.

THE SAME LAWS OF MOST OF OUR STATES PROHIBIT SHOOTING OF BIRDS FROM AIRPLANES, says Dorothy Thompson, New York columnist, in calling attention to the murderous attacks on non-combatants by army fliers in the Spanish series of massacres. Says she:

"In every great city there comes a point where minor issues are sloughed away . . . That point has come in Spain. It is no longer possible for any human being with a head on his shoulders coolly to debate the pros and cons of Royalists and Rebels. For what is now happening there is the ruthless, cold-blooded vicious extermination of one of the rare peoples of the earth, the Basques . . . This little people is one of the few rare and absolutely pure races left in Europe, having a beautiful language and literature, beautiful bodies and faces, a people proud, independent and free, whose history is as old as Europe's and who, during all its centuries, have minded their own business, tilling the soil, and building a domestic architecture of civilization. They are Catholics of deepest piety, and Ignatius Loyala, founder of the most intellectual of Catholic orders, the Society of Jesus, in their son . . . To sit by and not to protest with all the breath in one's body, rules one out of the ranks of civilized and Christian society . . . Good God! The game laws of most of our states prohibit the shooting of birds from airplanes. It is unsportsmanlike."

Trading Insects with Europe

It is a rather interesting coincidence that news items of the last couple of days have told of the export of parasitic insects from Canada to Europe and of import of parasitic into Canada from Europe.

Last year Canada obtained some 28,000,000 Hungarian parasites to war on the sawfly now ravaging our Spruce stands in Eastern Canada. The native habitat of the sawfly is in Central Europe but there another small fly keeps it in check. Somehow the sawfly got transferred to Canada and with no insect enemy present to keep it down sawfly numbers have increased rapidly and today forestry men regard it as the gravest menace to the newsprint and other forest industries depending upon spruce supplies. How long it has been in Canada nobody seems to know but it was only seven years ago that it was discovered and identified. To widen the forces for combatting it Canada is getting still more millions of its parasitic enemy from Europe this year.

While we are thus importing one insect, according to the other news item, we are sending the silver moth and other European countries another species of insect that exists in Canada known as the alder bug. It is described as the number one enemy of the beech, the elm, and potato fields in Europe. On the other side of the Atlantic they regard potato beetle with a grave dread that stands in sharp contrast with the somewhat tolerant attitude on this continent. The difference probably is to be found in the fact that they have got such a foothold here that no hope is felt for their extermination. All that growers look to accomplish is to control their ravages. Of course, they had their origin here—in the southwest of the United States. Europe has made great efforts to prevent their migration across the Atlantic. In this connection one will be recalled the controversy over the ban on potato imports into the United Kingdom from Canada. Apparently the British have succeeded in keeping their potato beetle free of infection by the potato beetle native to North America, though it has effected entry into some European countries. So they come to this side of the Atlantic for an insect to fight it.

It is an interesting international exchange. The sending of insects to fight other insects of imported origin. It is a reminder of the scientists' observations upon the balance of nature. There is just one species that is rather puzzling about the export of the stink bugs. Why do we not hear of their propagation and deliberate use here against beetles in our potato fields? Our research officers have been keeping an eye on poison sprays and dust.

Mosquito Control

To be practical and successful any mosquito control campaign must be based on scientific principles and on an intimate knowledge of the conditions in and surrounding the area in which it is desired to reduce the mosquito population. Without such knowledge much money and effort may be spent on control measures with little measurable effect. The same amount of energy extended on an intelligently directed campaign executed plan may bring considerable relief from these annoying pests.

The first place, not all mosquitoes are blood-sucking. The mere presence of numbers of pools in which breeding place does not indicate that such pools necessarily breed pests. It is a waste of money to treat pools which are shown to produce only mosquitoes which do not attack man. On the other hand success can only be attained by fairly complete coverage of all places which harbor annoying species, no matter how small or inaccessible such breeding places may appear. The species which may be found in any given habitat depends on several factors. Among these are the nature of the waters, whether temporary or permanent, and the nature of the vegetation present. In addition to the above the acidity or alkalinity of the water may restrict within quite narrow limits the species which may breed in any certain habitat. Variations of temperature due not only to weather conditions, but to the shade and extent of the pools may affect not only the time of appearance of the adult mosquito but which species will be found therein.

The extent of the area which must be treated surrounding the area where control is desired depends on many factors. For example, in a much greater extent on the species of mosquitoes found. The reason for this is quite simple; some species are migratory while others travel but little from their breeding places. Of species may travel two, three or even ten miles. Until the habits of such species are present it is evident that the area treated must be limited. If time, labor and equipment, a considerable degree of relief from the pests may be obtained over a comparatively small area.

The foregoing would probably be sufficient to indicate the necessity of considerable preliminary work before any control work is to be attempted with much hope of success. In no case should one be rather foolish to attempt to control the mosquitoes along our waterfront by treating all potential breeding places in that immediate area if the experience of the Bay of Quinte and Prince Edward County were nothing forth large numbers of mosquitoes from the migratory species. To be reasonably sure of success any measures undertaken must be based on a thorough knowledge of conditions.

At the present time a thorough survey of the local situation is being undertaken by the members of the Quinte Beaches Association.

A reader of the Examiner has sent the following note:

The speed with which pictures appear in your paper has not escaped on several occasions and perhaps we get used to it, but not to a little of it. The wreck of the Hindenburg took place on Thursday evening and when I picked up the Examiner the following day there were several pictures apparently taken at the very moment of the explosion. There was one picture of a burned man which I think was too horrible to publish. I may be over-sensitive but I can see no joy reading anything on that page because that picture of the burned man was always there. I do like pictures as they tell the story so well, but is it necessary to publish one like that burned man? It did seem to me it was too awful."

The pictures of the wreck of the Hindenburg were in this office several hours before they were published. The actual pictures of the disastrous burning into flames were impossible because photographers of New York papers were on hand waiting for the ship to arrive at the first time in the season. They were right there waiting when the explosion happened. That explains how the pictures were so realistic.

Regarding publishing the picture of the burned man being helped away from the accident, the editor's the effect was the same on an audience in a New York picture show when a news reel picture of the accident was displayed. Many of the women present covered their faces while others screamed, and even the men groaned at what they saw. Of course, to appreciate the feelings of those who dread looking on a scene which others have previously seen no reason has been injured. Undoubtedly there are those who would prefer to see the pictures, but they do tell the truth when it comes to giving one a clear presentation of how a great disaster has been. Crippled and bent and broken as part of the picture are crippled and bent and burned people who provide the tragedy.

It may be that people who work in newspaper offices look upon such things unfeelingly. But to the folk who get out papers have been through much death in their work, have followed drownings, murders, accident cases, fires, suicides and the like, and the callousness of business has caused them to see a good deal of the tragic side of life. They have gone places and seen things which might possibly shock one who has not been favored to do work of that nature. So it may be they look upon these things in the light of their own experience and not from the viewpoint of the casual reader. It does not seem little of that side of life. If human tragedy is portrayed in news picture our opinion is it should be presented.—Peterborough Examiner.

May Beetles and Farm Biddies

Have you ever noticed when visiting the country during May or June that farmers allow their poultry to run loose in the fields? A city man accustomed to shining off hens as kept in wire-encircled yards, might think there is a bit of carelessness about it, but the very reverse is the case. In fact the farmer is glad to see the hens out there scratching for a living. Busy "biddy" is doing a most useful work, according to the value of the eggs she lays.

Watch the hens busily scuffing away industriously behind plowman as he turns the sweet-smelling sod. They are feeding on the creamy grubs that have been developing in the pipelines in which the mother beetle laid their eggs, and which the plowshare has uncovered. Occasionally the birds take a hand in helping the farmer in thus ridding the soil of the pests.

The white grub is one of the worst of these. Occasionally it lives on the roots of corn, oats, potatoes, the roots of corn, oats, asters, geraniums, strawberries and roses. Entomologists of the Dominion Department of Agriculture made an investigation of white grubs in eastern Ontario two or three years ago and found an average loss of $4.82 per farm.

The May beetles which lay the eggs that become the white grub are burly brown insects that fly about at dusk, often flying into window panes because they are attracted by the light, and otherwise prove a nuisance if there are holes in the screen door. In 1934 a major flight of them caused much destruction by defoliating trees and shrubs in over 6,000 square miles in eastern Quebec.

Hence the fowl and the birds of the air befriend not only the farmer but themselves while they are in quantity.—Kitchener Record.

loyalty to each other and loyalty to the whole commonwealth."

Commonsense Needed

Baldwin said the British constitution was not evolved by a logician. Britain had avoided many troubles because "we have never had to define it. We like anything we have done." Commonsense was better than logic.

"Don't let us put any of our constitution in a straight waistcoat because strangulation would be its ultimate fate," he said. "Don't let us be too keen on definition. If we try to define the constitution too much we may split the Empire into fragments and it will never come back again."

Baldwin proposed the toast to the British Commonwealth and Prime Minister Mackenzie King of Canada, responded as the senior Prime Minister. In the gathering were all the Dominion Premiers, other Empire statesmen and men prominent in British life.

Warm Tribute Paid

Mackenzie King, described by Baldwin as the man best qualified to speak both for the great Dominion and the Empire, on behalf of the Empire, paid a warm tribute to the Baldwin who is about to retire on Friday.

No one in public life at present understood the Dominions and enjoyed their confidence to the same degree as Baldwin, the Canadian Prime Minister said. In what was regarded as reference to reports Baldwin will go to the House of Lords, Mackenzie King expressed pleasure that the retirement from office did not mean Baldwin's retirement from public life.

Mackenzie King said the evolutionary progress of the Empire was still at work. It had already produced from former possessions and Dominions in the outlying parts of the Empire "autonomous" communities, equal in status and in no way subordinate to one another and enjoying complete freedom of association."

Like Baldwin he attributed the Empire's unity to common traditions, common outlook and attitude in matters of government and the common heritage of freedom based upon common ideals, a common allegiance to the Crown and a common faith in divine Providence.

Special Reference to Canada

Baldwin made a special reference to Canada in his speech.

"We find the first to go to Canada," he said, "were the men who brought with them the Catholicism and culture of ancient France following the footsteps of the great French explorers and the great French missionaries, and it was only later that the people of these islands moved up to the north.

"Those were the days of the seigniories and the three children in the house was suffocated by smoke when his four-year-old brother threw a light paper into the crib, setting fire to the blanket.

Yorkton, S. D.: A two-year-old girl suffered fatal burns when she and two small visitors decided to play with matches in her room. The fire had gained considerable headway before the mother downstairs noticed it, and while two of the children escaped, the third hid under a bed and couldn't be located in the dense smoke.

Note: Through long experience firemen have learned that children very often hide under beds when frightened by fire or smoke. It is now standard practice for men to look there cautiously when no answer comes to a call.

Hearst, Ont.: Two children, the older two years of age, were killed in a blaze which destroyed their home. A five-year-old child, who had been playing with matches, escaped.

Here are eight cases involving twelve deaths. And these are just examples from a list before me that is as long as your arm.

Children and matches need chaperons.

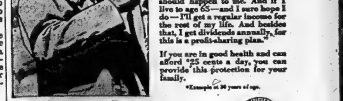
Matches and Children

Somebody once said that "a match has a head, but you've got to think for it."

The same thing goes for children, declares Fire Commissioner and Chief of Department John J. McElligott, New York.

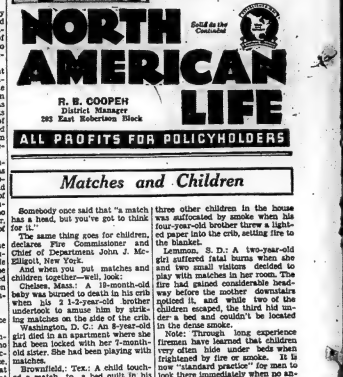
And when you put matches and children together—well, look:

Chelsea, Mass.: A 18-month-old baby was burned to death in his crib when his 1-2-year-old brother undertook to amuse him by striking matches on the side of the crib.



Washington, D. C.: An 8-year-old girl died in an apartment where she had been locked with her 7-month-old sister. She had been playing with matches.

Brownfield,: Tex.: A child touched a match to a bed quilt in his home. He, his brother and his sister died in the resulting blaze.



Guilford, Vt.: Two little girls were fatally burned in a barn when their four-year-old brother set fire to the hay with a match.

New York City: A six-year-old girl died in the hospital from burns received when an entire box of parlor matches with which she was playing at home ignited and set fire to her dress.

Verdun, Que.: A baby left with

MRS. CORNELIA PHILLIPS (Phillipston)

The sudden passing of Mrs. Cornelia Phillips, wife of Mr. James G. Phillips, which occurred at the family residence in Phillipston, in the 8th concession of Thurlow Township, on Monday, May 24th, 1937, has brought deep feelings of regret to a very large circle of friends. Mrs. Phillips, with her husband, spent the past winter with their only daughter, Mrs. McGregor Easton of Ottawa, Ont., and they returned to their home about a month ago.

In the death of Mrs. Phillips, a woman of very fine character, friendly disposition and pleasing personality has been called from this life and memory of her and her great influence for good in the community where she lived over a long period of time, will live long in the hearts of all who knew her.

When age and infirmity overtook Mrs. Phillips took an active part in the ministrations of Phillipston United Church. She was musical and possessed an unusually fine voice and this talent she freely used in the services of the church in which she was an active organist for over forty years. For many years she was President of the Women's Missionary Society and Superintendent of the Sunday School. Her life was devoted to gather about herself kind and those in trouble received always her kind sympathy.

The late Mrs. Phillips was born at Madoc, the youngest daughter of the late D. A. Cummings and his wife Mary Fraser. On her paternal side she was a great granddaughter of the late Col. Cummings and his wife Mary Dafoe of New York State, and on her mother's side she was a great granddaughter of the late Col. Casey of Ketchesom, a prominent United Empire Loyalist family settled near Belleville.

On Sept. 26th, 1926, Mrs. Phillips and her husband celebrated their golden wedding and at that time many friends came from far and near home to present gifts and to express the high regard in which they were held by all residents in the community.

Surviving to mourn her passing are her husband, Mr. James G. Phillips, one daughter, Lena, wife of Dr. McGregor Easton, Inspector of Public Schools, Ottawa, Ont., two sisters, Mrs. Fred Wellington, Saginaw, Mich., and Mrs. C. A. Moore, Hamilton, Ont.

The funeral announcement is made elsewhere in this paper.

Among other matters dealt with during the discussion period which followed was that of proposed improvement plans for the club house which the ladies are planning to undertake. As a means of raising funds to finance this project, a bridge party was decided upon and will take place in the early future.

Mrs. C. Lansing Entertains in Honor of Miss Margaret Reasoner

Twenty-five guests were present at the home of Mrs. Clifford Lansing on Tuesday afternoon for a pantry-shelf shower in honour of Miss Gertrude Reasman, daughter of Mr. William Reasoner, whose marriage will become the bride of Mr. Robert Hall, which took place this afternoon was gaily decorated for the occasion with Spring flowers used. The popular bride-to-be was the recipient of many lovely gifts in keeping with the spirit of the occasion in the form of a dainty embroidered cushion on which was inscribed the names of each invited guest to the function. This gift which was indeed a fine example of needlework was prepared by Mrs. Geo. Reasman.

A very pleasant session of musical numbers and readings occupied the early part of the afternoon and several interesting games and contests were directed by Mrs. Sheldon McIntosh of Cooper assisted by George Reasman who were largely responsible for the fine musical program present on the program. Before tea was served a formal presentation of the gifts were made and the following address read by Mrs. Sheldon McIntosh.

The Address

Dear Gertrude:

We are gathered here this afternoon to prove our appreciation of the happy school days and good times we have spent together in our community. Certainly we shall miss you and carry with you through the coming years our sincere wishes for your happiness which you have proven so worthy of.

We have found you dependable, always ready to respond either with your time or any service you could render, which has meant so much to all who have known you. During your absence from our community we have missed you, but we hope to give you a warm welcome home again.

Gertrude, you are about to embark on the sea of matrimony, we have chosen Bob as your co-pilot, we wish you a pleasant and happy voyage, may your sails be filled with happiness. The sailing will not always be smooth but with your partner at the helm, you may be able to say, at the close of each day "All's Well." We ask you to accept these gifts in the spirit which they are given and let them remind you by continual usage that true friendship never wears out.

What is True Temperance?

The Brewing Industry is an old and honorable industry.

The oldest company book in existence is in the possession of Brewers' Hall, London—the record of the brewing industry in Britain, from 1418 to 1440 A.D.

The industry is, as it has been for many years, an industry for profit. It buys materials, it sells its products, gives employment, and has a capital investment which makes it a responsible industry.

Because the industry carries on a business for profit, agitators in certain communities try to make people believe that it has no social conscience at all—that its effect is to corrupt and debauch.

Yet true temperance is obviously the only sensible policy which the Brewing Industry conceivably could have!

We believe in moderation, which is true temperance! We urge that self-control brings greater good than external control.

We deplore intemperance, if only because it threatens the return of prohibitory laws, general or local.

We don't need another experiment in prohibition to prove that words in the statute book will not change the tastes and preferences of men.

The history of prohibition all over the world has proved the contrary. It has been shown again and again that the evils prohibition caused are greater than those it sought to correct, that its effects are the opposite of its intentions.

No believer in temperance wants to bring back those days, for to do so is to play into the hands of the bootlegger.

There are still minor abuses. No people were ever perfect.

But today the bootleggers have been driven back, and operate, mainly in those areas where there is local option . . .

The hypocrisy of secret drinking, the furtiveness of drinking behind closed doors, has been checked . . .

Respect for law and order has generally been restored . . .

Youth is no longer faced with the temptation of illegal drinking—once considered the "smart thing" . . .

We must not go backward!

• This advertisement is inserted by the Brewing Industry in the interest of a better public understanding of certain aspects of the problems of temperance and local option.

Board Asks Dept. Highways To Modify Traffic Rules

Against Truckers Supplying Milk to Factories Carrying Insurance

SLIGHT OPPOSITION

Members of the Belleville Cheese Board at their regular weekly boarding on Saturday noon went on record as favoring a resolution to be submitted to the Ontario Department of Agriculture, and the Ontario Highways Department asking that an amendment be made to the existing Traffic Act in which truckers supplying milk to cheese factories of this central district would not be forced to maintain insurance upon their trucks.

Previously an outline of the declared difficulties patrons of the factories are having in this respect was given by Mr. Chas. Fralegh, Bloomfield, in which it was stated, a close checkup had been made by traffic officers recently in that district.

"The highway traffic officer over there has been raising a ruction because patrons haven't taken out a public commercial vehicle license, and also insurance upon their milk trucks, which, at the lowest figure, will amount to some $34.00," stated Mr. Fralegh. "We had a meeting about the matter a day or so ago, but it turned out to be an indignation meeting at which strong protests against this insurance were registered. Some of the patrons can't so bad. But farmers just can't afford the insurance and be in the business of supplying milk.

"The resolution has been drawn up to be submitted to the Ontario Department of Highways and the Ontario Department of Agriculture and will be given Mr. Bowerman, our local representative to take to Toronto. This will strengthen his hand in making his appeal. He will ask, that patrons be not forced to take out this insurance", pointed out Mr. Fralegh.

Privileges Abused

"The department has been interviewed on this matter before, but it seems that privileges which have been given were abused by some of the truckers", reminded Chairman of the Board, Mr. W. Morrow.

Maintaining that all trucks using the roads and highways should come under strict supervision of the Ontario Department of Highways "even for the purpose of protecting truckers from themselves" strong defence toward the matter of having all trucks registered and insured was made by Mr. W. McCreary.

"Trucks have become so numerous in every country of the world, that they must be governed strictly. Some of these truckers driving the roads with no financial responsibilities of their own, may at some time get into some trouble for which the factory employing them will be liable to the tune of "many thousand dollars or more", continued Mr. McCreary. "The traffic officer has been on the job over in your section, Mr. Fralegh, as much to protect the factory as anything else. The Board will do well to consider this matter very carefully before passing any opinion by vote on the resolution".

Truckers should carry insurance on their machines, no matter what business they are in, agreed Mr. Harry Chase, Consecon.

Motion Carried

"If these truckers have to take out that insurance, and we over there have five or six milk routes at $43.00 each, thyrn it will have to come out of the price of cheese or the price of milk", warned Mr. Fralegh.

Put to vote the motion that the Belleville Cheese Board support the resolution was carried by a large majority. Only one dissenting vote, that of Mr. McCreary was registered.

Enquiries regarding the "spilling" of cheese by makers made the Board elicited the information, that such "spilling" would be acceptable for sales if this fact were booked on the box.

"We ship quite a lot of cheese that way, but we do wish that they would not call it 'spilling'. We'd rather have the twins than the spilled cheese", commented Mr. James Cook.

Following general agreement among members that this city should have an official cheese weigher, it was decided that the president of the Board, Mr. Morrow, the Secretary, Mr. Mallory and buyers Hamler and Hart be named as a committee to investigate this matter be passed.

Notice has been given, that the Sherwood Glen Allan will commence the first cheese and freight shipping of the season to Montreal from the Rock Port on May 24th, and will make regular weekly trips from here each Monday hereafter.

MADOC

Madoc—Birthday congratulations are in order to Mr. George Rollins. On May 23rd Mr. Rollins celebrated his 83rd birthday. He came to Madoc in 1873 and worked as a linsmiln for Mr. Dale. Five years later he set up a shop for himself and still continues to work at his trade. Mr. Rollins enjoys good health and the citizens of Madoc and his many friends extend to him heartiest congratulations.

Weddings

BAKER—JONES

Marmora, (Special)—At St. Paul's Anglican Church on Saturday morning, a pretty wedding was solemnized when Mary Jones, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. N. J. Jones of Marmora, became the bride of Reginald Bruce Baker of Peterborough. Given in marriage by her brother, Hugh Jones, the bride entered to music played by Mrs. H. Rennie. She wore a gown of white suede lace over white satin, the bodice draperies being caught with a brilliant clip at the neckline. A matching jacket of lace was made with sleeves puffed to the elbow and tightened to the cuff. The front was trimmed with white satin buttons. Her turban was white finished by a small veil and she wore white satin slippers and white lace gloves, carrying a white prayer-book and a nosegay of rosebuds. The bridesmaid was Miss Ruth Jones, sister of the bride. She was attired in a gown of turquoise blue sheer with puffed sleeves and a Peter Pan collar closed by a large pink flower. Her hat, sandals and gloves were in white and she carried a bouquet of pink sweetpeas and fern. The best man was Harry Fowler of Peterborough. The church was beautifully decorated for the occasion with tulips, snapdragons, and ferns.

The happy couple left immediately after the ceremony by motor for Buffalo. The bride wearing a turquoise blue knitted suit and white felt hat with white coat, shoes gloves and purse. On their return they will reside in Peterborough.

WALTERS—CHANT

Very quietly the wedding was solemnized on Saturday, May the twenty-second in the Church of St. Thomas of Dorothy Gertrude, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Joseph Chant to Mr. Charles Henry Hamlin Walters, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Walters. The bride was given in marriage by her father, and Rev. Beauchamp Hynes conducted the ceremony. Professor Ernest Wheatly, church organist, played the wedding music. Following the ceremony, Dr. and Mrs. Walters left by motor through the New England States.

AT THE BELLE

Mark Twain's "Prince and Pauper" Here Tomorrow

According to Mark Twain, the late great novelist and humorist, his story, "The Prince and the Pauper," is one of those things that might have happened.

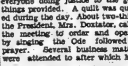
It is the tale of two boy babies born in London at the same moment in the 16th century.....one being Prince Edward, heir to the throne; the other being Tom Canty, brat of a ruffian and thief. And these had been ressemble each other identically ....meet.....change clothes.....get their childish lives all mixed up.

It was a great novel. It became a great stage play. Now it has reached its top heights as a movie, which comes to the Bella tomorrow (Wednesday) Thursday and Friday, because at last the perfect players for the title roles in Billy and Mauch have been found.

They're a pair of what science calls "identical twins." Billy and Mauch are such perfect you may have heard on the radio within the past couple of years. They're so much alike that they can't even tell their own mother can't tell them apart except for one little thing. One of them (you shan't be told which) is left handed.

In the movie Billy plays the Pauper, Bobby is the Prince. This is Bobby's screen debut. Billy played Anthony Adverse in the picture of that name. Mary Ire was Penrod in "Penrod and Sam."

Never did stage or screen have such a pair of twins before. Usually one boy (or girl) played both parts, with trick manipulation. But here is the ideal set-up.



Errol Flynn.....of "Green Light," "Captain Blood" and "Charge of the Light Brigade" fame, is starred with the youngsters. In the cast are such players as Claude Rains, Henry Stephenson, Barton MacLane, Alan Hale, Eric Portman, Montagne Love Phyllis Barry, Halliwell Hobbs and a score of top notch stars.

Holloway St. Y.P.S. Members Hold a Picnic

Yesterday afternoon the Young People of Holloway Street United Church closed their season's activities with a picnic at Mr. Arthur Gills' cottage, near Rednerville. A most interesting time was spent in sports and an outdoor picnic lunch was enjoyed on the bay shore. At the close of the day a very hearty vote of thanks was extended Mr. and Mrs. Gills by Mr. Earl Haley, president of the Y.P.S. for their kind hospitality.

Holloway Street Y.P.S. has had a most successful year. A very instructive, educational, inspirational and deeply spiritual program has been carried out in all departments by the various officers and their groups. Their aim has been to develop talent within the Society as well as have outside speakers. World problems and a discussion of the same were widely featured. A splendid fellowship has been enjoyed throughout the year and the members are already looking forward to re-opening of this fellowship in the fall.

"A Star is Born"

All the thrills of a trip to Hollywood are provided Belleville and vicinity film fans in "A Star is Born." David O. Selznick's glorious technicolor production, starring Janet Gaynor and Fredric March.

For the first really modern story to come to the screen in color is an vividly told, so convincingly played and so brilliantly directed by William A. Wellman that you leave the theatre feeling as if you'd actually been a guest in Finland.

May Robson the grand old lady of the screen, Andy Devine, Adolphe Menjou and Edgar Kennedy head a large supporting cast.

Coronation Pictures

"A Star is Born" will be presented at the Bella tonight for the last times with a very funny Mary Mouse comedy. Tonight and Wednesday, matinee and evening, the Coronation pictures will be presented. The World's most thrilling and spectacular coronation brought to the screen in all its glory. Two complete shows will be presented at 7.00 and 9.15.

"I'm careful of Chrysanthemums!"

"One day last Fall I was fixing a wire over a lady's flower garden. As I was leaving she said 'Thanks for being so careful of my chrysanthemums.'

"'Don't mention it, ma'am,' I said; 'that's part of my job to be careful. Besides, I got a garden at home myself, so I know how you feel about it.'

"I've been doing telephone work in this part of town for fifteen years. Most everybody knows I'm the telephone man. I hope they know they can trust me to be careful of their property."

This kind of personal interest is typical of telephone employees. It is the attitude built up over a period of years, that helps make your telephone service efficient, dependable, and a pleasure to use.

Recent rate reductions saving telephone users $600,000 yearly mean wider use and greater value to each subscriber.

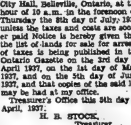
Southern Gold Mines



Southern Gold Mines, operating in South Carolina, continues to obtain high grade ore sections, encountering effort on No. 1, 2 and 3 levels, vertical shaft. In addition a new vein has been encountered in the underground cross cuts which also reveals good ore values and now is being explored. The management also is working out surface exploration and has been successful in making a number of new finds which augment mineral possibilities on the property.

To speed up exploration and development, the mine crew has been increased with a total force of determining possibilities and obtain information regarding size of a mill for the property.

BASS BITE WELL OUT OF SEASON

"Last season during the open season I haunted the Bay of Quinte in hopes of getting a few bass, but all the catches I made I could have been put in one small basket," remarked a visitor to the city's clean fisherman today.

"On Monday I went out for pickerel and no matter where I trolled I got a strike, but when I tried a cast, or dropped a line there I had bass on the end of it. It kept me busy unhooking them and dropping them back overboard. Some of them were good-sized ones, too, weighing up to two and three pounds. And they were striking savagely at anything that was thrown out. Strange as it seems, the only other fish we caught all morning was a fair-sized perch.

WALL STREET CLOSE

New York, May 25—(AP)—Pressure on rails and a gradual revival of demand for steels and coppers gave the share market a ragged look today.

Trading was leisurely. The morning witnessed a fairly general recession, but by afternoon buying of steels and coppers quickened and this inspired some improvement here and there.

Wall Street Bethlehem, Montgomery Ward, American Metals, Anaconda, Kennecott, Cerro De Pasco; American Smelting, Texas Corp., Du Pont, Warner Bros. and Chrysler Steel. Turnover was about 700,000 shares.

TORONTO STOCK EXCHANGE CLOSE

Toronto, May 25 (CP)—Trading on the Toronto stock exchange following the holiday and the close was lower. Volume was down sharply from last week's average. A few of the senior golds turned over in considerable volume, leading, among them McIntyre, Lake Shore and Done with McIntyre a little higher and the other two off ¼ to a point. Recessions predominated throughout the gold and industrial lists.

Foods, steels, beverages and the cheaper oils registered a preponderance of narrow downward adjustments. Losses of ½ to ¾ came out for Canners B, Consolidated Bakeries, Dominion Stores, Penny Farmer and National Grocers and in the steels Steel Canada was lower for Burlington, Dominion Steel, Frost Pfd., United Steel and English Elastic A. Canadian Indies slipped a point. While Abitibi common was steady to strong. Canada Packers Lake Paper issues were down ½ to a full point. In the utilities closing prices were off for Brazilian and Saguenay and Walker's common, Canada Malting and Steamship Corporation pfd. were weaker by fractions.

Splendid Relief Hurling By Dick Coffman Enables Hubbell To Win 7th Consecutive Start

Tiger Outfielder Held Hitless For First Time Since Opening Game

By BILL BONI
Associated Press Sports Writer

A king, still king though his throne tottered dangerously, and a gang of marauders once again threatening to rip the American League apart today furnished baseball's biggest news.

The King is Carl Hubbell, who makes a screw-ball something to be swung, but was clubbed at. The marauders are the Yankees, walkaway champions in the junior circuit last season and 1936, but whose batting eye regained, back on top of the heap with a full game advantage over Philadelphia Athletics, who dropped an 8-6 verdict to the Browns.

Hubbell, credited with the Giants' 4-3 defeat of the National League leading Pirates yesterday, thereby added the Pirates' scalp to his string of unbroken league triumphs. But the master faltered toward the end, gave up eight Buss hits in the last four innings and had to be rescued in the form of the ninth by Relief Dick Coffman, who fanned Johnny Dickshot with two out and the bases loaded.

Yanks Top American

The Giants, through the victory, moved into a virtual tie with the second place and idle Cardinals, though in the percentages they are two points behind. The Yanks, meanwhile, scoring such half-measures, ousted Cleveland from the American League lead by battering the Indians into 16-0 submission.

Another streak ended in Washington when, though the Tigers beat the Senators, 5-1, Tiger Gerald Walker failed to hit for the first time since the start of the season a year ago. Mickey Cochrane, however, found sufficient reason for joy in catching for Rorie Lawson as the six-foot righthander hung up his seventh victory of the year—a total equalled only by the peerless Hubbell.

The Red Sox, with Jimmy Foxx's homer and two doubles by Joe Cronin, hit stick gave veteran Rube Walberg his first win, jumped into seventh place by the finish of the second division by trimming the White Sox, 8-3. The Browns were unable to come out of the cellar despite their 8-6 defeat of the A's, a defeat achieved primarily by the heavy hitting of Harland Clift and the neat relief pitching of Jack Knott.

Sports Roundup

By EDDIE BRIETZ
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

New York, May 25.—(AP)—This is baseball for you: Just as Commissioner Spencer Abbott was the toast of the Seattle Luncheon Clubs for bringing his Indians home from the road in first place. Today he is looking for a job. He was fired because the Seattle owners said the players couldn't stand his riding. That too bad....Suppose they had been working for the late John McGraw.....

Are the Wimbledon brass hats denying Fred Perry free ads by the stands for the championship matches?.....

Sunny Brief, the old home run king, now is professor of sandlot baseball in Milwaukee....and teaching the kids how to lift 'em over the pailings, too.

They say Mrs. Dizzy Dean sits right in the poker games with her hubby at the Chief of the Cardinals. Back in 1904, Bill Dineen, American League Umpire, pitched 27 complete games for Boston Red Sox and still holds the record for going through 227 innings without being relieved.....Out in Chicago last week, the Dodgers had men on first and third with two out.....'I'll bet you a case of beer we score," yelled Burleigh Grimes to Gabby Hartnett.....'You're on," Gabby shouted back .....A minute later the runners on first and third undertook a double steal.....Hartnett's bullet to the throw to Jurges was returned just as promptly and the runner was out at the plate.....Looks like the next round's on Burleigh.....Prost....

McLaughlin's Filly A Smart Juvenile

(By The Canadian Press)
The next engagement on the list for Goldiure, winner of the King's Plate, will be the Prince of Wales handicap at Thorncliffe race track next week. Goldiure owned by H. C. Hatch of Agincourt, defeated H. R. Bain's Cease Fire in Canada's classic at Woodbine Park, Saturday, R. S. McLaughlin's Silver Jubilee was third. The time was 1.33 3-5.

Bryanston paid the longest price of the meet when he won the 7-8 mile hurdle event yesterday. He returned $57.80 for every $2 winning ocean. He was fractionally out post, but took the lead at the break and was never headed.

J. E. Smallman's Sam Worthy trounced a shifty band of spotters in a six furlong dash. Sam Worthy came from behind the pace to win a close decision over H. C. Hatch's Sweepden. Worthy Duke was third.

The best performance by a Canadian-foaled two-year-old was displayed by Patterico, owned by H. S. McLaughlin.

The Fleet, daughter of Pompey, is a four-length winner in a five mile dash. Jockey Bobby Watson went to the top flight after the race and was the best of the lot. She is 1938 King's Plate eligible.

MILTON WALLACE BREAKS RECORD

Win 10 Mile Road Race Breaking Mark of Ten Year's Standing

St. Catharines, Ont., May 25—(CP)—Distance runners tried for 14 years to break the Canadian 10-mile record but it took Milton Wallace of Toronto to turn the trick. Paced by Preston's famed road-runner, Bobby Sandiford, Wallace clipped 22 1-2 seconds off the old mark and hung up a new one of 52 minutes and 22 seconds.

First in a field of 61 in the annual Hamilton-St. Catharines race yesterday, Wallace followed Hankins Preston for the first seven miles when he turned on the steam and left the Scot by 10 feet. Walter Hornby, Hamilton, followed Rankine by 200 yards with Duncan Mc-Farlane, Toronto, finishing fourth.

Stuart Allan, Vice-President of the road race set the mark 14 years ago, presented the victor's cup to the Toronto champion. A pair of veterans who were in the race 24 years ago were given special awards. Jimmy Dellow and Percy Wyer, first and seventh in 1913, failed to finish in the first 10 yesterday.

Rankine set the pace from the start but Wallace never allowed his stocky rival to gain too far a lead. Going into the third lap they ran neck and neck with Hornby seven behind but on the fourth and final circuit Wallace called on reserve strength and spurted ahead to break the tape.

BATEMAN HURLS PERFECT GAME AGAINST CIACOS

Point Anne Hurler Does Not Allow Hit or Runner to Reach First

CORBINS WIN

Asjmaa Kids Score Decisive Win Over The Ciacos Also

Of all the four-softball games played in the Belleville Softball Association over the week end, Saturday's no run no hit no batter reaching first base pitched by Lorne Bateman, fire-ball hurler of the Point Anne softballers was the crowning effort as the "cement villagers" won over the Ciacos by the score of 7 to 0. Bateman was in rare form as he accomplished the feat of hurling a perfect game, striking out eleven and not issuing a single base on balls. Only three ball were hit to the outfield, all being readily taken care of by that department. Seven hit balls were handled in the infield with outs being registered at first base at the parade of Ciaco batters continued to march to and from the plate with little success. It was the first no run, no hit, no batter reaching first base game to be registered in Belleville in some considerable time.

Harold Singer, on the mound for the Ciacos buried better than average ball although he was nicked for a total of eight hits, including a triple by Genereaux of Point Anne. Singer struffed five and walked four. Genereaux, Sero and Morton each counted in brace of safeties while Bateman's lone single drove in two runs for the "cement boys" in the fourth when they scored three times. The victorious Point Anne squad gave Bateman splendid support in his perfect hurling efforts, not an error being chalked up against them.

The line-ups:

Point Anne—Genereaux 3b, Caulfin 1b, Sero ss, Green lf, Morton cf, Laffman rf, Fraser 2b, Bateman p, Scott c and Fraser.

Ciacos—Lafford ss, Grey c, Howlett cf, Kiser rf, Sharpe 1b, Sager p, Lupenette 3b, McDonald 2b and Streckman lf.

ROLLER GAMES

Point Anne made it two straight over the holiday when they downed the Percival Rollers, 5 to 0 at the Chelr home diamond yesterday while Corbins made it three in a row by clock-matching adversaries, Bell-Sargents 4-1 with Johnnie Bawden at the helm for the former and the "Bells" to four hits, including Bawden's circuit clout. The only remaining game played on the holiday saw the Asjmaa Juniors throw a victory in the Ciacos nine and the Juniors won 18 to 2, Johnnie Noakes getting the mound nod.

Down at Point Anne the Percivals failed to connect in the last evening and themselves booted the pellet for six costly errors as six "cement-makers" went to bat. The homesters played errorless ball and collected a total of eleven hits, Point Anne scored eight runs in the fourth.

The line-ups:

Percivals—Philp rf, Barriage p, Collins 1b, Cole 2b, Booth ss, Tizzard c, Pointer c, Higgs 3b, Booth lb, Tizzard ss and Hall.

Point Anne—Bateman, Whitehead, Sero, Green, Dickey Caulin, Laffman, Fraser and Scott.

In the nightcap affair of two games played at Coleman Flats yesterday Johnnie Bawden Foiled Eddie Schreiber as the Corbins won over their rival lock-matching opponents 4-1, Tommy Hughes' circuit blow in the initial frame accounting for the Bell-Sargents' lone tally. Three scattered singles were the best the losers could do in the subsequent innings played. Cy Barriage, St. Louis, field and Tuttle lead the Corbins on the attack, each collecting a brace of safeties. Rigby getting the finish and Tuttle the victim was in rare form and had little difficulty in setting his opponents down.

The fine-ups:

Corbins—Barriage ss, Henn, 3b, Ethier 3b, Rigby lf, Reid lb, St. Louis cf, Tuttle rf, Grisdale c and Graham rf.

Bell-Sargent—Barriage 3b, McMarton cf, Hughes rf, Cole 1b, Philp lf, Robinson c, F. McGuire ss, J. McGuire 2b and Schrieder p.

In the afternoon game Johnnie Noakes and Lops coupled with some good lusty hitting on the part of his team mates, the Asjmaa Juniors triumphed over the Ciacos by the only one-sided score of the holiday, the Asjmaa kids winning 18 to 2. Noakes scattered the nine Ciaco bits well while the Asjmaa kids broke out in a batting spree and cuffed the spherioid for 18 safeties. Adams, Rowboham and Amo getting a trio of hits as every member of the team contributed to the hitting strength of the day.

LATTA DEFEATS KIWANIS JUNIORS IN 11 INNINGS

Error of Judgment in 11th Coat Teen-aged Kids a Victory

HURLING DUEL

Carl Casey And Joe Kelleher Put on Fine Display For Faithful

An error of judgment cost the Belleville Kiwanis Juniors their initial start in the South Hastings League on Victoria Day when "Doc" Welsh's Latta nine stepped into town and soundly battled at full pitch by the local teen aged lads for ten innings before the seasoned squad eked out a unearned 2 to 0 victory over the Kiwanis kids in eleven frames. The game marked the innovation of baseball in Belleville for the current year and with the odd 200 fans there well satisfied, that Belleville is still the mecca for youthful diamond stars, as the local kids not only out-hit the seasoned Latta team, but excelled themselves before the eyes of the patrons despite the fact they were facing the superb hurling of an ex-Belleville National senior moundsman, Carl Casey.

For ten straight frames young Joe Kelleher and Casey hooked up in the most ideal hurlers' duel seen on a local diamond in many years, with the local youthful aspirant having to accept defeat owing to one small slip on the part of his team mates. Coach "Twigg" Woodley trotted out an unified nine-or teen-aged Juniors, who will brag back diamond honors and glories to the Quinte city if only given the much-needed support of the baseball fement. There was continued fine baseball throughout the entire nine innings as both clubs gave their starting pitchers unique support.

The only runs of the game came in the eleventh after one was out. Orr walked, was safe on an error into second, and moved up on Simpson's single, Simpson stealing second unmolested. Kelleher struck out Parks and on the third strike the catcher threw to first, thinking a third out had been made. Orr scoring. Hall walked and when an attemp was made to catch him going to the keystone sack, Simpson scampered to third and stole to the plate, completing the scoring of the two runs. Casey-Arnold, Sharpe, Prue, of the league and Hi Logan of the Kiwanis club performed the opening ceremonies.

Coach Woodley's Kiwanis kids cut out Tyler Walsh's curves even to five with pitcher Kelleher leading the locals with the willow, getting a double and a single to his credit. Local second baseman Bill cuffed the spherioid for a double while Alex Simpson, Latta, led all hitters of the day with three safeties, Gowe getting a double for the winners. Coach Woodley presented a fine defensive infield, led by Collins and McQuade, the latter standing out. Carson, Donovan and Warden as the veterans Ronsky, at third and Whalen behind the bat teamed well with Cooper at first.

Syd Hafey, a journeyman outfielder, who couldn't make the big league grade with Pittsburgh proved a pretty fine fellow to have around in the thick of an International league pennant race.

Hafey spent a year on the Pirate bench watching national league teams. Back in the game with Montreal Royals he is making the circuit's pitchers wish he were back with the Pirates.

Hafey Ash of the Bloons felt Hafey's presence, yesterday. Syd spanked out two home runs off Ash to give the Royals a 3-1 victory over an even break in a Victoria Day doubleheader with the Bisons. Buffalo won the first game, 1-0, on a neat seven-hit shutout pitched by Frank Russell. Hafey's circuit blows hurler suffered his first defeat of the season this game.

A crowd of 12,000 saw Hafey acspurgeon Chandler, Yankees:

"THE BRIGHT HILL"

by Clarissa Fairchild Cushman

INSTALLMENT TWENTY-FOUR

Mrs. Winters stopped President Sheldon on the street and said, "Was I right?"

"Certainly you were, About what?"

"About Mrs. Kingsbury. Have you called?"

"She was out. But I was saying to Mrs. Sheldon—"

"You should and see her old-fashioned, modernistic living-room now the girls' club room. She has to have a modern girl room in daily just to sweep up the cigarette butts."

And Kerin, smiling, saying little, increasing nevertheless in ease, and poise, and happiness, never realized that it was all most unusual: She only knew that she loved the young gay manners, the bright warm youth, the unsocialized big friendship of these girls, and she responded with all of her warm and giving nature. They talked about her among themselves. Some said she was mysterious; but the discerning perceived what Mrs. Winters had foretold; that she was, for all her ten years of marriage, somehow innocent. They told her things, and watched her take the eyes and ears and all they formed a body for the Keeping of Kerin's confidences. And yet they appreciated she was not ignorant. Knowledge, and disillusionment, they had known, genius of argument over the fine psychological distinctions involved.

And this a shaid in the sunlight and under this new stimulus of approval she grew. There was nothing too trivial to give her happiness. She was never, never bored, she always came to their parties with rising color and gay eyes and absolutely loved every minute of them. Even the girls gave a tea they felt that she understood like one of themselves, that she knew all the intrumpits, all the make-believe; that she appreciated their effort to convey with candles and flowers and tricky arrangements of ferns and lemon out in decorative and fatiguing shapes an atmosphere of charm of grace of easy and accustomed hospitality. She was not, herself, sophisticated enough to be discouraging to these often mistaken efforts. She was their friend with that vital, necessary quality of being able to make their problems her own.

So that when in middle December Gregory Leighton appeared with his good car, his good clothes his manner—oh my dears!— and his marvelous gray eyes—they go absolutely through you and come out the back leaving you swooning, the students were absolutely thrilled.

He appeared late one sunny afternoon. Kerin had decided on an apple pie for supper and was just looking at it with anxious solicitude when he knocked. She was always ready, these days, to go to the door and greet callers, and no sign of her domestic occupation was apparent except perhaps in a few flurried curls.

"Oh—it's you!"

"That's my name."

He was dressed in a big white sweater and white cap and skates glinted under his arm. "The red ball's up."

"The red ball?"

"Skating! And I said to myself that anybody that plays chess, skates."

Kerin laughed and stepped backward, welcoming him into the little hall. He filled the hall and sniffed. "What's that I smell? Not—not pie? Not—apple pie?"

"But it is—it's apple pie."

"Apple pie—for a mere two, a woman and a child?"

"Well it could be cut for three."

"Fine! And how about oyster stew—one of those good stews with lots of oysters in them and butter floating on the top? Hurry up and get your things on or the sun will be gone."

"But I haven't any skates".

"The store has. Hurry up."

"Well—" She would wear the green suit the girls all liked so much. Shading! Had she forgotten how? It used to be one of her accomplishments.

Evidently it still was. In the young winter dusk she stood by the edge of the shining ice and wondered. Gregory held out his hand. But with a sudden laughter she shook it aside and like a flash was gone from him and down the pond. Eyes turned as she went; and Donald who was playing hockey with bone-breaking effort looked up in amazement as she went by and said, "Gee! Look at Kerin around pond she fled, Gregory beside her, and then she sank laughing on a bench and rubbed her ankles vigorously. "Oh, dear!" she said. "Oh dear, oh dear!"

He sat down beside her as a few of youngsters lunging each other, rose and left. "That got you," he said.

Kerin laughed up at him, her cheeks flushed, her eyes shining. "And how!" she said and laughed again, thinking how odd it was to be talking like this—she, Kerin Kingsbury.

It was hungry dark when they went home, with Donald calling plottily off on the upholstery of the back seat and saying, now and again "Gee, Kerin, you never told me you could skate."

"Do blow your nose, Don," said Kerin.

Donald felt about. "I ain't got a handkerchief."

"Haven't got." Kerin hunted also. "Oh, dear, I must have lost mine."

Gregory Leighton fished out an immaculate folded square and handed it back, and smiled to himself. It was, he decided, the most domestic gesture he had ever made.

But at that the whole gesture of his coming had a distinctly domestic flavor, with Kerin in and out, and himself feeling distinctly around the gills of the oysters to detect bits of shell while he discussed with Donald the possibility of pleats. The chest by the fire with Kerin and a pretty picture he must have made he decided, to the two girls who came, sat for the brief interval, and then left with out explaining why they had come.

But none of that deterred Gregory from appearing with Kerin on the pond in the early Sunday morning sunlight nor from appearing at the College Inn with Kerin and Donald for dinner; nor from going, all three of them, in a cutter up through the hills in the crisp snowy afternoon; nor even from wondering, as he browsed Kerin declinedly al chess, if the two students would come back with that look of bright, if refined, curiosity in their eyes.

They didn't. Nobody came which might have been odd for a Sunday night but the word had gone forth. Dinner tables were furnished with the discussion that the perfectly marvelous man that had come to see the little Kingsbury girl was different. The marvelous man had turned out to be an uncle of Alice Ashburn and a trustee of the college (which would kill all romance automatically), and anyway Fanny Morrow had a cousin who was in law school in the middle west and she told Esther who told Christine that she said that he said that Kerin had a husband who was absolutely divine.

"He's a—you know one of those gods the Swedes have—no, I don't mean he's a Swede, I mean—Viking! That's what I mean. Absolutely marvelous."

So perhaps—Perhaps this, or perhaps that.

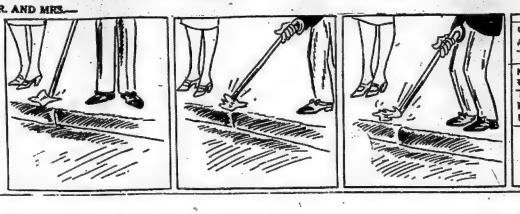
Christmas was in the air. Surely, now, Carl would break through the disciplinary brevity of his letters or three curt lines and either come or send for them. Kerin had been left to discover only indirectly, through Sue, that Carl had given up the flat and moved to a room; the address of that room she never had received being unwilling to ask Susan and unable to get a reply from Carl. She wrote him twice about Christmas addressing him at his office but silence stretched across the miles; and silence stretched across the sunny snowy brilliance of Christmas day Christmas week, all the holidays.

Kerin was hurt cruelly by it; how could it be that Carl would be willing, deliberately, to hurt her so? Yet she felt, somehow guiltily, that Carl had just been waiting for Christmas to come to show her how unforgivable had been her behavior. A quiet Christmas Kerin had feared it would be for Donald forgetting that the boy had never known a gay one. A package had come from Sue, and one from Elizabeth; and a perfectly huge box with a note almost of apology from Gregory Leighton: "Forgive me if presume in sending you this, but you will understand that when I saw it I could not resist it." It turned out to be a fine old mahogany board of ivory and ebony squares, large enough in all conscience for even her great chessmen, and bordered by a wide grille of carved ebony. She set it up against the wall on a table between two windows, where its startling black and white checks stood out in that grave gentle room with a modernity that struck with the black and white African rug, a sophisticated note so pictures, so ancient, as to make modern imitations look childish. Kerin, accepting the gift as a natural tribute to the chess set, could not know that he had advertised widely before he found her had been found.

Kerin was glad when school started again. She was gladder still in spite of the joy of the leopard coat and skating in the green sun and skiing inexpertly with joyous parties of young people when one March morning the air blew warm, and caves dripped and roadways were slushy with a different slosh-ness. And when the lilac buds began to swell and unfold the dooryard a thousand green shoots began to prick through the ground, she could hardly wait, so eager was her anticipation of spring.

"Spring!" said Mrs. Winters. "Ugh!"

Kerin opened her eyes wide. "Ugh? Why ugh?"



"Because in the spring the turning of all the young fancies to love is just work for the dean's office, standing in loco parentis is no snap when all the affairs that have been brewing all winter begin coming to a head." She nodded at the wooded slope, now a mist of dead green interspersed with feathertops of scarlet maple buds, that showed against the sky beyond the office window. "That hill there is overrun with little paths—in the spring."

Kerin looked out at the fresh green hill and sniffed the soft bright air. "Of course" she said softly. "Of course it is."

TARZAN'S QUEST

(Metropolitan Newspaper Feature Service)

Jane stood motionless on the ladder, listening to the sound of breathing. She knew that the dim light from above exposed her to the view of whatever creature was in the room with her. Then she was startled to hear a voice speaking to her in a familiar accent.

Jane turned. "Alphetite! So it was one of the white savages who got you, too!" "Yes," the French girl sobbed. "He held me powerless by some black magic. I could not resist." Jane nodded. "They have a hypnotic power beyond anything I dreamed possible."

As her eyes became accustomed to the gloom, Tarzan's mate approached the maid. "Have they harmed you, " "No," Annette replied; "but I have been terribly frightened because I do not know what they intend to do with me. In only Monsieur Brown were here!"

As she repeated her sweetheart's name her voice quivered. "Oh, madame, how I love him!" We could have been so happy, and now this dreadful thing happens.' I shall never see him again. I have that feeling—what you call a premonition. I shall die—soon!"

Former Student of O. S. D. Works 3 Months on Crown

Dennis Armes of Hamilton Copies Royal Crown From Picture

Dennis Armes of Hamilton, a former student at the Ontario School for the Deaf from which he graduated in 1935, has completed a most interesting specimen of handiwork a model of the royal crown, with exact replicas of all the jewels.

Three months were required to complete the work, which is modelled from a picture in colours and accompanying description of the crown appearing in the Coronation edition of the Illustrated London News. The circlet was made of tin cut and measured to pattern and then covered with gold paper. The jewels were taken from all kinds of broken brooches, bracelets, necklaces secured from jewellers, pawn shops and friends. The intricate work was executed with faithful attention to detail as the accompanying photograph shows.

Dennis, who took vocational course at the Ontario School for the Deaf specializing the last few months in the bakeshop work has had steady employment as a baker in Hamilton since leaving School.

A great deal of interest was taken in the project of making a replica of the royal crown which showed that a deaf person can be as skilled at craftsmanship as a hearing person.

Communist's Suggestion.

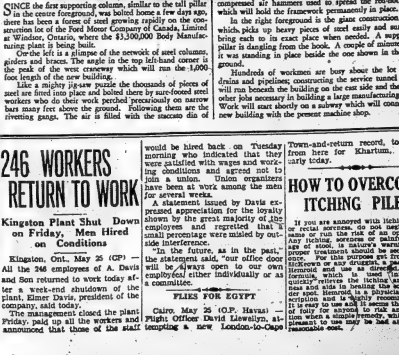
William Gallacher, lone Communist, suggested the King be paid a salary of £400 ($1,860) like Members of Parliament and live in a London County Council House "with a little garden in which he might receive those who came to see him . . . But all the nice gentlemen on the other side of the House (Conservatives) and all the Dukes and the Duchesses would then give him the cold shoulder." Gallacher's suggestion was ignored.

The government benches did not enter the debate. They merely threw the weight of their numbers into defeating the labor motion and approving the list which had previously been adopted by a special committee of the House of Commons.

Details of Civil List.

The list provides the Royal Family with an annual sum of £585,000 ($2,868,500) distributed as follows:

Civil list, £410,000 ($2,009,000), composed of £110,000 for his Majesty's privy purse; £134,000 for salaries of the King's household and retired allowances, £152,800 for expenses for the household; and £13,200 for royal bounty, alms and special services.



Consolidated fund, £169,000, composed of £70,000 for Queen Mary; £25,000 for the Duke of Connaught; £6,000 each for Princess Louise, Princess Beatrice and trustee for the daughters of King Edward VII; and £56,000 for the younger children of King George V.

Two new appropriations, from the revenues of the Duchy of Cornwall, give £6,000 to Princess Elizabeth and £10,000 to the Duke of Gloucester.

COMPANY REFUSES TO SIGN

Indiana Harbor, Ind., May 25 (AP) —Inland Steel Company, largest independent employer in the industry in the Chicago area, refused today to sign a collective bargaining contract with the Steel Workers Organizing Committee.

Forest of Steel Grows at New Ford Plant

SINCE the first supporting column, similar to the tall pillar in the centre foreground, was bolted home a few days ago, there has been a forest of steel growing rapidly on the construction lot of the Ford Motor Company of Canada, Limited at Windsor, Ontario, where the $3,300,000 Body Manufacturing plant is being built.

Over the left is a glimpse of the network of steel columns, girders and braces. The angle in the top left-hand corner is the peak of the west craneway which will run the 1,000-foot length of the new building.

Like a mighty jig-saw puzzle the thousands of pieces of steel are fired into place and bolted there by sure-footed steel workers who do their work perched precariously on narrow bars many feet above the ground. Following them are the riveting gangs. The air is filled with the staccato din of compressed air hammers used to spread the rod-hot rivets which will hold the framework permanently in place.

In the right foreground is the giant construction boom which picks up heavy pieces of steel easily and surely so being each to its exact place when needed. A supporting pillar is dangling from the hook. A couple of minutes later it was standing in place beside the one shown in the foreground.

Hundreds of workmen are busy about the lot laying drains and pipelines; constructing the service tunnel which will run beneath the building on the east side and the many other jobs necessary in building a large manufacturing plant. Work will start shortly on a subway which will connect the new building with the present machine shop.

246 WORKERS RETURN TO WORK

Kingston Plant Shut Down on Friday, Men Hired on Conditions

Kingston, Ont., May 25 (CP) — All the 246 employees of A. Davis and Son returned to work today after a week-end shutdown of the plant, Elmer Davis, president of the company, said today.

The management closed the plant Friday, paid up all the workers and announced that those of the staff would be hired back on Tuesday morning who indicated that they were satisfied with wages and working conditions and agreed not to join a union. Union organizers have been at work among the men for several weeks.

A statement issued by Davis expressed appreciation for the loyalty shown by the great majority of the employees and regretted that a small percentage were misled by outside interference.

"In the future, as in the past," the statement said, "our office door will be always open to our own employees either individually or as a committee."

PREMIERS SURVEY NATIONS' LEAGUE FUTURE

PERMANENT BODY SEEN AS POSSIBLE UPON MUNITIONS

Empire Arms Factories in Dominions To Be Built

N. ZEALAND'S VIEW

China Squadron May be Increased With Capital Ships

(By George Hambleton)
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)
London, May 26—(CP Cable)—Imperial Conference discussions reveal broad differences of opinion. They affect foreign policy, empire defence and the future of the League of Nations. The Italian conquest of Ethiopia has also cast a passing shadow.

From the outset of the conference Australia has urged a unified Empire front. She has also taken the ground the Dominions should be prepared to offer counsel and, if need be, reinforce that counsel with defence.

Against Centralization

Canada and South Africa on the other hand, have a stand against centralization. They hold that consultation can best be secured, not by centralization but by each Empire unit taking full responsibility for its own defence and working in harmony with other Empire units.

Canada is opposed to the creation in London of a council empowered to prepare common defence plans as committing the whole Commonwealth. It is opposition to any such idea which has led Canada in the past to refrain from attendance at meetings of the Imperial Defence Committee.

Would Sharpen League

Failure of League sanctions to prevent the Italian conquest of Ethiopia has occasioned much searching of heart among the Dominions. New Zealand would put form the League Covenant by championing the idea, which Premier Mackenzie King of Canada, it is understood has opposed, as general the lines of his speech at the last League Assembly—a speech which condemned the League as a means of conciliation and arbitration.

The men pleaded not guilty when they faced Magistrate S. Jones in the County Magistrate's Court today. They were remanded in custody for one week.

PASSENGER PLANE IS BROUGHT DOWN BY INSURGENTS

Rebel Squadron of German Built Machines Believed Attackers

NONE INJURED

Foreign Consul Shot as Insurgent by Basque Government

Bilbao, May 26.—(AP)— Insurgent air raiders were reported to have brought down a French passenger plane today at Sopelana, nine miles northwest of here.

The report said the plane was completely wrecked and the pilot injured. No passengers were reported hurt, however.

The insurgent squadron was described as comprised of German-built machines.

A foreign consul it was learned today was killed in an insurgent bombing by the Basque Government.

Neither the consul nor his country was identified but it was learned he was caught carrying military maps of the fortified area of Bilbao.

Trailed for Weeks

Basque Secret Police, who had trailed the man for weeks arrested him as he was about to board a British destroyer at Pasajes.

As the consul went through the police lines at last, authorities demanded to see the contents of his brief case. They landed dirty automatic immunity but the Basques contended that under International Law consular representatives were not entitled to that protection.

The foreign representative insisted a search of his person would be an insult to his country and resisted until the Basque special police tore the brief case from his hands. (Continued on Page Two)

FLYING OFFICER, MECHANIC HURT NEAR TRENTON

Sergt. Bury Sustains Broken Vertebrae And Carling-Kelly Shocked

BROKEN OIL LINE

Engine Shut Off Before Plane Makes Landing in Field

Flying Officer Carling-Kelly was slightly injured and Sergeant C. Bury, mechanic, sustained a broken vertebrae, when a Siskin of the R.C.A.F. air station at Trenton made a forced landing on the farm of Alfred Brown, seven miles west of Trenton on Tuesday afternoon. Both were rushed to Belleville General hospital and attended by Dr. O. R. Globe and information secured today stated, Carling-Kelly was progressing favorably, while Sergt. Bury will be in a cast for at least six weeks. An oil line break is believed the cause of the crash-landing. The flying officer shutting off his engine and making a forced landing in a field, the plane turned over after striking the earth.

Mr. Seward was ploughing in the field and took time off to watch the plane manoeuvre over his property. He noticed black smoke coming from the tail of the machine and then saw the pilot cool from the exhaust. At this point the engine was shut off and the plane circled close to him with one of the occupants shouting to him. Mr. Seward hollering some instructions, which he could not hear and finally the plane was lowered down about 200 yards away. Mr. Seward quickly went to the scene, expecting to find the two men dead but the Flying Officer was standing beside the plane with the mechanic lying on the ground. Carling-Kelly requested Mr. Seward to stay with the mechanic, while he went for help and jumping over a field got in touch with the Airport and soon ambulance and the crash wrecking crew were on the scene.

Carman Carter, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Carter, was first on the plane doing loops and after circling around one of the aircraft came out of the tail and later saw the plane circling down again and finally land in the field. A court of inquiry is being opened today to-day Wing Commander A. E. Godfrey at the Airport. The plane was badly damaged.

Baldwin Called Greater Than Leader of Empire

London, May 26.—(CP-Havas) — Political achievements and character of retiring Prime Minister Baldwin drew high praise from the Archbishop of Canterbury today in an address before the Upper House of the Church Assembly.

After dwelling upon the Coronation and paying homage to the King and Queen, the Archbishop declared:

"Prime Minister Baldwin's place in our national life is far wider and deeper than his influence as leader of a great party. Again and again he has proved himself to be the spokesman of the National spirit. He has put-before his fellow countrymen ideals of citizenship which transcend the limits of his party.

"No greater man could have left a better legacy than his last speeches on peace and industry. We hope he will be fulfilled. I think it is fitting that the House pay tribute to the spirit and example of this great and high-minded citizen."

Several Diplomats To Attend Duke's Wedding

Lady Selby to Attend Without Her Husband, Whose Presence Was Opposed by British Government — Thirty Invitations Sent Out and Only Sixty Accept

Monte Carlo, May 26 (AP)—Sixteen wedding guests, several of them holding official positions were announced today for the June 3 marriage of the Duke of Windsor and Wallis Warfield.

The guests included Hugh Lloyd Thomas, Minister Plenipotentiary in the British Embassy at Paris; Sir Walter Monckton, Attorney General of the Duchy of Cornwall, and Lady Selby, wife of the British Minister at Vienna.

Major E. B. Metcalfe, who will attend with Lady Alexandra Metcalfe, will be the Duke of Windsor's best man. The major is the Duke's equerry.

Herman Rogers, who made the announcement, would not comment on the fact. of the invitations sent out, only 16 acceptances were received.

Some persons close to the Chateau de Cande, where the wedding will take place, also showed significance to the fact Lady Selby will attend without her husband, the Minister to Austria. However, others pointed to the acceptance of Thomas, another diplomat.

Opposed Attendance

There have been reports the British government opposed the attendance of Sir Walford Selby despite the Duke of Windsor's pleadings. Sir Walford was one of the Duke's confidantes during his stay last autumn in Austria.

The other guests:

Baron and Baroness Eugene de Rothschild, owners of the Rothschild Castle where the Duke stayed during the final part of his Austrian visit.

Mrs. D. Buchanan Merryman, Mrs. Warfield's aunt from Washington.

Mrs. Charles B. Bedaux and his daughter of New York, owners of the Chateau de Candé.

Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Graham. He is with the Consul at Venice.

A. C. Allen of London, the Duke's solicitor.

Dudley Forwood, an equery of the Duke.

Mr. and Mrs. Herman L. Rogers of New York.

The other ship in the hands of A. I. Alexieff landed about 8 a.m. Brief messages from the polar outpost did not explain why he failed to land on the ice floe camp.

The three planes swept over the outpost about seven hours after their takeoff from Rudolph Land but apparently Molokoff's ship was the only one successfully guided down directly to the camp.

Damage to the radio apparatus of the Soviet flyers interfered somewhat with plans to direct the planes.

QUEEN MARY, 70 CONGRATULATED

Thousands of Messages Are Read by Her Majesty on Birthday

London, May 26 (C.P. Cable) — Prime Minister Mackenzie King, Rt. Hon. Vincent Massey, Canadian High Commissioner, together with Prime Ministers and High Commissioners of the other Dominions, called at Marlborough House today to offer congratulations on the Queen Mary's 70th birthday.

Her Majesty spent the day in the quiet of her home, reading thousands of messages of good wishes which poured in from all parts of the world. A number of presents also arrived, but the Princess Elizabeth and Margaret personally presented their gifts to their grandmother.

The King and Queen and other members of the Royal Family joined Queen Mary at luncheon at Marlborough House, and the Queen dined tonight Her Majesty will occupy a place of honor on the throne dais between the King and Queen.

There were no gun salutes in honor of the occasion, but flags were flown from government and public buildings. The changing of the guard ceremony at Buckingham Palace the drum major wore a full-dress gold-laced jacket, and a blue velvet cap.

Roses From Slum District

During the afternoon Queen Mary was the recipient of a bouquet of seventy roses from the children of Shoreditch slum district which she visited recently to view the recreation decorations. She gave personal mementos to the two women who made the presentation.

Later the Duke and Duchess of Kent and three two children, Prince Edward and Princess Alexandria, visited their grandmother. Prince Edward, seated on his nurse's knee, waved to the sentries as he was driven through the Marlborough House gates.

SOVIET PLANES LAND NEAR POLE WITH SUPPLIES

Enough Equipment Taken in to Supply Base For Year

SHIP UNREPORTED

Runway Grooved Into Ice At The Hub of The Earth

(By Charles P. Nutter)
(Associated Press Foreign Staff)

Moscow, May 26—(AP)—Concern for the safety of I. P. Mazuruk, pilot of one of three transport planes flying food and equipment to the Soviet Polar Air Base was evident in Moscow today when no report was received from him 15 hours after his takeoff.

Two of the planes reported they had landed near the pole, one finding the tiny outpost on ice floe and the other sitting down about 12 miles beyond the earth's northernmost air and unannounced distance from the Base camp.

May Have Landed

Authorities said they felt the lack of information from Mazuruk might be unnecessarily alarming. It was pointed out he may have landed near the camp where four of the Soviet's Air trail pioneers are based for a year, but failed to report because of a damaged radio.

The transport had reached the camp was piloted by Vassily Molokoff. It slid to a halt on the runway which yesterday had grooved into the ice at 6:24 a.m., Moscow Daylight time, about 10:24 p.m. Tuesday (E.S.T.), thus completing the dash of about 560 miles from Rudolph Island base in seven hours and 24 minutes.

Three Bodies Missing

"The bodies of three of Cohen's companions are unaccounted for," Keator said as he investigated the collision and burning of the two machines.

"There were six men in the automobile. Apparently they jumped from men in the truck, and both were killed.

Keator said Cohen, who suffered burns and fractured arm, mistakenly led the probable dead among his companions as Carl Bachelsky, 18, Revere, Mass., Irving Klein, Malden, and Israel Goldstein, 18, Revere, Mass.

In critical condition in the hospital here are Robert Novak, 18, Dorchester, and Gerald Bloom, 18, also of Dorchester.

The truck driver was identified as Leonard Fleming, 40, Negro, Englewood, N.J.

MISS H. HENRY WEDDED TODAY

Gala Event Takes Place in Knox College Chapel

Toronto, May 26 (CP)—Helen Catherine Henry, daughter of George S. Henry, former Premier of Ontario, and Mrs. Henry, was married in Knox College Chapel here today to George Murray Clemens, son of Mrs. W. J. Clemens of Brantford, and the late W. A. Clemens. Rev. W. G. Mackay of Winnipeg, Minister of Welfare in the Henry cabinet, officiated.

Pink gladioli blossoms and palms and ferns in profusion decorated the chapel. Miss Ruth Philp played the organ and Harvard Reddick sang "Because" and "Where'er You Walk."

Mr. Henry gave the bride in marriage. Mr. Ian Dowling was best man and the ushers were Mr. Alan Abernethy, Mr. Alex. Virtue, Mr. Phil Henry and Mr. Panay Bellachay.

Dressed in Ivory Satin

The bride wore a gown of ivory satin brocaded in calla lilies. Her veil of rosepoint lace fell beyond the end of the train and she wore a tulle halo. She caught in a Juliet cap with clusters of orange blossoms. She carried a sheaf of calla lilies.

Mrs. Clarke R. Locke, sister of the bride, as matron of honor, and Miss Helen Clemens, sister of the bridegroom, as bridesmaid, were gowned in chartreuse green taffeta with printed design and wore hair bandeaux of green velvet ribbon with Colleen Henry, niece of the bride, as flower girl.

A reception was held after the ceremony at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry, 25 Rosedale Road.

Following a two months' wedding trip in Europe, the couple will live in Brantford.

NAPANEE POLICE CHIEF IS GIVEN PROMOTION

Kingston, Ont., May 26 (CP) — Chief of Police Ed Watts of Napanee has been appointed inspector of the Kingston police department, it was announced today. He will assume his new duties July 1.

Watts, a former O.H.A. hockey player, has been Chief of Police at Napanee for the last six years. He played for Kingston intermediates when they won the Ontario championship several years ago.

Canadian War Veterans Pay Visit to Berlin Settlement

Single Homes For Disabled Germans In Specified

FAIR IS VISITED

Berlin, May 26 (C.P. Cable) — The official party of Canadian war veterans visiting Germany closed today with a visit to the settlement for German veterans and their families at Brits, outside Germany.

There the Reich has built comfortable single homes for disabled veterans and the destitute widows of fallen soldiers.

Only about half of the Canadian delegation could attend the function as Brigadier-General Ketchen, president of the Canadian Legion, was one of those who could not go, the active list started for France to attend the Inter Montclair for Montreal tonight.

The Canadians inspected the fair called "Deutsch As Four Years Time" which records the progress made by Germany under four years of Nazi rule. Alderman Layton of Montreal, said "It was a marvellous experience and we spent a most profitable morning seeing this unique exposition."

The fair management entertained the Canadians at luncheon. Layton said most of them would leave Berlin tonight.

FORD ASSEMBLY PLANT CLOSED

Richmond, Calif., May 26.—(AP) —A strike was called at the Ford Assembly plant here today and workers were placed around the buildings by Richmond Industrial Workers of America.

Frank Fisher, president of the Fleetway U.A.W.A., affiliated with the Committee for Industrial organization, announced that the two votes were cast against the walkout.

He said the day crew voted 626 in favor of the strike and the night shift 268 for quitting work.

"The Ford Company discriminated against our members for union activity, and attempted to form a company union," Slaby said.

Detroit, May 26—(AP)— Harry Bennett, personnel director of the Ford Motor Co., said today the Richmond, Calif., Assembly plant had been closed in advance of the strike.

He said the plant "would be closed permanently if I had any way about it."

Withdrawal of Strike Notices is Forecast; Union to Ratify Pact

Three-Day Conference of Three Bodies is Concluded

UNION RECOGNITION

Provincial Agreement is Announced Between Disputants

London, May 26—(CP Cable)—Menace of a national coal stoppage, due this week-end, was materially eased today with announcement of a provisional agreement between the disputants over the cardinal point of Union recognition in Nottinghamshire.

It was generally believed the danger of a strike had been averted and that conciliation delegates at the conference of the Mine Workers' Federation tomorrow would advise withdrawal of strike notices.

Union is Ratify

This was said to be subject to ratification of the provisional agreement by the Industrial Union. The agreement was reached after a three-day conference bringing together the colliery owners, the Mine Workers' Federation and the Nottinghamshire and District Industrial Union.

FIVE KILLED IN HEAD-ON CRASH

Men in Truck Involved Were Cremated States Officer

Calakill, N.Y., May 26 (AP) — At least five men were killed and two are dying in consequence of a head-on crash between a New Jersey truck and a small Massachusetts automobile on West Conyngham Road today, said Lieut. Hervey A. Keator, director of the State Police Traffic Bureau.

Lieut. Keator said he had determined the number who died in the flaming wreckage of the two vehicles after questioning a survivor, Joshua Cohen, 35, Dorchester, Mass., at a hospital here.

Three Bodies Missing

"The bodies of three of Cohen's companions are unaccounted for," Keator said as he investigated the collision and burning of the two machines.

"There were six men in the automobile. Apparently they jumped from men in the truck, and both were killed.

Stanley Baldwin Makes History By Entertaining King, Queen

Met His Cabinet at Downing Street For Last Time

TO BE MADE EARL

London, May 26 (AP)—Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin met his cabinet for the last time today at No. 10 Downing Street where he has presided for nearly nine years through three separate parliaments.

Next night he made history by entertaining the King and Queen at dinner at his official residence, at No. 10, the first time a premier has been so honored in his successive terms in office.

Tonight the Premier will be made Earl; in accordance with the usage followed in the House of Lords, it has been suggested he might devote himself to a position he held under former Premier Ramsay MacDonald—Lord President of the Council. The post of Lord Privy Seal also has been mentioned for him.

NEWS BRIEFS AND ODDITIES

Christletown, May 26 (CP)— Mrs. Etta Jenkins came to town yesterday for the first time in her 74 years, and summed up her impressions in one word, "wonderful!"

It was one of the few times she had ever left the Mill River district, 85 miles from here, and her first visit to Prince Edward Island's capital. She spent a full day sightseeing.

Welland, Ont., May 26 (CP)— As if to celebrate the third birthday of the Dionne quintuplets this week, a quint performance of tarantara—or dandelion if you wish—has bloomed here. The Welland Lawn Bowling Club in the backyard of his parents' residence here has five blooms on each stem.

Stoney Creek, Ont., May 26 (CP)—Practical demonstration of wild life conservation was given by the Hamilton Game Club in donating the right-of-way for the new Hickory pheasant farm. In casting a tree near a brush pile, a pheasant flew out disclosing a nest of 16 eggs. Orders were given to leave the brush pile and pass on until the time so the eggs were hatched.

Chicago, May 26 (CP)— Harried Norris, 27, "put the bee" on Marion Abell, restaurant owner, to the tune of an $18,000 damage suit filed in Circuit Court.

She charged he was responsible for a bee stinging her on the nose while between bites of salad in a small bouquet at a table in the restaurant and smoiled it.

Los Angeles, May 26 (CP) — Eric Lawyer came all the way from India, hoping to swing from tree to tree and shout weird calls like the monkeys of his native jungle.

Arriving here, he met with the Park Department for permission to use the city's trees for his "antics".

Gilbert Skeit, Park Superintendent, said the Hindu Yogi undertook to show him how. Then the request "since the spectators might misinterpret your actions."

Why the Weather?

By Major A. H. Thiessen
Science Service Meteorologist

Thunder! That most frequent storm is named after one of its effects rather than after the cause. It is one of the loudest noises in nature. It accompanies lightning. Lightning causes a most natural separation in its path, and all other than path connectional waves are started in the air. Lightning has been heard 25 miles but most frequently this distance or less. Sound waves starting all along the crooked path of the lightning reach an observer, one after another. That and reflections from clouds and mountains cause the rumbling thunder. Thunder is sharp when the lightning path is straight and it has overlapping and reflections.

ROCKEFELLER'S FAME UNKNOWN TO HER

The philanthropic fame of the late John D. Rockefeller apparently has not extended to all of the four corners of the earth. In some parts of the globe the great one's name was just a name. For instance, yesterday Dr. R. A. Thompson of Wellington, had occasion to visit a patient in the country. The elderly lady, for that is what she was found to be, listened intently to the doctor's description of the late multi-millionaire, and his various enormous gifts to charity.

When he had finished she shook her head. "That's funny", she exclaimed; "I never heard of him. Did he live in Wellington very long?"

This week excavation work is being carried on and low places filled in with material taken from levelled locations.

SMALL BOYS PICK POISONOUS FUNGI

Toad stools are showing a particularly heavy growth in this area just now, and mushroom pickers would do well to identify the poisonous varieties of fungi for safety's sake, warns a local naturalist, who reports that during a recent hour one of the city's dumps earlier this week he encountered two small boys with a basket filled with a deadly harvest of the fungi. "We're going to fry 'em in butter," he claimed, one of the boys when questioned, exhibiting a quantity of the fungi evidently pilfered from the home pantry for a meal in the open.

Advised of the danger, the boys readily dumped the contents of the basket.

DECORATIONS REMOVED

Yesterday Front Street store owners and business men brought the city commenced the task of removing wind-whipped decorations provided for coronation day, and today the business section and even residential streets bore only their every day appearance, except for the odd exception where frayed bunting and tattered flags still remained in place apparently forgotten by those who had placed them.

TOURISTS PRAISE CITY TOURIST CAMP

Loud in their praise over the accommodation, facilities and service given, and the general high state of the city tourist camp, visitors now stopping over at the camp for longer periods and a brief rest have been quick to label it in their own handwriting in the camp book. Not a one or the best and finest appointed one in the province." "It's the best camp we have visited since starting out," is the general trend of remarks made in the book by tourists whose addresses are from almost every State in the Union, and Province in Canada. To date a total of 80 registrations have been made in the camp book, though as yet no overnight stops have been entered.

MANY FRONT STREET STORES GET NEW COATS OF PAINT

Paint and varnish brushes swung into concerted action in many parts of the city this week. Larger of stores on Front Street are undergoing a Spring and summer coat of decoration, with new coats of paint giving them a clean attractive appearance. Interiors, too are being treated to new 1937 coats of paint, with many new shades and tints making their appearance. Merchants report a brisk business in paint, oil and other decorating commodities.

SEEKS INFORMATION ON A MRS. A. FISHER

Mr. Leo Bellinger, 187 Front St., is in receipt of a letter addressed to a Mrs. A. Fisher, 379 1/2 Front Street. Efforts to locate Mrs. Fisher have been unavailing. As the contents of the letter are important and refer to a widows' memorial cross, information regarding the whereabouts of the lady will be be greatly appreciated by Mr. Bellinger.

DOGS TRAMPLE JOHN ST. FLOWER BEDS

Residents of the city living in the vicinity of South John Street, are complaining of the depredation of several dogs who have taken up appearance nightly and trample and destroy beds of flowers. An elderly lady complains that on one occasion many expensive flowering annuals which had been planted in the afternoon were found totally destroyed the next morning.

SCHOOLS TO OBSERVE JUNE 9 AS HOLIDAY

Official notice has been received by Principal F. C. MacLaurin of the local Collegiate Institute and Vocational School and other school principals and school inspectors of this district from the Ontario Department of Education that Wednesday, June 9th will be observed as a school holiday, Thursday the birthday of King George VI is in December, June 9th has been fixed as the day on which it is announced.

VICTIM OF MOTOR ACCIDENT NOW ABLE TO LEAVE HOSPITAL

Arthur Robinson of Brockville, who sustained a fractured skull in an automobile accident near this city some weeks ago, has received sufficiently to return to his home from the Belleville General Hospital. He is said to have sustained from the effects of the accident, but it is believed an operation will restore his sight. He has been confined for 54 hours in the local hospital following the crash.

ELDERLY COUPLE TAKE LONG BUGGY RIDE

Horse and buggy days are still a reality to Mr. and Mrs. J. Bevery of Leeds County. Visiting in Napanee this week, the 90-year-old couple made it a buggy journey, pulled by their 23-year-old mare. From their home, fifty miles east of Napanee, they left at 8 o'clock and drove them to Marmora. From Marmora, visiting friends overnight, their trip they continued to Napanee, a distance of fifty miles, in one day.

FISH HATCHERY TO CLOSE THURSDAY

With the shipment of the last consignment of fry this week to northern lakes, the government fish hatchery east of the city will close for the season tomorrow, it is stated today. Since the season opened early in the spring, millions of fry of various species have been shipped from here to lakes and streams all through Ontario for restocking purposes. Chief among these have been speckled trout, with whitefish earlier in the season.

MOTORISTS OBSERVING NEW SPEED LIMIT

No major motor accidents have been reported in this municipal district by Motorcycle Patrolman Sam Ervine since the introduction of the new Provincial Highway Act speed law of 50 miles per hour, that was introduced on Monday.

"As far as our particular area is concerned we've no complaints. What we try to discourage is "cutting in" and passing other motor vehicles on the highway. Although the H.T.A. specifically states the maximum speed shall only be 50 miles per hour on the highways, we found in our survey of Monday, that the motorists were observing this law fairly well, but seemed inclined to over-step the 50 m.p.h. rule just enough to make it noticeable," stated Traffic Officer Ervine.

Wellington Boy Gets a Bad Scare

Plunges Into Deep Water After Slipping From Lake Pier

Attempts to emulate the "Man on the Flying Trapeze" in a nautical setting nearly resulted in disaster for ten year old Pete Munday of Wellington.

Yesterday, young Munday and a number of his friends crawled beneath the pier running out into Lake Ontario, and merrily swung themselves from the iron rods of the supporting girders, to drop from a distance of five feet away.

All went well until Munday's fingers slipped from an iron rod and he plunged into seven feet of cold water, beneath the pier. His companions clutched his hand and held him above water until help arrived. "Pet's" scare was scarcely sufficient, his parents thought, as they administered the time-honored family punishment.

"Faithful Friend to Women"

MANY women suffer from periodic pains in side or back, caused by these "heat flashes," they say they find the vegetable tonic favorably known for almost 70 years as Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. Read this: Mrs. Arthur of 194 DeSerris St., Stratford, Ont., said: "I suffered from periodic pains in side or back, caused by menopause. It is a faithful friend to women. I am the mother of seven children. Before I began to use through each period of expectancy in the best of health. I began to follow directions that upset, nauseated condition and the ache in my back. Also it strengthened my entire system." Druggists everywhere.

The "Personality" of an Automobile Dealer

A factory, a store, an automobile sales establishment—even an automobile service shop —has a personality no less than does a human being.

The personality of a business place has its source in the character and ideals of the people who manage it and work there. It is friendly, responsible, capable in just the same measure as are the persons you find in it.

Especially does the motorist find the personality of his car dealer or service man important because transactions with them always involve a consideration of the customer's personal requirements and desires.

Here is a complete automobile store founded and conducted upon the principle that the customer appreciates thoughtful, competent, friendly consideration.

LIEUT-GOVERNOR VISITS MEMBERS

Ivan R. Moore of Lindsay Guest of Local Kiwanis Club

Furtherance of Kiwanis Education and Vocational Guidance in the local Kiwanis Club was advocated by Lieutenant Governor Ivan R. Moore, K.C. of Lindsay, at the weekly luncheon of the club being held on Tuesday at the Queen's Hotel. The Lt. Governor was making his official visit and a large number of the members were out to greet their chief. The visitor complies for a large representation of delegates at the International Convention to be held at Indianapolis on June 21st and also to the district convention to be held in Hamilton in September. The speaker of day thinked that a Belleville member would be the next Lieutenant Governor of the district. Peter Logan, president of the club presided at the luncheon with Frank Domenico as sergeant at arms and Cliff Sagar as song leader. In honor of Ed Wales of the Eastern Mass. Club anthems of the United States and Canada were sung at the commencement of the luncheon. Guests to be welcomed were Rotarian Walter Wells with a 100 per cent perfect record of Lindsay and Tom Hertly of the city.

Appointed 3 Committee

William Lynch and Davey Davison were appointed on the Beach Committee as representative of the Kiwanis Club to look after a piece of ground, that the club has been made responsible for. A maple tree has been planted and other shrubbery will be set out to enhance the beauty of the waterfront. The members were also reminded of the sports day to be held in Oshawa on June 5th. Eddie Shapiro will be in charge of the party as chairman of Inter-City relations. Many of the members will visit Lindsay on the occasion of their All Kiwanis night on June 21st at which time the International convention is opened. Last speaker at the day was introduced by P. C. MacLaurin and Kiwanian Hubert Graham was expressed by J. O. Herity. Mr. Moore praised the local club for their advancement in the past few years and their fine gesture to the children of the city for establishing a Beach playground. He made a plea for more active work of the Vocational Guidance and Kiwanis Education committee, believing that Kiwanis Clubs can exert a great influence over the lives of those, who are starting out on the first road of life and completing their schooling.

The speaker claimed there was the best work done by these two committees and yet, were nearly the least recognized. Committees, he said are formed in the club. The address generally was directed to the members and was of little interest to those outside the membership. The Lieutenant Governor was the centre of attraction of the luncheon met all the members and later held a brief meeting with the directors. The following Belleville Club will have difficulty retaining the shield for attendance held for the past two months as Peterboro has had two out-numbered per cent meetings in the month of May.

TROUBLE IN FAMILY OF HOMING PIGEONS

There is domestic trouble brewing in the family of "Jack and Jill" pet homing pigeons of eight year old Frederick MacDonald of Wellington. A few weeks ago "Jack" proudly viewed two pigeon eggs, prior to "Jill" settling down for a spot of "setting". Since then, he has brooded over his spouse and the two precious eggs.

But the other day Old Man Trouble waved a sinister hand over this happy family. "Jack" arose in the nest, strutted proudly around the little home. Suddenly a large bill lay in the nest. Strangely enough, the other egg was still intact. Jack gave forth a sigh of resignation and once more settled down to business.

Yesterday "Jill" again arose from the nest. "Jack" hovered around as if impatient to view the second of his offspring. But to his surprise "Jill" instead of a baby pigeon stretching forth a hungry neck and bill, what did he see but a tiny banana chick in its place.

"Jack" hasn't been near home since, and will give "Jill" no chance to explain. Maybe both pigeons would feel better if they knew that their young master had quietly substituted the banana chicken for the original pigeon product "just to see what would happen".

Obituary

LATE MRS. HESTER MacDOUGALL (Eldorado)

Eldorado, (Special)—On Sunday, May 23rd., there passed peacefully away to her eternal rest after a lingering illness, an aged and respected citizen of Eldorado in the person of Mrs. Hester MacDougall, whose maiden name was Hester Williams daughter of the late George and Mary Williams of Sidney Township. She was born, April 16th, 1853 and was united in marriage to Joseph MacDougall about fifty years ago. He predeceased her 34 years ago.

To this union was born three daughters, all of whom survive her.

The late Mrs. MacDougall spent practically all her married life in Thurlow Township. After her husband's death, she moved to Eldorado Village, where she resided for till two years ago when, owing to ill-health she went to live with her step-daughter, Mrs. Geo. Ketcheson, at whose home—she passed away. She was a member of United Church and shared in all its activities and was a faithful member of the Eldorado and Union W.M.S.

Mrs. Ketcheson devoted mother to her step-children and they will always be happy remembrances of her.

Lakes and Bays of District Mecca for City Anglers

Record Catches Reported From Prince Edward County

MANY GO NORTH

The brilliant sunshine and warm weather of the holiday proved a blessing to the Isaak Walton of the city and district. As early as Saturday afternoon numbers of the lovers of the finny tribe started the trek to the northern lakes and other fishing spots of the district.

Prince Edward County lakes and bays in particular proved to be a mecca for a great number of fishermen, who came from practically all parts of Eastern Ontario. On Saturday afternoon and evening, not a boat could be hired in the village of Wellington. Thirty-seven craft doted the waters of West Lake. Motor camps in the village were filled to capacity while outside points had their quota of tents and other modes of camping. Sunday gave the finny tribes no surcease from the hungry hooks of the anglers.

As early as four-thirty a.m. the lake was dotted with fishermen not to mention the shore anglers who fared their luck from the same points of vantage to be had on the shores of the lake.

And reports emanating from the various camps are to the effect that a record was established in the number of fish landed. Practically every angler got his limit of fish of the size and quality was much better than the usual standard caught at this time of the year.

Record Pike Caught

The record catch of the week-end and incidentally the season, was a beautiful pike which measured thirty-nine inches from nose to tail-tip and weighed sixteen pounds and two ounces. This beauty was hook by Dr. Hugh McCullough of Toronto. A novel feature of this catch was the fact, that the fish was hooked in the gills. When it was cleaned, its stomach was found to be filled with a number of small sized shad. While the big fella did not strike at the lure it is thought, that the latter surely proved to be his undoing, since the hooks were found buried sideways behind the head. Running a close second were two pickerel, which weighed in the vicinity of eight pounds. One of these was caught by Ernest Jones of Oshawa. A number of anglers reported catches weighing between four and five pounds.

Gatherings in the district say that they cannot remember when so many fish of such generous proportions were caught on Victoria Day.

Crowded, too, were the lakes in the northern part of Hastings County. Not only was this city and district represented but many outside points send their quota of fishing spots were crowded with cars of various vintages over the week-end, and in keeping with the county's enthusiastic anglers they report a fine response on the part of the finny tribes to the lures.

STIRLING
POPULAR SIDNEY COUPLE HONORED

One Hundred Friends Gather to Shower Well-Known Residents

Stirling—Nearly one hundred friends and neighbors gathered at the home of Mr. Wm. Beaman in Sidney Township on Friday night for a surprise party given in honor of his daughter Miss Gertrude Beaman and her future husband Mr. Robert Davis of River Valley. The early part of the evening was devoted to the presentation of a program in the form of a radio broadcast with local artists, being responsible for each number. This interesting and novel program was arranged and directed by Mrs. C. Chard and Mrs. Walter Lindenfield. Later the gathering was called to order by the chairman and the object of its being made clear to all. The honored couple were then given positions in the centre of the group. Gifts of every type were presented gaily and colorfully wrapped, including silverware, linen, needlecraft, and many handy utensils for everyday use in the kitchen. Addresses were read, one coming from the community at large and the other from the River Valley Branch of the Ontario Women's Institute of which Miss Beaman is a valued member.

Address

Dear Gertrude:

This River Valley folks are here not as often is the case to bid farewell or to welcome a stranger, but to acclaim so gladly one of our very own girls. It seemed as though you had left and would find your life's happiness elsewhere, this how perfect that you have accepted so fine a husband as Robert Davis, back.

Queen Elizabeth is loved alike by the older generation who see the queenly virtues in her character and by the younger ones who detect a conformity to the fashion of the day. Likewise, Gertrude, the older ones admire your pleasant, dependable character with your practical experience, while your chums love remembering gay frolics and fun know they will find ready sympathy to modern problems.

We feel sure you and Bob will be a source of encouragement, inspiration, and cheer to us all.

Our gift may seem lovely to you our joy that you and your chosen husband have agreed to make your home among us, and our wish for you both, health, wealth and many long years in the Valley.

On behalf of the Community, Grace Donohue, Alice Coombes.

From The River Valley Institute

River Valley Women's Institute called upon the bride couple Miss Gertrude Beaman and Mr. Bob Davis who both hail from Merrifield England the former in infancy and the latter in later years, and who are now both esteemed Canadian citizens, about to launch their barque on the sea of wedded bliss.

Your friends on both sides of the Atlantic are watching with interest your embarking on the good ship Matrimony and we, the R.V.W.I. wish to link up with those dear to you in wishing you happiness and success throughout your voyage.

May "the hitching of your wagon to a star" in your single days on terra firma be materialized on this voyage. We hope this particular star will be a guiding chart, ever shining down on the worthy captain and his stanuch and popular mate in their double watch at the helm and help them to steer a safe and successful course together.

We note with pleasure your patriotic spirit in choosing Empire Day in Coronation year as your crowning day, and we join in celebrating your crowning glories with the national observance of the empire.

We are glad to know that you are dropping another on our shore so that we can renew past friendships. Your services have been very helpful to our Branch and we are grateful to you, Gertrude, for your ever willing and untiring efforts in furthering the work of the Institute and to you Bob for your talent help on many occasions in social activities sponsored by the Institute.

God bless this happy pair, furnish them with care.

God health and happiness, pleasure and success attend you.

And all their efforts bless this journey through.

The officers and members of River Valley Women's Institute.

Young Men Conduct Service at St. Andrew's

St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church was well filled for the service conducted entirely by members and officers of the Young Men's Bible Class. A male choir of twenty seven voices led in the singing with Mrs. R. H. Williams presiding at the organ, special musical numbers included a male quartette with Messrs Geo. Thompson, Jas. Bell, Wm. Dermidy and Arthur Duncan singing a selection, Arthur Duncan a baritone solo by Arthur Duncan. Mr. Tom Ward, president of the class was in charge of the service and presented the Scripture lesson. Mr. Jas. Bell, vice-president, was the speaker was Mr. Lorne Johnson. Dealing thoughtfully upon the selling of a birthright by Esau, Mr. Johnson pointed out definitely that the modern christian church had sold its birthright which is not sufficiently valued by the young people of the church. The lives of each member of the church should exemplify a high standard of living throughout every phase of life. Instead we find the christian church compromising christianism which eventually fade into insignificance. Remembering Christ's great sacrifice we find we should manifest it difficult to render service. Many have unfortunately sold his birthright and still today we find Christ's cause languishing for the want of Christ whose ultimate aim is the winning of souls to Christ, surveying the stories from the financial standpoint. "What are the expenses and the profits." Such is selling our birthright is the opportunity to engage constructively in furthering "God's Kingdom on earth." What are we doing with the opportunity? This week has been of interesting service and the young men under whose leadership it was conducted are to be congratulated for their splendid effort. Messrs Wm. Dermidy and Oscar Thibodo and Ray Williams were responsible for organizing the choir.

Many Holiday Guests in District

Mr. and Mrs. Murray McGee and daughter of Toronto spent the week end visiting at the home of the former's parents Mr. and Mrs. J. C. McGee.

PROPOSES SWEEPSTAKE TO BUILD ADDITION

London, Ont., May 25—(CP)—Permission to hold a city of London Sweepstake with the objective being to raise funds for the construction of extensions to Victoria Hospital may be sought from Federal Government if a motion likely to be presented to the city council next Monday by Ald. Charles Skeggs, is given consideration. Pointing out that already this year many thousands of dollars have been paid out by London citizens for sweepstake tickets to help finance hospitals in other countries, Ald. Skeggs said it was time some municipality made a move in that direction to keep the money here and put it to some useful purpose.

NEW "GOLD SEAL" ENGINE CUTS OPERATING COSTS

In the hands of owners all across Canada the Chrysler Royal is demonstrating outstanding economy. Owners report as much as 25 miles to a gallon of gasoline. Oil consumption, likewise, is remarkably low.

This low operating cost is made possible by Chrysler's New Gold Seal Engine which has the world's highest compression for its bore . . . yet attains its high mileage records with ordinary gasoline.

Chrysler Royal is Big and Roomy! Imagine a car so reasonably-priced being 96½ inches long inside from windshield to rear window . . . 53 inches wide at the center door posts . . . with a 47-inch front seat and 48½-inch rear seat.

That's the kind of roominess only big costly cars have offered up to now! You get broad level tonneau floors in the strong, safety all-steel bodies . . . new Aero Hydraulic Shock Absorbers to cradle you over any road . . . Chrysler's famous Hydraulic Brakes and Floating Power.

For the complete story of the many wanted features you get for so little more in a Chrysler Royal, see your nearest Chrysler-Plymouth dealer, today.

New 93-horsepower Gold Seal engine has patented Floating Power mountings to smother engine vibration.

EASY TO BUY—Ask your Chrysler-Plymouth dealer about the official Commercial Credit Corporation Time Payment Plan.

TUNE IN Major Bowes' Amateur Hour, Columbia Network 8 to 9 p.m. Eastern Standard Time . . . EVERY THURSDAY.

Free unabridged photograph of Major Edward Bowes on request. Write to Chrysler Corporation of Canada Limited, Chrysler Dominion, Windsor, Ontario.

AT LAST REAL SPACE AT A NEW LOW PRICE

Think of it!—a rear seat 48½ inches wide—50 inches of space from floor to roof—plenty of room for your shoulders, elbows, legs and head—now you can rest . . . really relax as you ride.

His watch says "4 p.m." His face says DROOPS

. . . but that distant clatter of cups says "Here comes your afternoon tea and that will put you right".

IN FACT they know a thing or two in his office. They know the good of that mid-afternoon tea: how it banishes the "Droops": gets work back into full swing: pleases every member of the staff. The "droops" in the afternoon are Nature's warning. The nerves from your brain are like telegraph wires that flash messages to the muscles. Fatigue interferes with those "messages". That's when you feel "foggy", and mistakes creep into your work. The remedy, say doctors, is a cup of tea. Almost at once it stimulates your internal "telegraph system"—safely, harmlessly, gently, and so very pleasantly.

TAKING THE CHILDREN

Churches in Germany have taken up the utterance of Adolf Hitler on May Day, to the effect that "we will take away their children. These we will train and educate to become new Germans. We will not permit them to lapse into the old way of thinking, but will give them thorough training. We will take them when they are ten years old and bring them up in the spirit of the community until they are eighteen. They shall not escape us."

That is Hitler's announcement of determination to supply something different from the training under Protestant and Catholic churches in Germany. But the two great branches of the church have heroically replied to the challenge of the new racial pagan religion of race, blood and soil, whose aim is to wean the children from the Christian faith.

The Catholic Church is calling for Catholic boys and girls to join Catholic organizations in defiance of Berlin, and the Protestants have rallied for the defence of Protestantism against the Government. Karl Barth, noted German divine, said in England, that the new religion is more than a philosophy of ideas written in books, it is a religion backed by the State and Hitler and his friends, a new religion which has become a power in the world. This is what the church has to fight.

GAMES' LESSONS FOR LIFE

Many of the nation's best lessons are learned on its playing fields, Rev. Dr. Elmore McNeill McKee of St. George's Protestant Episcopal Church, New York, said in a sermon expressing the wish that America as a nation possessed a national game with the standards of English cricket. Cricket came into existence at the time of widespread corruption and banitdy, he said. Its standards helped powerfully to stabilize a nation. It became the conscience of the people, passed on from generation to generation. A player whose character in question can never represent his country. There are other games where the gambler can have his fling, but not in the vicinity of a cricket match.

"From baseball and football at their best, from mountaineering and many other sports, one learns three great principles sorely needed by every community and nation," Dr. McKee affirmed. "First the true sportsman always tries to play at his best and according to those rules of behavior which are regarded as fitting. Apply this to business, politics and international affairs and the world will be made over.

"Second, the true sportsman plays for the sake of the game and not for gain. As soon as he takes money for it, we are afraid new motivations may destroy the fineness of the game itself. Apply this principle far and wide in modern life and the corruption of many business enterprises and the lust of nations for conquest shall cease.

"Third, the true sportsman puts the team ahead of himself. The great hour in a football match is when eleven men in superb unity advance down the field without any stars being singled out for glory, or when they hold with dogged resistance on the one yard line.

"The parallel between true sportsmanship and the spirit of Christianity is obvious. Hence sport at its very best becomes a school of character and of Christianity."

Graduates were told at First Presbyterian Church, New York, that they were going out into a troublesome world, and that they would soon learn that it was much easier to please a teacher than to please a boss. "You will find that the degree of politeness that characterizes educational institutions is practically non-existent in the business world. You will be expected to prove yourself a servitor to the world's most unreasonable demands. "There was" he said, "some satisfaction in bucking these difficulties in which you can find lasting pleasure."

There is a remendous contagion of the mind in this world, Dr. Allan Knight Chambers of Broadway Tabernacle Congregational Church, New York. "There are things in this body politic of ours which keep the mind of those outside the church from coming inside. We must clear away that load of brush so that light, joy and a breath of wholesome air may enter."

Indisputably a great, good handsome man is the first of created beings.—Charlotte Bronte.

FOR THIS BRIGHT BEAUTY

For this bright beauty that your mind has held,
Your hands have wrought in curving line and plaine
And contour exquisite; for this of grace
And loveliness that leans against these skies
Even as these trees against this slant of sun,
Words would arise like birds and sing to you.

These fecund forms of nature's patterning
This noble thrust of palm, this flower-filled glade,
This break of hill, these little twisted blades
Speak of a nobler rhythm of a lovelier way.
And so to you these little leaning words
That too would utter bird and blade and bough.

And straight to the Eternal Fount would rise the spray:
"Let her be happy with a great happiness;
Let her be joyful with a great joy;
Let her have time-space ever widening
To live and love and work in;
And even as her spirit rushes riverlike
Into the ocean of beauty—even as her hands
Are swift to paint the colors and shapes of light—
Even as her face is aglow with the radiance
Of perceptiveness and dedication; thus
Let all beautiful things be hers forever!"

"FALTBOOTPADDELN" IS A NEW FAD IN THE UNITED STATES an importation from Germany, where it has been a popular sport for some time. A faltboat, is a collapsable boat which when put together has great buoyancy, resembles an Eskimo Kayak, with covered decks and small cockpit for the paddler, and is especially adapted for running swift water. Railway week-end excursions are being run out of New York City for faltboat outings, taking the passengers to Connecticut, renting them faltboats for an eighteen-mile cruise down the Housatonic river, with the running of fifty rapids, one very stiff one. The complete craft weighs about fifty pounds and is carried like a knapsack. Railway fare is $2.25, rent of boat $4 for a single seater, $7 for a tandem. The boats are being manufactured now in the United States, selling for from $40 to $70. A canvas deck keeps out spray and two rubber flotation tanks prevent sinking in case of capsizing. Low-slung they are hard to tip over. Experts have made the 1,400 miles around the coast of England, the 17,000 from England to New Guinea, the 1,500 miles from Manhattan to Chicago. A double-bladed paddle is used.

BRITISH COLUMBIA WANTS TO SWALLOW THE PICTURESQUE AND GOLD LINED YUKON TERRITORY, but the Yukon objects to being swallowed and prefers to live her own life alone, a country rich in tradition, solvent and progressive, rather than be translated into a particle, just a part of British Columbia. Yukon feels so strongly that if the matter is pressed the sourdoughs may stage a sit down strike—but they won't sit down on their glaciers, not by a Forty-Mile Creek or two. They'll sit beside the roarin' fire in the saloons made famous by "Dangerous Dan MacGrew" and "The Lady Known as Lou", and let the gold in the creeks go blum while they consume tons of eatin' tobacco, and assuage their thirst with the liquor known as "Fortyrod", while they express salty opinions of the politicians who would turn the Yukon of Robert Service into prosaic British Columbia, older but not wiser than the Yukon.

THE STUNT MERCHANT

Mick and a Yankee sailor were always trying to beat each other at tricks of skill and strength. The Yankee climbed up to the top of the mainmast and stood there on his hands. Coming down, he dared Mick to emulate his performance.

Mick climbed up the mast, lost his hold, fell about 50 feet, caught in the rigging, turned and fell the rest of the way, landing in a tank of water quite unhurt.

He got out of the tank, shook himself, and with a superior grin at the Yankee, asked him: "Well, smarty, can ye do that?"

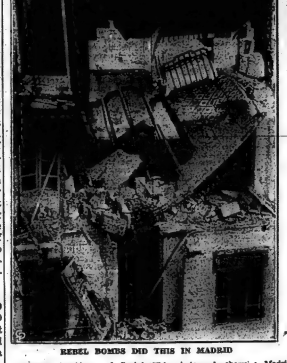
Dr. George Clinton, late of Deseronto, has come to reside in this city and has opened an office over Mr. D. M. Waters' Drug Store at the corner of Bridge and Front Streets. His residence is on Bridge Street east between George and William Streets.

The first strawberries this season appeared on the Saturday market and sold readily at 25 cents per box. Mrs. Dickens, confectioner, received a shipment of strawberries from Syracuse, N.Y. Complaints are made that the oil burning lamps near Fellowes' brewery air out every night by nine o'clock. This should be investigated.

About sixty couples attended the Firemen's Ball at the city hall last night. The music furnished by the Oddfellows' orchestra was excellent and everyone had a good time.



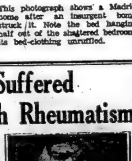
Messrs. Alex. Robertson, M.P., and S. R. Burdett, M.P., returned to Ottawa today after spending the 24th of May in the city.

WOMEN AND CHILDREN FLEE BILBOA AS REBELS CLOSE IN

Salvaging their beds and what other personal effects they could carry, these women are some of the thousands that have fled from Bilbao, Spain, since the insurgent can from the city of terror. armies began their drive against the Basque capital. British and French ships are evacuating women and children as fast as they where daily bombardments by air and ground artillery have created an inferno rivalling Dante's brain child.

REBEL BOMBS DID THIS IN MADRID

Insurgent bombings of Spain's capital, Madrid, are still causing considerable damage, though the air raids are less frequent than before the rebel troops concentrated upon Bilbao in northern Spain. This photograph shows a Madrid home after an insurgent bomb struck it. Note the bed hanging half out of the shattered bedroom; its bed-clothing unruffled.



BRIDGE WILL CONNECT LAKEHEAD STRIP OF TRANS-CANADA ROAD

Across the Nipigon river at this point a bridge is under construction to link opposite sections of the trans-Canada highway now being built along the north shore of Lake Superior. Work on this section of the highway is expected to be completed this summer with the opening slated for September 1. Opening of the strip will make available a scenic motor road as far as Schreiber, Ont., along the beautiful north shore of Lake Superior. Start of work on the bridge is pictured with the C. P. R. bridge across the Nipigon shown at the right.

Dundas Lady Suffered 2 Years With Rheumatism

Also Troubled with Stomach, Was Nervous, and Couldn't Sleep. Like a New Woman Since Taking Syntona, She Declares.

MRS. A. CLARK

The great popularity of Syntona throughout this vicinity is by no means accidental, for this new medicine does actually give wonderful results. as evidenced by the many hundreds who tell of the splendid work that it has done in the few months that it has been here. For example, here is the experience of Mrs. A. Clark, a well-known lady of Dundas, Ont.:

"I had suffered from rheumatism of two years' standing. Pains in my back and limbs were so severe that I couldn't sleep and no matter what I used I could get no relief. I was troubled a lot with gas in my stomach and heartburn after meals. I often had dizzy spells and my nerves were so bad I was afraid to drive in the car.

"Even from the first bottle of Syntona I felt an improvement and I said, 'If this medicine helps me I certainly will recommend it.' That is only three weeks ago and in that time it has done wonders, for the rheumatic pains have all disappeared, I sleep soundly at night, my nerves are steady and I have no trouble now with gas or heartburn. Not only that, but I feel better in every way since I've used this wonderful medicine. I cannot find words to praise it highly enough."

The Syntona Man at Dolan's Drug Store is introducing and explaining this new medicine to local men and women.

Trenton and District

Trenton, May 26—Three persons narrowly escaped serious injuries late Saturday night when their car turned over on Dundas Street opposite McCall Street, after a collision with another machine. Constable F. F. Ross, investigating officer, reported an auto carrying Marjorie Keys, C. H. Kew and Albert Arnold, all of London, Ont., travelling east was turned over when struck by a car operated by Harry Chase, R.R. 3, Trenton. The Chase machine is alleged to have pulled out into the highway from McCall Street, directly in front of the approaching vehicle. The London trio dragged themselves from their damaged automobile. They were examined by Dr. J. W. Farley, all suffered slight cuts and bruises. The Chase car was only damaged a little. It is expected that local authorities will prefer charges.

Weddings

GRILLS—HANNAH

A quiet wedding was solemnized on May 24th at 4 p.m. at Frankford United Church parsonage, when Maida Mowrey, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Hannah, Frankford, became the bride of Otis Jack Grills, second son of Mr. and Mrs. Mark Grills, Belleville. They were attended by Mr. and Mrs. Arthur May of Frankford.

The bride was dressed in pink flowered chiffon with corsage of pink roses and sweet-peas. The bridesmaid's dress was flowered chiffon and corsage of yellow roses and sweet-peas. Rev. J. C. Lane of Frankford officiated.

Wedding supper was served in the white room at the home of Dr. and Mrs. B. A. Wyatt, Belleville. Those present were Mrs. Dana Grills, Belleville, Mrs. Chas. Hannah, Boyds Harnah, Harry Hannah, Frankford, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Hannah, (grandparents of the bride), Belleville; Mrs. H. Wyatt, (grandmother of the bride), Dr. and Mrs. Kathleen Lane and Maureen, Belleville; Mr. John Hunter, Kingston; Mr. and Mrs. Harold Hannah, Mr. and Mrs. Ross, Toronto; Mrs. Hale, Sault Ste. Marie.

Mr. and Mrs. Grills will reside at 14 Dunbar street, Belleville.

WATERFALL—RAYNER

A very pretty wedding was solemnized at St. Thomas' Anglican Church, Stirling, on Saturday evening, May 22nd, when Caroline Daisy, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Rayner, became the bride of Rt. Leonard Waterfall.

The service was performed by Rev. A. S. McDonald, rector of St. John's, and the Wedding March was played by Mrs. H. H. Algar. The bride was pretty, Rev. Waterfall dressed in white, while the bridesmaid, Miss Kathleen Rayner, of Toronto, were pale green.

The groom was attended by his brother, Mr. Alfred Waterfall of Campbellford.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, a large number attending.

Later in the evening the happy couple left by motor for a short wedding trip, the bride travelling in a sand suit with brown accessories. On their return they will reside at Madoc Junction.

Victoria Sunday School P. E. Co., Marks Seventieth Anniversary

H. J. Parliament, Organizer of School Present at Celebration

Victoria—May and blossoms with all its splendor crowned Victoria Sunday school on Sunday, May 23rd with a Red Letter Day which will be long remembered by hundreds of People who assembled there, in old boys' and girls' reunion, marking the seventieth anniversary of their Sunday School and also being able to have present the organizer of the school of 70 years ago, in the person of Mr. H. J. Parliament, hale and hearty at the wonderful age of 83 years.

It is a wonderful to reflect on this great change in time, then in having the reunion, it is a wonderful reminder to bring back to the present day the people who have passed through this Sunday School in those long years. As an impromptu era will the loved ones who have toiled and worked and have gone on to their reward, bu have thrown the torch to others to carry on. And one is happy to say of the great many who were once members here are now in their good grade in fields afar. And may they continue in their good work. The service opened at 2.15 o'clock with Rev. Brownlee in charge, opening with hymn "Faith of our Fathers" Prayer and Scripture. The choir then rendered the solo "It's Old Church Bell." Rev. Brownlee read the names of several old boys and girls who sent lovely letters expressing their regrets in not being able to be present.

A letter was read from the Ontario Religious Educational Council of Toronto expressing their good wishes and pointed out the wonderful influence the Sunday School in a community for so great a number of years. They also sent their kindest regards and best wishes to the organizer, Mr. Parliament who was also present at the reunion. Offering was taken and Mr. Bissell, organist of Victoria United Church delighted the audiences with a beautiful piano solo, followed by a delightful solo by Mrs. Freda Stephens of Montreal.

An address was then given by Mr. Parliament which was very well and ably given by a man of his years. To him all are greatly indebted for service rendered and the great influence of a Sunday School in the community.

Another number by the choir was followed by a very excellent address by Rev. Dr. Bowyer of Belleville who gave out a great challenge to all that the Sunday school is a great and glorious work and is certainly the foundation of the church. We must be up and doing at all times and not leave the work of the Sunday School to the unfaithful few. Every one must feel their responsibility. Dr. Semple closed the excellent address with prayer, followed by a beautiful solo "My Task" by Mr. Joe Foley of Wellington, formerly of Victoria. The program closed with hymn "Blest be the tie that binds" and benediction.

A hall hour was spent in meeting old school mates and friends again. Few there hadn't met in twenty five years or more, so it was one grand and glorious day for all. Friends were there from Montreal, Whitby, Oshawa, Toronto, Trenton, Brighton, Wooler, Wellington, Bloomfield, Belleville, Picton, Consecon and to, and the surrounding territory for miles around our own locality.

LONG BRANCH TO STAGE A SPECIAL

$5,000 Added Value For Horses Eligible to King's Plate

A new race of $2,000 added value to be decided at the Long Branch seven-day running race - meeting that commences Wednesday, June 9th, at the Toronto suburban mile track was announced today by the Ontario Race conference. The affair is to be an annual fixture, with the probability of its value increasing every year should conditions and the response of the horsemen and public warrant. The race will be decided on the Saturday of the meeting. In this instance, June 12th.

Closely patterned after the King's Plate, inasmuch as conditions call for three-year-olds and upwards which were eligible to the Woodbine fixture of 1937, the new race will be a handicap event, for which a name has not yet been chosen, and will be enlarged next year to include Canadian-foaled, not only Ontario-breds as is the case with the Plate. Other restrictions will also be removed such as horses of three-year-olds and over not being eligible if they have won a race other than the Plate, nor will it matter if they have left the Province for a certain period or have been out of Canada. These changes will be made next year, but the time was too short between now and the running to those to get entries from any where but Ontario.

Nomination Fees Low

Like the plate, the new race will be at one mile and a furlong, but the nomination fee will be but $5 and starting fee $25, as compared to nomination fee of $10 and $50 for the Guineas. In addition the breeder of the winner of this most attractive race, which next year will be a truly national event, is to receive $300 and the trainer $100. With the starting and nomination fees the purse will be considerably over $5,000 of which the second horse will receive $800, the third $500 and there will be a prize of $300 to fourth horse.

Another feature that should appeal to the more modest stables is that where owners or trainers may nominate one or more horses only one owned by the same interest will be allowed to start.

Quinte Chapter O. E. S. Instals Year's Officers

Consecon, May 26—Quinte Chapter No. 59, O.E.S., held their regular meeting on Thursday evening May 13th, with a good attendance of members and many visitors were present from Belleville, Trenton and Wellington. The chapter room was beautifully decorated in yellow and green.

The installation ceremony was in charge of Sister Effie Allison, P.W.M. and Bro. Roy Anderson P.W.P. Sister Rose Naylor D.D.G.M. acted as Grand Marshal assisted by Sister Adaline Anderson P.W.M. as Grand Chaplain, Sister Pearl Anderson P.M. Grand Warder and Bro. Clifford Naylor P.W.P., was Grand Sentinel. Sister Myrtle Preston and Sister Stella Kinnear P.W.M. were soloist and sang several times during the impressive ceremony.

The following officers were duly installed:

Organist: Winnie Purtelle.
Adah: Retha Bongard.
Ruth: Marjorie Richardson.
Esther: Myrtle Sharpe.
Martha: Beatrice Taft.
Electa: Helen Miller.
Warder: Lillian Sprague.
Sentinel: Fred Russel.

Sister Gladys Parks retiring Matron and Bro. Victor Bongard retiring Patron were presented with past officers jewels. Bro. Bongard presented Sister Parks with a gift of silver and Sister Helen Cross presented Sister Parks with an electric clock from the officers of the chapter. The chapter was honoured by having Bro. Quintin Boyd, Worthy Grand Patron of Ontario and Sister Anna Boyd, Worthy Grand Matron of Ontario present and they were each given a hearty welcome.

After the Chapter was closed a delicious lunch was served and dancing and a social hour was enjoyed by all.

CENTENARY

Mrs. Edwin Adams, third of Sidney very kindly opened her home for the May meeting of the Centenary W. M. S.

At the noon hour about twenty had sat down to a delightful dinner which was enjoyed by all.

At 2.30 the president, Mrs. H. Roblin called the meeting to order. Delegates were appointed to attend the Convention to be held at Demorestville on May 26.

A letter of appreciation was read from Jack Sargent a recent bride, thanking the community for the gift of a chair presented to them. Letters were also read from Mrs. Cleo. Shortt, Mrs. Egert Wright and Mrs. Bargent Sr. thanking the ladies for flowers sent to them during their illness.

Meeting closed with the singing of the National Anthem in honor of our newly crowned king. George the Sixth.

The Centenary W. M. S meeting for May was held at the home of Mrs. Adams, following the W. A. meeting. Mrs. R. Hart the President in the chair. Mrs. Roy Treasurer. Auditors—Mrs. Charles Grass, Mrs. Donaldson.

It was then decide for the officers to attend a meeting at the president's home, Mrs. Arnold Mitchell to prepare the programme for the coming year's work, also to complete the arrangements for the District Annual to be held in Front Road Church and to serve dinner in the Hall some time in June.

Mrs. Noble Brown our secretary is to be congratulated on the fine report she read on the year's work of each and every month's programme of the Institute members, which was pleasing to all.

The meeting was closed by singing the National Anthem. Mrs. Mitchell and her hostess served a dainty lunch.

Bad Boy Van Lingle Mungo Hands Pirates Third Setback Hitting Home Winning Counter

Giants Creep up by Plastering 9 to 3 Loss on Reds

CARDINALS IDLE

Yankees Increase Lead in American by Defeating Tigers

(By Bill Boni, Associated Press Sports Writer)

The Pittsburgh Pirates, who hadn't looked anywhere but straight ahead to late September and the National League pennant since the season began, today were beginning to cast a few anxious glances back over their shoulders.

The Buccaneers didn't have' any such worries as the Detroit Tigers, who were trying to recover from the shock of yesterday's serious injury to Manager Mickey Cochrane, who suffered a fractured skull when he was struck by a ball thrown by Bump Hadley of the Yankees. They had, however, sufficient reason to cast a few furtive peeks in the direction of the Giants.

When Van Lingle Mungo, Brooklyn's bad boy, neared back and machine-gunned the Pirates into a 2-1 submission yesterday, it was the third straight setback for the Traynor's crew. Previously the Bucs had managed to subdue each of their few defeats between two victories. Mungo, celebrating his birthday from suspension, gave home the winning run himself.

Then the Giants spattered it 9 to 3 all over the Cincinnati landscape to put the Reds, 5-1, and their fourth successive triumph. As a result the New Yorkers, edging past the again-idle St. Louis Cardinals, were only two games behind Pittsburgh.

Tries to Bolster Hitting

Traynor sought to bolster his batting attack by shoving Pep Young into the first-base berth and Brubaker's spot at third. But Pep couldn't get a hit. All the Pirates could get, only six, and Mungo, with a slight discoloration around one eye as a left-over of last week-end's brawl that cost him a three-day suspension and $1,000, marched on to his fifth triumph. His six-hitter made up for the fact Manager Burleigh Grimes was handing out of his third game of the season for venting his choler on Umpire George Magerkurth's judgment.

Detroit's loss of Cochrane and the mortal blow to the Tigers' pennant hopes that was administered when the catching manager was carried to the hospital overshadowed their loss of a single game, 4-1, to the Yankees.

Despite the fact Hadley failed to last, as he had in each of his other four starts, the Yankee powerhouse widened its first place advantage in the American League to two games as the Athletics lost a 4-3 decision to Cleveland's Indians.

Teams Closely Bunched

The Yanks' defeat of Detroit and Cleveland's victory over the A's left the last three clubs closely bunched. The Tigers were third, a game and a half behind the Mackmen, and the Indians another half game back in fourth place.

The Red Sox, keeping their place at the head of the second division, handed the Browns their eighth defeat in nine starts, 4-2. The Chicago veteran, Ted Lyons, spoiling the seven hits he yielded, pushed the White Sox ahead of Washington with a 9-3 trimming of the Senators.

The Cubs kept pace with the Giants in their pursuit of Pittsburgh by beating the Phillies, 5-1. The Phils, whose starting pitchers haven't been able to finish one of their last five games, losing four, got eight of their nine hits and their runs off Bill Lee in the last four innings. Wet grounds kept the Chards and Bees out of action.

KI-Y LEAGUE

In the two games of softball scheduled in the Ki-Y League last evening the Bluebirds easily won over the Terriers by the score of 12 to 5 at Queen Mary School ground. W. Pittgibbon handled the game in his officiating meeting with the approval of the contesting clubs. At Queen Alexandra School ground, however, a slugging contest resulted when the Junior Terriers defeated their rivals 27 to 13. The winners scored in every innings played.

ROME COLONELS DEEP IN CELLAR

Fail to Win One Game Since Can.-Am. Loop Opened

(By The Canadian Press)

If Rome Colonels keep it up, they'll have to be digging a deeper cellar for the Can.-Am. Baseball League.

Right now, with the league season just a week old, they're down about as low as they can get. The Colonels from upstate New York are absorbed six straight losses with never a mark on the "win" side of the column.

Even Ottawa Braves have been kicking them downstairs. Ottawa, winless as the Romans until yesterday defeated Jim Roberts for 11 hits them and routed the Colonels 4-1.

Mort Flohr's six-hit pitching had a lot to do with it. He struck out seven while walking three. O'Rourke fanned seven.

While the tailenders were scrapping for the first win Perth-Cornwall Blues and doubting Falls Hearnes stayed at the head of the parade. Beavers took a 6-4 win from Cloverleaf Clovers and Bisons ran the bases ragged as they pounded out a 17-4 victory over Brockville Pirates.

Scoring Spree

In another scoring spree Oswego Heblands stopped Ogdensburg Colts four-game win streak by subduing the New Yorkers 22-14. Trailing 8-3 in the fifth, Nets got five in the next innings and 14 more in the seventh and eighth. Nowicki's two homers, one with bases loaded and the other with two aboard, helped.

Manager Utley Parker, though, wasn't on hand for the action. He got himself chased from the game in the first for demurring so insistently when time was called just as Umpire Hoy was about to take over Oswego with a full complement on the pitcher, thus wiping out a brace or so of runs.

Four their win over Brockville, Perth-Cornwall combined its bats with six Pirate errors. Rome Hawkwell held Pirates to three safeties as the Bisons pounded Tennyson, Healey and Allaire.

Today's games: Smith's Falls at Ogdensburg; Oswego at Perth; Rome at Brockville; Cloverville at Ottawa.

Deseronto Cadets Receive Praise

Deseronto, May 26 (Special)— The annual inspection of the Deseronto high school cadets was held on Tuesday on the grounds of the high school with Captain S. H. Leach, Military District No. 8, Kingston, as inspecting officer. The inspection began at 10 o'clock and continued until eleven. At the conclusion of the inspection Captain Leach made a short address to the cadets. He said that he was much impressed by the action of the boys and also by the commander Mr. Thomas Vatsalidis. After the inspection medals were served the cadets by the Principal of the high school Mr. Keough, who trained the cadets. Officers of the cadets: Commanding Officer, Vatsalidis; Senior Lieutenant, Douglas Hough.

SPORTS DAY AT FOXBORO DRAWS LARGE CROWD

Cannifton and Foxboro Winners in Opening Games of Loop

FOOT RACES HELD

Horseshoe Throwing Enthusiasts Hold Doubles Tourney

The baseball season was again ushered in at this village monday by the usual Sports Day program sponsored by the local baseball club. This event annually draws large crowds and yesterday proved no exception to the rule, as, in spite of the late seeding conditions caused the farmers to take advantage of every dry day to get their sowing operations completed, a great number of cars and the wool bell tone could not possibly stay away from the scene of activity as gave holiday and turned out to watch their favorites perform.

Horseshoe throwing enthusiasts were as usual given their opportunity of displaying their prowess and under Mr. Wm. Leslie's guidance a round robin series was run off and culminated in a doubles match between leading pointmakers of the first series. Kiddies were not forgotten and races of every description were contested in readiness for contests for the ladies, such as the popular rolling pin throw, shoe kicking and all driving contests in which the younger element far surpassed their elder sisters, excelling in throwing "Maggie's" rolling pin. Just what that means is not hard to comprehend, as we have not been.

Of course the baseball games were the main attraction and the two league games contested fans were certainly given all that was asked for, the game between Cannifton and Shannonville was won by the former team in a rather convincing manner, with the score of 11-1, while the second fixture between Bellville Kiwanis Juniors and the Foxboro squad was a closely contested affair until Foxboro opened out in every four in the eighth to win 7-1. It was rather a disastrous start for the new entrants in the S. H. League as the Juniors lost both their morning game with Latta and also their afternoon tilt with Foxboro.

Cannifton, Shannonville and Latta Ernie Smith, Cannifton's clongated addition to their hurling staff, made his debut in the South Hastings League in a very auspicious manner as from the first ball pitched off until the last out Ernie mowed down the Shannonville batters with rare abandon, fanning eighteen straight suckers by his team mates he allowed only one lone single that coming in the last inning when with two men away and one inning for virtue of an error Juby cracked a Texas leaguer to avert a shutout.

Both starting hurlers went the whole route both getting wild strikeouts and tossing but one walk and until the seventh never allowed a runner to reach second base. For the losers, allowed eight safeties while he made but one error, that number, but errors at the critical time coupled with his own wildness spelled defeat.

Cannifton sailed the game away in the first inning when on five hits including a triple by Cole and with the aid of a walk and a hit batsman they pushed four runs across aiding one more in the second, with two in the fourth and making a runaway in the sixth when on one lone hit they scored four more to make their total to 11. Shannonville averted a shutout in the seventh when they sent in the same scored Booth who had gotten a life when Empson heaved a wide toss to first.

Empson and Cole were standouts for Cannifton, Empson with his snappy work at short while Cole cooked out a triple and double on three times at the plate with Gray and Hughes getting a brace of singles. Lined out for the losers while Booth at first also played good ball.

Lineups:

Cannifton: L. Jarrell, Gray Empson, Cole, Hughes, R. Jarrell Barrage, Sharpe, Smith and Luman.

Shannonville: Sharpe, Booth, Partridge, Booth, Kimmett, Juby, Farnsworth, Empire and Liddle.

Foxboro 7, Belleville Jrs. 1

Starting right out where they left off last year the Foxboro nine minus several of their old standby continued their winning ways and trounced the new entrants in the league, namely the Kiwanis Juniors. Rounding bits in the first and eighth innings the winners shoved across all their runs.

Manager Blakely made no mistake when he nominated his ace hurler "Sud" Wilkins to do the flinging in the opening game of the season. Sud was on top of the batters all the way and had his opponents literally eating out of his hand all afternoon as he allowed only five hits all singles, while he sent 14 back to the bench via the strikeout route. "Letty" Weeks, upon whom Manager Woodley pinned his hopes comes in for a good share of praise as after a shaky start he set the Foxboro nine down with nine safeties and after the first pitched shutout ball for six innings but weakened perceptibly in the eighth when Foxboro scored four runs.

Foxboro scored three in the first as Seeley singled, Ashley, in attempting to sacrifice caught the infield napping and beat out a bunt. Clay singled scoring Seeley. Ashley scored on a passed ball and Gay came in on an infield out. In the third they threatened when Wilkins trebled but was left stranded. In the eighth Seeley drew a pass, Ashley sacrificed, Gay singled, Wilkins was safe when Monday muffed his throw, Seeley scoring. Wall singled scoring Gay, Stewart singled and Wilkins scored, Wall going third and scoring on Williams' safety.

Kiwanis Jrs. came to life in the fourth when Collins singled, advanced when Wilkins failed to hold him off first and threw wild. Whalen was safe as Wall erred, Collins scoring. Gannon grounded to short who kept Sud Whalen as he went past. Plunkett walked and Warren was hit, but with bases loaded Weeks hit to short to end the frame. Again in the sixth Kiwanis threatened when they got two aboard, but Wilkins applied the brakes and no harm was done.

Seeley, Gay and Wilkins for the winners were consistent with the willow getting two hits apiece while Collins was the only Kiwanis player to get more than one. Sud's two right field made two the running bases while Monday and Carson played snappy baseball.

'MIKE' COCHRANE BEANED BY BALL; SKULL FRACTURED

Unintentionally Ball Thrown by Bump Hadley "Sailed"

TAKEN TO HOSPITAL

N.Y. Physician States Player in No Immediate Danger

New York May 26—(AP)—Mickey Cochrane manager of the Detroit Tigers and the "Iron Mike" of the great Philadelphia Athletic teams of 1928, '30, and '31 lay in a hospital with a fractured skull today, but physicians said he would live and that and will to win that have colored his baseball career should help him in the toughest fight of all.

Mickey was taken to the hospital (St. Elizabeth's yesterday after-noon after one of Bump Hadley's pitches had hit him in the right temple in the fifth inning of a game between the Yankees and Tigers at the Yankee stadium.

There were three balls and two strikes on Cochrane when he was hit. Hadley shaken, said later, "it sailed. I don't know why. It just did.

In Cochrane's last previous time at bat in the game which the Yanks won, 4-3, he had hit a home run.

The Yankee physician, Dr. Robert N. Walsh, said there was no indication of any skull fracture.

Mrs. Cochrane Arrives

Mrs. Cochrane arrived early today by plane from Detroit.

DOWN MERCHANTS IN TIDY CONTEST

Trenton, May 26 (Special)—Intercastle league contest between Trend Mfg. and Merchants at Bayshore diamond on Saturday night produced this ball. The Mfg. procured an early game margin and at the starting of the third inning were leading their rivals 5-0. Cottrell, stellar right fielder of the Merchants, walloped a thickened offering for a homer with three men on to drive in four runs. The blast came when two men were out and it was labelled as the most spectacular hit of the season. Cochrell drove out a four bagger again in the beginning of the sixth stanza with nobody aboard but the opposition was the future 12 to 0. J. Brickman handled the bull-and-C. Ward.

Walter O. Briggs, Tiger official, named Coach Del Baker, acting manager of the team. Baker was manager last year when Cochrane was out of the game with illness. Cochrane's injury is closest to a major league diamond fatality of the 1920 since another Yankee pitcher, Carl Mays, hit Ray Chapman, shortstop of the Cleveland Indians, at the polo grounds in 1920.

Ill health injuries and hard luck have been Mike's constant companions since he started his brilliant career with the Philadelphia Athletics in 1925.

As a player Mike has been one of the great catchers of his time, some say of all time. He is fast and he can hit. Since he broke in he has hit under .300 only four times, has compiled a .320 lifetime average. Twice he has been voted the most valuable player in his league.

Catch Exotic Wooler 7-3

Ideal playing conditions prevailed at the Bayside theatre nine meet Wooler at Bayside diamond on Friday night. The picture men gave the out-of-town aggregation a 7-3 trimming, but had to produce fine ball in doing so. Coughlin on the mound for the winners pitched a mighty nice game and at no time was in danger, Freddie Anderson performed on the slab for the loosers and gave a much better display than the score indicates. In the first half of the third inning Redcliffe swatted out a four bagger with Richards on and both streaked across the platter. In the fifth Capilola beat out a run in the opening frame in front of their front but their rivals came back fighting and in the next session tied its score. Wooler gained a two point lead in the third by knocking a home run with a man on base and held the superior margin till the end of the fifth when the cinema boys pushed two players over the home plate when the Woolerites reversed their form. Batsmen and camera grinders staged a beautiful finish to the speedy contest, by garnering three tallies. Teams were:

Capilol Theatre: C. Niddery c, Steinburg c, Redcliffe 2b, Benham 1b, Rattan 3b, Drake rf, Morin ss, Bowden lf, Coughlin p.

Wooler: Richards ss, Redcliffe 2b, Austin 3b, McNeil cf, Bowden rf, Rattan 3b, Stacey rf, Downs c, Anderson p. Umpires: W. Miller and C. Ward.

FIRST WIN FOR ORIOLES UNDER BUCKY CROUSER

Bill Lohrman Has Won Three of Five Games Won by Team

LEAFS HOLD ON

Defeat Rochester With Four Run Assault in The Third

By The Associated Press

Bill Lohrman may not be the best nor even the tenth best pitcher in the International League but he's the Baltimore Orioles right now the tall right-hander looks as good as Carl Hubbell.

The Orioles have won only five games in 29 this season and Lohrman has won three of them. Two of these three came at a time when the Birds were in the depths of despair.

The Birds had dropped their first five games under Crouser's regime. Lohrman furnished their first victory by going the route against Rochester. Yesterday, with the Orioles headed for perhaps an even longer losing streak—they had lost nine in succession—Lohrman held Syracuse's cunning hitters to seven hits and scored a 3-1 victory.

First Win For Crouse

For Crouser, Oriole recently appointed Baltimore manager, it was the first victory of the season after the helm from Guy Sturdy.

Lohrman's opponent was Syracuse victory-skein at six and broke a virtual tie with—Montreal for fourth place.

The Royals behind a neat fourhit pitching performance by the veteran Henry Johnson moved into third place with an 8-3 triumph over Buffalo. The Bisons, who got seven runs second to fourth to a Toronto defeated Rochester 6-4.

Johnson yielded only two hits and no runs until the ninth inning when two Buffalo blows gave him their only scores. The Royals walloped Fred Fussner, Bison fourteen game, with Sammy Bell getting three for three to lead the attack.

The Leafs drove Nuhe Kleinke from the mound in the third inning with a four run assault to give them their victory. Adam Comorosky doubled with the bases loaded to clinch the fifty.

Newark's leading Bears overcame a seven-run deficit to defeat Jersey's Giants 9-8. The Giants knocked Alley Bryan from the box but his pitching sensation, from the mound in the fifth inning to gain his fifth which coupled with two errors gave them seven runs.

There is plenty of baseball talent in Belleville today. The same as there was years ago. Twice Wednesday's Kiwanis kids proved that state ball when they caused "Doc" Welsh's Latta nine for ten scoreless innings before losing 3 to 2 in the eleventh Monday. Carl Casey, former Belleville National senior mounted was on the slab for the Latta outfit, while young Joe Kaliner occupied the box for the handful of faithful fans by letting Latta down with five safeties. Casey is still the same effective moundsman of old, which makes the Kiwanis effort all the more commendable. The kids put up a fine brand of ball and were deserving of a much better fate than they were forced to accept.

Defensively Coach Woodley seems to have a good combination, especially around the keystone sackers McGruda and Collins have worked with rhythm-like precision. As the teams continued to trip over figures on the scoreboard it reminded us of the old days when Belleville was tops in the baseball realm. What might help to encourage the kids, however, would be a few more referees to give them moral encouragement.

Like the majority of junior clubs the local kids were noticeably weak at the bat and did not hit with any too much consistency, but on the holiday they faced two former International league hurlers in the morning and "Bud" Wilkins in the afternoon. When garnered together a team of green youngsters one cannot expect to pick off star hurlers like Casey and Kaliner by picking grapes off a vine. Give the kids a little more support, a hard hitting outfielder, a slugging first sacker and another moundsman to relieve Kaliner and the kids are here and they'll chase any ordinary intermediate A club much too close for comfort.

Matilda Maguire, outstanding football trainer, who trained Queens when they won the Dominion football title back in 1924, '24 and '25 and who is now located in Winnipeg, is spending the summer months in Belleville. The local lacrosse moguls should be "hipped to" this break and secure the advice and services of such an outstanding trainer as Matilda Maguire. Incidentally the Central Ontario Lacrosse loop opens here next June tenight.

Leroy Lutchman, elongated fireball harler of the Point Anne intermediate softball team, whitlled his way to victory over the Kingston Hand and walized into softball's hall of fame on Saturday evening, when he pitched a no hit, no run game against the Clozes, winning 2 to 0. Incidentally Lutchman completed the picture of softball perfection when not a single Cloze batter reached first base safely, which actually means really something of mention. The victory marked the second consecutive victory of the season for the Point vitalizing" lads. President Bill Todd informs us the new softball diamond, situated at the north end of the Coleman Plots will be ready for competition some time this week, he hopes. In the holiday triple-header, however, Corbins beat Bell-Sargents, the Aaknas kids won over Cloze and Point Anne beat the Percivals, so we find the "cement-makers" gaining I. clash.

The Belleville grads. that is to say former players who once wore the livery of the Belleville Nationals, did all of the clubbing for the Edward Athletics Monday as they bowed to Kingston 7-1. Dean Fred Wilson a double and single, Alfie Weir a double and Art Scarlett with a single were the brunt of the hitting qualities of the Napanee crowd as Yammy Jamieson was up to his old pitchin' ol, pitching his opening and winning for Kingston. Coach Walter Cerow played "young Walter" on at first base and like his dad of years ago, the kid came through with flying colors.

We forgot to make mention a few lines back, that the local Kiwanis infield came through with a beautiful double killing Monday, as nice a pair of outs as could be wished for.

Walt Scott has a sweet pair synchronizing around the middle sack in Ford and Stanford. Hewitt Smith, now residing in Ottawa, accompanied the Ponies to Napanee Monday and the conventional opening day hand-shaking held up the proceedings.

Although they were outhit eight to five on Monday the Peterboro seniors were before the home crowd to defeat the C.O.B.L. Hillcrest Athletics 5-4. Manager Cowan" hoisted the spheroid for six bad errors. Eddie Whitehill was the standout performer for the losers, in his new Oshawa livery, he suffed out a pair of hits to show the home fans he can still pickle the pellett, while Nackamura, the Jap who starred for Peterboro club, went hitless.

Joe Daley, silver-plated mentor of the Kingston Ponies, informs us his new Yankee doodle dandy boundsman, Parkyzavecyo — aw what's the use, is really a find. "He'll make it league all the way Clancy", predicted Joe.

Ken Chiles' Williams wears uniform No. 1 for the Ponies, while their new shortstop, Goodfellow wears No. 11 Goodfellow is a fair good fielder, but he'll never break into any of the C.O.B.L. forces with his clubbing feat.

Walter Cerow, outgoing maestro of the Clobard Athletics, was in Belleville last night endeavoring to sign "Speedy" Lou Lemon, former Belleville and Kingston C.O.B.L. baiiser. Cerow's newly acquired receiver, Jeffers, sustained injuries on Monday that forced him on the sidelines. Walter was endeavoring to procure St. Louis to catch for Napanee at Kingston today.

The Belleville Minor Lacrosse league opened its portals after school yesterday when the Collegiate bantams triumphed over Queen Mary 4-1. The Collegiate opened with a central attack on the Queen Mary citadel and scored two goals before the smaller squad really got hostilities had commenced. Then the Queen Mary kids settled away, however, they played the M. C. I. kids more than even than point. After school today Queen Victoria and Queen Alexandria meet, on morrow: St. Michaels and the B. C.

Empire Day Program Is Given By Wellman's School Children

Bawden — The pupils of the Wellman's School with their teacher Miss Grace Dayman enjoyed a delicious picnic dinner consisting of salads, cakes, pies, lemonade and a host of other goodies on the school lawn at noon on Friday. Following the dinner the youngsters enjoyed a game of football before entering the school for their special Empire Day program.

Master Jim Watson, President of the Junior Red Cross Society, was chairman and the service opened with O Canada. The Secretary, Miss Margaret Taylor, read the minutes and Miss Eleanor Heagle gave a welcome recitation, there being a few visitors in attendance.

Master Ted Pollock contributed a recitation and the school sang a salic number, Misses Lela Linn and Margaret Taylor rendered a piano duet and Master Maurice Clancy sang a solo. Master Jim Watson sang "Home Sweet Home" with ukulele accompaniment. Miss Dayman recited 'Canadian Born' by E. Pauline Johnson, and the school rendered "May Peace and Love be Near the Throne."

Master Billy Mayhee sang "The Pet Bird" and Master Gerald Clancy "Dreamboat".

The pupils of the junior classes were heard in a chorus entitled "Master Robin." Master Gerald Taylor contributed a solo, "When Father Was a Little Boy."

A duet, "Home on the Range" was given by Miss Eleanor Graham and her brother Edgar, and the school rendered "The Children's Song of Peace."

A play entitled "Canada's Welcome" was enacted as follows:—

Spirit of Canada—Miss Margaret Taylor

A New Comer—Miss Lela Linn

Sir Alexander Mackenzie—Master Douglas Clancy

Eagle Feather—Master Bobby Armstrong

Little Deer—Miss Doris Pollock

Juliet—Master Donald Mir

Armand—Master Jack Webster

Madeline—Miss Helen Johnson

Rose Marie—Miss Norma Johnson

Jennie and Tom, two Canadian children—Miss Dorothy Hinds and Master Jim Watson

Children from England, Scotland, Poland, Italy, Ireland, Russia and Iceland were taken by Ted Pollock, Gerald Clancy, Don Pollock, Allan Heagle, Gerald Taylor, Charlie Mayhee and Eleanor Graham.

At the close the characters in the play sang "The Flag."

The story of St. Andrew was told by Master Gerald Taylor.

The story of St. George by Miss Dorothy Hinds.

The story of St. Patrick by Miss Doris Pollock.

The story of Empire Day by Master Ted Pollock.

The Spirit of Victoria the Good Still Lives—Miss Alma Johnson

Master Bobby Armstrong contributed an accordian selection and Master Glen Watson sang.

The guest speaker was Mrs. Harper Hollins of Bliffux who chose her subject on "Unity of Home, School and Empire."

The service closed with the school singing "The Light of the Cross," "Saluting the Flag" and the "National Anthem."

Mr. and Mrs. Nathaniel Heath spent a couple of days in Oshawa with their daughter Marie who underwent an operation for appendicitis. Marie who has been nursing in Toronto came to Oshawa for a brief holiday and while there was suddenly stricken and the operation was performed immediately. Her many friends hope for a speedy recovery.

Mr. and Mrs. John Holmes, Miss Eileen Phillips and Mr. Bill McCoy spent Sunday in Edgerado.

Mrs. Irene Tucker put on an advertising contest at Bethel Ladies' Aid on Thursday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Cranston, Belleville, were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Warren Reid on Thursday evening.

Mrs. Walter Coulter of Toronto is the guest of her nieces Misses Olive, Aileen and Vera Stewart.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Reid of Campbellford spent Thursday with Mr. and Mrs. Warren Reid and attended the Ladies' Aid Social evening that evening.

Miss Jean Rennington is holidaying with her sister Mrs. Harold Johnson.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Andrews and Faye spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Russell Andrews, Springbrook.

HOME IMPROVEMENT PLAN

And How to Improve It

A Series of Articles on Suggested Home Improvements
Advisability, Value, Cost, Etc.

NO INCREASED ASSESSMENT

There being considerable doubt in the minds of some citizens interested in the Home Improvement Plan as to the possibility of increased assessment on improvements made under the plan, the following extract from a statute passed at the last session of the Legislature entitled "An Act to Amend the Assessment Act" would seem to be sufficient answer to the question: "Will improvements under the Home Improvement Plan, hoist my assessment and in consequence increase my taxes. Here 'tis:

His Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the Legislative Assembly of the Province of Ontario, enacts as follows:

1. This Act may be cited as The Assessment Amendment Act, 1937.

2. (1) The value of any improvements made to a building by means of a loan obtained under The Home Improvement Loans Guarantee Act, 1937 (Canada), or under any other Act of the Parliament of Canada heretofore or hereafter passed for assisting by loan or guarantee the improvement of homes shall not be added to the value of the building for the purpose of assessment under The Assessment Act, and notwithstanding the provisions of section 40 of the said Act, it shall be the duty of an assessor in valuing a building which has been improved by means of such a loan to exclude from assessment the value of such improvements; and if the assessment of any such building is increased in any year it shall, prima facie, be assumed that the whole or some portion of the value of the improvement has been included in the assessment and upon an appeal in such case the assessment shall be reduced by the amount of the increase or a portion thereof if it is not established to the satisfaction of the court that the value of the building has otherwise increased.

(2) Subsection 1 shall be deemed to have come into force on the 1st. day of January, 1937, and with respect to any building which has been improved by means of a loan obtained under The Home Improvement Loans Guarantee Act, 1937 (Canada) shall remain in force until the 31st. day of December, 1939, or until the expiration of three years from the day when the loan was obtained whichever shall last occur.

Assented to March 25th, 1937.

"We can go right ahead without worry under the HOME IMPROVEMENT PLAN"

Perhaps you've been waiting for years to modernize your home, doubtful of your ability to finance the work. Now — you can go right ahead. It's simply a matter of deciding on the improvements you want most and getting an estimate of their cost. You'll be surprised — and delighted — at the number of jobs the Home Improvement Plan will fit into your budget.

SIMPLIFIED FINANCING

Any contractor, supply firm or architect can help you arrange a Home Improvement Plan loan if you need it, to finance the work for you, or you can apply direct to your banker. No security or endorsement needed; you simply show that you can repay in instalments and the loan is, many times, the quickest, most economical and most lovable way to modernize your home.

Full information on the Home Improvement Plan and what it covers may be obtained from your local committee, your Provincial Chairman, your bank or the National Employment Commission, Ottawa.

Little Benny's Note Book

I went home for supper looking kind of miserable and pop was just leaving himself in with his doorkey, saying, You're a ate, and what's the matter with you? You been fighting? he said.

Only in self-defenia, I said, and pop said, Well, if you must file I suppose that's the only possible excuse, or I mite even go further and say that there are times when boys and nations owe it to themselves to put up their dukes and sail in for all they're worth. Did somebody hit you first? he said.

No sir, I said, and pop said, Well, quickness on the trigger is sometimes the better part of valor. I suppose some fresh kid made a move to crack down on you and you got in the first punich, he said.

No sir, I said, and pop said, Well, then I got still another guest. Somebody must of threatened you, then, and found you prepared, he said.

No sir, I said, and pop said, I'm all out of guesses, what was this brawl all about, anyway?

Well I tell you, I said. I was standing around the lam post with Shorty Judge and Skinny Bones and Reddy Merfy, and Skinny and Reddy started to get fresh with me, an Shorty was the only one there that I could lick, so I got fresh with him and he had the nerve to resent it and the first thing you know we was fighting, I said, and pop said, Self defenia, yes gods, if I was an editorial writer I'd turn this incident as the basis of a good rousing editorial, but I'm not an editorial writer so I wont take the trouble, and now run up and wash the grime and battle duff and brush that hair.

Wich I did feeling lucky.

NEW CARS SHIFT OWN GEARS!

Lift a toe . . . flick a finger . . . and gears shift! Easier, safer . . . YET NOTHING NEW TO LEARN!

In less than a city block, you'll feel perfectly at home with this new way to drive. Within a quarter mile, you'll be glorying in a new sense of ease and safety, which more than 115,000 owners have already enjoyed for over a billion miles.

The big difference is not in the way you drive . . . it's that all the work has been eliminated. A flick of a finger at the wheel takes the place of a tug and push at a gear lever. A lift of a toe from the accelerator does the rest. You can forget the clutch pedal.

No. 1 Size and Room

Selective Automatic Shift is an optional extra on all 1937 Hudsons and Terraplanes. Conventional gear shift lever is available at no cost if desired.

These new Hudsons and Terraplanes are No. 1 in size and roominess. With 117, 122 and 129-inch wheelbases. With 55 full inches of front seat comfort for three . . . several inches more than in any other popular cars. With the luxury and completeness you expect in No. 1 Cars.

No. 1 Power and Economy

They are No. 1 in power, too . . . ranging from 96 to 122 horsepower. With the safest brakes on any modern car . . . Hudson's exclusive Duo-Automatic Hydraulics. With official proof of endurance and performance no other 1937 cars can give. No. 1 economy . . . certified in the Los Angeles-Yosemite Economy Run, in which Hudson topped all Eights with 23.39 miles per Imperial gallon, and Terraplane beat all other low priced leaders with 27.5 miles per Imperial gallon.

Come in today and drive a new Hudson or Terraplane. The only really new motoring experience of the year is waiting for you. Don't miss it!

MARKET COMMENT

The continued improvement in the tone of industry generally has tended to improve public sentiment towards securities and the "Street" so evident a short time ago, have mostly disappeared. The corrections which we experienced was a natural development after so prolonged a rise and the way has been paved for better market conditions in the immediate months ahead.

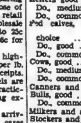
As has been so often pointed out here, it is business activities that shape the market trend and as long as industry continues at a satisfactory level there need be no misgivings about the future of the market, dividends are bound to occur periodically but over a period security prices will work higher.

More fundamental in the future of speculative markets than investment dividends will be the advancing of the business man states the Trader in his letter. Investment factors may broadly determine selling and buying points in the stock market, professionals may be heavily powerful in shaping intermediate trends, but the psychology of the business man dominates long-term movements.

While business indices and earnings are so glowing, the concern with which is viewed the paucity of incoming orders in many lines of trade, notably the industrial group reflecting capital goods demand, and in keeping with improving consumer goods demand—is a manner of some interest. Speculation is always looking forward and if the lull in new buying persists, it is hard to visualize immediate widespread businessman enthusiasm toward stock equities.

"One swallow does not make a summer and the first half-year earnings are no criterion of 12 months' results for a business executive, continues the Trader. On account of the intense activity of the first half-year, it will be only natural if we have a reaction. I do doubt of what the second half-year may have in store. Prospects for the third and final quarters are extremely good, in projection of 1937 earning power. Inasmuch as it will necessarily be around mid-September before the line is available on the third quarter then it should be only natural for business men to be in the dark as to the net year for the next two or three months.

Produce Prices on Montreal Market



Montreal May 26—There was a generally strong tone on the local produce markets yesterday. Advances were registered in cheese, butter and old potatoes. Eggs were steady, also poultry. Receipts were 1,678 cases of eggs, 34 boxes of butter and 54 boxes of cheese, excluding truck arrivals. The weekly auction of butter will be held at 12.30 noon today at the Board of Trade.

Quebec fresh 92 score butter was quoted at the Canadian Commodity Exchange at the close at 24 1-4c. to 24 1-2c, with a similar range prevailing on the open market in the afternoon, these prices comparing with 23 7-8c to 24c at the close of last week. Small lots to the retail trade were advanced by wholesale jobbing houses 1-2c per lb. to 2c per lb. for solids and 25 1-2c to 26c for prints.

The cheese market was 3-4c higher, becoming 14 3-4c to 15 c per lb. for No. 1 Ontario current receipts. Improved British market levels are causing the strength here, practically all the cheese now being exported overseas.

Graded shipments of eggs arriving in 1-1 lots in used free cases were 21 1-2c for A-large, 20—20 1-2c for A-medium, 19—19 1-2c for B and 18 1-2c for C, while straight carlots of storage packed were offered at 22c for A-large, 21 1-2c for A-medium, 19 1-2c for B and 18 1-2c for C. Offerings were posted at the Commodity Exchange at 22c for A-large, 20 1-2c for A-medium, and 19 1-2c for A-pullets.

"WORN OUT" AND WORRIED

Dragging around each day with a backache that makes housework a misery—crushing pains in the kidneys—constant feeling miserable. Many a woman feels like this when the kidneys may be out of order. When kidneys fail the system clogs with poisons—backache, frequently follows. Doan's Kidney Pills help clear the system, giving nature a chance to regain health and energy. Easy to take. Sale. 116

Dodd's Kidney Pills

KEPT IN BED BY BACKACHE

Now—Thanks to Kruschen —Not a Trace of Pain

This woman's life was made a misery by the pain of backache. Then her father, who had proved the value of Kruschen himself, advised her to try it. She did and here is her grateful letter:—

"For years I have been suffering with pains in the back. At times I had to stay in bed for days. I could not work. My father told me I ought to try Kruschen Salts for the same thing. He too, used to suffer badly, and Kruschen relieved him. He advised me to try it. I did so, and did not get a pain for three years. I then neglected my daily dose for about six months and two months ago the pain returned. I tried another remedy—it failed, so I again started Kruschen. Now I have not a trace of pain, thanks to Kruschen."—(Mrs.) H.N.

Pains in the back are usually due to impurities in the blood—waste products which the internal organs are failing to expel from the system. The numerous salts in Kruschen assist in stimulating these organs to healthy, normal activity, and so help the blood to be driven free from harmful waste matter.

30 GRADUATES HOLD BANQUET

Instructors' Class at R.C.A.F. Has Been in Session For Past Months

Terminating a training period at the Trenton Royal Canadian Air Force base a banquet and social evening was held by the graduating "Instructors' Class" at the Belleville Hotel last evening at which time the graduates were guests and heard a special address on "Instructors and their duties" by Squadron Leader Hume, Commanding Officer of the T.T.S., stationed at Camp Borden.

The "instructors' class" has been in session at the Trenton R.C.A.F. base for the past months, with some 30 recruit Flying Officers of the Camp Borden base as the principal students of the class. All members successfully passed their examinations and were yesterday awarded their Instructors' diplomas.

Squadron Leader Hume acted as toastmaster and chairman while the majority of the evening's program was spent in community singing and other entertainment of a similar nature. The following officers recently terminated at Trenton, will leave for Camp Borden to commence their duties as instructors in the R.C.A.F. on Friday.

ALBERT CLARE STILL CONFINED TO HOPITAL

Albert Clare, Moira, survivor of a fatal auto crash at Corbyville in which two companions were killed a short time ago, shows slight gains at the Belleville General Hospital to which he is still confined. Among other injuries, he suffered a fractured skull.

WALKING UNDER LADDERS NOT SO OMINOUS

Whatever the traits of the citizens of Belleville may be, superstition apparently is not numbered among them. Workmen on Bridge Street this morning scarcely noticed two ladders leaning against the building while workmen busily erected a telephone pole. Two three persons strolled between the ladders and the front of the building before one was noticed who gazed upwards, remembered his superstition and stepped off the sidewalk to avoid walking beneath the ladders.

BLAME FLAT TIRES ON NAILS FROM JUNK

High prices for scrap iron which, during the past month or more, has been gathered from fence corners and farm lots throughout the rural districts of this section and carted to local junk dealers is linked directly to an epidemic of flat tires experienced for weeks past by local car owners, tire service and repair shop owners finally reveal.

Repair shops of the city, now enjoying one of the biggest business booms in history in the repairing of tires have been extracting spikes, rectangular sections of iron, nails, bits of sharp wire and other penetrative articles from the deflated tires.

YOUTH FINDS A FISH IMPRISONED IN JAR

A variant of the chicken in the jar stunt being exhibited locally by Wilfred Staines youth of this city, who is showing friends a six-inch, pug-nosed perch in a water filled wine jar, after finding it in a small cove of the bay shore east of the government dock this week.

In order to free the fish, the jar will have to be broken. The width of the finny prisoner measures about four inches, the neck of the bottle about one and one half inches.

It is believed the fish squeezed through the narrow neck when smaller and unable to get out, but attained its present size within the glass.

POLICE BLOTTER

Harry Ashton, 11 years of age, residing on Everett, St., sustained a slight concussion and minor injuries when knocked down by a motor car on West Bridge St., yesterday afternoon. The Ashton boy, according to eye witnesses, was crossing West Bridge Street, when he was struck by the automobile of an oncoming motor car driven by William Thomas, 24 Green street.

The lad was knocked to the pavement where he was picked up in a dazed condition by Mr. Dilabaid and passersby. The injured lad was removed to the surgery of Dr. W. G. Morgan where first aid soon revived him and he was taken home. Dr. Dilabaid informed P. C. Arnott, who investigated, the lad had a great many bruises, apparently did not see the oncoming car as he started across the street.

Walter Townsend, Belleville, complained to local police the matter of his automobile battery having been stolen from Mr. Townsend's premises. Police believe they have track of the missing articles and are issuing information relative to the apprehension of the culprit believed responsible.

The theft of sport goods, two dozen silver spoons and an equal quantity knives and forks was reported from the Belleville Golf Club over the week-end. The robbery is being investigated by the Provincial and City police.

PASSENGER PLANE

In it they found the military maps, marked with their gun positions. A two weeks' trial resulted in a death sentence and the consul was shot at dawn.

Enroute to Capital

The plane was enroute to this besieged Basque capital when it was shot down in the insurgent attack. It belonged to the "Air-Bleriot" French line and was in shuttle service between Bayonne, France, and Bilbao.

Maurice Delcluzel declared the airliner had been attacked by several Heinkel chasers, while flying over Government territory.

Sopelana is about five miles west of the point, where the insurgent ring about Bilbao meets the coast of the Bay of Biscay.

There were five passengers aboard the plane.

The air liner's home port, Bayonne, France, reported from official Basque sources the plane managed to land on the beach at Sopelana after the insurgent craft turned machine guns on it. One report said a passenger was slightly injured.

Great Pursuit Flyer

The plane has been the only fast means of transportation between Barcelona and Bilbao. It was fitted with a cordon of insurgent warships and walled in by land with lines of insurgent troops, and the rest of the world.

Franco's air fighters had tried before to shoot it down but the combination of speed and low-level pilot up until today protected it.

The pilot, Jean Gally, has been regarded as one of the finest pursuit plane pilots ever turned out by the French Air Corps.

Gally, then out of the French Air Force, fought with a Central Spanish Government squadron on the Madrid front in the fall and was reported to have shot down ten insurgent warplanes before his Basque Regional Government called him to the north of Spain.

The "Air-Pyrenees" line is a French Company organized by the Basque Government at Bayonne.

The plane, an all-metal ship built in England, was a six-seater with twin engines and a speed of 200 miles an hour.

The issue over Ethiopia lies primarily between Britain and New Zealand. Despite the New Year's declaration of Anglo-Italian friendship relations between the two countries have not improved. Italian radio stations broadcast anti-British propaganda in the Near East. Italian newspapers "out" the Coronation.

Ethiopian Conquest

Foreign Secretary Eden, trying to make the best of a bad job would recognize Italy in Ethiopia. Britain has already accorded de facto recognition of Italy's conquest.

New Zealand, which has a Labor government, is unwilling to recognize the Fascist victory. South Africa takes somewhat similar view. The decision of the Ethiopians not to send a delegation to the special League assembly, however, has lifted the question from the urgent list.

Measures will also be advanced to ensure arms equipment shall, so far as possible, be interchangeable.

Co-Operation Seen

The naval correspondent of The Daily Telegraph predicts co-operation between the Royal Navy and the Royal Australian Navy. Cruisers will be carried a stage further as a result of the Imperial Conference discussions.

The China squadron, it is believed, will be reinforced with capital ships as soon as progress in the re-armament programme releases vessels now serving with the home and Mediterranean fleets. Defences at Hong Kong will be modernized, but Singapore will be the principal base in the future and the Pacific fleet will be joined from time to time by ships of the Australian navy and the New Zealand section of the Royal Navy for combined training.

Australian Expansion

"Considerable expansion of the Australian Air Force is expected," the Telegraph continues. "At least one division of destroyers together with a new type of British leader, will shortly be laid down. New cruisers are to be ordered in Britain as soon as the financial situation permits.

"All principal ports of the commonwealth are being developed. Important naval works are planned at Sydney, the principal Australian base. It is hoped the New Zealand division will be strengthened but it is understood South Africa does not intend to extend her present establishment."

The meeting then was adjourned until tomorrow when consideration of Empire trade begins.

Acknowledged as one of the best bands in New York City, the organization of which he is now in charge has been giving weekly concerts from that city over the air in a national hookup.

TORONTO STOCK EXCHANGE CLOSE

Toronto, May 26—(CP)—Spasms of strength and activity with intervening periods of dullness marked the Toronto Share Market today. The closing found the Mail fairly firm in the Gold and Oil groups and a few industrials displayed buoyancy, notably Brazilian Traction in which a gain of a point to 36 1-2 was registered on heavy turnover. Base Metals registered, a moderate setback.

Along with Brazilian other Utilities, including Shawinigan, and Winnipeg Electric A recorded gains of fractions and Saguenay advanced 2 points. Of the Golds, a fraction and Ford 'A' closed a half point down.

"THE BRIGHT HILL"

by Clarissa Fairchild Cushman

In the room behind her Mrs. Winters sat a moment, looking at the slim contained body and the soft bright head, the eager lips and eyes looking out into the spring. She cupped a drawer hand almost lightly into it, seemed to find there the answer to a question, and shot the drawer with a snap.

"Mrs. Kingsbury, I've come to a decision."

"Yes?" Kerin turned from the bright hill with a half sigh.

"I have decided, if you still take charge here next year, to take my sabbatical leave."

"What? I'm sorry—I didn't quite understand."

"Yes, you did. I know it's asking a good deal of you, with your brief experience, Kerin, but I've didn't realize how tired until now. When I've some face to face with another spring."

She looked at Kerin steadily, weighing the fleeting pain in the hazel eyes fixed on her own. "Don't be alarmed," she said briskly. "I would not be doing this if I did not think you completely capable."

"But—I can't," said Kerin, breathlessly.

"But you perfectly can— unless you mean something different?"

"I mean, I can't—I can't come back."

INSTALLMENT TWENTY-FIVE

"Just what do you mean— you can't come back? You don't like it here?"

"Oh—I love it, I love it!" There was no mistaking the sincerity in Kerin's voice; but no mistaking either the distress in her eyes. Shift hurried on. "I've wondered of course if you've been expecting me to stay. But I couldn't ask. My appointment was for only a year and to ask might make it look—"

"It was only for a year," Mrs. Winters said evenly. "You are under no obligation to stay. Had you not been satisfactory I would have felt no obligation to renew your appointment. But unless you're not happy I don't see quite so—"

"Happy? You know I've been happy. I've been the happiest I've ever been since father died— She stopped and turned away her eyes as from an embarrassment.

"Well—" Mrs. Winters paused. "I did I confess counted on it. The thought of England for the summer—Italy Spain, the south of France—I confess the picture got irresistible. However—" She pushed tighter a drawer. "Do you mean to say, Mrs. Kingsbury, that when you've fitted this place like a glove on my hand you're going to leave me?"

"I have to." Distress was all too apparent in the drawn face, in the hands rigidly held together.

The two women regarded each other across the desk. "I am sorry would be four thousand dollars" said Mrs. Winters.

Kerin said nothing. It was impossible for her to speak. But her eyes told Mrs. Winters their unvarying refusal.

"Very well" said Mrs. Winters quietly.

Kerin's lips trembled. Something seemed to crumple inside her. She slipped around the desk into the chair by Mrs. Winters' side.

"I'm just one of your girls," she said, half in tears. "You sit there, as you've kindly always have to all you everything. And certainly after you have been so generous and so generous in fact and so generous in implication, I want you to understand how it is."

Mrs. Winters made no answer, but the kind grey eyes narrowed the younger woman, waiting. How many many stories she had sat just so for, and heard.

"You see, when I came, my husband had accepted an appointment to go to Russia. He couldn't say for how long—once year, two years, three years it might be. And so I had to find something to do if I could."

"For the income?"

"For— mostly for the money. I had a little of my own, but that has always been for Donald. You see, Carl was going for his degree only. He's like that, Mrs. Winters. He's rather—magnificent." Kerin's eyes were warm, generous.

"He's a professor of law, I believe. And now he's coming back?"

"He—he didn't go." The expression of distress returned to Kerin's eyes. "It fell through, just before school began. But I had agreed to come, so I came anyway. You had been kind when I needed the place, and I wasn't willing—". Kerin hesitated.

"What does he say now? Would not he be willing to have you stay, under the circumstances? I don't like to urge you—but I'm tired."

Kerin looked at her with her tell-tale eyes, and said nothing; and Mrs. Winters suddenly found nothing to say. But she mastered this. "Write him," she suggested.

Kerin shook her head. "I have written him."

There was a long pause. Mrs. Winters waited.

Finally Kerin burst out. "He doesn't write me. You see," she rushed on, "he didn't like my coming. He said I should ask to be released, that you would understand. And when I wouldn't ask, he was angry." The last word fell a little breathless. "In the end I—I really ran away," concluded Kerin, in a small voice.

"Ran away?"

"Yes. I—I never even went back to the house for my clothes."

Inside of her, Mrs. Winters made a silent calculation. She was remembering Kerin's inadvertent admission, "Donald's been since my father died"—and he had died just before her marriage. She said a little grimly, "Perhaps your husband will be going to Russia next year. Could that be possible?"

There was another pause, full, again, of that sense of strain and loss. "Yes," said Kerin.

"I see." Poor child! thought Mrs. Winters. Her mind ran on. She was told volume that Kerin's long reticence about her husband had left blank. Without looking up she could see Kerin sitting beside her, oddly shrunk together, and frightened. This was not the Kerin she knew. It was for thought of her husband that did this to her, that was clear. Then why, with the future so made for her, was she going back? Mrs. Winters began speaking in an even, reassuring tone. "You see, I can't help hoping that I'll be able to snaffle out my holiday. As I understand it, as far as your work is concerned, as far as all your life here is concerned, you would stay". With the corner of an eye she caught Kerin's tremulous flush, the rise of tears to the hazel eyes. "Yes, I'm sure you like me, since we like you so well. A salary of four thousand for the year, you know may make your husband feel differently." She caught Kerin's shake of the head. "At any rate, there's no need to decide now."

She paused, opened a drawer, looked in, and snapped it shut. "I believe I'll just go abroad with my plans to go to England for this summer anyway, and then if you have to leave I'll do without an assistant next year. Somehow don't feel equal to hunting another new assistant just now."

A glance reassured her of the distress in Kerin's eyes. "I've could play at this game of trading on loyalties, she thought, stifling without shame a small sense of guilt. "You see, I'd begun to count on you as my successor. It's not many more years now—"

She rose with a sigh. "Well, I suspect it's only fair to the college to withdraw my application for my sabbatical," and with no backward look at Kerin's anguished face she walked briefly to the door and out, and from the other room Kerin could hear her voice dictating a letter to President Sheldon.

"Dear Carl" wrote Kerin that night. "Mrs. Winters has asked me today to make a decision about next year. She wants to take her sabbatical, and leave me in charge at $4,000, and indeed indicated for me a permanent place here. have told her it was impossible for me to consider it, as you would be needing me. Surely this should make clear to you that I have no wish," she crossed that out, "that I have no divided loyalty, but was only fulfilling my year here before returning to you. Yet do write me, Carl dear, for if for any reason you are not to be where I can be with you next year, it would indeed be foolish of me to give up this position. Mrs. Winters has kindly consented to wait until I hear from you. Naturally I regret the necessity of interrupting her sabbatical leave which I will have to do if I return to you."

Dear me, thought Kerin, I am sure it sounds as if I didn't want to go back. And I do. I do. I do! If Carl would only—

"P.S. I won't be through here till after summer school. It's lovely here in the summer. Won't you come?"

She took another sheet of paper. "Dear Sue," she wrote, "I wish I did know what Carl plans to do this summer.

I wish he'd come here. Ask Alan if he knows whether Carl's planning to teach this summer, or anything, and does he plan to be there next year? You know how Carl is: he always forgets to give me all essential information. And how does he look tell me that".

"I will not!" stormed Susan, on receipt of this letter. "What! wires and say, darling Kerin, your dear husband is skipping around as gay as a lark with each and every good-looking unattached female the community affords, especially the prettiest students? I will not. Or I'm sorry but we're not on speaking terms any longer with Carl, because dear good Alan was bedridled into stand up for you and was threatened with a suit for alienation of affections? Wait—here's an extra sheet she pushed in after it—yes sealed. P.S. Susan skimmed the words and then she began crying. "Alan—Alan—Alan!" her voice rising to a very crescendo so that even Alan accustomed as he was from his chair with his scalp prickling. "Listen—listen to what she says: 'Mrs. Winters wants to take her sabbatical next year and offered me $4000 to stay with the deanship when she retires in a few years. But I told her that I couldn't take it.' Alan—Alan do you hear what she says she's told her she couldn't take it she told her—" She dropped the paper and raised her eyes to her husband and exploded in one word. "Alan!"

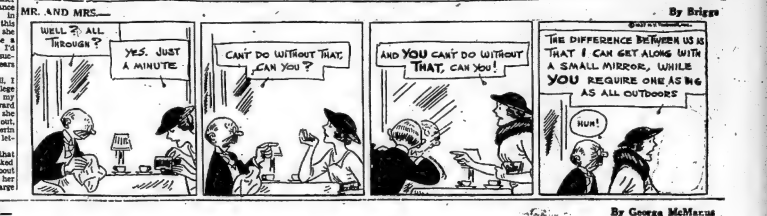
Priscilla Leighton Ashburn as sister to one of New York's wealthiest and best-looking men, sought after bachelors, always had a feeling that it was up to her to keep a weather eye on her brother Gregory, especially in matters matrimonial. When, therefore, during Aline's spring vacation, Gregory suddenly was away from his New York apartment, away from his office, away, without a word to her, it raised a question in Priscilla's mind—a very alert and positive one.

"Why, mother! I don't know that there's anything to know. He's been up—oh—three or four times, maybe. He always comes to see me. He says," Aline's emphasis was unmistakable, "he comes to look after a lumber mill. But the girls—"



"A lumber mill? Where?" asked her mother sharply.

"Why, mother! How do I know? Anyway, the girls are crazy about him." She giggled, remembering. "The Pi Phis got up a tea so I'd bring him, and then he was off skating with the little—with Mrs. Kingsbury. The girls think he's crazy about her."

"Aline! How can you be so exasperating! Why didn't you tell me? Haven't you any sense?"

The big blue eyes under the fair hair opened wider. "Why mother! Was I expected to keep watch of Uncle Greg?"

Priscilla pushed back her plate. "Don't be silly Aline. A designing school teacher! Henry!" as her husband came into the room. "Aline tells me that Gregory's been—been gossiping about Gregory and their dean of women. Think of it!"

COMMEMORATING LINDBERGH'S ATLANTIC FLIGHT

Ten years ago May 20, Charles A. Lindbergh, little known U. S. flier stepped into his monoplane Spirit of St. Louis at Roosevelt Field, N. Y., and headed out across the Atlantic for France. Thirty-three hours later he grounded his ship at Le Bourget field outside Paris completing the first and only west-to-east Atlantic crossing. On the ten-year anniversary of his departure, American air enthusiasts unveiled this bronze plaque at Roosevelt Field to commemorate the historic take-off.

LAUDER ON U. S. TOUR TO SPEND HIS DIMES

Famed Scotch singer and humorist, Sir Harry Lauder is pictured as he reached Los Angeles from Australia on a vacation tour. He is accompanied by his niece, Miss Lauder, and announced that he plans no concert appearances on this round-the-world trip. Instead he will enjoy himself spending dimes he saved during 37 former tours of United States.

POPE PIUS XI CELEBRATES BIRTHDAY

Pope Pius XI, supreme pontiff of the Roman Catholic church, who celebrates his 80th birthday on May. 30. His Holiness, is in ill-health for sometime, is reported to have suffered a slight relapse at Castle Gondolfo, papal summer residence.

DAILY SHORT STORY

KITS

By Tyra Lundberg Fuller

Kits was so sweet!

For the first time in his life, Jim Masters's house seemed like home to him. It was warm with her playful presence.

Jim loved her. It had been a mutual case of love at first sight!

With the coming of Kits, Jim—for almost a decade known as "Hatton's hardboiled bachelor" — deserted his long-time pals. No longer was he seen nightly at the Congress club.

His cronies missed him. They resented his desertion, and muttered darkly of "a rag, a bone and a hank of hair." Bill Hannaway voiced everybody's opinion when he vowed that he never would have believed that "Jim would go sentimental over a 4—n ornery female."

No, Jim had always been quite the opposite of sentimental. "Hard-boiled" was the word. And he wonder, He'd lost both mother and father when he was just a baby. He'd been dragged up (there's no other term for it) for nine years by a virago aunt, and then having committed some slight offense and fearing the dire results, he had run away.

To be exact, the young Jim had climbed into an empty coal car, and had cried himself to sleep.

He awoked from the freight car into a little backwoods town where he either could not, or would not answer any questions.

As no one knew where to ship him, he became a town charge and young Jim found out the meaning of hard work.

He remained long enough to learn to look out for himself, hopped another freight and was carried some hundreds miles, north by west. Jim was now fifteen and quite independent, for, by dint of skimping and hoarding, he had managed to save the princely sum of $13.75.

Once again Jim's destination was decided by fate. He awoke on the second morning to find his car side-tracked near a pleasant little town of three or four hundred souls. The name of the town was Haden, he learned, and when he strolled into the general store to buy some supplies—to show he was no tramp—he gave his own name as Masters. That was the name of the little backwoods village whose red mud clung to his heavy shoes.

He was looking for a job. Jim confided to the storekeeper, a kindly soul who apparently knew everything and everybody for miles around. Old Tom Cragg, re-cheeked, roly-poly, with a heart as big as his belly—which was saying something—told Jim the farmers all about there were looking for sturdy, capable hands.

"You won't have no trouble findin' a job, son," he said "and if you can't land one, come back and old Tom Cragg'll set you to work."

The first real kindness the lad had ever met! No wonder old Cragg came to mean father, mother and family to Jim Masters, and his death some years later was tragedy to the orphan boy, just growing into young manhood.

When Tom Cragg died he left Jim a small house with an acre of land, two, three miles out of Haden. He left him some money, too, with directions to "furnish the house, and make a home."

Jim followed instructions conscientiously. He furnished the old place after a fashion. He slept there and got his own breakfasts.

Jim was going on thirty when Kits came into his life. He fell for the little thing right away. And when she showed she was willing to come and share his small house with him, Jim's joy knew no bounds.

Then the place blossomed. It became liveable.

It was Jim's happiness to get hrs anything and everything she wanted. Hadn't she given him—himself.

Jim was in the general store—now run by a distant relative of the late Tom Cragg—running an eye over his pencilled list of wanted supplies. Cream . . . liver (Kits loved liver) and bacon . . . matches, kindling . . . M-m-m-m . . .

"Loaf of bread and some coffee," he told the storekeeper, "and I'll be going along."

"Boys are havin' a little poker game tonight," volunteered the man behind the counter. "Guess they'd like to have you sit in."

But Jim was in a hurry, and said no. He had to get home. Home!

What was Kits doing, he wondered as he sped along in his old flivver. How would she meet him tonight? That was one of Kits' charms. Sometimes she would come down the path to meet him. Sometimes she would hide behind the kitchen door and jump out at him. Sometimes he would have to go through the house calling her name, before she would show herself at all. (Little tease!)

Kits wasn't hiding tonight. Jim had barely opened the door and dropped his bundles on the kitchen table, when she flung herself into his arms with a low cry of rapture.

Silky head against his breast . . . paw-green eyes drowning in his own . . . her soft body a-tremble as she crooned her little song to him. Jim's arms tightened about her tenderly. His lovely Kits . . . his beautiful golden Persian!

Kits kitten clung to him, purring her joy and contentment.

AT THE BELLE

Mark Twain's Immortal Story of Romance and Adventure

"The Prince and the Pauper," a Warner Bros special and the first talking-film version of Mark Twain's immortal adventure-romance, will be presented today, Thursday and Friday, starting daily on the screen of the Belle Theatre.

The well-known story is that of two babies born in London at the same moment in the 16th century .....one the young Prince Edward who first sees life in the palace, the other of Canby, who opens his eyes in the slums, the son of a thief and villian. Their lives become tangled because they look exactly alike.

The producers got a break in making this picture because they discovered a pair of identical twins....Billy and Bobby Mauch of Peoria, Ill. Bobby plays the Prince, Bill the Pauper. It is the first film showing for the former. The latter already has played "Anthony Adverse" as a child, and "Penrod in "Penrod and Sam."

"Errol Flynn, handsome young Irish star of "Green Light", "Captain Blood" and "The Charge of the Light Brigade', heads the cast. Once more he is a swashbuckling swordsman.

The cast also includes such famed troupers as Claude Rains, Henry Stephenson Barton MacLane, Phyllis Barry, Montagu Love, Fritz Lieber and Ian MacLaren.

The picture was directed by William Keighley, whose most recent triumph was the all-technicolor production of "God's Country and the Woman".

All the color of sixteenth century England is brought to life on the screen, and the magnificent coronation scene in which the pauper boy, who has exchanged identities with the Prince is almost crowned King of England, is one of the most dramatic screen moments of recent years.

Performance starts daily at 2.30; 7.00 and 9.10. "The Prince and the Pauper" begins at 7.10, and 9.25.

MUSSOLINI SNOOPED BY DERBY BAN?

Faced with a challenge to prove his European air supremacy, Premier Benito Mussolini planned to enter an imposing fleet of Savoia Marchetti S-79 type aeroplanes in th proposed transatlantic air derby this summer. The fleet of nine aeroplanes were to be under the command of his son Bruno and Major Bieso, veteran of Balbo's mass flight to America. However the U. S. bureau of air commerce has banned the derby from American soil and, perhaps, has spoilt Il Duce's chances of proving his self-acclaimed supremacy. The S-79 is a tri-motored low winged monoplane originally built to carry eight passengers in commercial flights at a cruising speed of 223 M. P. H. One of the monoplanes is shown in the upper photograph, while below is Attilio Bieso. (Left) and Bruno Mussolini who were scheduled to lead the Italian machines in the derby.

MACDONALD RESIGNS AS PRESIDENT OF COUNCIL

J. Ramsay MacDonald Tenders Resignation as President of Council

Former Premier Has Audience With King For an Hour

ORDER OF MERIT

Macdonald Will Remain in House as Elder Statesman

London, May 27.—(CP)—J. Ramsay MacDonald went to Buckingham Palace today for a long audience with the King and was understood to have handed in his resignation as Lord President of the Council.

The King, it was further understood, rewarded MacDonald for his long years of service by bestowing him a member of the coveted Order of Merit, whose membership is limited to 24.

It was reported MacDonald's resignation would not be made effective until tomorrow, when Prime Minister Baldwin is expected to lay before his cabinet the list of honors from the King to those of much the same manner as David Lloyd George and the late Sir Austen Chamberlain.

Baldwin will go to the House of Lords as an Earl, it was predicted, but MacDonald is believed to have refused a peerage.

It was understood to have offered MacDonald "high hereditary honors", presumably an earldom, but the former Prime Minister asked permission to decline.

Toll Bell for Mike the Bear

Elora, Ont., May 27 (CP)—Toll the bell for Mike the Bear, he was shot 17 times and divided into steaks just because he didn't like being locked up. He pulled the wire screen off his "escape-proof" run-way yesterday and roamed his farm unmolested once more, for 12 hours before being brought down.

Mike must have thought it was the old days when he was a cub with his partner Sue, when he ever yesterday. It was his third short period of freedom since he was captured.

The other two times he and Sue both broke out of their cages and had a great time climbing trees and scaring children.

Wednesday, once captured the two cubs as they toddled down the street but Sue fell off a truck the last time he was recaptured and was killed. But Mike grew up, he weighed 400 pounds before he was up, and became ill-tempered after the child. Lately his food had to be pushed into his cage with a long pole and his owner, W. S. Stark, who brought him up from a baby, Mrs. McQuibban, M.L.A., died, couldn't do much with him.

STEEL WORKERS IN HUGE STRIKE

37 Plants of Independent Steel Group Closed Down

Youngstown, O., May 27 (AP)—The steel workers organizing committee threw its huge strike machinery into high gear today to shut down 37 plants of three leading independent steel producers of the United States who employ one-seventh of the industry's workers.

Husky steel workers immediately formed picket lines around the sprawling properties of the Republic Steel Corp., Inland Steel Corp. and the Youngstown Sheet and Tube Co., in Ohio, Illinois, Indiana and New York as the strike became effective at 7 a.m. last night.

Plants in Pennsylvania also were affected by the strike call, those in the Pittsburgh district, Beaver Falls, Aliquippa and Cumberland, Md., continued to operate.

Blast furnaces were banked as reputable sales officials of the plants hailed production in this important manufacturing centre. An optimistic belief existed, and three 22,000 workers into idleness.

Work was halted at three of Republic's four Cleveland units—each employing around 3,000—the plants at Canton and Massillon, Ohio, the plants at Canton and Massillon, Ohio, the plants at Chicago, Gary, Indiana, and Buffalo, N.Y., and Warren, Ohio, and Monessen, Pa.

SMOKE FILLS HOUSE FROM CHIMNEY

A smoke-filled house at 130 East Dundas Street sent fire apparatus racing yesterday afternoon in answer to an alarm. Failing to locate a blaze firemen investigated and found the source of the smoke in a furnace in the basement of the right wing of the house. Smoke rolling out of the chimney had induced draft, causing it to draw down the chimney of the left wing filling that part of the house with smoke. Only a slight damage resulted.

EIGHTEEN TONS CARP SHIPPED FROM HERE

Some indication of the extent of the carp fishing industry in this immediate section is gained from the fact that up to the present date this month a total of 37,000 pounds of the fish have been shipped through the wholesale fish house of Black and Sons, this city, alone. Heavier shipments have been to Toronto markets.

NORTHERN LAKES AT RECORD LEVELS

Older residents of the city were attempting to recall this week when the Moira River, at present holding its highest flood mark, was as well, contained the same depth in previous seasons as at this time every year. City Hall records fail to disclose a parallel in recent years. Filled by heavy spring rains this year, lakes in the northern section of the municipality also at record levels, it is reported.

FARMERS' CREDIT BOARD IN SESSION

Prince Edward County farmers occupied the spotlight of the investigation board hearing at various cases today by the Farmers' Credit Arrangement Board of the Dominion Government, in session in the County Buildings and which is presided over by Mr. Justice Hope of Toronto.

The hearing which started on Tuesday investigated cases of the farmers of all counties in the Eastern district, and concluded a four day session tomorrow.

1100 TULIPS MAKE A SHOWY DISPLAY

Brilliant red, sombre black, soft plum and other shades of contrast and blend of eleven hundred flowering tulips have transformed the flower beds on the spacious lawns of the home of Jail Governor G. H. French, into a panorama of vivid color. With the greens of climbing ivy, ferns and towering shrubs forming a pretty setting, the display is typical of the floral sights of the city which are accentuated by the green carpet of lawns in the foreground.

ROADS COMMITTEE TO MAKE ANNUAL

Headed by Road Superintendent Simeon Pye, and Chairman James Moore, the Road and Bridge Committee of the County of Hastings, will make their annual inspection of the roads and bridges of the county early next week, prior to a meeting at which they will decide improvements and repairs.

June 4th, discussion of reforestation and the reports of the Weed Inspectors of the County will occupy the time of the Agricultural Committee at a special session held in the office of the County Clerk.

COMPETENT FARM HELP MUCH IN DEMAND

Window - cleaning, gardening, flower planting and many other odd jobs are supplying much-needed employment to a number of the city unemployed, it was stated today by officials of the Employment Bureau of the city. There is still a dearth of competent farm help, and although placements are being made regularly there is still plenty of jobs for single and married men. Several requests for domestic help on farms have been received by the Bureau.

Trained domestics are scarce, with prospective employers showing reluctance in employing girls without experience.

Operations on the construction projects of the county are still suspended owing to conditions of roads, and the resulting inability of contractors to "clean-up" present locations.

WILLIAM POOLE IS KNOCKED DOWN

Walks Into Car as He Was Crossing Road Near Intersection

William Poole, Sanford St., sustained serious injuries after walking into the side of a motor car and being knocked to the pavement on West Bridge St. about 6.00 p.m. last evening. Poole received first aid in a nearby store and was later removed to the Belleville General Hospital where x-ray treatments by Dr. C. S. Crenk disclosed no serious injuries had been sustained although the unfortunate victim was unable to leave the hospital.

Mr. Poole was proceeding from the south side of West Bridge St. to the northerly side a short distance east of the lower bridge. The pedestrian had negotiated the traffic to a point about the centre of the road when he failed to observe an approaching automobile from the east, driven by George Gleason, 5 Sowell St., and walked directly into the left front fender. The force of the impact knocked Mr. Poole down, with considerable force and he was found in a dazed condition.

P. C. Evans and other eye witnesses proceeded to the assistance of the injured man and carried him to Finn's barber shop a few feet. Dr. Crenk was later summoned and attended.

P. C. Evans and other eye witnesses present reported that Poole had been walking east bound traffic as he crossed the street and had failed to see the oncoming west bound car. No blame was attached to the driver of the car.

CHILDREN LOST PICKING FLOWERS

Discovered 4 Hours After Disappearance Ten Miles From Woods

Missing four hours from a group of children gathering flowers in the woods of Marmora Township, seven miles south of Marmora, Eleanor, 7, and Bruce, 11, children of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Gehan of Tweed, Ont., were found wandering aimlessly along a lonely side road approximately ten miles from the Wiley woods by Jas. Hall, member of a township organized searching party, last Sunday afternoon.

The Gehan children, who with their parents were visiting their uncle, Mr. Thomas Wiley, joined a party of children and entered the Wiley woods, a half mile from the Gehan property, for the purpose of picking flowers shortly after two o'clock in the afternoon. A little later they were discovered missing. A hurried search of the woods failed to locate them.

A searching party composed of neighbors and members of the congregation of Zion's Church who were attending afternoon service, scoured the surrounding countryside for three hours with no results.

Mr. Hall, who discovered the children, stated that they had left the woods and followed a road which they thought led to the home of their uncle. Further and further they wandered, hopelessly lost, until discovered by Mr. Hall. Outside of being exhausted and a little frightened, the children seemed little the worse for their experience.

Thursday Market

New spinach ran asparagus a close second for popular favor today at the city market place, a limited supply selling quickly at the low price of fifteen cents per six quart basket. Asparagus was plentiful with prices holding firm at fifteen, twenty and twenty-five cents per pound according to quality.

New Spring vegetables also found favor in the eyes of Thursday shoppers with the first of beets, onions, radishes and rhubarb moving briskly at five cents per bunch. Eggs held firm at the all-week price of 18c per dozen for "A" selects with "mediums" selling at eighteen cents and an ungraded lot at fifteen cents.

Cut tulips, narcisi and orange blossoms added a touch of floral color and were quoted at fifteen cents per dozen. Tomato plants were offered at one cent each, with cabbage slants quoted at the same price.

Potatoes moved slowly at thirty cents per peck and ninety pound bags at $1.65. Fresh lake trout was offered at twenty cents per pound and muckata at two pounds for twenty-five cents.

Albert College Incorporated Eighty Years Ago Today

Institution Opened on July 16th, 1857 as Belleville Seminary

ONCE UNIVERSITY

Albert College is eighty years old today. While the day passes quietly at the school, owing to the fact that final examinations are in progress, plans have been made for observance of the anniversary, two weeks from today at the convocation, which will be made a memorable day, in the life of the college.

Mention was made of the anniversary at the college today. This evening a birthday cake bearing eighty candles will be cut in the dining hall in the presence of the students and Rev. Principal Howard will speak on the significance of the occasion in the life of the institution.

From the leading article in the last issue of the Alibi, written by Mr. Taylor K. Prankish, the following historical facts about Albert College are taken.

Foundation of College

As early as 1853 the pioneer preachers of the M. E. Church felt the need of an institution to train the youth of the country along the line of Christian education. Steps were taken to raise subscriptions for a conference academy. In the same year the conference took up the scheme, trustees and a board of management were named, the first board consisting of Rev. James Richardson, John Campbell, John Cummer and Peter Fisher appointed by the Niagara Conference and Rev. Benson Smith, Rev. E. W. Lachey, Rev. W. Brown, C. R. Mallory, Philip Carman, and Hiram Sudney appointed by the Bay of Quinte Conference. There was discussion over the site, the choice being between Brockville and Belleville, the latter being finally chosen because of its prominence in local history of the Bay of Quinte and of its central location in the conference. The school while denominational was to be open to persons of all grades and options without test or restriction.

Original Records Preserved

Documents of those days repose now in the vaults of the new Albert College on the Trent Road. These include part of the subscription list wherein money is computed in pounds, shilling and pence, a record of money received for the building of the Belleville Seminary and a record of disbursements. Interest is recorded at eight, ten and twelve per cent. A framed copy of the first prospectus hangs in Principal Howard's office. Board, including room rent and fuel is quoted at $2.25 cents a week and a room without board might be secured for seventy-five cents a week. Stove, table, chairs, bedstead, one mattress, washstand and set made up the furnishings of a room. Day students paid from $15 to $34 a year depending on the course chosen. The bell rang "reveille" at 5.30 a.m. for morning prayer at 6.45, evening prayer at four o'clock, for resuming reading at 7.00 p.m. and to retire at 10.00 p.m.

Incorporated May 27, 1857

Bishop Reynolds suggested the name of Belleville Seminary and it was incorporated on May 27th, 1857 and was opened on July 16th of that year. The first quarter still preserved. The lot and Building on College Street cost $30,000. The first principal was J. H. Johnson and Rev. Gideon R. Shepard of Hamilton assumed the post of moral governor and bursar.

Seven years later the seminary was affiliated with Toronto University and in 1866 the authority to confer degrees was granted. Albert College was in 1871 granted full powers of a university. In that year the newly college assumed the name of Albert and the women's that of Alexandra, the name being in honor of the Prince Consort and the Princess of Wales. In 1884 after the Methodist Union, Albert and Alexandra Colleges were merged and the institution was adopted by the General Conference of the United Methodist Church as a Methodist School or Secondary Education.

Dr. A. Carman Principal

From 1858 to 1876 Professor Albert Carman was principal and professor of mathematics. In 1876 he was elected Bishop of the church. His successor was named Rev. J. R. Jacques, D.D., Ph. D. and at the time of his retirement in 1885 Dr. W. H. Graham, M.A., B.Sc., became principal. In 1913 Dr. Dyer retired on account of ill health, to be succeeded by Dr. R. N. Baker, M.A., who was principal until the opening of the new college when Dr. Charles Bishop became principal. Dr. Bishop resigned in 1934 to renew active pastoral duty and Rev. Bert Howard, the present principal, was called from Avonmore, Sask. to succeed the post. Dr. Baker is principal emeritus.

The New College

The new Albert College on the Trent Road came into being after the partial destruction of the old college buildings on College Street in 1917. The first set was turned in 1921. The cornerstone was laid on May 24th, 1923. The school was three years in the making.

Albert College has served the church in the Dominion and in other lands scattered all over the earth. Graduates and students served with distinction on the battlefields of the Great War, twenty-eight made the supreme sacrifice and many were awarded decorations.

It is the history of this institution which for eight decades has served the church and mankind that will be observed at the coming convocation on June 10. In a communication sent out by the Principal, Rev. Bert Howard, on "Our goal of service would be to celebrate this occasion with dignity, beauty and ceremony, but this is economically impossible. Our plan is to celebrate and observe this natal day in a manner that will perhaps be quite as fitting and effective with our graduated college as if we had much money to spend on pomp and show."

Closing Exercises

The plans for June 10th convocation include the graduation exercises at 2.30 p.m., Alexander Hall at which Rev. John Mathieson, M.A., of Queen's University, will speak; a service of dedication of the new H. E. and Dr. Ada B. Smith room, at four o'clock; induction in Alexander Hall at six o'clock for students, parents, Alumni and board members; the alumni re-union and fellowship following.

Other events associated with the closing exercises are a recital of junior students on Friday, June 4th; closing exercises S.C.M. chapel service with Dr. Howard as speaker on Sunday May 30; the 24th at which the public is invited; a dramatic production of "The play's the day, June 4th; baccalaureate service to be addressed by the Rev. Arthur Moore, D.D., of Metropolitan Church on Sunday, June 6th; and recital by piano music pupils on Monday, June 7th.

POLICE BLOTTER

With the innovation of parallel parking along Front St. from Bridge to Dundas St., a much wider lane for motor traffic has resulted. Police however, are confronted with a new problem, caused by motorists neglecting to park within the designated zones that have been marked out with white lines, parallel to the pavement.

Today police were busy instructing motorists who had parked their vehicles overlapping the designated parking zone lines, police stickers being affixed two motor cars, whose drivers had left their cars usurping two parking zones by means of overlapping.

"This parallel parking gives us a fine wide traffic lane in the centre of the street and will undoubtedly result in fewer accidents from cars coming out of the parking zone, but the motorists must learn to park their automobiles inside of the designated zone, as marked," cautioned one police official today.

Generally speaking the parallel parking seems to be meeting with the approval of all concerned, while it also affords an extra space in which trucks may park momentarily while making deliveries.

No arrests were recorded in Belleville during the past 24 hours, although Clayton Brown, Cannifton, complained to police he had been severely attacked and bitten twice by a large collie dog in this city, Mr. Brown displays a few bruises where the dog had attacked him and bitten him on both legs. The injuries were not of a serious nature, but the owner of the dog was instructed to either muzzle the animal from running at large or have same destroyed.

The fine weather experienced of late doubtless is being enjoyed by the numerous transients travelling the highways and byways of the province, as a general falling off of these "knights of the road" has been noticed at the police station, where only three sought shelter last night.

Obituary

LATE ANDREW McGEE

Stirling—(Special)—Many friends and relatives gathered at the home of Mr. T. J. McGee on Tuesday afternoon to pay their final tribute of respect at the funeral of Mr. Andrew McGee former resident of this district who passed away suddenly at his home in Calgary, Alta., in his sixty-sixth year.

The funeral service was conducted in the home where the deceased was born by Rev. Dyson R. Beckel of Rawdon United Church circuit, who delivered a comforting message to the sorrowing ones, basing his thought on the scriptural text "In the Midst of Life We are in Death." During the service Mr. Arthur Duncan sang a tenor solo "Over There".

Left to mourn are one sister Mrs. Elgin Jackson of Stirling and four brothers Messrs. Archie B. McGee, George H. McGee, and T. J. McGee of Stirling and Mr. Sam D. McGee of Strasburg, Sask.

The pallbearers were Messrs. Lewis Rogers, Percy McGee, Lindsay McGee, Harold McGee, Frank McGee and Clarence McGee.

Interment was made in the Stirling Cemetery.

LATE MRS. CORNELIA PHILLIPS (Thurlow)

The funeral of the late Mrs. Cornelia Phillips, wife of Mr. James G. Phillips, took place from the family residence at Phillipston, in the 8th concession of Thurlow Township and was very largely attended. The service in the home and at the graveside in Jones' Cemetery was conducted by the Rev. J. F. Downey, pastor of the Plainfield United Church.

The honorary bearers were Messrs. E. E. Denyes, Lewis Robson, Gilbert Sills and Willett Ketcheson.

The bearers were Messrs. John Ketcheson, Roscoe Robson, Arthur Stevenson, Arthur Casey, Roy Sills and William Ketcheson.

The floral tributes from Bethel United Church, relatives and friends in the vicinity and Ottawa, were beautiful and many in number. The flower bearers were Messrs. John Ketcheson, Bryant Casey, Harry Ketcheson, Milton Robson, Lee Ketcheson and Earl Sayers.

McConnell delivered a most inspiring address, dwelling on the excellent example set by our gracious Queen Elizabeth who has always been active in guiding and who in her daily life practices the Golde Iaws. The Guides and Brownies are grateful to the band for helping to make the parade such a success.

On Monday evening the A.Y.P.A. of Trinity Church, Frankford, entertained branches from Christ Church, Belleville, St. George's Church, Trenton, and St. John's Church, Stirling, as their closing event of the season.

A short programme was presented by the visitors and this was followed by a mock wedding presented by the Frankford Young People.

The wedding procession entered to the strains of "Hail, Hail the Gang's all Here" played by Grace M. Ketchenson.

The maid of honor, Miss Eleanor MacKostie wore a long gingham gown with picture hat of flowers and carried a beautiful bouquet of young carrots, celery and shamrock.

The bridesmaids, Miss Jean McLaren and Miss Edna Chapman looked charming in long gowns, wore picture hats and carried nosegays of head lettuce surrounded by parsley and centered with red poppies.

The flower girls, Miss Helena Frost and Miss Edna Kellar looked charming in knee dresses, short socks and halo of apple blossoms. They carried immense bouquets of currant blossoms.

The bride, Miss Eva Harrison, entered on the arm of her adopted father, Mr. Cecil Smith, and was lovely in a gown fashioned entirely from antique lace curtains, real heirlooms from the home of the bride's grandmother and the graceful veil was also an heirloom loaned by Mrs. H. Turley. She carried a beautiful bouquet of flowering cabbage carefully preserved through the winter months for this happy occasion.

Mr. Alex. Dixson took the part of the officiating clergyman, giving many suggestions conducive to their future happiness.

The groom Mr. Donald McLaren became very nervous during the ceremony and clutched the hands of the groomsman, Mr. Murney Bell, dashed for the door. Fortunately he was apprehended by the ushers, Mr. Cecil May and Mr. Roy Chapman and forcibly returned to the side of his bride and the ceremony was concluded without further interruption.

The wedding party then left to the strains of "Wedding Bells" amid showers of confetti from the Trenton branch.

After the laughter had subsided a presentation from the choir and the A.Y.P.A. was made to Miss Doris Ketchenson and Mr. Cecil Smith who are to be married in June. An address was read by Mr. Alex. Nivison and the presentation of a beautiful walnut end table was made by Mrs. E. E. Ketchenson. On behalf of Miss Eleanor himself Mr. Sexsmith thanked the organization for the lovely gift.

Refreshments were then served and a social hour spent.

MINERS CONTINUE SIT-DOWN STRIKE BELOW SURFACE

Staging a sit-down strike 300 feet below the surface, these striking miners at Wilsonville, Ill., have refused to vacate the mine prior to reaching a settlement with the company. The strikers well supplied with blankets and food, have been spending the time playing cards, singing and reading. The sit-down began when the men decided to stay below until the company yielded to their demands for a three-the-work program which would give jobs to 300 employees made idle by the shut-down of another pit.

NORTH POLAR ENTERPRISE

Finland, Denmark, Norway, Sweden, Canada and the United States cannot but take a deep interest in the North Polar expedition of the Russians. Sitting on the northern top of the world looking upon every land, south of them, including their own land of almost half the Arctic territory in the world, are the Soviet air camp men.

One of the matters of great importance is the territory between the adjacent lands and the north pole. Russia claims nineteen islands discovered in less than a year between the Soviet territory and the Pole.

What will be the ultimate result of Russian Soviet enterprise in the Arctic wastes must wait development. The Soviets claim that the principle of discovery, effective occupation and notification must give way to "the new conception of the region of attraction." Russia contends each state owns the sea or land between its mainland and the North Pole. No one owns the pole, though Russia has landed a tent colony to send out observations from the Pole to Moscow from day to day.

ON THE RADIO

Not long ago Major Gladstone Murray, General Manager of the CBC spoke at Columbus, Ohio, on radio broadcast and the printed word. He said "Radio has its limitations, and in one sense its message is even more evanescent than that of the printed periodical. It provides the initial impulse but it is doubtful if it can complete the job unaided." He was speaking on a working partnership of radio with the printed word. He went on to say "The whole of the serious side of broadcasting, carefully thought out and planned as it should be, requests the continuous support of the printed word in various forms."

Such serious business, as addresses over radio, are often accompanied by the invitation to send for a copy of the remarks to the station to which the set has been tuned in. That is proof enough that the person broadcasting has learned the value of the printed record.

Everyone recognizes the value of the broadcast in bringing announcements of news, especially if it is late news, for the radio can bring the news from a special question of public interest and give the latest news. But only a little time can be given to news broadcasting and this is but brief condensation of news, given without headlines or display. If a station gave all of its usual time to news broadcasts, it would not put over the air as many words as the newspaper daily gives its readers. While the spoken word has its appeal, it cannot be repeated and one who reads can read many times faster than one can speak into a microphone. No one, even the man of the house, home on a holiday could afford to sit before the radio day and night to get his news. It would be too costly, a way that few of us could enjoy as he liked. For even with radio, men must work and women must do house work. And listening to radio while one is working is hardly conducive to concentration on the task.

Radio has a very important place in regard to music whether classical or of the light dance kind. Nothing here can take its place, for music on the radio, on the talking machine or in the hall or living room is still music and is fleeting though its influences last forever. This part of radio activity can never be taken away. It brings the world-famous artists to the humblest home and great artists would never be able to reach otherwise such wide reception of their voices or of their instrumental music.

THE CHURCH'S FUTURE

The church is on the horizon of greatness and eternal power, Rev. Dr. Edgar Franklin Romig said, in a sermon at New York. "There is a good deal of defeatism and discouragement about the church today yet we have the word of Jesus that the church will prevail. We think of the church as humanly made. Today it is not an organization in the ordinary sense but it is a fellowship of people in a community who have gathered to answer to God's call. We did not create the church. God created it."

To realize that the church is not our own creation should fill us with humility, Dr. Romig said, but we should be thankful it came about in this way. This conception of the church should imbue us with a feeling of brotherliness, something many churches lack today, he held. "The coronation makes us realize that the Church of England is alive. From all parts of the globe, China to England, comes heralding of a universal church."

JAMIESON BONE IS ON HIS WAY TO SCOTLAND on a trip in which business and pleasure will mix in about equal proportions. We do not know of anyone who deserves a real vacation such as this more than Jamieson Bone, a personification of perpetual motion in the business world. And we do not know anyone who would enjoy a visit to the British Isles more than the same Jamie Bone, whose intense British loyalty was never hidden under a bushel and whose love for Auld Scotia and Scottish ideals is only equalled by his love for Canada his adopted home, with all the faults and errors peculiar to a young and growing country. Bon Voyage Jamie, has a glad time and come back again when ye're a bit tired, or the bawbees are running a whit short.

LATEST GADGET TO COME OUT OF THE LAND OF UNCLE SAM is a windshield wiper for the back window of a car so that the driver through his mirror can have a clear view of the road back of the car in rough weather. A car equipped with this device swung into a local service station yesterday. The wonder is that such a thing was not thought of long ago.

PICTURE OF PART OF BELLEVILLE FROM FOOT OF MURNEY HILL, dated 1840, in possession of local artist, quite a curiosity, showing as it does how Belleville has grown and improved during the years. The picture reveals more vacant lots than buildings and has a distant view of the Court House and County Buildings. It would be difficult to find a more successful contradiction that "the world do move."

COCOANUTS ARE MORE THAN COCOANUTS—they have many uses, and contribute health and wealth in many ways. New York Times enquiring into the uses and abuses of the cocoanut finds that Ceylon has twenty million cocoanut palms, and also a cocoanut research group which has just issued a report on the innumerable uses to which this Poo-Bah among trees is being put. We have always had a friendly feeling for copra from the many stories of South Seas and the schooners in the copra trade. We knew that copra was some part of the cocoanut, but we had never entered the idea that the shell furnished the copra of commerce. Now the New York Times man comes along and tells us that the meat of the nut is the copra—so now we know something we never knew before. We knew that the natives eat the meat of the cocoanuts and drink the milk, the nut being a full course meal in itself. Then the meat is dessicated for decorating cakes or dosing dogs. The meat is dried to make copra from which coconut oil which is used in making soap, margarine and candles. The shell is used in theatres to imitate horses' hoofs, or turned into charcoal and used in making gas masks. The fibre goes into ropes, brushes, doormats, carpets and upholstery. The leaves make fine baskets, brooms, thatch and Ceylonese lobster traps. The trunk yields fuel and the timber known to commerce as "porcupine wood", useful alike for building and for making carved knick-knacks. The roots are boiled to make a kind of coffee, or roasted and ground to make tooth powder. The young bud is the tasty vegetable called "palm cabbage". The juice of the unopened flower makes a toddy which can be boiled down to sugar or distilled into a potent arrack. Some nut, eh, what?

THAT'S THE SPIRIT

The clubs bore was even more boring than most of his kind, and the members had for a long time been trying to take a rise out of him. But so far they hadn't met with very much success.

This evening the bore had walked into the club and boasted that he could immediately name any band of spirit they liked to give him to taste.

The quiet little man in the corner immediately took up the challenge. Removing a flask from his pocket, he unscrewed the top and invited the bore to taste it and name the brand.

The bore immediately took a large gulp from the flask—and then as quickly he spat it out.

"Good heavens, man," he cried, "That's gasoline, that's what it is."

"I know that," said the quiet man: "but what brand is it?"

The test of every religious, political or educational system is the man that it forms.—Amiel.

Looking Backward with McKim's or "New Oil In Old Lamps" AS SEEN BY "THE LAMPLIGHTER"

An interesting publication has just left the press in "McKim's Directory of Canadian Publications", 1937 Edition. This is a valuable compilation of facts regarding the newspapers of Canada which has become a text book with National Advertisers everywhere. This year's edition is notable in several respects, one being the announcement that the number of newspapers in Canada has increased since the previous edition by eleven. Closer examination shows a number of newspapers flourishing in new mining camps where but a short time ago there was nothing but bush, muskeg and rock. Mineral discoveries have revealed hidden wealth and communities have sprung up in Northern Ontario and elsewhere, while newspapers have followed as quickly as primitive plants could be freighted or flown in.

BELLEVILLE BEGINNINGS

This edition marks the thirtieth anniversary of the McKim publication, and the 49th. Birthday of the firm, which, starting from small beginnings has developed into one of the greatest advertising agencies in the world. In this connection, with becoming modesty, we beg to point out Belleville's contribution to this saga of business success in a new and unknown field forty-nine years ago. A. McKim, the founder, received his preliminary business education in the Ontario Business College at Belleville—so his rapid climb to business success is not to be wondered at when the lower rungs of the ladder were set so securely.

SOME CENTURY PLANTS

An outstanding feature of the McKim publication is the emphasis placed upon publications of long age, with special reference to one "PUBLISHED 1752", being THE ROYAL GAZETTE published weekly in Halifax as the official organ of the Nova Scotia Provincial Government—not a newspaper in the ordinary acceptance of the word. Newspapers of that reach the century mark have been known to do some crowing over their age, and even to get all fussed up over it. Brockville Recorder has long since passed its century mark and has taken over the publication rights with the younger Times, a mixture of Grit and Tory, with the Tory side somewhat submerged. Kingston has also successfully claimed century honors and the Whig-Standard is a wholesome combination of old and new, with the Whig still carrying on as a distinctive Grit conservative youth. Other newspapers in Canada are setting up claims to antiquity—while we have just sat back and smiled the "smole" of toleration at their puny boastings, BUT—

NOW IT CAN BE TOLD

The Ontario Intelligencer possesses age and youth and all the virtues necessary for the well-being of a newspaper growing with the years, ready to give good service and the best newspaper value possible. Going back over the years we find that THE INTELLIGENCER was established in 1837. If that does not make us a century old, our arithmetic has "gone haywire." Its first editor and publisher was one Benjamin, with whom became associated, first as "printer's devil," a lad destined to become Premier of Canada, Sir Mackenzie Bowell. The Intelligencer carried on as a weekly until 1866 when the daily was started. Mr. Charles J. Bowell, son of Sir Mackenzie, became business manager and publisher of the Daily Intelligencer in 1897-98. The Intelligencer had a long and colorful career under the Bowells, and was ably quoted, many of the editorials being written by that grand old political warhorse and forceful writer Sir Mackenzie Bowell, up to his ninetieth year and often. However, another combination of age and youth was brewing and there came into the scene in 1870 a lively young newspaper called The Daily Ontario, which developed from a weekly, established in 1841.

The Daily Ontario grew and flourished and was a worthy contemporary of the slightly older Intelligencer. Many were the battles on political issues that were fought by the two papers, elections in the early days being serious affairs, with the flames of partizanship vigorously fanned by partizan newspapers and vitrolic editorial writers. For many years The Ontario was controlled by T. S. Carman, a sturdy political figure of the old-fashioned type. In 1910 The Daily Ontario was taken over by W. H. Morton and J. O. Herity, the latter retiring some years later to take over the management of the Belleville Business College of Commerce. The Intelligencer was absorbed by The Ontario in 1930 and the combined papers are now known as The Ontario Intelligencer.

"LONG, LONG TRAIL"

This is our contribution in brief to the Canadian volume of newspaper antiquities, proving that a good newspaper never dies, it just absorbs enough new young energy to speed up a little, get a new name and then goes its way refreshed, never looking back except in pardonable pride at the many and formidable obstacles conquered in the long, long trail, stretching far down the years.

Further reference to the McKim Directory, model 1937, and its interesting features will be made later.

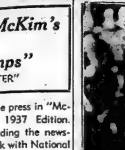
Attention City Council and All Other Citizens

"Dear Sir,



"It seems a great shame that we in Belleville remain one of the very few backward municipalities that still cling to Standard Time during our very short summer. The City Council of course are here to represent the will of the citizens, and it is for this very reason that I address myself to them through you.

"When the matter of Advanced Time was voted on 18 months ago, it was admittedly taken on the Property Owner list in ERROR, as this is not a problem peculiar to them. Hundreds of young people AT LARGE instead of letting us be known all over as the Hill-Billies of Hastings. How about it Collegiate Students?

"Yours very truly.

LOOKING BACKWARD

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BY-GONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

MAY 27TH, 1917

Citizens of all classes vied with each other this morning in giving the members of the 254th Battalion a hearty send off as they left this city eastward bound prepatory to going over seas. For some time the unit has been at Belleville and the greater number of the battalion are from Hastings and adjoining counties and numbered some 775. The following officers left with the Battalion: Lt. Col. A. P. Allen, Officer Commanding; Major K. D. Ferguson, 2nd in command; Capt. A. G. Sanford, Adjutant; Capt. B. L. Hyman, Quartermaster; Capt. S. E. Carman, Capt. R. L. Ingram, Lieut. E. R. Hinchey, Lieut. R. B. Cooper, Lieut. C. Burgener, Lieut. B. Gribble.

—The city authorities have decided to install at the pump house, two up-to-date electric pumps and one auxiliary gasoline pump. The total cost of pumps and additions to present building will be about $22,000.00.

With further reference to the late J. H. Meacham, who passed away in this city on May 14th. the following facts taken from an interview with him some years ago, will be found of interest: It was while he was employed in the registry office here in the year 1857 that a deputation of influential citizens waited on Mr. Meacham and asked him to run for postmaster. He was not disposed to accept the position and gave as many reasons why he did not want the office that he supposed he had ended the matter. Some weeks afterwards, the Hon. Edmund Murney, who represented this division in the Legislative Assembly of Upper Canada, sent for Mr. Meacham and on entering his office, Mr. Meacham found his hands as patriarchal all made out ready to sign and a Magistrate present to swear him into office. He then, as he expressed it himself, "felt Providence was leading me in a way I knew not, and I accepted, signed the bonds and was sworn in before I scarce knew what I had decided." This office Mr. Meacham held for over 43 years, namely until Nov. 1st., 1899, with credit to himself and satisfaction to the public, when he was superannuated. When Mr. Meacham became postmaster, a trip to Montreal was taken with as much hesitancy as a voyage across the Atlantic is now thought of by those intending to do so. Now Her Majesty's mails beat time to Montreal in six or seven days. Mr. Meacham used to relate a conversation with the Hon. Edmund Murney relative to his going from Belleville to Toronto. "And how did you get there?" was Mr. Meacham's query. "Every man of us carried a fence rail and we pried the mail coach out when the wheels stuck in the mud, and that was often every few minutes." was Mr. Murney's reply. The rates of letter postage under half an ounce from Belleville to any other, in Quebec one shilling and two pence (25 cents); to Montreal seven pence (12 cents); to Toronto nine pence (18 cents); to Kingston seven pence (14 cents). On being asked how people could exist under such circumstances Mr. Meacham said: "Why, I remember before the days of mail coaches when a horse or two horses, driven by one man, carried the mail. We always knew when the mail from a Canadian one, because the former had heavy chains dangening it; the English mail was carried on one side of the horse and the provincial mail on the other side. Mr. Meacham was born at Belleville on Nov. 18th., 1807.

Peterborough Boys' Band Delights Tweed Audience

Tweed—One of the most enjoyable events of the year was the band concert given in the Auditorium on Sunday night by Peterboro Boys' Band. The boys were accompanied by Adjutant C. Warrander, Commanding Officer of Peterboro Salvation Army Corps. The ages of the boys range from 7 to 17 years although the youngest member was not present owing to the fact that he had been selected to attend the Coronation of King George and Queen Elizabeth.

The Boys' Band has been in existence for twenty-five years and more than half of the present members of Peterboro Salvation Band is recruited from its ranks. The youngsters enjoy their music and attend and play at four services every Sunday as well as a band practice on Thursday evening.

The visit of the Band to Tweed was arranged some time ago by Captains Furlonger and McLeod of the local S. A. Corps, and it was a red-letter day in their history. Rowe W. H. Sayers acted as chairman. He said that he was glad to assist the S. A. because of the work which it was accomplishing, especially among the less fortunate.

The programme was as follows:
1 "The King"—The Boys' Band
2 Prayer—Capt. Furlonger.
3 Chairman's remarks — Rowe Sayers.
4 March—"Orscholovskia" Band conducted by Bandmaster W. E. Dark, of Tweed.
5 Novelty Items—E. Victor—Deputy Bandmaster. This number consisted of hymns played on an arrangement of a glass tube, small bottles and the harmonica.
6 Instrumental quartette—"Some-body's Pining for You"; R. Jones, G. Jones, R. McGee, L. Slaughter.
7 Instrumental Duet—Bandmaster Herbert French, Deputy Bandmaster E. Victor.
8 Bible reading—Arthur Jones.
9 Selection—"Junior Melodies" band.
10 Drum solo—"There is a Happy Land" K. Henwood.
11 Instrumental quartette—K. Boisan, J. Craig, W. Parnell and A. Snodgrass.
12 Instrumental duet—"Atlantis" A. Cummings, H. Jones.
13 March—"Smithil Warriors"—Band.
14 Benediction.

The band was under the direction of Bandmaster Herbert French.

An offering was taken amounting to $20.51.

Capt. Furlonger thanked all those who had assisted in making the visit of the band a success. She expressed herself as deeply grateful to the citizens of Tweed and district who packed the hall. Adjutant Warrander, who accompanied the boys expressed his appreciation to those who had so graciously received the boys into their homes.

The opening dance of the season was held at the Pavilion on the evening of May 24th. The evening was ideal and large numbers of cyclists gathered to enjoy the first outing for the season. The orchestra provided the music for the dancing. Visitors were present from Madoc, Marmora, Belleville Stirling and other outside points.

Tweed Young Ladies softball team took part in a tournament at Tamworth on Victoria Day. They lost out by a score of 10-9 in extra innings to the Camden East representatives and Saturday played with the Tamworth team, also in extra innings.

Mrs. A. Yule and two sons, Alex and Howard of Ingersoll spent the holiday week-end with Mrs. (Dr.) A. C. Lodge.

Mr. Winston Gordon of Hamilton visited friends in town on Sunday and Monday.

Miss Gladys Gordon is home from Toronto University.

Mrs. (Dr.) N. R. Pruenner of Detroit spent a few days with Mr. and Mrs. S. H. Gordon. She left on Sunday for Madoc to visit her parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. W. Connor.

Mr. D. McCrea of Cornwall visited his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bill McCrea, during the week-end.

Misses Florence Blazey, Isabella Campbell and Catharine McCharles of the Consolidated School staff spent the holiday week-end at their homes in Marville, Ottawa and Maples, respectively.

Rev. and Mrs. E. B. Sexsmith and children of Harrowsmith spent the week-end with Mrs. W. Garrett, Mrs. Sexsmith's mother. Rev. Sexsmith occupied the pulpit at the United Church on Sunday night and delivered an excellent address.

Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Porritt and family motored to Toronto for the week-end.

Tweed Consolidated School boys' softball team defeated their Separate School rivals in an interesting game at the grounds of the former school on Friday afternoon. The score of 19 to 2 in favor of T. C. S. does not quite represent the difference between the two teams. The Separate School has a smart aggregation particularly the outfield which pulled down a number of potential hits. They proved weak at the bat however and Baldwin star hurler of T. C. S. was complete master of the situation all through the game. He was ably supported by Jack Wagar behind the bat. Jack is following in the footsteps of his father, Hubie Wagar, who was the star second sacker of Tweed champion baseball team of 1919.

DESERONTO

Deseronto—The dancing season at Dawson's Pavilion opened with a dance on Thursday night. The fine weather brought out a good attendance and all enjoyed the excellent program which was provided by the Aces orchestra under the direction of Jack Denman.

A large number from Deseronto attended the funeral of the late E. C. Metcalfe at Picton on Monday last. His many friends here were shocked to hear of his sudden passing in Toronto and sympathy is extended to the family in their sad bereavement.

The funeral of the late Mr. Thos. Black, who passed away on Thursday, May 13, in his 85th year, was held on Sunday last from his late residence, St. George Street, to the Church of the Redeemer where Rev. A. D. Waite conducted the service.

Miss Ella Dunn and Miss Mary Hunt spent the week-end with the former's sister, Mrs. J. McKenny in Trenton.

Arthur O'Ray of Camp Borden, spent the week-end with his mother, Mrs. T. O'Ray.

BORN—To Mr. and Mrs. K. J. Gardner on Tuesday, May 11, at the Belleville General Hospital, a daughter.

Francis Brennan, B.A. of Toronto spent the week-end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Brennan.

Miss Helen Therrien of Toronto, spent the week-end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. O. Therrien.

Mrs. C. J. Brennan, Mill Street, entertained a number of her friends to an afternoon tea on Tuesday afternoon.

Joseph Coram of Toronto, spent the week-end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Coram.

Miss Vera Therrien of Montreal, is visiting with relatives in town.

Miss Doris Perry, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Perry, had the misfortune to fracture her nose while playing ball at the School on Friday.

Rev. E. M. Leacy was in Picton on Sunday for Confirmation at St. Gregory's Church.

Little Benny's Note Book

Saturday morning I went marketing with ma by request to carry some of the packages, and we started to pass the butcher store and ma said, That reminds me, I want to stop in here just long enough to give him a butcher a good piece of my mind about that so called chickin he sent me today.

And we went in and the butcher said, Good morning, Mrs. Potts, what can I do for you?

You can make an allowance on my account for that misogynistically that arrived at my house yesterday in place of a chickin, that's what you can do, ma said. Really, Mr. Smist, I mean really, after all the years I've been dealing here it seems a pity and a shame that I can't telefone for a chickin without being greeted with a supernatural overgrown insect that doesn't even look like a chickin, she said, and Mr. Smist said, Why goodness Mrs. Potts I had no idea. I never picked that out myself for you, it must of been my assistant and I'm going to give him a good tawaing to. Believe me, Mrs. Potts, you know too much about meats and fowls for me to try to put anything over on you. I always say, Mrs. Potts is one lady that always gets the best because she knows the bet, he said.

Well all rite, please see that it doesn't happen again and pick out my meats for me personly, ma said.

And we went out again and pretty soon ma said, Never I left my bag on the counter in the butcher store.

And we quick went back and Mr. Smist was tawking to some lady, saying, Take my word for it, Mrs. Hatten, nothjge it power in your case, I mean hwat I always say is, Mrs. Hatten is one lady that invariably gets the best because she knows the best.

Come on, ma said taking her bag off the counter and quick getting out again, and I said, O, ma, do you think he says that to all the ladies?

O, I suppose it was just a coincidens, the big red face dubble chinned bag of wind, ma said.

Meaning she knew she proberly supposed wrong.

How To Overcome Piles And Rectal Soreness

If you are annoyed with itching piles or rectal soreness, do not neglect the cause but run the risk of an operation. Any doctor will tell you that the presence of stool, is nature's warning and proper treatment should be secured at once. For this purpose get from J. R. McKeown or any druggist, a package of Hemoid and use as directed. This formula, which is obtainable in tablet form, relieves the itching and soreness and aids in healing the sore, tender spot. Hemoid is a physician's prescription and is highly recommended. It is easy to use and it seems the height of folly for anyone to run the risk of an operation when a simple remedy, which can be obtained, is one that may be had at such a reasonable cost.

Kingston Presbyterial W. M. S. Names Officers

Mrs. Hunter of Madoc Becomes. President of Organization

The annual meeting of Kingston Presbyterial Women's Missionary Society was held in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church.

The president, Mrs. W. A. Hunter, of Madoc, opened the morning session with a "Call to Worship," and Mrs. George Darling of Cataraqui conducted the devotional period.

Departmental reports were then given. Mrs. Ransom of Belleville, corresponding secretary, gave a very complete report dealing with the outstanding events of each auxiliary in the Presbyterial. These showed a considerable increase in contributions over 1935, also a slight increase in membership. The treasurer's report was given by Miss Fowler of Napanee. Total amount forwarded to provincial treasurer, $2,578.

Reports for Y.W.A.

Mrs. Penwarden reported for Young Women's Auxiliaries and Teenage organizations, also for affiliated societies. A resume of Mission Band activity was given by Miss Dorothea Druce. The banner was won for 1937 by Trenton Mission Band.

Glad Tidings report was presented by Miss Cameron, Newburg. Increase of subscriptions for 1936 was a pleasing feature of this report, but a considerable decrease for 1937 is much regretted.

Supplies, comprising seven complete outfits for Indian children; parcels of clothing and household articles were forwarded to Northern Ontario and the Western provinces. Total value $574. Several parcels of books and magazines have been sent to lumber camps. Individual workers on Mission fields and to Home Mission hospitals.

Life membership receipts amounted to $360, thirty-three certificates and seals were presented during the year. Much regret was expressed at the death of Mrs. Rutherford, Life Membership secretary, and a moment of silence was observed in honor of her memory.

Provincial Meeting

An account of the provincial annual meeting held in London was given by Mrs. Hunter. Eight Presbyterials exceeded their allocation; two others succeeded in reaching their goals and several had a substantial increase in contributions. The importance of missionary work in Kirkland Lake, Ochiwne and points north was brought to the attention of the board.

The main feature of the afternoon's program was an illustrated address by Miss Ellen Douglas of Jobal, Ipdia.

PLAINFIELD W.M.S.

The President, Mrs. Violet Elliott presided at the May meeting of Plainfield W.M.S. which was held at the home of Mrs. Clayton Hall with 27 members, five visitors and four children present.

The meeting was opened by reading of some poetry, a hymn and prayer.

The devotional was taken by Mrs. Harry Harrison, the theme being "in the Footsteps of Jesus." Mrs. Harrison gave some very helpful and instructive thoughts from that topic.

Mrs. Eric Denyes, group leader then took charge. Mrs. Brenton gave a reading of the 24th Psalm of the Indians. A solo by Mrs. Moore was much appreciated. A reading by Mrs. Palmer entitled "The Matrimony of Little Chief." A chapter of the Study Book was given by Mrs. Ken Hall and Mrs. Fred Prindle. The latter also being taken in form of a dialogue by Mrs. Waller Hall and Mrs. Eric Denyes.

A couple of readings from the Temperance and Christian Stewardship secretaries were read. Collection was received by Miss Isabelle Elliott.

Meeting closed with a hymn and Mispah Benediction. Lunch was then served by the hostess and her sister and a social half hour spent.

Plainfield Mission Band

The Plainfield Mission Band met on Friday, May 21, at the school with 22 members and six visitors present. The meeting opened with quiet music played by pianist.

Response was found to Psalm 121, verse 1, by president, Miss Verna Prindle. A hymn was sung and verse repeated in unison. The third group leader, Miss Marjorie Gray, Solos by Irvine Moore and Miss Elsie Hamilton. The latter playing for her accompaniment on her guitar. Mrs. Arthur Hall then gave another chapter from the Study Book.

Meeting closed with a hymn and Mispah Benediction.

HALLOWAY W.M.S.

The ladies of Halloway W.M.S. held their May meeting at the home of Mrs. Ernest Stark, when a delicious dinner was served and enjoyed by all.

The meeting opened with the president in the chair. Hymn 153 was sung. Mrs. Will Cadman read the Scripture lesson. Mrs. Harry Townsend led in prayer, followed by a hymn. Mrs. Herbert Townsend read the devotional leaflet, "Jesus and Children" and was well studied and answered by a verse containing the word "Prayer."

It was moved and seconded that Mrs. E. Wilson take the next lesson. Mr. Mrs. Will Sudder was elected a vote of thanks for so generously giving her home for the May meeting.

Hymn 222 was sung followed by Mrs. K. Snider reading a Temperance reading. The meeting closed with the Benediction.

A reading on the roll call "Life" was given by Mrs. Wm. Shaw, Mrs. Wm. Benson, Mrs. Morley Haggerty, Mrs. John McLeod and Mrs. Shaw sang. Mrs. Sam Donnan gave a real interesting report of the provincial which was held in London a short time ago. Mrs. John Wallace gave a report of the annual meeting of the W.M.S. of Kingston Presbyterial which was held in Kingston on May 18th. Miss Riley, Douglas of Jobat, India, was the speaker for the afternoon and evening. An honor life membership was presented to Miss E. L. Mowat the retiring Recording Secretary for her past years of service. Mrs. John Wallace was appointed Life Membership Secretary for the Presbyterial.

The minutes of the last meeting were read by the Secretary, Mrs. John McLeod. After the usual business a hymn was sung followed by the Mispah Benediction.

SCHOOLS HOLD UNITED SERVICE FOR EMPIRE DAY

Deseronto High and Public Schools' Program Includes Sports

Deseronto—The Deseronto High School and Public School united here today in a service commemorating Empire Day. A parade was held before the service in which both schools took part. The High School led by their cadets marched to Thomas Street where they were joined by the Public School, the parade then proceeding to the Cenotaph where the service was held.

The service was opened by the singing of "O Canada" which was followed by the salute to the flag led by the Rev. Mr. Waite. The Principal of the Public School, Mr. Nobes, then gave an address. Mr. Nobes told the audience how Empire Day had started and the reason it is carried on today. He said that Empire Day is designated as a special day to draw attention to lessons that concern privilegee and responsibilities of Canadian Citizenship. A recitation was then given by Joyce Dafoe of the Public School. A floral wreath was then placed on the Cenotaph in memory of those who have died in the Great War. Short addresses were then given by his Worship the Mayor Dr. W. C. Blackwell and the Principal of the High School Mr. Wilson Hall. The Last Post was then sung concluding the service.

The parade was then reformed and proceeded to the playgrounds of the Public School where a field day was held in which the children took part.

MEMBERS OF MOOSE HONORED BY MILITIA

In the current issue of the Moose Magazine, the official organ of the life of members of the Moose lodge throughout the United States and Canada, appear two articles of significant importance to local citizens and more especially members of the Moose fraternity in this city. In the Canadian section of the magazine appears a special notice regarding Major L. F. Green, Past Dictator of the Moose Lodge No. 904 and Sergt.-Major Samuel Johnson, Inner Guard of the same lodge. Both of these lodge members have been honored by their military unit in representing it at a British Coronation, the article explains. Major Green was chosen in 1911 and, Sergt.-Major Johnson more recently to represent the local Militia unit at the Coronation of His Majesty George VI. The interesting significance referred to in the Moose news is the fact both Major Green and Sergt.-Major Johnson are fast friends, both belong to the same Moose Lodge and both represented the same military unit, although at different Coronations. Incidentally both were presented by the late former Grand Dictator of the Order in England, when he toured Canada recently.

DAILY SHORT STORY

Beth's Garden

By Clarissa Mackie

Of course the old Mordaunt place had a garden. Beth remembered coming there years ago with her mother, before Uncle Jaffrey died. The flowers were so marvelous and the gardens so needless that they appeared almost unnatural to the young girl and her mother, who lived in a small cottage nearby.

When Uncle Jaffrey died, Beth and her mother found that his beautiful property had been left to them, but there was not money enough to keep it going. Another year Mrs. Mordaunt divided the tiny income so that there was just enough to live on carefully, and nothing was ever left for the garden. People whispered that there must have been more money, for Uncle Jaffrey was very rich, but grew quite miserly in the last years of his life, and they declared that somewhere about the old place he had hidden either one large sum or many smaller ones.

One day a good looking man came to the Mrs. Mordaunt to meet him and greeted him pleasantly.

"Mr. Smith, who said he was your lawyer, suggested that I come and see you about clearing up your garden and lawns in return for my board," he told her frankly. "I had pneumonia in the late winter and I really need light outdoor work to keep me outside—regular farm work is too vigorous just now—and studying medicine at Mason university, and I cannot afford to spend money for a vacation. Mr. Smith's pleasant voice grew wistful as he scanned the delightful old neglected garden. "It would be a wonderful opportunity for me," he added, "but you may have other plans."

Mrs. Mordaunt did not hesitate. "If Mr. Smith sent you here, you are certainly welcome—my daughter and I were just discussing the needs of the garden." Then she introduced Bruce Wayne to Beth and went to the house to select a room for him.

"Mother," said Beth, one August morning, "everything is so beautiful—do come out and witness the cleaning out of the large fountain. Bruce is going to do that next."

Bruce whipped off his old hat and grinned affectionately at the woman who had been so kind to him for several months. She had brought a deep wicker chair from the front verandah, and soon Mrs. Mordaunt was comfortably settled and watching these two young people who worked together so harmoniously. She was wondering whether her daughter, Beth, cared at all for the smiling doctor, whose heart was in his fine eyes, whenever he glanced at the lovely girl. There was no doubt that Bruce Wayne had lost his heart to her gentle Beth, and sighed a little as they worked so happily together, because she was thinking about the lack of money and the years they would have to wait.

Bruce had a large hammer and was prying off the flited boards of the "tent-like" protection. "Hurrah," he shouted when the last section had been removed and the rusty, stained decorations of the fountain were revealed.

"Are you going to paint the fountain, Bruce?" asked Beth's mother.

"I should be painted, don't you think, Mrs. Mordaunt?" and then, bending over the deep basin he lifted a dry and rusty steel box.

"Why, what the dickens do you suppose this can be?" he queried. "Buried treasure?" He set it at Mrs. Mordaunt's feet.

"Oh, Bruce, smash it open," begged Beth. "Perhaps that is where poor Uncle Mordaunt hid his money!"

A few blows of the stout hammer opened the rusty box. Inside of that was a huge rubber pocket which held the missing wealth of Uncle Mordaunt. They sent Bruce for Mr. Smith, and during his absence Beth confessed to her mother that she and Bruce loved each other and that he had asked her to marry him. "And I want to, mother darling," sobbed the girl, "even if we are quite poor at first! You understand, don't you?"

Mrs. Mordaunt nodded happily, and then the two men appeared and Mr. Smith checked up the contents of the old box. "The missing securities," he said. "You see there was about a hundred thousand missing—and here it is!"

Bruce Wayne looked very glum. After the lawyer had left, Beth's mother said to him:

"Well, Bruce, aren't you happy over our good luck?"

"Oh yes, Mrs. Mordaunt—of course. Only—you see—well, I'm no poor—and Beth's a rich girl now!"

"Bal Bruce," said Mrs. Mordaunt, smilingly understandingly, "money's really part yours— you found it." And she went off to the house.

Bruce turned stammeringly to Beth.

"Don't you see, dear," she said, "if you hadn't come into my garden we might never have found that money! So it is part yours. It's ours."

And so when Bruce left her garden Beth had promised to wait for him to finish his training, and he had promised to start out his professional and married career in the old Mordaunt home.

Detroit Without Their Sparkplug, Cochrane, Drop to Fourth

YANKS ON WARPATH

White Sox and Red Sox Win Games Over Senators, Browns

(By Sid Feder)

(Associated Press Sports Writer)

It seems, the American League was only fooling after all. For a while there, the junior circuit looker as though it was going to steal the National League's stuff and put on a race as close as one and two.

But the untimely and unfortunate accident to Mickey Cochrane, and the big stick as now wielded by the New York Yankees' Murderers Row make it appear things are pointing toward somewhat of a repetition of last summer's walks for Gehrig and company.

Certainly Detroit's pennant possibilities, as good as any season's in a week also have come close to being as washed up as the week's laundry since Cochrane slipped that accidental bean ball of Bump Hadley's two days ago. Even if Tom Mike gets back this season, it will be weeks before he's ready to step in there and start play those Tigers again, and without him they're only a shadow of themselves.

Just as suddenly as they landed in their slump at the start of the season, the cocking, spring exhibition trip, the Yanks have snapped out of it. They're on a rampage. They boast a winning streak of six straight, they clinched it with that nine yesterday in blanking the Cochrane-less Tigers 7-0.

Tigers Drop to Fourth

Lefty Gomez was the lad who applied the whitewash brush yesterday, as George Selkirk socked his eighth homer. The victory boosted the Yanks American League lead to three full games, and left the Tigers to fourth place, dropped the Tigers to fourth place.

Cleveland's Indians rallied with a four-run spree in the ninth to top the mystifying Philadelphia Athletics 6-5, a victory which shot the tribe from fourth to second and lowered the A's to third. Featured in the battle was a pinch homer by Bruce Campbell and Billy Sullivan.

On a western rampage, New York's Giants ganged up on Al Hollingsworth in the first five innings to beat the Reds 7-3 and pull up to a tie with the Pirates in the National League pennant race. Pittsburgh Pirates, whose tilt with the Dodgers was rained out, and the Cardinals held onto third place with a 6-4 win over the Boston Bees on the strength of Johnny Mize's three-run homer in the ninth.

Lon Warneke and Curt Davis, Phillies pitching find, fanned ten and handcuffed the Chicago Cubs with three runs in the ninth and nosed out the Braves, 6-5. The Boston Red Sox finished up top 11-9 in a knock-down, drag-out brawl with the Browns.

TEDDY HASLAM A FIT HORSE

By The Canadian Press

Teddy Haslam, Dr. C. N. Mooney's nominee for the $5,000 Coronation Handicap Saturday, showed he was fit yesterday when he scored over a sloppy track at Woodbine Park and won the King Edward Cup. Mrs. T. Stevenson's Stepmother was second and H. C. Hatch's Kandahar third.

The smallest crowd in years attended the racing program. Rain fell all day and only 2,500 passed through the gates. Today broke dull and dreary with overhanging clouds threatening rain.

Hatch's Uppermost, ridden by Stirling Young, showed his heel to a classy field in a six-furlong sprint, at the wire he held a length lead over Congress stable's Scribe. Park Wood stable's Ourgan was third, a length further in the rear.

H. S. Wilson's Upton, making his first start of the season, outlasted Stok Dodger, owned by the Cosgrave stable, in a six furlongs test. Herb Lindgreth held Upton, an 8-1 shot, on long enough to win by a neck. Santan, a long shot was third.

New York, May 27—(AP)—Umpire Coffman, Detroit Tiger rookie who made his Major League debut by trimming Lefty Grove the other day and then was knocked out by the Yankees yesterday, is named George Richard..... His brother, who looms for the Giants, is named Richard George..... An inside story is that Van Mungo's eye was bunged up in a scrimmage and not a jimmy Buchez's fist. Remarkable how this hotel furniture has a habit of popping up and tagging a guy.

Attention scouts: Randy Heflin, 18-year-old right hander who has just pitched Fredericksburg (Va.) high to its first State title, struck out 95 batters in 53 innings, yielded only 18 hits and two earned runs. They say he would have done even better, but none of the catchers could hold him down.

Kidney stew is Jimmy Braddock's favorite dish as he trains for Joe Louis.... The Bomber sticks to fried chicken, but he is the one who gets it..... Everybody is pulling hard for Mickey Cochrane..... When he was hit on the head by Bump Hadley's fast one, the club could be heard all over the Stadium. Gadfly Mickey has had more than his share of beaning in his time.

Just a few minutes before the accident some of the Tigers were discussing Cochrane's batting average and he said he's due to graduate to the Cincinnati Reds from Durham in the Piedmont League where he's now sparkling behind the platter..... Kid Chocolate who has been making a comeback on the New York subway circuit, gets another shot on the big time when he goes against Al Reid at the Hippodrome next Wednesday night.

NEWARK BEARS INCREASE LEAD TO FIVE GAMES

Kemp Wicker, Southpaw, Wins Hurling Duel

—AT—

ROYALS ARE "HOT"

Hand Bisons Their Third Successive Loss by 6-1

By The Associated Press

Every time the world champion New York Yankees cut loose a player from their roster tickled for their No. 1 farm, the Newark Bears, it usually means bad news for the rest of the International League.

Kemp Wicker was the latest member of the Yanks to be sent down to the Bears. Kemp, being an old member of the Bears, proceeded to carve himself a five-hit performance and a 1-0 victory over the Jersey City Giants his first start back in the old surroundings yesterday. The triumph increased the Bears' lead over the second place Toronto Leafs to five games.

Five one-baggers was the total damage the Giants could do against the southpaw.

Next to the Bears, the Montreal Royals are the "hottest" club in the loop. They banded the Buffalo Bisons their third successive whipping 6-1 behind Lauri Myllykangas' excellent pitching.

The Dartmouth alumnus held the Herd to six hits while his mates were batting Bill "Hard Luck" Harris, for eleven hits and six runs in the five innings he lasted.

It was the fourth straight game a Royal hurler has gone the distance and allowed not more than six hits.

The Syracuse-Baltimore game, scheduled to open the Orioles night season, was postponed because of rain. Rochester and Toronto had an off day.

New York, May 27.—(AP)—After a fitful night, Mickey Cochrane, manager of the Detroit Tigers who was struck on the head by a pitched ball Tuesday, had passed "a good night" and that his condition "had improved", Mrs. Cochrane spent the night at the hospital.

Signed by Dr. R. Emmett Walsh Yankee physician, the bulletin as issued at St. Elizabeth's hospital read:

"Cochrane has passed a good night. His condition is improved." Dr. Byron Stookey, brain specialist, said:

"The outlook is fine".

Mrs. Cochrane's body is tired and his skull is broken, but the mind that directed the Detroit Tigers to two American League pennants and a world championship still is with his team.

Last night, just after three doctors had ended a consultation and bulletined Cochrane's condition as "slightly improved" Mrs. Cochrane entered the room.

Someone had told Mickey that the Tigers had lost to the Yankees.

"We lost today," he whispered. She nodded.

"Very badly?" he asked. His wife told him no and he seemed relieved. Doctors said his brain is defeat has no ill effect.

The bulletin said "signs of cerebral concussion have diminished. The possibility of infection and secondary meningitis is still present."

One of the doctors expressed the belief the crisis would be reached within the next 24 hours. If the Detroit manager, who was beaned by a pitch thrown by Bump Hadley of the Yankees, Tuesday, can hold his own in that time his chances of recovering are much greater.

WHALEN'S TEAM WINS HONORS

Softball Title of St. Michael's Academy Goes With Last Victory

After having lost the initial game of the St. Michael's Academy softball league finals, George Whalen's youthful charges came from behind and won the remaining two contests to win the school softball title for the current season.

The St. Michael's Academy softball league has been in operation for well over a month with four teams facing the barrier managed by Tom Healip, finalist, Jim Sheridan, Lower School and George Whalen's champs. The league was organized by Jack Doran, school athletic director, who capably umpired all games throughout the season.

After losing to Healip's kids 7 to 8 in the initial game of the school finals, Whalen's charges came back to win the second game 13 to 8 and last night won the league title by virtue of a 5 to 2 victory. The two clubs to enter the finals had only lost one game during a double schedule played throughout the season. The team managers acted as catchers for their respective teams.

It is expected suitable cups will be donated the winners.

TRENT COTTENS GARNER 16-7 WIN

Defeat Hargars in a Mercantile Softball League Fixture

TRENTON, May 27.—(Special)—Playing steady ball behind the steady pitching of Bruce Burtt, Trent Cottens garnered a 16-7 win over Hargars in a one sided and classy softball at Bayshore diamond last night. The contest was a Mercantile loop affair and drew a good number of spectators. The Cottonmen came through with timely drives and featured with an eight run out-break in the final inning to cop the evening's honours. The Hargars outfit was made up of well seasoned performers but they failed to come through in the vital moments. Cottons obtained four tallies in their half of the opening stanza. Burns, Drake, V. Burtt, and Morin crossed the plate. Hargars scored three runs in two walks and a two base drive. J. Bohan and N. Wells, drew walks while Bellville male Ross Perrault, sent them across the home plater with a fifty blow that put him on second bag.

In the second and third canters the millmen produced two runs and their rivals none. But the Hargar aggregation counted a point in the fourth and fifth, while their opponents scored only one run. Hargar's came within one run of tieing the fixture in the sixth inning by batting a pair of runners over home base. But they fell down miserably in the closing canto by erratic fielding and letting eight millmen score. D. Berger, the ace hurler of the fated Famous Players' organization was on the hill for the losers. His variety of curves and speed balls were touched easily by the Cottons batsmen. Bruce Burtt pitched one of the steadiest exhibitions of his career and with the support he received in the opener of the contest, when the walked three men, which resulted in as many runs for the losing team.

Teams—Trent Cottons — Baker, Drake, V. Burtt, Taylor, Morin, Reid, Bowden, Crase, D. Burtt. Hargar's Athletic Club—J. Bohan, N. Wells, A. Forsythe, Perrault, H. Lewis, J. McDonald, D. Mood, D. Berger, B. Cook.—Umpires, O. Ward, and H. Look.

CALLING 'EM

Between the Lines

with

Ken J. Colling

It has been proven on many occasions that truth is stranger than fiction. Right in Belleville this old saying is being witnessed, although the persons concerned are re-enacting their visions and circumstances in England today. About 18 months ago George Pepper and Jackie White were local youths, were working on the same job in a local bank, repairing the building. Both were motorcycle enthusiasts and their talk always veered around to their pet diversion with the result, that much work was done by the employees of the bank after hours. Usually this line of conversation went something like this—"Say, George, what say we try to get over to the Old Country for the Isle of Man races in 1937," prompted Johnnie White one night. "Gosh, that'd be alright, but it would cost a heap of money, wouldn't it?" quoth Pepper and then they'd talk over the possibilities or a Canadian rider in the Manx T.T.G. races.

This went on for some days and long into the nights, each hoping some day they would realize their life's ambition. A few months ago their friendship was broken. Jackie joined the Royal Air Force. Each had forgotten those long nights of dreaming nearly two years ago. While in the meantime particulars realized the dream when sent to England for military training in the Air Force. The set-up at the air George Pepper rose is prominence in the motor-cycle world, while Jackie knew it as sailing across the Atlantic and today we find these boys, Jackie White and George Pepper, who nearly ten years ago only dreamed of getting to the Manx races, now realizing their ambitions, competing and getting a short furlough to be with Pepper, during the races. So under Jackie's guidance it is made impossible even in story books.

Incidentally Mrs. Wm. Pepper, mother of George Pepper, received a letter from her son yesterday. George stated his brother was with the Victoria sailors, who have sailed the north Atlantic for years. Incidentally Jackie is stationed at Bedford, that our crossing was the Atlantic and Pepper stated at the time did we run into adverse weather, or even so much as a "puff of squall," which Jackie, who should be about testing his machines over the Manx courses today.

The latest rumors coming out of Lindsay are to the effect the Scugog River and Lindsay Rowing Club, Ontario O.R.F.U. group champions, will not operate in 1937. Migration have wrought havoc in the ranks of the Lindsay Rotarians and may see them out of the group this fall, but the R.C.A.F. will doubtlessly be in the picture. Of course, only the continuance of a six teamed group just the same.

Perry "Shot" Gibson, who rose to classy baseball heights by pitching in the Belleville Nationals into a senior O.B.A. berth in 1924, has retired from active service on the diamond. Gibson has been a resident of the shores of the Lake Shore intermediate loop and if he ever gets past an arbiter as the old a moundsman, he will be tops along the line-up from A to Z. Before ever to rise to stardom in the O.B.A.'s, Gibson, like the majority of baseball heroes, worked on a certain delivery until he perfected it. Then, when he could improve drop, that was most deceptive. "Shot" labored long and hard to get to the perfection of his favorite pitch, which proved most successful as he later developed it into perfection, much to sorrow of the Wallerville Chicks, you'll recall. As we call it the ball was seemingly delivered from behind his back, as he was in the act of delivering. The flight of the apple appeared high to the batsmen, but when properly delivered the same always bellowed—"Strike".

Besides a sprinkle of gutted-stick artists from Kingston, Gord Delaney says he has signed a lad named Callander, former Mimico lacrosse artist to a Belleville playing certificate. Incidentally we are awaiting the release of the new Central Ontario Lacrosse League schedule from the office of President Harry Moore, although it has been definitely settled to open the season on June 2nd. Cobourg has been re-admitted to the league, thus securing them for the league, also assuring them meantime the local school lacrosse loop is functioning nicely, over 206 lacrosse sticks having already been distributed among the school boys.

Next week will see track and field day meets at both the Belleville Collegiate and the O.S.D. The S. C. I. will hold its annual Field day on Monday while the Deaf Jacks' will hold theirs Tuesday. Frank Cunningham, instructor at the O.S.D. will introduce hurdles during the meet at the O.S.D.

Rain or shine, fair weather or otherwise the show must go on according to tradition, at least that's what it looked like yesterday when three local craft faced the starter's gun in the weekly Yacht Club sailing event. The Victoria Park, Even in the rain Skipper Maurice Calnan, with his After You, Bill Hurst's Atlanta, and Ross Ashbery's Arrow, the Frosts were in the mark. The wind flattened out, however, and the association's junior harmonizers as no craft finished under the allotted three hours limit. Just so much time wasted for naught, but at least the helmsmen were able to battle the elements, rain or shine.

Mentors of the local softball loop are experiencing no end difficulties with their newly proposed diamond. The infield is ready for play but the outer garden is yet inundated. They'll be out of the water trenches before the Holiday week-end. In the meantime last night's Aajmsa junior versus Memorial Shore game was postponed 24 hours on account of rain. After these two squads clash the Aajmsa softball nine, of "Perfect game Batman" fame, tackle the Bell nine Friday evening.

Vinny Urconki, former C.O.B.I. pitching luminary and one of the best St. Catharines "Saints" line-up versus Thorold on Saturday. Up to his Saturday day Vinny has won two tests in three tries, but snagged three hits from Thorold last week. Urconki having played in the middle garden before, but he's back again as lead-off man.

Every baseball fan in the realm is pulling for Mickey Cochrane and a speedy recovery from his unfortunate injury. The next 24 hours will be closely watched, physicians state. Such unfortunate incidents are regrettable, but sometimes a "safer" ball enters into the game, injuries ultimately follow. As a rule either the players or the umpire observe a "safer" approaching and either duck or by ejecting the defective spherical from the game. No blame is attached to the pitcher.

The Giants and the Cardinals gained on the pitch Pirates in the National League yesterday with victories over the Reds and Bees respectively.

THOMASBURG

Thomasburg, May 27—The May meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of Thomasburg United Church was held on Tuesday afternoon, eleventh, at the home of Mrs. Wesley Hayes, with fifteen members present.

Mrs. J. Jones, the president, opened the meeting by singing a Coronation hymn and reading a prayer for the King.

It was decided that the Women's Missionary Society would take charge of the Sunday evening service, June 6th, conference Sunday.

Roll Call was answered by a verse of Scripture containing the word "Remember." WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—
And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Then gas bloats your stomach, you get constipated, bad breath comes up into the body, and your whole system is poisoned with the effects of waste material.

A mere bowel movement doesn't always get rid of this bile. Harsh cathartic pills and salts only irritate the bowels. They act like a temporary relief. What you need are those gentle, mild vegetable laid liquids that help Nature to get your liver to pour into the bowels about two pints of bile daily. You'll then feel "up and up". Harmless and gentle, they make the bile flow freely. They do the work of calomel but have no calomel or mercury in them. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name! Insist on getting them. Refuse substitutes.

WHY be "all-tired-out", cross, listless, scrawny and underweight? You need not! Thousands of run-down people the world over have quickly regained good health by taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. They have found new energy, new interest, have put on sound, healthy flesh (not fat) and become vigorous and healthy just as you can by taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills regularly.

Your blood stream is your life stream. If it is impoverished and lacking vital iron, then your body and mentality will be impoverished, too, and you may go to ill-health. But you need not stay down when Dr. Williams' Pink Pills can build you up by supplying iron and other blood-enriching tonics to your blood.

Read what Miss Jean B. has to say and then take her story "to heart".

"About eight months ago I was feeling half sick. Tired all the time. No pep. Was continually losing weight. I had my blood tested and was told I was anemic. So I started to take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. It was the turning point for me alright. I have continued the treatment and I am now feeling life is worth living again."

Start the Dr. Williams' Pink Pills treatment today. You will be thrilled to feel new life, vigor, vitality and strength revelven your whole being—physically and mentally.

Fifty cents at all druggists in a smart, new container that looks like a compact.

TORONTO STOCK EXCHANGE CLOSE

Toronto, May 27.— (CP)—Despite moderate weakness in the Golds and the Base Metals the Toronto Market displayed general confidence in today's proceedings. In the Industrials the high lights were Bell Telephone, Brazilian Traction and some of the senior oils while the Banks and Rails registered an upward flurry and held the bulk of their gains till the close. Volume was above the half million mark.

Bell sold around 167 and closed with a gain of about four points and traded more than a thousand shares. Brazilian turned over to the extent of about 9,000 shares and held a gain of about a point.

Imperial Oil and International Petroleum changed hands in volume, both all narrow gains and McColl Frontenac up about a point. Among the cheaper oils there was some 16 to 18 cents included Calgary-Edmonton, Foothills, Home, Calmont, McDougall-Segur, Model, Okalta and Vulcan.

Fractional gains were posted in the funds for Consolidated Bakeries, Canners B and Westons and in the stocks prices were up for Dominion Foundries, Steel of Canada Pfd., English Electric B and National Steel Car and in the miscellaneous group closing quotations showed net gains for Aluminium Pfd., Bathurst Power A, Goodyear and International Metals Pfd.

Banks were quiet and steady.

Some of the higher-bracketed gold actively declined. Sudbury Basin Lake Shore dropped ½ and losses of 1 to 15 cents were recorded for Falconbridge, Little Long Lac, Macassa, Sylvanite, Teck Hughes, Pickle Crow, Hunton, O'Brien, Wendigo, Patricia, Hard Rock MacLeod-Cockshutt, Kerr-Addison and Slave Lake.

Nickel held to the up side but the other base metals were off. Hudson Bay and Noranda dropped ½ to ⅞, Smelters nearly a point and minor losses appeared for Falconbridge, Sudbury Basin, Mandy and Jack Waite. In the silvers Mining Corporation eased down 15 cents, Nipissing 10 and Eldorado 5.

WALL STREET CLOSE

By Victor Eubank

Associated Press Financial Writer

New York, May 27—(AP)— Specialties shared the upward drift with a handful of Steels, Rails, Motors and Coppers in the early trading. Higher stock market turned about and stepped cautiously forward fractions to around a point.

Well-liked specialties were Johns-Manville, Allis-Chalmers and Nash-Oliver Farm Equipment rose about 2 on good earning power reported for the first quarter of the year.

Trading ran at the rate of about 650,000 shares for the full session.

Asserts U. S. in Grasp Of British Empire

Detroit, May 27 (AP)—Francis Patrick Gervan, president of the Pan American Council and assistant of American trade treaty policies, has asserted "the United States is in the ever-growing grasp of the British Empire."

Gervan, president of the Chemical Foundation and former Alien Property Custodian appointed President Wilson, told a banquet of this Third Dearborn Conference of the Chemical Foundation last night that Britain is known publicly of the terms of a new trade treaty about to be made with Great Britain.

"Our people don't know," he declared. "Our government will have nothing more to say about it than the Canadian Council might that Britain is now in the grasp of approximately 21.35 a share.

Brokers point out that there is an increasing number of stocks which are selling not only out of line with current earnings but also lower than they should be even taking into consideration the expectation of reduced revenues during the summer. Undoubtedly the break and uncertainty following it has meant that traders are leaving many stocks alone although they are aware of the bullish background for them.

Stock Exchange Gazette London Comments on the Outlook for Brazilian Traction.

According to the Stock Exchange London, England, "Brazilian Traction can be confident" forecast, to secure its full share of attention when more normal market conditions return. "Earnings may be expected to reflect improvement in economic conditions and immunity from British excess profits tax should assist this international counter".

Livestock

Toronto, May 27—(CP)—Hog prices were firm to 10 cents higher at the Toronto Livestock Market today. The cattle offerings including 1,000 calves were fully steady with cleaned up at steady prices. Calves and spring lambs traded at previous prices while no sheep were offered.

Receipts reported by the Dominion Stock Yards were: cattle 800, calves 130; hogs 340; lambs 30.

Good butcher steers and heifers brought $7.25 to $7.60 with some quality as low as $6. Butcher cows sold generally at $4 to $5.50, odd sales reaching $6. A few bologna bulls went at 4 to $4.50. Fed calves ranged down from $8.50.

Choice veal calves were priced at $8 to $8.50, common as low as $5.

Off truck bacon hogs closed $9.15 to $9.25, F.O.B. hogs were quoted at $8.75 and rail grades from $12.10 to $12.25 delivered.

A few spring lambs went at $6 to $10 each. Spring lambs will be traded on the pound basis next week.

LONDON BUSMEN RETURN TO WORK

Campaign For 7½ Hour Day Ends Without Accomplishment

London, May 27 (CP-Havas) — Refusing to accept the terms of the Executive Council of the Transport and General Workers Union, to return to work tomorrow, the Central Strike Committee of autobus workers today placed full blame on the council for failure of the campaign for a 7 1-2 hour day.

The committee issued a plea to other strikers to stand fast "attempt to weaken our solidarity" after repudiation of work, and declared the council must take entire responsibility for ending the walkout without the 7 1-2 hour day.

Council Takes Decision

The council's decision was taken in a conference yesterday at the Labor Ministry attended by certain of the Ministry, the transport Board and the bus union.

According to the terms of the settlement, strikers will resume under the same working conditions as in the past pending a new agreement.

"The Executive Council is entirely responsible for a return to work without the 7 1-2 hour day, although plenary powers were sanctioned by the Executive Council to obtain this," a statement released by the Central Committees declared.

MARKET COMMENT

Although the market has been an indecisive affair for some weeks now, it is interesting to point out that the news from industrial corporations is of a constructive character, but in the present type of market, no consideration is being given to merit. Sooner or later, however, the public will come to realize that the old adage of "buy them when nobody wants them" still holds true.

The market today is an interesting one both from a bargain hunter as well as investor. Whereas a few months ago, complaints were heard that attractive yields had disappeared on common stocks, today one is able to acquire equities that return a safe yield of anywhere from 5 to 8 per cent. In the case of the senior issues the return is as high as 10 per cent.

Brazilian Traction has recovered more than 6 points from its recent low, the substantial gain in net earnings for April no doubt contributing to the demand. The improvement last month was the best since December, and the company's earnings at the present time are running at the rate of approximately 21.35 a share.

Brokers point out that there is an increasing number of stocks which are selling not only out of line with current earnings but also lower than they should be even taking into consideration the expectation of reduced revenues during the summer. Undoubtedly the break and uncertainty following it has meant that traders are leaving many stocks alone although they are aware of the bullish background for them.

Belleville Municipal Band Gives a Splendid Program

Large Crowd Enjoy Concert at Academy in Aid of Junior Band

BAND IS LAUDED

As a kindly gesture of encouragement to the Junior Band of St. Michael's Academy, the Belleville Municipal Band under the leadership of Lieut. Johson presented a splendid program in the Academy auditorium last evening. Assisted by guest artists and by the Junior Band, the Municipal Band provided an evening of delightful entertainment which will be long remembered with appreciation by all those who attended.

On the stage which was artistically arranged with ferns and Spring flowers, the members of the band took their places, while the Junior Band was grouped on a platform below the stage. Mr. Charles Dolan, chairman of the Band Committee, presided at the meeting and in his opening remarks paid a tribute to the leadership of Lieut. Johson and the bandsmen for the splendid work they had carried on in the academy. Appreciation of this work had prompted them to donate the evening's program and their kindness was sincerely appreciated.

The Municipal Band, in their concert, not only pleased the large group of very interesting numbers. The skill and artistry of the musicians under the leadership of the efficient bandmaster, were evident in the masterly performance of each selection. Their numbers included "Rienzi" as the opening Overture to "Bohemian Girl" (Balfe); Waltz, "Old Timers" (Lake); Selection, "Cross of Lorraine" (Lake); Selection, "Molly," and of special interest, the melody "Deep Harmony" arranged by Mr. Rez. Hinchey. The cornet duet, "The Pals," by Mr. A. Wincott and Mr. A. Branscombe, and the trombone solo, "Mama's Boy" by Mr. Peterborough and Mr. Wardle were features of the program and were thoroughly enjoyed.

A recitation by a Junior Band member, little Reid Agnew (Corcoran "When the Band Begins to Play" was well done.

Miss Phyllis May, soprano, delighted the audience with her selection "Republican Night" and "Shortening Bread" and "Come to the Fair". This talented young singer possesses a very fine voice and her interpretation of the numbers was splendid. Miss Anne Hogle, another guest artist on last evening's program, gave three readings in her usual excellent style and was warmly applauded.

Father St. Michael's Junior Band had a special place in the program and their numbers consisted of a medley of nursery rhymes and "When Irish Eyes are Smiling", John Briand and Bobby Young gave a cornet and saxaphone solo which brought down the house. As spokesman for the Juniors, Bobby Young expressed appreciation to the Municipal Band, Lieutenant Johnson, the Holy Name Society, Principal Hanley and the School Board for the encouragement and assistance they had given, in befitting tribute to musicians, the audience then rose and sang "Lie-tan to the Band," an appreciation of the Belleville Municipal Band and its leader.

Appreciation Expressed

At the conclusion of the program, Rt. Rev. J. Lennon, P.A., expressed the deep sense of appreciation of the audience to the splendid musical symposium lavished upon them. He referred in laudatory terms to the excellence of the Belleville Municipal Band and thanked the other artists, Miss May and Miss Hogle for their splendid numbers, and also the program. "Belleville is fortunate", he said, "in the possession of its own musical band which has such an enviable reputation throughout Canada. Their interpretation of the splendid numbers under the brilliant leadership of Lieut. Johson was an inspiration. Their rendition would be a stimulus to the efforts of the band which had begun so auspiciously and charmed all last evening. This evening would linger in the memories of all present."

Lieut. Johson, in reply, said that the visit of the Belleville Band to the academy last evening was the return of the kindness of the Junior Band which had taken part in the District Band Contest at Kingston, and had captured the hearts of all present. He congratulated the school in sponsoring music in the lower school, and paid tribute to the excellent training by Sister Stereodes. By teaching the children the fundamentals of musical education and the alphabet, they were given a foundation and a real appreciation of musical art which would make their progress in its training much more rapid in secondary school work. He urged the parents to support and encourage music in the school as a most important project.

The singing of the National Anthem brought the very enjoyable evening to a close.

Short-Lived Strike At Madoc Talc Mine

Workers Return to Work After Half Hour Lay-off For Higher Pay

Demanding five cents per hour more in wages, employees of the Gillespie Talc Mine, Madoc, yesterday, laid down their tools and walked out. The plant was idle for but one half hour, however, when word from negotiations from the workers attempted to settle negotiations with manager of the mine, Geo. Gillespie.

Their request for the additional five cents per hour, backed by the management, work was resumed and the plant once more was being operated as formerly.

A rumoured "sympathy strike" by workers of the Canada Talc Company's Mine, adjacent to the Gillespie working, did not materialize.

"THE BRIGHT HILL"

by Clarissa Fairchild Cushman

"Old Mrs. Winters! Really!" A gleam of humour lit Henry's pleasant brown eyes under his thinning hair.

"Do be sensible! A Mrs. Kingsbury."

"Well—" Henry spread his paper, "a good thing, I'd say. Give the other men in the world a fighting chance; Ah, the marmalade's pot empty. Aline must be home. Oh—so she is! Now, Aline—the little widow —Mrs.—"

"Kingsbury, father. Oh, she's sweet. The girls are crazy about her. But she's not a widow. She hasn't even a divorce yet."

"Divorce—pah! father and mother ejaculated together.

"She" chatted Aline, "Her husband is a law professor out in one of those big western universities. I forget, offhand. The girls say he's perfectly stunning. But they say he treated her absolutely vilely. If you know what I mean, and didn't give her any clothes, or even enough to eat. So she's getting a divorce."

"Getting a divorce!" Priscilla turned to Henry. It was as if she said: I told you so. Remember all those years we've been telling you? But what she said was, "Henry, it will have to be stopped."

"All right," said Henry resignedly, retiring behind his paper. "You stop it. Ke' your brother."

"You mean you won't help?"

"Help? I mean help—! Now that's a question."

"But mother, you'll be crazy about her. She's terribly sweet. The girls—"

"Call her the little Kingsbury," a cutley I suppose.'

"Oh, no! She's—well, she's just medimmah. But she's sweet. The girls—"

"Oh!" said Priscilla, throwing down her napkin and rising.

"You coming, Dee boy," said Aline. "The girl's are crazy about her."

"Abh! Indeed," said Priscilla Ashburn, "I shall, I certainly shall."

That was why after sporting vacation, Priscilla Ashburn accompanied her daughter and her son-in-law—such a pretty maternal gesture; and why, after a lunch with the Pi Phis at whom she had heard, in fullest detail, all about Mrs. Kingsbury, she sat low in Mrs. Winters' office wishing, and not quite daring, to light a cigarette. Already she had been here too long. She had exhausted all the things she could think of about Aline, about the sororities, about the college; there was no evidence of Mrs. Kingsbury; and she felt that it was not unreasonable if Mrs. Winters thought it was time for her to leave. She saw no alternative but to be confidential.

"Mrs. Winters." Priscilla leaned forward with that gesture—and fixed her fine dark eyes on the older woman. "I'm going to be very confidential. May I?" She went on. "You see—it's about my brother. You can understand, can't you, that he is a very-sought-after man—by women, I mean. You've met him."

"He's one of our trustees," said Mrs. Winters briefly.

"Yes. Well, I feel very awkward about this—But the girls are saying—I believe you have an assistant, a Mrs. Kingsbury—"

Mrs. Ashburn paused. But Mrs. Winters did not help her out. Mrs. Winters was very skilled in responding silences, and unresponsive silence.

Priscilla Ashburn felt it, but her need was desperate enough to push her on. "I feel very awkward about it. Please understand my feeling. I believe Mrs. Kingsbury is—still married. And I'm sure my brother knows that."

"Knows it? It's not a secret," said Mrs. Winters.

"But a pretty woman, Mrs. Winters—"

"She's not so very pretty."

"Well—certainly I've been given to understand she's asking for a divorce. Surely my brother, a man of his standing, can hardly wish—"

"You are agitating yourself quite needlessly, Mrs. Ashburn," Mrs. Winters' voice was even. "Mrs. Kingsbury is getting a divorce. Quite the contrary, in fact."

"But the girls are saying—"

"Oh—the girls." Mrs. Winters looked, civilly, but without disguise, at the clock. Mrs. Ashburn rose.

At that moment the outer door opened, and Kevin came into the hall, glanced into Mrs. Winters' room, and as the latter beckoned to him in white and silence, with increasing interest, at the tall dark-haired visitor.

"Why, it's Mrs. —why it's Mrs. Leighton!" exclaimed Kevin.

"Mrs. Ashburn," corrected Mrs. Winters. "And this is Mrs. Kingsbury, an assistant, and friend." There was a very slight emphasis on the last two words.

"Mrs. Ashburn?" said Kevin puzzled. "But I know you. You were the lady with Mr. Leighton and Alice—in the station last fall. You wouldn't remember me."

"But I do remember you." Priscilla Ashburn spoke evenly. "My brother called you the honey-colored lady."

"Yes!" agreed Kevin. Oh, yes? thought Priscilla. But the look of puzzlement was growing in Kevin's eyes. "Your brother? Surely—" She paused, but then rushed on. "You are his sister?"

There was another moment while Kevin looked into Mrs. Ashburn's face. Mrs. Winters felt a flicker of satisfaction at her obvious puzzlement. "Of course," said Kevin at last, "you are Aline Ashburn's mother." And indeed you resemble Mr. Leighton. But it was not an unnatural mistake, do you think? You see, I remember you, because I was just coming her for the first time that day, and I was feeling very happy, and you three looked so—so gay—like the day, Your brother has been most kind to me. Did you see the marvelous chessboard he gave me for my birthday time? To go with a very fine set of men my friends gave me. Perhaps sometime, you would—"

Priscilla Ashburn's face had assumed slightly its half-reluctant cordiality. "My brother is an ardent chess player."

"He beats me," acknowledged Kevin.

"Really?" Mrs. Ashburn looked back at Mrs. Winters, as one who says, you see? not so very pretty perhaps, but soft, and needing protection; and so, very very gingerly. "Well, I must run. So glad to have met you, Mrs. Kingsbury." And, she added to herself as she went out, I'll never believe I've taken this ghastly long drive for nothing.

Therefore she invited Gregory to dinner as soon as she got back, and said to him, very casually, "I drove Aline up to Amherst, dear. I met, by the way, Mrs. Kingsbury. She said she had met you. Did you recognize her as the honey-colored lady we saw last fall in the station?" She was quite as nice as we thought she would be. Have you met her husband? A professor of law in—not Chicago; was it Wisconsin? The girls were trying to tell me he was incredibly blond and god-like—though, of course it does not take much to make a man god-like to a young girl or twenty. Dinner, decided. Thank you, a beautiful town, Amherst. I must say I never go there without realizing all over again the family feeling for the place."

She had not dared to watch her brother too closely during this speech, but she had not failed to perceive how his eyes, at first fixed on her with interest and attention, had been startled— then started; then startled; they grew at last wide with anger, and something that might be hot. "He didn't know," she thought. "I have been in time."

INSTALLMENT 27

For all she had so looked forward to the coming spring, now that it was here Kerin faced it with increasing disquietude, increasing listlessness. Every day of the brilliant autumn, every day of the sharp clean winter, she had wakened with an eagerness to meet the day. But now the shadow of Carl's silent displeasure was upon every day. It was intangible, it pressed upon her in the morning. It pursued her tired steps at night. Only with effort did she push it aside to do her work. It seemed to her a very slight act, just to write; surely it was the merest common courtesy to another human being to answer her letter—her letters, for she continued to write, reiterating her affection, her intention to return, her appeal to him to write and advise her. It was impossible for her to accept the fact that he was no going to write her; why absolutely he? Anger passes; surely he had disciplined her enough? Yet—

After all she had run away, an act of disloyalty and disobedience. Disobedience! Surely that wasn't the word?

Yet every mail came without a letter in Carl's strong script; and only tardily there came a letter from Stu. And it was a most disappointing letter, with cheerful indefinite remarks about why as far as we know Carl won't be here this summer and will be here next year, but you know how Carl is and it seems wicked to me to have you give up that elegant salary and all that opportunity and that pretty house and your new friends Kerin could not know how difficult it had been to write even this much; what a storm in Stu's soul lay behind the nonconmittal words.

Due had unexpectedly passed Carl on the street. Suddenly she had seen him coming, his head, hatless as always, shining high. He had swung towards her like an irresistible tide, his face clear and ruddy, his eyes blue, his lips slightly smiling. It was the smile that had suddenly stiffened Susan. As he would have passed with a bow she had reached out and clutched at his coat.

"Carl—I want—Do wait a moment while I speak to you."

"Of course, Susan." Carl's smile had vanished. Susan was not to be allowed to forget that she had supported Kerin against him.

"Carl—" Goosefish was pricking out on Susan's nose formerly; but she was determined to go through with it now. "Kerin seems all at a loss as to what you want her to do. Are you going to be working this summer, Carl. Oh, Carl—don't be angry with us! Don't be angry with Kerin any more. Carl—"

"I take it Kerin has discussed all this with you? airing her grievances? Let me tell you, Susan, she has no grievance. She did what she wanted at a loss as to what you want her to do. Are you going to be working this summer, Carl. Oh, Carl—don't be angry with us! Don't be angry with Kerin any more. Carl—

"I take it Kerin has discussed all this with you? airing her grievances? Let me tell you, Susan, she has no grievance. She did what she wanted—and as the latter beckoned to her in white and silence, with increasing interest, at the tall dark-haired visitor.

"It affects Kerin."

"Which is our affair, not yours, Susan."

Susan found herself trembling. She must not—let her anger—but here was something ugly now between them and Carl. Alan had warned her against speaking injudiciously. She must give it up, and just go on.

But Carl, looking down at her, was speaking again, judicially, cutlingly. "Kerin decided on her course of action; she established her intention—with a little help from

MELODRAMA MURDER

All the elements of a mystery thriller, stranger than most ground out by "pulp" writers, is contained in the strange death of Lasitia Linda Tourneau (Above), 20-year-old Italian girl. She was found in a first Class compartment of a Paris subway train, a large knife sticking in her throat. The girl was murdered while the train was running between two stations. None of the other passengers noticed anything amiss and the killer vanished before the crime was discovered. Police are seeking a man with whom Mlle. Tourneau had an appointment.

LANDS AT N. POLE

Holder of the popular title, "Hero of the Soviet Union" for his many exploits in the air, M. V. Vodopyanoff (above), ace Soviet aviator has won still more acclaim for his landing a Soviet expedition at the North Pole—the first time such a feat has been accomplished. Pilot Vodopyanoff is chief airman of the expedition, led by Dr. Otto J. Schmidt, noted, Arctic explorer which is charting an airline between Moscow and San Francisco across the North Pole.

Mrs. Mathews presided over the following programme.

The topic "International Relationships" by Mrs. Carl Clancy. Report of Executive meeting held May 18th in Madoc by Mrs. Ed. Todd. A reading by Mrs. John Rainie and a vocal duet rendered by Misses Lois and Aleatha Hoover. Miss Emma Rainie read a selection and the "National Anthem" was sung.

At the close Mrs. Sharp served delicious home made candy and was tendered a vote of thanks.

Mrs. Charles Stewart is slowly recuperating at her home having returned from Belleville Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lough recently entertained Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Mumby, Moira.

Eyiesbeme Entertained

On Friday evening Mount Pleasant Young People's Society entertained Eyiesbome Community League and a goodly number gathered at the hall for the occasion. Mr. John Coggins opened with a hymn of thankfulness and after devotions he cordially welcomed the guests.

Miss Vera Stewart then took charge and graciously replied to the welcome. All joined in the Epworth League hymn and Mr. Lawrence Mckiejohn read the Bible lesson. Misses Grace and Evelyn Gibson sang a duet "Meet Mother in the Skies" with guitar accompaniment.

Miss Jean Stewart outlined the topic dealing with "The Sabbath" and pointed out that Sunday is a day of rest from labour with time for worship rather than for amusements. During the programme Messrs. Bruce Barnum and Walter Jones delighted with several musical selections including piano and banjo.

Rev. H. A. Foley and Rev. J. E. Beckel each gave brief addresses. Mr. Jim Barnett gave "Current Events." Mr. Walter Jones, Misses Marie and Bernice Lyle rendered a vocal trio with guitar accompaniment and as an encore a musical selection.

Miss Vivian Mckiejohn contributed a splendid missionary reading and Miss Marjorie Reid was heard in a humorous selection. Miss Miriai Milligan of Mount Pleasant staged a "newspaper contest." At the close votes of thanks were reciprocated and a delicious lunch was served.

Miss Eileen Phillips, Belleville spent last week with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Phillips.

Mr. Jim Andrews is critically ill in Belleville Hospital having undergone an operation on Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Bert Harvey of Gilmour spent a recent week-end at the home of Mrs. Harvey's sister Mrs. John Downs, 4th Concession.

Mr. and Mrs. Maxwell Embury spent Sunday in Hamilton.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Dunham entertained Mr. and Mrs. Earl Hay and family on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Johnson recently entertained Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Sharp and Ruth, Betty Ruth, Stirling, spent a recent week-end with Mr. and Mrs. Walter Scott.

AT THE BELLE

Immortal Story of Mark Twain's Superb on Screen

History, romance and adventure are combined in the First National picture version of Mark Twain's immortal "The Prince and the Pauper" which opened yesterday at the Belle Theatre.

Former stage presentations of the classic have been hampered somewhat by the necessity of having the two title roles played by one actor (or actress). And in the silent film version, trick "shots" and double exposures were used. But the Mauch twins, Billy and Bobby, twelve year old actors of no mean dramatic ability have solved that problem. Billy and Bobby are identical twins, so what could be more fitting than that Bobby should play young Prince Edward, heir to the throne of King Henry VIII and that Billy (whom you will remember as young "Andrew Adrews") should play Tom Canty, the pauper boy who looked exactly like the prince?

All the color and drama of sixteenth century England is brought to life on the screen, and the magnificent coronation scene in which the pauper boy, who has exchanged identities with the prince is almost crowned King of England, is one of the most dramatic screen moments of recent years.

Miles Hendon, soldier of fortune and bodyguard of the two boys, is splendidly portrayed by Errol Flynn, fresh from his triumphs in "The Charge of the Light Brigade" and "Green Light". Claude Rains, master villain of the screen, plays the rascally old Earl of Hertford, and Barton MacLane is the pauper boy's litering father.

Phyllis Barry (as a barmaid), Alan Hale, Robert Adair, Henry Stephenson, Halliwell Hobbes, and a score of others turn in notable performances.

Inspirationally directed by William Keighley, "The Prince and the Pauper" which will be repeated again tonight and Friday, matinee and evening is a film experience that shouldn't be missed.

"Shall We Dance"

Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers are coming to the Belle Saturday in "Shall We Dance", their grandest smash hit since "Top Hat". Eric Blore and Edward K. Horton battle for laughs in the picture.

NOBODY ENJOYS TAKING MEDICINE!

Yet most people at some time suffer from common constipation. Why not correct it in comfort the natural way—by including a ready-to-eat cereal with daily meals instead of taking weakening pills and drugs?

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN adds the "bulk" the average system needs. In the body, ALL-BRAN absorbs twice its weight in water, forming a soft, spongelike mass — which gently cleanses the intestines.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN also furnishes vitamin B to tone up the intestines and iron for the blood.

Wast eat two tablespoonfuls a day, as a cereal with milk or cream, or cooked into appetizing muffins, breads, etc. Three times daily in severe cases.

ALL-BRAN is sold at all grocers. Made and guaranteed by Kellogg in London.

During expedition of 11 Soviet men to the North Pole was led by Dr. Otto J. Schmidt, inset, the picturesque bewhiskered director of Soviet's "northern sea route". The flight marked the first aerial landing party at the pole. Included in the landing party were four men who planned to remain on a drifting ice floe within 13 miles of the pole for one year for experimental purposes. The polar flight is part of a plan to establish a commercial airline between Moscow and San Francisco

Gateways to Opportunity

The classified columns of the daily newspapers perform a social function peculiarly and definitely their own. Anyone in need of work, a home, help or certain goods turns to them naturally. They are at once the greatest and busiest employment agency in the world, and the market-place for every kind of commodity and service.

When skill seeks opportunity, or when employers require competent help, they make their wants known through the classified columns. The meeting place of employer and employee, of buyer and seller, this section of the daily newspapers is one of the greatest aids to the economical and efficient operation of household and business alike.

Today more than two million readers of the Canadian daily newspapers, when confronted with an urgent need, instinctively turn to the classified columns.

The value of this service to the individual is incalculable and every year it becomes a more important feature of the local daily newspapers.

J. RAMSAY

It was understood that while MacDonald told the King he was resigning he did not hand over his seal of office. This will be done in the general exchange of seals between outgoing and incoming ministers when a new cabinet is formed after Baldwin resigns.

MacDonald's retirement will end a political career of nearly 40 years during which he was successively militant Labor leader, "conscientious objector", Labor Prime Minister, Prime Minister of a National Government and finally Lord President of the Council.

Born in the Scottish fishing village of Lossiemouth in 1866, MacDonald's schooling ended when he was 13. However he eagerly devoured every book, that came into his hands.

Sought Fortune at 18

When he was 18, MacDonald went south to seek his fortune and found his first job addressing envelopes for $2.50 a week. In 1886 he found a job as private secretary to Thomas Lough, a radical candidate for Parliament.

Next he took up Journalism, joined the Independent Labor party and ran for Parliament in 1894 but polled only 387 votes. His second effort in 1895 was successful and four years later he was chosen leader of his party in the House.

During the Great War MacDonald held firmly to his pacifist principles and became notorious as a "conscientious objector". As a result the Labor leader's career was swamped by a wave of unpopularity and in the election after the war he was overwhelmingly defeated.

Headed Labor Government.

Regaining his seat in the House, MacDonald moved a vote of "no confidence" in the Baldwin government when it had been returned with a tottering majority after the 1923 election on the protection issue.

King George VI summoned the Scottish pacifist and the first Labor government in which MacDonald was Prime Minister and Foreign Secretary was formed.

His first government lasted only eight months, handicapped as it was by lack of a clear majority. The Liberals under Lloyd George held the balance of power. In the Fall of 1924 it was upset by its too friendly policy toward Soviet Russia.

MacDonald was not to return to power till 1929, when a revulsion from Conservatism swept Labor into power with a large majority. Among the achievements in the history were his visit to the United States to discuss naval measures with President Hoover, when foundations were laid for the subsequent London Naval Conference; withdrawal of British troops from the Rhineland and restoration of relations with Russia.

Formed National Government.

In 1931, during the growing financial crisis, MacDonald called on the leading figures of opposition parties to join him in a National government. Baldwin, then leader of the opposition, became Lord President of the Council.

MacDonald's action in forming the National Government in 1931 was regarded as black betrayal by the majority of labor men and his followers were denied from the party to form the National Labor party. Many of his former supporters never forgave him and in the last elections he was defeated in his own constituency of Seaham Harbor, but later was re-elected in a by-election in the Scottish Universities.

Four years after forming his all-party government when a campaign of stringent economy had arrested Great Britain's financial difficulties and the worst of the crisis was over, MacDonald was obliged to think of his failing health and handed over office to Baldwin, replacing him as Lord President of the Council.

.... Cabinet Makeup Doubtful ....

London, May 27 (AP)—A tall, thin man with a mixture of Conservatism, statecraft and bookkeeping in his blood conferred with political leaders today on the make-up of the cabinet he will head as Great Britain's next Prime Minister.

Next door, at facing No. 10 Downing Street, Stanley Baldwin's famous pipe sent clouds of smoke billowing around his head as he wound up affairs at his desk and made ready to hand over the premiership to Neville Chamberlain tomorrow. Chamberlain is 68 years old.

The official list of ministers of the Chamberlain cabinet will not be issued until after the present Chancellor of the Exchequer has been called to Buckingham Palace following Baldwin's retirement, but political quarters predicted the principal changes.

Runciman to Resign

Walter Runciman, president of the Board of Trade, was thought to be in line for a Peerage with the rank of Viscount.

He then will leave the Board of Trade and probably be succeeded by Lord Privy Seal in place of Viscount Halifax, likely to be Ramsay MacDonald as Lord President of the Privy Council.

Latest forecasts gave Sir John Simon, Home Secretary, Chancellorship of the Exchequer and named Sir Kingsley Wood, Health Minister, as the new Home Secretary. Leslie Hore-Belisha is expected to leave the Ministry of Transport for the healthy ministry.

The King summoned MacDonald to an audience at Buckingham during which it was thought he received the coveted Order of Merit on his retirement as Lord President of the Council.

MacDonald will not go to the House of Lords like his successor as Prime Minister—Baldwin is expected to be given an Earldom—but will continue to sit in the House of Commons as member of parliament for the Scottish Universities.

BIG CATCHES CARP IN SALMON RIVER

One Fisherman Gets a Haul of 3100 Pounds

Shannonville—Carp are very thick in the Salmon River this year and as a result the fishermen are getting very good catches. Norval Farnsworth and Gerald Sager, two local boys, returned to the village recently with 64 carp weighing approximately 600 pounds as a result of one night's catch. An Indian fisherman went through the village recently with 3100 pounds. This has proved to be the largest catch of the year thus far.

In the past carp have proved to be very harmful as they eat the eggs of game fish causing a marked decrease in the number of game fish in the river of late years.

HOME IMPROVEMENT PLAN HIP

And How to Improve It

A Series of Articles on Suggested Home Improvements
Advisability, Value, Cost, Etc.

NO INCREASED ASSESSMENT

There being considerable doubt in the minds of some citizens interested in the Home Improvement Plan as to the possibility of increased assessment on improvements made under the plan, the following extract from a statute passed at the last session of the Legislature entitled "An Act to Amend the Assessment Act" would seem to be sufficient answer to the question: "Will improvements under the Home Improvement Plan, hoist my assessment and in consequence increase my taxes. Here 'tis:

His Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the Legislative Assembly of the Province of Ontario, enacts as follows:

1.—(1)a Act may be cited as The Assessment Amendment Act, 1937.

2. (1) The value of any improvements made in a building by means of a loan obtained under The Home Improvement Loans Guarantee Act, 1937 (Canada), or under any other Act of the Parliament of Canada heretofore or hereafter passed for assisting by loan or guarantee the improvement of homes shall not be added to the value of the building for the purpose of assessment under The Assessment Act, and notwithstanding the provisions of section 40 of the said Act it shall be the duty of an assessor in valuing a building which has been improved by means of such a loan to deduct from assessment the value of such improvements; and if the assessment of any such building is increased in any year it shall, prima facie, be assumed that the whole or some portion of the value of the said improvement has been included in the assessment and upon an appeal in such case the assessment shall be reduced by the amount of the increase or a portion thereof if it is not established to the satisfaction of the court that the value of the building has otherwise increased.

(2) Subsection 1 shall be deemed to have come into force on the 1st. day of January, 1937, and with respect to any building which has been improved by means of a loan obtained under The Home Improvement Loans Guaranies Act, 1937 (Canada) shall remain in force until the 31st. day of December, 1939, or until the expiration of three years from the day when the loan was obtained whichever shall last occur.

Assented to March 26th, 1937.

BALDWIN MADE KNIGHT OF GARTER AND EARL

Highest Order in Realm Is Conferred by King On Stanley Baldwin

Simon Becomes Chancellor, Viscount Halifax President of Council

MRS. BALDWIN HONORED

Quiet Scenes in Downing Street as Prime Ministers Change

London, May 28 (CP)—The King tonight conferred on retiring Prime Minister Baldwin the highest distinction in the gift of the crown—a knighthood of the Garter.

The honor was in addition to the Earldom which Baldwin has accepted for himself and the descendants.

The order, instituted by King Edward III in 1348, is limited to the Foreign Monarchs and twenty-five Sovereign Princes of the Blood, Knights Companion, of whom Baldwin will be one.

Three such Knighthoods were bestowed in the Coronation honors list upon the Duke of Beaufort, the Earl of Strathmore and the Marquess of Exeter. Previously, the last three recipients of the honor were Sir Stanhope, Earl of Lytton and Viscount Halifax.

Prime Ministership Changes.

By GEORGE HAMBLETON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, May 28 (C.P. Cable) — Stanley Baldwin formally placed his resignation as Prime Minister in the hands of the King this morning.

Half an hour later the King sent for Neville Chamberlain, Chancellor of the Exchequer, to accept His Majesty's invitation to form a new government. It was expected the new cabinet slate would be completed by tonight.

Eight Honors Bestowed

Three honors were conferred on the recommendation of Premier-elect Baldwin and five on the recommendation of Baldwin.

On Chamberlain's recommendations:

Baldwin—An Earldom of the United Kingdom.

Mrs. Baldwin—Dame Grand Cross of the Order of the British Empire.

Walter Runciman, retiring President of the Board of Trade—A Viscountcy of the United Kingdom.

On Baldwin's recommendations:

James Allen, 75 Years, Plunges Down Bank-face On Half-Covered Rocks

Walking Along Waterfront At Burlington When Sod Sinks

RAIN IS BLAMED

Man Unconscious When Body Strikes Water

Burlington, Ont., May 28 (CP)—James Allen, 75, former Mayor of Burlington, was killed today when he fell down the Lake Shore embankment here.

The turf upon which Mr. Allen was standing at the edge of the bank had been undermined by recent rains, and gave way beneath his weight. He plunged 60 feet to the lake waters beneath. The accident occurred shortly before noon.

On Retired Farm

It was Mr. Allen's custom to go for a walk every morning, usually along the waterfront. He spoke to Arthur Clarke, proprietor of a service station, and then walked through the added area toward the embankment, where a rock garden is being constructed.

About 15 minutes later, Herbert Crombie, 16 and Ronald Nash, 17, rushed to Mr. Clarke's station calling for him to help them lift an old man from the water." He accompanied them down the bank and found Mr. Allen lying submerged. He was dead.

Sod Weakened By Rains

An examination of the edge of the bank showed that sod had been weakened by recent heavy rains and had given way. Mr. Allen was plunged down the sloping stone face to the half submerged rocks which line the shore of the lake inside the Burlington breakwater.

He suffered severe injuries in his fall, evidently being knocked unconscious before the body struck the water.

Mr. Allen lived with his son, Ben Allen, Burlington, and was a prominent citizen. He served 'the community in Burlington municipal years ago and was for a time Mayor.

Why the Weather?

By Major A. H. Thiesen
Science Service Meteorologist

Golf and Tennis! Summer days are golf days. The rains and warmth of spring have made ready the green carpet for your 18-hole walk, and the warm quiet air is ideal for long drives and accurate putting. The absence of these high storm (cyclonic) clouds in the evening may lessen the chance for the succeeding day except for the occasional afternoon shower. Even these may be foreseen if the morning is warm, quiet and hazy.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO, May 28 (CP)—Pressure is high on the Pacific coast, low in Ontario and to the eastward of Newfoundland, while a shallow trough of low extends from Ungava southward to the Great Lakes and Minnesota.

Maritime and Lake Ontario and Atlantic States and pressure is also relatively low in the Northwest Territories and western provinces. The weather has been unsettled and cool with rain and fog over the Maritime Provinces and Gulf of St. Lawrence and has followed downward over Quebec and southern Ontario. Showers have also been moderately warm from Alberta eastward to Quebec.

Lake Superior—Moderate to fresh southeasterly winds, fair and cool, and moderately warm, followed by showers and thunderstorms this afternoon and tonight. Saturday, moderate to fresh southwesterly winds; partly cloudy and moderately warm with showers in Northwestern.

Manitoba—Mainly fair today and Saturday; possibly light scattered showers. Not much change in temperature.

Saskatchewan and Alberta— Mostly fair today and Saturday; probably light scattered showers; stationary or a little lower temperature.

DUKE MAY VISIT STATES IN FALL

Visit Would be Part of a Round The World Tour

Monte, France, May 28 (AP)—An associate of the Duke of Windsor disclosed today the Duke and Mrs. Wallis Warfield were considering a visit to the United States on their second honeymoon. The stay in the United States would be brief and part of a trip around the world.

They were said to have selected tentatively either October or November for the trip, after spending their "first honeymoon" in Austria.

Persons close to the Chateau de Candé also reported the Duke, six days before his marriage to Mrs. Warfield has been newly-supplied with funds.

Sir Walter Monckton, Attorney-General for the Duchy of Cornwall and legal adviser to the former King Edward VIII during the abdication crisis, was reported to have brought funds as well as wedding presents when he came by plane from London on Tuesday.

Still other sources discussed unconfirmed reports of a possible surprise visit by the Duke of Kent. Accurate could not say whether the supposed visit would be before, after or during the June 3 nuptials.

The list of guests for the wedding was cut from 16 to 13 when it was learned an error had been made in listing W. C. Graham, British Consul at Nantes, and his wife. It was discovered that Graham is a bachelor.

The mail man unloaded the heaviest mail so far at the chateau. A half dozen countries contributed about thirty wedding presents.

FRANCO-GERMAN TRADE TREATY READY

Paris, May 28—(AP)— Premier Leon Blum and Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, Germany's economics minister, today completed and informed persons said they had agreed in principle on terms of a new Franco-German trade treaty.

The treaty may be signed within two weeks, it was stated.

Prof. Adler, Freud Pupil, Dies, Noted Austrian Psychoanalyst

Last Year He Said Dionne Quintuplets Should be Separated

WROTE MANY BOOKS

Vienna, May 28 (AP)—Professor Alfred Adler, who died today in Scotland, was known to his native Vienna as a pupil of Freud who broke away from his master to do independent pioneering in psychology and psychoanalysis.

Adler's so-called individual psychology" school of speculation research" attracted a wide following. He founded an Austrian psychological magazine in 1904 and gave to Austrian-language companion by establishing an "international journal of individual psychology" in Leipzig in 1911.

He was the author of a dozen books and a frequent contributor to psychological publications.

He was born in 1870 and is survived by two sons and two daughters.

Intellectual Sparks Fly

Intellectual sparks have been flying in a Freud-Adler feud since 1909, amusing and often puzzling Vienna.

It started when Adler advanced a contention that a physical defect, such as a diseased organ, has a bearing on the mind and explains peculiarities of conduct.

Rebelle became sharper when Adler placed great stress on the "inferiority complex" as controlling behaviour. The Freudian school conceded there was some merit in both contentions but dismissed them as relatively unimportant.

BOMB VALENCIA AS CITY SLEEPS

Insurgent Attack an Hour Before Dawn And 100 Killed

Valencia, Spain, May 28—(AP)—Insurgent planes unleashed a terrific bombardment of this temporary capital of Spanish Government while the city was asleep early today, killing at least 100 persons with dozens of 300-pound bombs.

The attack came an hour before dawn. Many persons were unaccounted for. More bodies were being found hourly with the removal of debris. Many more were injured.

Dozens of houses were demolished. Thousands of windows were shattered.

Sleeping men and women and children were killed in their beds. Some of them were pitched into the street from upper storeys.

The tower of one shattered building alone remained standing. Its big clock had stopped at the very minute the first bomb hit— 2.45 a.m.

Another bomb hit the French bank and set fire to four cities. Windows in the telephone building next door, were smashed.

Second Degree Murder Conviction Registered

Jersey City, N.J., May 28.—(AP) —A second degree murder conviction in the hatchet slaying of her mother cut short today's trial of the friendship between Gladys MacKinnon, 17, and her boy friend Donald Wightman, 19.

The love that turned to hate during their trial, a Hudson County Court, appeared to be on the verge of reviving as the jury of seven men guilty last night. How long they must stay in prison for the mother's slaying will not be known until Judge Thomas F. Meaney passes sentence next Thursday.

The verdict carries a maximum penalty of 30 years in State prison.

Little Girl Lost at Melville Is Found on Next Concession

Five Year Doreen Matthews of Belleville Causes Search

WAS ON VISIT

Melville, May 28th—Excitement reigned in Melville Tuesday when word came that Doreen Matthews, five year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Don Matthews, Bridge Street, was missing at the home of her grandparents Mr. and Mrs. Warner Wood, had been lost in the woods. The alarm spread quickly and about 15 men and several women organized a search party through the woods and surrounding farms. After an hour's search word came by telephone that the girl had been found by Mrs. C. Spencer on the adjoining concession. Except for scratches and mosquito bites the frightened girl was none the worse for her experience.

Hook 28 lb. Lunge, Return It to Water

Picton, (Special)—Here is a fish story with a sad ending. Bathing in West Lake on Victoria Day, Mick Welsh and Art Steel hooked a fine 28-lb. lunge—four foot long. Because 'lunge are protected this season, they came to shore, photographed their catch, and then carefully removing the hook gently revived it in a boat half filled with water, and then set it free. Thinking of the deliciousness of muskinonge steaks, just out of the cold lake water, it must have taken real courage to return the fish to the water where it soon was apparently little the worse for its experience.

Windsor Fails to Obtain H. R. H. for Mrs. Warfield

Announcement Will be Made of "Letters Patent"

ALWAYS UNSEALED

By FRANK H. KING

London, May 28 (AP)—Friends of the Duke of Windsor said today they had been informed by persons recently direct from Edward informing them that Buckingham Palace's attempt to obtain for Wallis Warfield the title of "Her Royal Highness".

The announcement affecting the issue of the titles which the Duke and Duchess will bear was expected shortly.

It was considered the announcement would take the form of "Letters patent". These are letters sent by the King to "all to whom these presents shall come," recording the grant of some dignity, appointment, monopoly or other privilege to the "patentee".

These letters patent always are left unsealed and recorded in the official rolls of the official records office, so the king's subjects may look them "and be bound by their contents."

BRITISH MERCHANT SUNK AT VALENCIA BY REBEL AIRMEN

Valencia, May 28 (CP-Havas)— The British merchant ship Cadin was sunk during today's heavy Insurgent air bombardment of Valencia, bringing death to seven crew members and wounds to eight others.

Another British trade ship, the Pinson, was hit by a bomb but no one was wounded.

An aerial torpedo crashed into the bridge of the cabin, caused death among the crew, and blasted a hole in the hull which caused the craft to settle rapidly. The main part of the hull hit bottom but a section remained above water. Efforts were being made to unload as much of the cargo as possible.

R. SWEENEY AND MUNN IN FINALS

American Born Resident Has Chance to Lift Silverware

Sandwich, England, May 28 (CP) —Robert Sweeny, American-born resident of London, won his way into final round of the British Amateur Golf championship today, defeating Charles Stowe, English colliery engineer, a next 6 and 5 trouncing in the semi-finals.

Sweeny's opponent in tomorrow's 36-hole final will be Jack Munn, Irishman, Lionel Munn, who eliminated Count Alaric de Bendern, brother of John de Bendern, 1933 British amateur champion, 4 and 3.

FULL DRESS REHEARSAL BY COLLEGIATE CADETS

With the official inspection but a few days away, members of the Cadet Corps of the Belleville Collegiate and Vocational Institute are rehearsing faithfully for the big day. This morning a full dress parade was held on the campus under Captain Howard, and many favorable comments regarding the smart appearance and efficiency of the cadets were heard following the drill.

PREDICTS BIG CATCH MUSKRATS NEXT YEAR

"For buyers, merchants and trappers can look for a banner season next year, insofar as muskrat skins are concerned," Mr. Ben Yanover, local fur buyer stated today. "The number of skins secured this year is approximately one-third of that garnered in other years," he continued, "and the reason for this is the mild, rainy, winter. Formations of ice covering the natural habitats of the rats prevented them from coming out in their accustomed numbers, and this fact alone augurs well for an increased supply of hides next year."

97 YEAR OLD MAN ASKS FOR SHELTER

Something of a record, as far as transients are concerned, was set at the Police Station in Cobourg the other night, when an aged "Knight of the Road" applied for shelter for the night. The man gave his age to Chief of Police Carey as ninety-seven years, and his accounts he was not the least tired of his occupation.

Important addresses pertaining to old and new methods of firefighting and prevention will feature the convention.

ROBIN'S NEST DELAYS CONSTRUCTION WORK

A section of the work on the new wing of the new dormitory at Royal Military College, Kingston which has been proceeding for some time, is being held up and will be delayed for several days. The hold up is due to a robin's nest, which has been discovered in the way. Peter Gilbert contractor superintendent, has decided not to continue work on this section until the young robins now almost hatched are able to be moved.

MANY GROUND HOGS ARE KILLED BY CARS

Ground hogs in this section are becoming accident victims in increasing numbers. Unable to gauge the speed of cars and trucks using northern roads of the county the animals have been getting swift relief under the wheels when they attempt a quick dash from one side to the other. Five dead ones were counted along the road between Foxboro and Madoc during the afternoon, it was reported by the driver of a local trucking firm.

Recommendations are Passed By Council Committee

Suggests a Committee to Investigate Merits of Town Planning Commission

$300 FOR V.O.N.

The setting up of a Town Planning Commission for this city which will be comprised of a standing committee of city council, elected to the Commission year by year, proceeded one step further at last evening's regular committee meeting of city council at which a recommendation that a special committee on Town Planning be appointed was presented by Alderman Burton Jennings, (sponsor of the original move), with Alderman Dr. W. Ellis low, Harry Greenleaf and Harold Armstrong, with Mr. Jennings, to make up the remainder of the committee, was adopted.

The new committee will be authorized to make a thorough investigation into the merits of the commission, with a view to finding out what measures would be feasible and practicable to put into effect in this city.

Under a second recommendation, which will be submitted to city council at its regular meeting on Monday evening, next, members of the School Board will be asked to appoint senior pupils of the schools as school police, subject to the protection of the Police Commission, to safeguard the pupils of the schools.

Numerous other minor recommendations will also be submitted for the approval, including the asking of authority for painting roofs of buildings on the city tourist camp, and supplying lumber for the construction of a tool shed.

If approval of council is given, the city solicitor will be asked to report to council "as to steps necessary to prohibit further installation of wholesale gasolene, oil and kerosene storage tanks within the co-operate limits, and as to what steps can be taken to have better protection from fire and other hazards from wholesale and retail tanks as may be presently located within the limits."

It was recommended that as to the understanding between the Public Utilities Commission of the city and the Fire Department relative to the use of the gasolene pump on the pump house as is being carried out, "we hereby instruct the Fire Chief to take necessary steps in accordance with the Utilities Commission and when a fire is in operation—which is in every case an emergency—that he notify the pump house if necessary to continued the use of the gasolene pump."

Other recommendations passed from the water-boat committee, purchased for the Fire Commission, at a cost of $135 from the Pyrene Company.

PAN-HANDLING RACKET DISCOURAGED IN CITY

The old racket of "I'm gotta dime for a cuppa cawfee, buddy?" is in full swing in Belleville these days judging from the cases presented in police court today, when two alleged transients who gave their names as James Murphy and Francis Bruteau, addresses not given, pleaded guilty to charges of intoxication. Magistrate Butler turned a deaf ear to their pleadings and sent them on the trail for the conventional ten days as provided under the L. C. A.

At the termination of the police court Chief Kidd revealed to Mr. Worship the fact, that both Murphy and Bruteau were in possession of a bottle of native wine and when first arrested they were endeavoring to pan handle more money. A more hardened aggregation of repetitions will follow, the court promised. "It relieves the citizens should the wanderlust of this practice of pan-handling and the recipients of charity," the court stated. Magistrate Butler said he directed his words of conversation towards the press table in the police court.

Skilled Labor Workers Difficult to Obtain

With the amount of building and renovating of the current season exceeding that of previous years, official labor in Prince Edward County is difficult to obtain, L. C. Ward, contractor, stated a few days ago. Accentuating this condition, is the fact that a number of plant and allied union jobs are being done with the result that carpenters are at a premium, a number of applications for all kinds of work have had to be laid over until time can be found.

Thursday afternoon the funeral of Mrs. Mary Jane Bateman took place from her late residence, 171 Station Street, and was largely attended. The Rev. R. B. Naylor, pastor of the Tabernacle United Church conducted the service in the home and at the graveside in Belleville cemetery. At the funeral were sisters grandchildren and a great grandson.

The bearers were Messrs. Frank Bateman, Harry Bateman, Edwin Bateman, Douglas Ellis, W. D. Bonbury and Merry Jeffery.

MRS. ERNEST MINWELL

Picton (Special)—Picton relatives received word of the death in Wesley, N.Y., on Thursday, May 27, of Vivian Lower, wife of Ernest Minwell. Deceased was born in Adolphustown, Ont., only daughter of Mrs. George Lower and the late Mr. Lower. With her parents she moved to Rochester, N.Y. about twenty years ago. She was married. She is survived by her husband, a son two years of age and a baby girl child. Also surviving are her mother and one brother Seldon Lowey of Rochester.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Orser Married 63 Years

Recipients of the congratulations of a host of friends and relatives in Belleville and Ameliasburg district, as well as those in their own community, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph A. Randolph B. Orser, Canaloque, are today celebrating the sixty third anniversary of their wedding.

Married in Picton in 1854 by the Rev. J. Shannon, Mr. Orser was later resided in Prince Edward County until twenty eight years ago when they moved to their present home. Both are in their eighty third year.

Mr. Orser is a son of the late Henry D. Orser of Ameliasburg, and Mrs. Orser is a daughter, Elizabeth of the late Thomas Bonler, Crowe Lake.

Keenly interested in politics, Mr. Orser is a staunch adherent of the Liberal party. "I have never voted anything but Liberal in all my life, and I have never missed voting at a polling place for a period of sixty three years" he told newspapermen yesterday.

For the anniversary, their three children, a son of the late Henry D. Orser of Ameliasburg, and Mrs. Ida Orser, a daughter, Elizabeth of the late Thomas Bonler, Crowe Lake.

POLICE COURT

"This man scraped two fenders narrowly escaping a collision and nearly struck a woman pedestrian," declared Constable Wm. McBrien of Stirling after laying a charge of drunken driving against a motorist in police court, local police court held before Magistrate K. J. Butler, K.C.

The charge was read to the accused man by Provincial Constable Wm. McBrien and a plea of guilty accepted. Before passing the sentences this man I believe the Crown Attorney should have something to say to the court" suggested His Worship in the absence of K. C. Attorney R. C. Dennett, K.C. The accused man was remanded in custody until Monday for sentence. The minimum term is seven days without the option of a fine, court officials revealed.

Orville Jones, Belleville, pleaded guilty to the illegal possession of liquor, he found the accused in possession of some intoxicants, which he stated were purchased from the Government vendor but we have reasons to believe otherwise," prompted Chief Kidd before His Worship could pass sentence.

In that case we will remand the accused in custody for one week while the police complete their investigations, added His Worship.

Under the Masters' and Servants' Act a non-payment of wages case was enlarged. "You people better get together and settle your differences outside of this court," suggested the Bench as the plaintiff and defendant left the court room together.

"THE HOUSE OF QUALITY"

DAILY SHORT STORY

Call It Love

By Margaret N. Hoffman

"Anne, please say you'll marry me. Give me the right to take you away from all this—"

Peter's blue eyes swept the bright noisy room disdainfully. The swaying huddle of humanity on the dance floor. A night club transported to a secluded retreat outside a big city. The latest venture of Vance Grayton, their suave, sleek-haired host.

"You're sweet, Peter. And I'd say yes in a minute if it wasn't for the last half of your proposal. But it couldn't live without this. Without crowds of people and music and excitement."

"But this isn't real, Anne. It's only a substitute. A sham. And I'm tired of living on the surface of things. Anne, please give me a chance. I can teach you to like the things that I like—"

"I do like them, Peter. But that doesn't mean that we have to bury ourselves somewhere. To give up our friends."

"Friends? I suppose that means Vance. He's the god of gaiety at whose altar you worship."

Anne shrugged slim bare shoulders. "And the answer to that one is—"

"That you'd probably prefer to be hostess of a penthouse apartment and a night club instead of a home."

"I hope that's true," a voice cut in unsteadily.

Engrossed with each other, Peter and Anne had not seen Vance Grayton approaching. Now he stood beside their table. Flashing black eyes intent on Anne's pale beauty.

"Vance, what do you mean sneaking up on us like that?" laughingly demanded Anne.

"Well, there's always the chance of hearing something interesting, for instance."

"Having a good time?"

"Of course. It's a lovely party. But for the last hour it's been dying on its feet." Anne looked over at Peter. That wasn't a nice thing to say, of course, but then Peter really had gone a little too far.

Vance intercepting that glance sneered over Anne. "Never mind. I'm going to see the musicians about some extra features, then I'll be back for my dance with you."

"I'll be counting the minutes," Peter said silent. Anne, suddenly repentant, turned toward him. "I'm sorry, Peter. I didn't mean what I said to Vance. Not really."

"Oh, that's all right. I suppose I'm rather a wet blanket."

Suddenly he beckoned to a waiter to fill his glass.

"Peter, you're drinking!" Anne's eyes widened. "I thought you never touched liquor."

"Never is a long time, Anne. And I might as well begin. Because if you won't play the game my way I'm going to play it your way." He drained his glass, then deliberately, "Dance with me, Anne."

After their dance the floor was cleared. A troupe of gypsies came out to dance and sing. Lithe girls in sunbonnets and gingham dresses and a tall swarthy man sang a song about love in a little house, again a song about a little house.

When the last note died away Peter rose to his feet. "Hey," he shouted, picking his way carefully through the crowded tables. "This party's getting dull. Let's give the little play boys a hand." He brushed the waiter's hand aside. Whipped the orchestra into a savage frenzy of sound.

The floor filled with dancers, amused, smiling. Vance came over to Anne.

"Well, this sort of thing does seem a little more than our friend Peter can manage."

"Vance, hadn't we better do something about him?"

"No, he'll run down after a while. And now Peter's forgot about him, shall we?"

Anne rose with slow grace. Drifted out on the floor in Vance's arms. Two or three turns about and he had guided her to the door of a private room. Here he held her lightly, his dark eyes suddenly smoldering, inscrutable.

"Anne, I can't live without you any longer."

He kissed her passionately, possessively. And in that moment Peter in his roamings came into the room and stood for a moment swaying, unseen, in the doorway.

"But Vance, I don't understand. Anne lifted grave, questioning eyes. "There's something you haven't said."

"Oh, darling, don't be provincial on me. I'm not the marrying kind. But don't you know that the one attitude I can give you will be more exciting than the one I'd have with any older man?"

"Maybe you're right." She stopped, eyes suddenly intent upon a scene in the other room. Peter holding aloft a glittering prize, surrounded by a bevy of shrieking, laughing girls with quisteicled hands. "But there's one thing you've forgotten, Vance. And that is that there's no substitute for—love."

In another minute she was out of the room. Something sane and glittering suddenly flashed over her head and by a superhuman effort she caught it within inches of another's expectant, grasping hand.

And then Peter was beside her. "But Anne, I thought—"

"Never mind, Peter. Just put this ring on my finger and then please take me home."

JAPANESE EMPEROR

Rarely indeed is a photographer allowed to approach close enough to Emperor Hirohito of Japan to secure a photo as excellent as this one— probably the best study ever made of the emperor by a press photographer. The monarch, is shown astride his familiar white charger as he took the salute at Tokio during a review of his troops on the occasion of his 36th birthday.

ZION HILL MISSION BAND

The monthly meeting of the Wide Awake Mission Band was held at Zion Hill School on May 21. The meeting opened by singing a hymn after which the Lord's Prayer was repeated in unison. The Call to Worship was read by the President Roscoe Sine and the Worship Story "Thy Will Be Done" by Donald Silks and Harry Morgan. Evelyn Crombright gave the memory verse, and Frieda Haggerty read Scripture lesson. The Roll Call was answered by eighteen members and the offering amounted to fourteen cents. The Leader of the Band gave the Story from the Study Book. Following this selections were read from "World Friends" and the meeting closed by singing the National Anthem.

PICTON

Picton—Pupils of York St. School have been greatly interested in a craze which some of their number captured, wounded, not far from Picton Harbor. They kept the bird in a big cage at school and fed it small fish which they caught at the wharf. As soon as it seemed a better they propose to set it free at the marsh.

On Wednesday May 26th Sophronia Cross, widow of the late John Way passed away at her home on Queen St. in her 90th year. Following a funeral service at her late residence on Friday afternoon, interment will be made in Church of Christ Cemetery at West Lake.

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop was undressing his pups in the china ash tray and ma said, Not so ruff, Willyum, I dont want anything to happen to that ash tray after all these years. And that reminds me, it was given to us as a wedding present by Arichy Liggit, and of all people who did I meet downtown this afternoon but Arichy himself, ah said.

In person and not a picture? My my, pop said, and ma said, He still has that same shock of curly brown hair, don't he remember, Willyum?

I cant say I do, pop said, and ma said, Why Willyum you must, you used to act as silli wherever it mentioned his thick brown curls.

You used to imagine I was casting sheps interest in you really mean you silly thing, just because it was inclined to be a little curlss on top, even then, she said.

Its all news to me, pop said, if I ever had anything but contempt for a man with curls, I dont remember the time he said, but ma said, He payed me the compliment of telling me I dont look a day older, of course I didn't believe him but naturelly I didn't argue about it. He really looks about the same himself, because of his hair, I suppose. He asked me about your hair, and whether you had any left, and I definetly told him a lie and said your hair seemed to come in thicker after we were married, wasn't that nice of me? ma said.

Why didn't you tell him I'd been scalped by Indians and din't have a hair left, that would of pleased him more, pop said, and ma said, Why Willyum, how unjust he never had anything but the nicest things to say about you. You were the one that were always knocking him, dont you remember? Willyum Pedro, I believe you're still telling of Arichy Liggett, she said.

I cant say I do, pop said, and ma said, Why Willyum you must, you used to act as silli wherever it mentioned his thick brown curls.

You used to imagine I was casting sheps interest in you really mean you silly thing, just because it was inclined to be a little curlss on top, even then, she said.

NOBODY ENJOYS TAKING MEDICINE!

Yet most people at some time suffer from common constipation. Why not correct the condition the natural way—by including a ready-to-eat cereal with your daily meals instead of taking weakening pills and drugs?

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN adds the "bulk" the average system needs. In the body ALL-BRAN absorbs twice its weight in water, forming a soft, spongelike mass—which gently cleanses the intestines.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN also furnishes vitamin B to tone up the intestines and iron for the blood.

Just eat two tablespoonfuls a day, as a cereal with milk or cream, or cooked into appetizing muffins, breads, etc. Three times daily in severe cases.

ALL-BRAN is sold at all grocers. Made and guaranteed by Kellogg in London, Ontario.

MOTORISTS UNDER TEST

Ontario motorists are under test. There is no doubt of it with the coming of the fifty mile limit on highways and the thirty mile limit with safety in cities.

The motorist recognizes that he has to play fair as he has been given latitude as to speed. He must give and provide safety to the highway. His use of the roads must not be a hazard to others.

It has been stated that the present regulations will be strictly enforced. There is no doubt that those who have become used to higher speeds beyond fifty miles an hour would feel a hardship if brought to court for exceeding the limit. But from all appearances that is what is going to happen to the faster than fifty mile an hour driver.

Within the law as it is, a man has all the latitude he needs. The only restriction is that he must drive safely. No sensible careful, and responsible motorist would ask anything else. He is free to drive safely and he only asks to have that guarantee from others.

Hamilton Spectator comments that "we were getting so legislation conscious that the whole thing became a sort of game with the officers of the law, without a sufficient sense of responsibility to others. That verges on the schoolboy attitude, but perhaps after all the careless smart-aleck driver has too much of the schoolby attitude to be ultimately cured by any medicine but the law. From the majority, however, the new concession should get the respect it deserves."

The law rests on the sense of justice and courtesy on the part of the great majority of motorists.

CORONATION PICTURES

Those who witnessed the news reels bringing home to the people of this city and district the stateliness and majesty of the Coronation of two weeks ago, have won the Coronation two weeks ago, have gained of statecraft, the British Empire. Hearts thrilled as they never thrilled before as men, women and children saw on the screen the royal cavalcade, representing as it did the growth of world influence and the democratic kingship which are so marked a feature of the British people's development. The stateliness of the ritual, the characteristic English attitude towards law and order, the pleasing English way of doing things, with their fine reserve and then their innocent abandon, the march of the imperial troops, representing Britain's success in colonization and in democratization of the world peoples, the pomp and the religious ritual, impressive in their blending—seemed all parts of one great unity—expressions of what Britain has meant and means; expressive also of the vitality of the principles which govern British diplomacy.

Such is now that of May 12th will live in memory. The prominence given to the ceremony and the arrangements, the radio broadcast and now the motion pictures of the event, combine to leave an imperishable impression of the great lessons underlying the Coronation.

RESEARCH COUNCIL REPORT ISSUED

The nineteenth annual report of the National Research Council, published recently makes interesting reading. Activities of the Council are divided as between the work done under associate committees on various projects, and the work of the laboratories at Ottawa.

According to the report, the Council has 33 committees, through which it brings to bear on Canadian problems its knowledge of scientific men and industrialists on such important subjects as field crop diseases, grain research, market poultry, storage and transport of food; weeds, and wool. These are all joint committees with the Dominion Department of Agriculture, so that the work in the fields covered is properly co-ordinated and duplication of effort is avoided. Other subjects handled under committees are aeronautical research, laundering, leather, magnesian products, radio, radiology, survey research, and forestry.

Other outside activities of the Council include the award of scholarships for post-graduate research at Canadian universities. During 1936-7 thirty students were given awards, and a recent announcement states that for 1937-8, forty seven scholarships have been granted. Limited funds are provided as grants in aid of research to qualified workers, mostly in departments of Canadian universities. The Council also maintains a close liaison with research organizations in other parts of the world, particularly within the Empire.

An important function of the National Research Council is the development and maintenance of a national scientific library, which is under the direction of the Division of Research Information. This division also serves as a centre of research intelligence, compiling bibliographies and making such other library researches as are required for the guidance of laboratory research workers.

A full account of the experimental work in progress is contained in the report. The laboratories are organized in the following main divisions: Biology and Agriculture, Chemistry, Physics and Electrical Engineering; Mechanical Engineering, including Aeronautics and Hydraulics.

Copies of the repart are obtainable on request.

WHEN ANN GOES RIDING BY

How young she is to sit astride,
With legs that straddle the horse's side;
Yet she has carriage, and she has pride,
When Ann goes riding by.

There's only a look of mild surprise
In the musical way she seems to rise,
And a ripple of laughter in her eyes
When Ann goes riding by,

Even the trees that stand aloof,
Shake their leaves in definite proof,
And mark the sound of the distant hoof,
When Ann goes riding by.

Green is the grass, and sweet the air,
And the gentle wind that stirs the hair
Of one so young, and debonair,
When Ann goes riding by.

JUNK, SCRAP METAL, MAGIC WORDS, which reveal a feverish hectic mad business rush which seems to have developed overnight, an amazing development of the fact patent to all that anything may happen these days, in business or out of it. Words are too feeble to express what is going on today in the scrap metal business throughout the world and Canada's touch of the fever is just a timid flush compared with what is going on in the United States as pictured in an article in the current number of The Saturday Evening Post. Even in law-abiding Ontario farmers have had to keep a close watch upon their agricultural implements and other farm objects made of metal. The demand for scrap metal has been so great the countryside has been scoured for metal and the collectors in some cases have not hesitated to lift metal in active use when the owners were not looking, even plow points have been stolen from the plows. Active demand for metal which has raised the price materially is said to have come from Japan, Germany and Italy, principally, which have little native resources in metallic ores, and it is said that a good market for scrap metal exists in England. Japan is eagerly buying up all the scrap metal it can get at good prices, and even buying old steel ships which they load with scrap, sail to Japan then unload the cargo and scrap the ship. To increased armament by the nations is ascribed the feverish demand for scrap metal, and that points to just one thing, WAR. Strange if the scrap metal shipped to the Old World now would be thrown back at the New World later in shrapnel.

HOLLYWOOD TRIES TO BE RIGHT UP TO THE MINUTE. For Coronation year a special pictdre was to be produced and the choice fell very happily on Mark Twain's "The Prince and the Pauper" which contains a Coronation scene and a plot which centres around the throne of England. Hollywood was fortunate in discovering the Mauch twins for the stellar roles—in fact could have got along very well with just one of the twins but Billy and Bobbie couldn't see it that way, both must be in the picture, so as to afford them the impish opportunities which they are always looking for of doubling for each other and keeping the world guessing which is which, a habit which they even carried onto the set until directors were distracted trying to tell which was Bobbie and which was Billy.

Mr. J. A. Lane, Albert Street, has left to spend several months in Western Canada.

Miss Frances Caswell, daughter of Dr. Caswell, Osgoode, N.S., is visiting her aunt, Mrs. Alex. Ray, William Street.

Lt. Col. C. C. Lasier of Edmonton, Alberta, a former well known Belleviliian, is visiting relatives and friends in the city, enroute home from England.

The last and biggest attraction of the season will be ab Griffin's Opera House here on the evening of June 7th when The Boston English Opera Company will present Gounod's beautiful opera "Faust." Prices: $1.50, $1.00, 75c, 50c, 25c. Boxes $12.00 (Adv't).

At a special meeting of the Albert College Board to consider the future of the college and necessary by the burning of Massey Hall, the unanimous decision of the board was that the college should remain at Belleville on a new site facing the bay, providing the citizens respond sufficiently to justify this action.

This has been the coldest spring on record according to officials of the Provincial Meteorological Observatory. The continuance of cold weather and delay in the arrival of summer there has been nothing on the record to equal it since the observatory was established 26 years ago. The mean temperature for the month of May up-to-date has been 44 degrees. The backward weather is having a deterrent effect on crops, flowers and all other natural products of spring.

Mrs. Herbert Mallory left this morning to join her husband at Calgary, Alberta.

The contractor for the erection of the Belleville drill shed, Mr. William Smart, is pushing forward the preliminary work rapidly. Today stone masons are engaged in making excavations for other foundations. A large amount of building material is upon the ground.

Fear was expressed that the frost last night would do great damage to growing plants, but gardeners in this vicinity say that so far as they can see cabbages, tomatoes, etc., came through all right. The high wind which prevailed is believed to have done much toward saving the plants. Farmers, however, state that the frost did considerable damage to fruit trees, plums, in particular, suffered.

It is estimated that there are about one thousand bicycles owned in Belleville, and that the majority of the riders are females.

The first drive of the season has been tatled through the boom.

Contractor Frank Dolan is making good progress with the pavement at the Government building.

Fiend thieves are operating in town. An example will be made of the high offenders shortly.

The juniors of the Y.M.C.A. met last evening and organized a bicycle club. The name adopted is the "Victoria Road Club." The officers are as follows: Hon. President, N. C. Hunt; Hon. Vice President, Mack. R. Jackson; Capt. Irvine Wallace; First Lieut. George Bates; Second Lieut. Stanley Pringle; Secretary, Will Alford; Treasurer, Morley Ash; Executive committee, Claude Fairman, Stanley Coon, Alex. Ponton, Jack Reynolds, Donald Abel Finkle, Angus Pringle, Jimmy Thompson, J. H. Lillicrop and Ed. Young.

Mr. W. H. Hambly, son of Col. P. D. Hambly, has entered the service of the Bank of Montreal here.

Mr. Conroy Moffugh, at one time student in the law office of Mr. Deroche, Quinte is ill. He has located at Hastings and will practice his profession there.

The steamer Varuna was her crank yesterday and is lying at the Belleville Chair factory dock near Redneresville. Capt. Forde has gone to Kingston to have the shaft repaired. The Varuna is having hard luck this season; on May 24th. she lost her rudder.

Belleville cheese buyers shipped about 3,400 boxes of cheese today as follows: J. Calder, 400 boxes; Hodgson Bros., 900 boxes; Warrington Bros., 600 boxes; J. McMacrgar, 1,500 boxes. Mr. Hodgson bought the Campbellford board yesterday at 9 5-8 cents.

Belleville will make a sturdy, and we hope a successful fight for a bridge over the bay.—(Gamvonio Tribune).

Stray Bits

TELL IT SIMPLY.

They tell a story around newspaper offices of a young and enthusiastic reporter who once dashed back to the city room after covering the Lord Mayor's fire, remarks the Gall Reporter.

He crouched before the typewriter, tense, prepared to turn himself loose with everything he had, almost overcome by the excitement he was about to transmit to his expectant readers.

Feverishly he rapped out a couple of words on the typewriter. He scrowled at them, shook his head and continued them. He tapped out two or three words on a fresh start, scowled again and made a fresh start. He was half quivering with the excitement of this great story he was going to have to write, and he was on the point of exploding when he found he could not seem to turn it into a narrative worthy of the occasion.

There sat watching him the old bellied old-timer, who had been writing stories since the days when Maine blew up in Havana harbor, and this cub reporter crawled over to the eager cub and touched him on the shoulder.

"Son," he said, "tell a little word after another," he advised.

This seemed a radical mind-something, by memories of the recent broadcast of the Coronation. British radio announcers who handled that most spectacular of all radio stories were men who had learned the lesson of that newspaper old-timer.

They knew how to tell a big story in the simple, natural way of putting down one little word after another; they knew, in other words, that if the narrator will just get out of the way, a big story will tell itself.

And that, unfortunately, is a lesson radio announcers on this side of the water apparently are unable to learn.

Above the average North American announcer into a big spectacle whether it be a colorful inauguration, a baseball game or an air meet, and he immediately gives a little-small impression of the man who has swallowed a bumblebee.

He chokes and gasps and excitement, he gets a shaky tremolo in his throat, he assures his listeners every twenty seconds that this is undoubtedly the Al spectacle of all time, and he loses touch on ground only in those sacred moments when he is drawing a deep breath—and it is listening to this broadcast through the courtesy of the Squeegie-Weegie Liver Pill Corporation.

It is a shame that we could not send a dozen or so of our announcers over to London to see how a broadcast of that kind should be handled. For the British announcers have that priceless quality of restraint, coupled with a deep sense of duty. They seem to have discovered that the thing described interests the listener far more than the personality of the man who is describing it.

"Just put down one little word after another." It's simple—but how few narrators ever learn that most important of lessons.

SUN WORSHIPPERS.

Back-to-the-land faddists of this and other districts have once more taken their place in the sun, for all their glory of abbreviated bathing suits and sunglasses, and it becomes more the question of to burn or not to burn becomes the leading one of the day. Coming from out of well-clothed hibernation, the unwary sun worshipper is all too likely to greet the first of summer with a wild shout and shuck his clothes for a bathing suit and loll on a sandy beach to get an after-winter layer of sun tan, commonly a leading medico who couples his comment with a warning of burning wisely and not too well. For sunburn, it is pointed out, exhibits a destructive reaction of any common burn; toxins are poured into the system and the severe sun-burned person is very likely to be very sick.

Not all people burn at the same rate. A blonde with a creamy skin may take on a solar glow after five or ten minutes of exposure to intense sunlight, while a brunette enjoys relative immunity. A thick coat of tan is simply Nature's method of protecting skin damage from sunburn. Many thin-skinned people go to either hand, never tan at all but break out in a rash of freckles.

Preparations such ar olive oil or vinegar and olive oil rubbed over the skin supposed to a sun bath, tend to exclude some of the burning rays and confer a limited immunity, out sun tan, to be at all safe, must be acquired in limited yard doses, it is advised.

In case of severe sunburn, cover the burn with a thick paste of baking soda, starch or flour, made by adding water to these substances. Petroleum jelly, white of egg, olive oil, lard or cream may also be used to smear the affected surface.

Blisters indicate that the patient is liable to be very ill; as a general rule they should not be opened. Plenty of water, light meals, and a long stay in bed are recommended for the patient, warns the medico.

Comment was made in these columns a few days ago upon a decrease in the number of certificated Chemistry pupils in Ontario, due in some degree, it was suggested, to unsatisfactory remuneration, remarks the Woodstock Sentinel-Review. Dairy factory statistics for 1935 just received from Ottawa show that wages and salaries of 118 buttermen employed in 90 cheese and butter factories of Glengarry averaged $450. In Oxford, 139 persons averaged $742. Other averages were: Hastings $500, Middlesex $790, Perth $832 and York $1,320. Glengarry, Oxford, cows, few factories in operation during the winter months, while York, with its large Ontario drawing from a wide area, has little variation in employment.

SYNTONA BRINGS RELIEF

MR. ALFRED STEVENSON

Every man or woman in Belleville and vicinity who suffers from backache, sore joints and painful muscles; every person whose sleep is disturbed, should follow the example of other citizens who have taken Syntona and get grand relief. Here is another of the REALITIES of what Syntona can do for you, as told recently by a well known well known farmer of Freeman, Ontario.

"I had rheumatism so bad, I could not get up or down or take them off. When I lay down I had to have my legs lifted and a pillow put under my head so I could rest comfortably. I was troubled somewhat with constipation and my kidneys disturbed my sleep quite often at night. I felt all used up and everything I tried to do seemed so hard.

"I have only taken four bottles of Syntona and already I feel so much better I can hardly believe it. My joints are not so much looser. I can dress myself with ease and I have more energy than I've had in years. I get more sleep now because my kidneys do not call me up."

This grand new medicine that is helping so many people is now being introduced in Belleville by Dolan The Druggist. Remember the name of Syntona—it's the one word that will make you remember Dolan The Druggist. Remember the name Syntona.

TORONTO STOCK EXCHANGE CLOSE

Toronto, May 28.—(CP) — The Toronto Market became dull this afternoon after showing considerable early activity, particularly in the Western Oils, and closing prices were under the best for the session. Brazilian eased off about a point in fairly active selling and two years losses out-numbered gains in the Food, Bank, Beverage and Utility Groups. The close left the whole closed higher and gains preponderated in the Golds and miscellaneous Industrial issues.

Bell Telephone bulged further, closing almost a point up, and Union Gas registered a gain of about 3-4. Beauharnois and Saguenay were off and steady, as were Steels. Trans to, Dominion and Montreal sold down. Canadian Paper was active as 19 up 1 3-4.

In the big Oil Group Imperial and International Petroleum were down fractions. Mary-Rubber held a margin of about 20 cents on the upside.

In the Base Metals Noranda had a point, set back and Nickel, Hudson Bay, Jack Waite, Sydbury Basin and Waite-Amulet eased slightly.

Senior Golds were inclined to weakness. Lamaque closed around 38 1-2 a half point less and Lake Shore dropped a full point. McIntyre 1-2 and other leaders off 5 to 15 were C ential Patricia, Little Long Lac, Pamour, Wright Hargreaves, Sladce, Morris-Kirkland, MacLeod-Cockshutt, Hard Rock, Sylvanite and Teck Hughes. O'Brien was down 30 cents.

WALL STREET CLOSE

New York, May 28.—(CP)— An undernourished stock market rose feebly for gains of fractions to a point or so today.

With traders leaving for the long week-end, Wall Street still divided on the outlook for near term trends of activity waned.

Turnover was at the rate of about 550,000 shares for the full session, prices were under the best for the session. Brazilian eased off about a point in fairly active selling and two years.

Despite the Depression!

Even during depression years, the total resources of Investors Syndicate continued to increase substantially. Now, they total $90,289,853.— a tribute to the stability, strength, and conservatism of an institution that has helped thousands to achieve financial independence.

In Canada, the LIVING PROTECTION plan of Investors Syndicate is being used by thousands of Canadians throughout the Dominion to build up a financial reserve for their maturer years. Under this plan, a little set aside each month—regularly—returns a sizeable little fortune in 180 months.

During the past seven years of depression and recovery, Investors Syndicate has paid out to its contract-holders no less a sum than $55,352,834.

Our booklet "A New Plan of Life" tells you all about the plan. Your copy awaits your request.

Board Room Gossip

As supplied to Biggar and Crawford by Financial Service.

MARKET COMMENT

In an opinion on the two liquor stocks, Distillers-Seagrams and Hiram Walker, Stanfard Statistics state:

Distillers-Seagrams — Wide increases in sales resulted in earnings of $2.51 a share for the half-year ended January 31, against 63c (after a special charge of 98c) a year earlier. Favorable comparisons are expected to continue over the near term, owing to heavy buying which is now being initiated.

Hiram Walker—Substantial gains in earnings have been reported during the current fiscal year and are expected to continue over the near future. Conversion of bonds, however, would increase the amount of common outstanding, and per share improvement will not reflect the full improvement. The common merits speculative retention; the preferred is worth holding as a sound income producer.

Canadian Industrial Alcohol — Word in authentic source is learned by Financial Service that forty per cent of the Canadian Industrial Alcohol Class A stock is now owned by Hiram Walker-Gooderham and Worts Ltd. More will probably be added as the opportunity presents itself.

Alcohol has trebled its domestic sales and has a good sized investment which will average eight years of age when blended with this company's production.

McMan has made good strides during the last three years, and the inventory value is now placed at for $3,500,000. Their sales are running at the rate of 60,000 cases a month. The Distillers of Great Britain had made a bid of $3,000,000 for the entire McMan inventory just before Walkers bought control.

Five Members of Trenton Family Suffer From Food Poisoning

C. F. Mallory, Son and Four Daughters Now in Belleville Hospital

CONDITION IMPROVED

Trenton, May 28 (Special)—Five members of the family of C. Fred Mallory, Albert Street, prominent Trenton business man were rushed to Belleville General Hospital yesterday suffering from alleged food poisoning following the consumption of tainted wiener sausages on Sunday last, which were purchased from a local butcher. Those admitted to hospital were William Mallory, a son, and four daughters, Coral, Oliphe, Jean and Mildred. Mrs. Mallory, who also consumed part of the food was sick but not sufficiently so to warrant her being taken to the hospital.

Taken ill on Monday, the condition of the Mallory family gradually became worse until Dr. J. W. Farley, attending physician ordered their removal to Belleville hospital.

Mrs. Mallory in a statement to newspapermen declared that the rest of the writers left-over from the meal were of a greenish color. They were taken to Belleville hospital for analysis.

Miss Ida Cronk of Belleville attended the patients upon their arrival at the hospital. Dr. H. A. Mallory who analyzed cans of the Mallory's when Dr. Cronk was called in, is of the opinion that today that the condition of his patients was slightly improved.

MAGISTRATE WARNS ALL BICYCLE RIDERS

"It is just as serious a violation of the Highway Traffic Act to have a person riding a bicycle out in front or at the side of a car, as for a motor car operator to "cut in" on the highway or street," warned His Worship Magistrate C. H. Butler, K.C., during the session of today's local Police Court.

"Riders of bicycles are supposed to keep to the right hand side of the road, the same as a motor car. I have received several complaints regarding cyclists darting directly in front of motor cars in motion and thereby impeding progress on our local streets. This cutting or darting across in front of traffic by cyclists is a misdemeanor and if I find them further complaints and the guilty cyclists are apprehended, their bicycles will be confiscated," stated His Worship as he referred to the endangering of the cyclists' own lives as well as making matters hazardous for motorists.

"While riding their bicycles cyclists should observe the highway laws just as motorists are compelled to do. I have received many complaints of bicycles on our streets ride them on the proper side of the road, namely the right hand side and abstain from riding in the centre of the street and then suddenly darting in front of an oncoming motor car which has to swerve to avoid the curb," suggested His Worship as he was quite stern regarding his intentions of bringing to a finish any future violations of this matter.

Bridge St. Choir Makes Presentations

The home of Dr. and Mrs. George H. Stobie, Campbell Street, was the scene of a happy occasion last night, when members of the choir of Bridge Street United Church met in a surprise party presented Mr. V. P. Nonis, Mus. Bac., with a desk and who recently relinquished the post of organist, with a beautiful standard electric lamp in appreciation of his sterling work, and many happy associations during his tenure as organist and choirleader.

Through the medium of Mrs. Stobie, who was assisted by Mr. McCullough, the choir also presented Mrs. Nonis with a set of silver of tables. Miss Beatrice Monck, a member of the choir, made the presentation of the silver tray in honor of her approaching marriage, to Mr. James Moore, a former member of the choir.

Mr. Fred Sprague, assisted by Miss Pearl Campbell made the presentation to Mr. Nonis, which was followed by a suitable speech of appreciation, while Miss Doreen assisted Mrs. Moore, who presented Miss Monck with her lovely present.

Delicious refreshments were served at the conclusion of the evening.

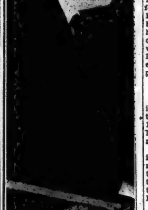
Downing Street Quiet

Downing Street was quiet for the change in government. Usually on days of great political events the old street is thronged with sightseers. Today there were few persons in front of No. 10 and only photographers to see Baldwin leave No. 10 for Buckingham Palace.

Half an hour later the photographers were crowded round the entrance but there was no official reception of the Chancellor of the Exchequer, Mr. Neville Chamberlain.

In morning coat and silk topper, the Chancellor stoog at the door. Many shutters clicked. Then with a smile and a wave of the hand he took leave of Buckingham Palace, to accept His Majesty's invitation to form a new government.

The resignation of the Prime Ministers came with it the resignation of other member of the government. But under British practice the retiring government remains in office till the new government is installed.



Fourteen Years To Day

Baldwin relinquished office exactly fourteen years to the day after his election as leader of the Conservative party at a meeting in the Caxton Hall, London. The hall is a feature of the coronation festival program, was held to help provide a national theatre.

Dr. Adler and the Quints

Toronto, May 28 (CP)—Dr. Adler spends his four days a year or more ago, Dr. Adler isn't likely to be remembered by the Quints as the man who "spanked" should be separated." The famous psychologist who died today—second birthday of the Dionne babies—nevertheless believed they should be separate families if they were to grow up as normal children.

So spirited was the debate on his suggestion that the famous psychologist announced a few weeks later he was suffering from "separate-the-Quints phobia." It got so bad the retired little doctor was haunted by dreams in which wild-eyed women chased him shouting "so you would separate the Quints! Is this you would?"

But like every other visitor to Callander, Dr. Adler was fascinated by the Dionne five. He expressed the opinion common everywhere — "they're wonderful".

DODDS KIDNEY PILLS

Baldwin Visits Chequers.

While the Chamberlain Household made ready to move to the house next door, Baldwin slipped away for a last visit to Chequers, official country estate of the Premier, to inspect private his retirement with a period of rest among the scenes where he so often has sought peace from the worries of office.

Small crowds greeted Baldwin and Chamberlain as they drove to and from the palace, both were silk hats and morning coats.

Thus with Baldwin's resignation an era closes and another opens. The country squire who went through the 1926 general strike and the financial crisis, the abdication crisis and the danger-flecked days of sanctions lays down his burden.

It is to be picked up by the first of the noted Chamberlain family to achieve the country's highest office. A famous statesman and famous brother overshadowed Neville Chamberlain for years.

Handed Pats Well.

But finally he sitting the Prime Ministership that eluded Joseph Chamberlain, the father, and Sir Austen Chamberlain, the brother. At 68 the tall, angular Chamberlain opens the most spectacular part of his career that includes distinguished handing of two important cabinet posts, the Health Ministry and the Chancellorship.

Sir John Simon, National Liberal leader in the government, will go to the Chancellorship in the new cabinet, it was generally agreed. Most commentators believed he would be succeeded as Home Secretary by Sir Samuel Hoare, First Lord of the Admiralty.

While most quarters believed Anthony Eden would retain the Foreign Office some suggested Chamberlain might have decided to replace him with Duff Cooper, Secretary for War, is mentioned for the Admiralty if he has to be succeeded at the war office by Leslie Hore-Belisha whose administration of conscription has provided a spectacular success. Many other changes have been made.

In Forefront Since 1923

Baldwin has been leader of the Conservative Party and in the forefront of the country's political life since 1923 when, with the Canadian-born Andrew Bonarlaw, he upset the war-time Coalition Government headed by Lloyd George and became Chancellor of the Exchequer under Bonarlaw. In that capacity he went to Washington and funded the British War debt.

Early in 1923, when Bonarlaw's health gave way he recommended to the King that Baldwin be chosen as his successor. Baldwin formed his firs, ministry that lasted but a short while before Ramsay MacDonald formed the first Labor Prime Minister in British history.

After seven months the Conservatives won a general election and Baldwin returned to hold office until 1929 when again Ramsay MacDonald succeeded him. The National Government was formed in 1931 with MacDonald as Prime Minister and Baldwin as Lord President of the Council. MacDonald's failing health brought Baldwin back to the Premiership in 1935.

Serious-minded and retiring, Neville Chamberlain has spent nineteen years in National politics.

Tall, with deep-set eyes and drooping moustache, he has presided over the Treasury since 1931 when he succeeded his late friend Snowden, later Viscount Snowden. He is described as a most unemotionally capable with a strong talent for organization, and a knack of getting things done.

Personals

The home cooking was in charge of Mrs. R. Burton, Mrs. Holland, Mrs. C. P. Lowery and Mrs. T. Darling, while Mrs. Ellis was treasurer. Mrs. Chapman won the angel cake on which tickets were sold.

POINT ANNE

Point Anne—The St. John's Branch of the A.Y.P.A. of Point Anne closed the winter term with a banquet, held in the Parish Hall on Wednesday evening, May 26th. Following the singing of the Grace, about 40 sat down to well filled tables. The toast to the King was proposed by Mr. Percy Taylor, to the Church by George Reid, replied to by Rev. A. E. Pepper, to the A.Y.P.A. by Gordon Gregory, replied to by the guest speaker, Rev. Arthur Smith, Trenton. During the evening musical selections were given by Mr. Bruce Hills on the violin, accompanied by Mrs. Kelsey on the piano, and also on a piano accordian. Mrs. Marcus of Belleville gave a reading after which all joined in community singing.

Mr. and Mrs. F. H. MacDonald attended graduation at Queens University, Kingston, on Wednesday. Mrs. Grace Ryan of Belleville spent Wednesday afternoon at her mother's.

Donald Maracle has gone to Hamilton for a short holiday.

RELIEVED AFTER 25 YEARS OF WEAK, NERVOUS STOMACH

Even when stomach trouble is the result of low nervous condition, it often yields to Maclean Brand Stomach Powder. In Montreal, 50-year-old Mrs. B. A. B. found the following:

"Twenty-five years ago," she writes, "I had a severe nervous breakdown. I left me with a weak, nervous stomach and gastric trouble. The least worry, excitement or exertion brought on a dreadful stomach attack. Maclean Brand Stomach Powder has made my stomach stronger and not easily disturbed—and I eat things I never dreamed I could eat."

Week after week you read of similar cases through Maclean Brand Stomach Powder, the one with the signature "ALEX. C. MACLEAN" on the bottle. Try it for your stomach trouble. In powder, powder or tablets.

"I WAS ALL NERVES"

FOR young girls growing into womanhood, for women in the middle life going through the "change," or those who suffer from backache, nervousness, dizziness, headache and Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the remedy long recommended by thousands. Mrs. William Roy of 12 Pelham St., Guelph, Ont., writes: "I was all nerves and could not do a day's housework. I did not feel like eating and could not sleep. I would get up tired in the morning. I had no strength. I decided to write Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and I strengthened me and rid me of my nervousness. Anyone who is run-down, nervous, should try it now!

AT THE BELLE

Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers in Their Greatest Hit Since "Top Hat"

Singing, dancing and romancing their way more securely into the hearts of millions of theatre-goers, America's dancing favorites, Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers are acclaimed once more in their gayest and most spectacular screen hit, "Shall We Dance", announced for presentation at the Belle tomorrow (Saturday), Monday and Tuesday, Matinee daily.

The stars who hold undisputed rank as the most popular team on the screen, are said to break completely away from the type of characterization they have given in the past and to offer a brand-new kind of musical film. No longer portraying struggling aspirants for fame, both appear as "tops" in their respective fields, Astaire as a famous ballet dancer, Miss Rogers as an equally famous revue artist.

Brought together under unusual circumstances, they find the world doubts on believing their attached, which in turn compels them actually to get married in order to gain their freedom. On this unique theme the tuneful and colorful story is played against glittering backgrounds of Paris and New York and aboard a glass ocean liner.

Spectacular Show

The novelty that has always featured the stars' vehicles again characterizes the new offering with added brilliantly organized dance numbers. Dances by the two symphonic luminaries and by lovely Harriett Hoctor, America's foremost ballerina, include remarkable ballroom, ballet and modern dance ensembles. These are presented in magnificent settings that rival anything a Parisian theatre or a New York roof garden and from a literary standpoint is the whirling machinery of its engine room, and they are hailed as the most enthralling film feast as yet been filmed.

The musical numbers written by George and Ira Gershwin, songs, already established to whet the appetite, are woven into the picture. Three of them, "They can't take that Away", "We Got Rhythm", "Luck" and "Let's Call the Whole Thing Off" have leaped into the best-seller class.

Sensational Dancers

The engine room solo dance by Astaire is to the music of "Slap That Bass" and has, because of the accompaniment by the rhythm of machinery and "swing" music by a colored crew which highlights chords on a bass viol. The ballet solo number by Astaire is a combination of tap and toe dancing. Another novel stunt is the one with twenty girls each masked as Ginger Rogers. Ginger herself enters during dance.

Ginger's songs include "They All Laughed". Besides her dances and Miss Lottie Warham. The home cooking was in charge of Mrs. R. Burton, Mrs. Holland, Mrs. C. P. Lowery and Mrs. T. Darling, while Mrs. Ellis was treasurer. Mrs. Chapman won the angel cake on which tickets were sold.

REAL VALUE... SAFEGUARDS HEALTH

Quintuplets on Third Birthday Breakfast on Usual Oat Meal Following Routine of Daily Life

BY A. E. FULFORD

Canadian Press Staff Writer

Callander, Ont., May 26—(CP)—Three years old but unscelled about it, the Dionne quintuplets woke this morning to their bowls of oatmeal, unaware of a world, that offers cake and ice cream.

From the inner confines of the Dafoe Nursery came no word that Yvonne wished Annette a happy birthday first or whether it was Marie who got the jump on the rest—or whether any of them knew it was a birthday.

On one peeped, but it may have been Yvonne who awakened first. Cecile sneezed, and put her spoon to her lips as Marie stirred in her little cot. Their "shushing" was enough to arouse Emilie, Cecile and Annette.

This day held in store little different from any other in the lives of the famous babies. They ate their oatmeal, spinach, milk and all the other good body-building foods. There was no cake, no cream or candy, birthday or no birthday.

Playtime came and the fifth were given their usual half-hour public appearances in the morning and afternoon. First Fred Allan followed Dr. Alan Roy Dafoe and strangers before a microphone and were urged to sing and talk.

Have Favorite Song

Their best effort is "En Roulant Ma Roule" the quints' favorite French-Canadian song, but sometimes give way to childish shrieks.

The presence of strangers, conducting the international broadcast, interrupted the quintuplets' supper half an hour, a concession that came grudgingly from their physician.

Standing who flocked to the observation gallery at the children's playground witnessed the "daily show" and saw five youngsters, who, in three years, have crept to the affection of the outside world.

Curiosities at first, the Dionne quintuplets are definite personalities and millions love them. Invariably they greet daily recalled the morning of May 28, 1934, when the quints were born, tiny bits of humanity, who were bundled into a laundry basket and put near a kitchen stove so they might be kept warm.

The physician who introduced them to their birthday audience is the same efficient, little man, who announced on saving the life of their mother, Mrs. Elzire Dionne, because he thought that had to choose to live. It was hours after their birth before he could lift the blanket, that covered the premature infants and wonder whether he might save one.

Mother Not to Attend

Their mother, now 27 years old, plumper and as deeply attached to her five little legal wards of the law as is her other six children remains powerless to attend the Lalle.

birthday celebration in the Dafoe Nursery.

She and her husband, Oliva, were invited, but they did not attend the fête or second birthdays, with all public ceremony. But they never missed a private visit. Their friends say the parents believe attendance at the public celebration might be considered approving of the separation of the quintuplets from the rest of the family.

The same friends will tell you that statements that the Dionnes are satisfied with the guardianship of their children by a government-appointed board does not mean the Dionne tradition is break in the family. The father and mother talk little about the matter but it is believed they would be satisfied to let the Ontario guardianship continue. Dr. Dafoe as physician and as the guardians dictate the education of the quintuplets as long as they remain the children under the same roof as the rest of the family.

Visitors see the quintuplet daughters almost daily, the Dionnes have seen them grow into sturdy young sisters, receiving the stamp of internationally known child specialists as perfect babies.

The five youngsters are still a few inches under an inch or so under the average weight and height of three-year-olds, but that is to be expected in premature children. And the little Dionnes are not only premature but quintuplets. They don't do as well as they might, but that is to be expected with premature children, too.

Brushing Teeth a Rush

Brushing their teeth is an old habit with the quintuplets. They can climb into an ordinary bathtub by themselves, and they frighten visitors daily by climbing a five-foot ladder and swinging on a specially constructed trapeze in their playground.

They have a teacher, Miss Claire Tremblay, and under Dr. Dafoe's direction she is giving them kindergarten training to distinguish colors and identify pictures in books.

They hang up their own clothes, and each has hooks and knows because there is a painted animal about it. Emilie, for instance, knows that her dress hangs under the elephant's picture and Yvonne makes sure hers is under the rabbit.

The health figures given out by Dr. Dafoe as the babies prepared to celebrate their third birthday indicate Marie, long the delicate member of the cluster, is rapidly gaining on her stronger sisters. She has 12 lbs., one more than Cecile and two more than Yvonne, Emilie and Annette. She has gained a full pound in the last month and now weighs only three pounds less than her heaviest sister.

Guests of Mrs. Ance were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. F. Bailey.

A number of Melrose ladies were recent guests of Mrs Clayton Hall and Mrs.

The meeting closed with "National Anthem" followed by refreshments.

MOIRA W.A.

Mrs. Bailey opened her home on Thursday, May 20, for the ladies of Moira Women's Association. After the delightful dinner served to twenty-five ladies, the meeting was called to order by the W.A. president, Mrs. A. Clare who presided at the service.

The programme was chiefly bearing on the Coronation, "Canada and the Crown" was followed by Scripture taken from 1st Sam. 8. The secretary in reading the minutes stated there was $37.50 cash on hand.

The programme that followed was very fitting to the occasion. Words Kricknow gave a brief account of the crowning of the King and Queen.

Mrs. G. Foster gave a talk on the life of King George 6th. Mrs. Ramsay read the Queen's Christmas message to the people. Mrs. Crane gave a very appropriate piano solo. Miss Vanderwater read a poem, "It isn't the church it's you".

During the business part of the meeting it was decided to have the Annual Church Parade on Sunday, June 26th., also Moira to assist in the parsonage. Mrs. Kricknow stated that two quilts be sent to the stricken area of London through the Red Cross.

Mrs. Clare thanked the members for their kind remembrance of sending flowers to her husband, who had been confined in the hospital for the past month.

Members were pleased to have as their guests Mrs. Mervin Hall, Mrs. Adams of Detroit, Mrs. Ken Hall and Miss Gertrude of Latta.

A vote of thanks was tendered the hostess and the meeting closed with "God Save the King". Collection $4.15.

Car Crashes Tree

Isaie Szambromsky of Ottawa was the driver of a car that crashed into a large tree on the south side of Highway No. 2, a mile west of here early Tuesday morning. The machine apparently went out of control, left the roadway and travelled through a deep ditch into the tree. Four passengers in the vehicle were severely shaken. P. C. John Whitby investigated.

Auto Skids on Side

An auto carrying three persons turned over on its side while rounding a sharp corner on north Front Street Monday night. It is believed the brakes locked jerking the machine over on its side. Occupants escaped without injuries. They were Cecil Moreland (driver), George Barr and Allan Goodmurphy all of Consecon. Trenton Police investigated.

Court

A reckless driving indictment was dismissed against Harry Chase, R.R. 3, Trenton by Magistrate E.J. Butler in Police Court on Tuesday. Chase was charged with driving in a dangerous manner following a crash on Saturday night in which a girl and two men from London, Ont. were slightly injured after their car rolled over and was completely wrecked. Crown Attorney R. C. Donnan, K.C., advised the complainant's to seek their damages in Civil Court.

John Hawkins resident of Sidney Township was fined $22.25 for driving recklessly. Evidence revealed Hawkins was in charge of a motor vehicle that turned directly in the path of a westbound machine operated by Harold Keane of Trenton. Hawkins' operator's permit was cancelled for two days.

Harvey Bailey, taxi driver, was assessed $6.75 for crowding Dundas Street corner. He was given two weeks to pay.

Carmen Masters and Wilmer Taylor, both town boys, were fined $1 without costs for riding bicycles without tail lights at night.

Isaie Szambromsky of Ottawa pleaded not guilty to reckless driving. He was convicted on P. C. John Whitby's evidence and fined $22.25.

Fred J. Cooper, Keith Weeks, Donald J. Whalen, paid the usual fee for violating minor sections of the H.T.A.

Cecil Moreland and W. A. Graham were found guilty of driving in a manner dangerous to the public and they were assessed $13.75 apiece. Licences were suspended for short periods in each case.

German Racket Fails

Mrs. Thomas Ruddy, West Street, was saved $200 recently, simply because Trenton was on fast time. One day last week, Mrs. Ruddy received a cablegram from Berlin, Germany, supposedly from her husband, Thomas Ruddy, who was vacationing in Europe and when last heard from was in the German metropolis. The cablegram requested Mrs. Ruddy to send the sum of $200 to the British Consul in Berlin in the name of Thomas, (her husband) but stressed registering the money in the name of Klak (presumably a friend of Mr. Ruddy). Believing her husband in grave danger next morning Mrs. Ruddy visited downtown to the cable office but found it had not opened due to the town being on daylight saving. She then hurried to a local attorney's office for advice. After carefully digesting Mrs. Ruddy's story the solicitor got in touch with the German Consul in Toronto, who in turn informed headquarters in Berlin of the matter. Following several hours of anxious waiting, Mrs. Ruddy learned by a cablegram from the British Consul in Berlin that her husband was on his way to Rumania and he had left the city over a week prior. It also revealed that a person giving the name Klak had called that afternoon for an amount of cash from Canada.

PERCIVAL STORES HAVE CLOSE CALL

Defeat Aajmaa Juniors 10-9 The Losers Scoring Six in Seventh

Stalling two pitchers from the mound the Percival Store softballers scored eight big runs in a fourth inning rally to eventually down the Aajmaa juniors 10 to 9 at Coleman Flats last evening. The Aajmaa kids with their backs to the wall, however, staged a belated last inning rally to pound one Percival hurler from the hilltop and themselves score six runs, but fell short one counter of knotting the score.

In the early stages of the pastime the teams battled at rather even terms, until the Percival outsmarted their lanky fourth inning barrages, eight hits, including doubles by Hammett and Binfield. Skipper "Red" Townsend sent a new and untried hurler to the juniors' mound in Stone, the kid starting up well until the fatal fourth, when he was cuffed for a pair of 2-baggers, three slants were received with the same abandon by the mighty bats of the slugging Percivals. Finally Harold Dracup was rushed to fill the breach and his delivering finally silenced the victors' bats for the remainder of the game. The Percivals only garnered one single from Dracup's deliveries in the remaining frames.

Manager Binfield sent a newcomer, a lad named Smith to the hillock in the surprising absence of suits until the fatal seventh, when the Aajmaa kids pounced on his delivories for a total of five hits and six runs before "Con" Harris was called into the bullpen to stem the tide. Harris made short work of the final two batters and dismissed the juniors' belated rally.

Sinfield with a double and two singles led Percivals on the attack while Clarke collected a trio of one base hits. Besides a single by Hammett, two one base blows by Thrasher and a two base hit by Cochrane, Aajmaa's 3b, Cooper, Aajmaa's 2b, Cooper, Aajmaa's 2b, Cooper, Aajmaa's 2

Fifth Annual Convention Of W. A. and Ladies' Aid

Hastings and Prince Edward Societies Meet at Demorestville

MRS. C. E. MACKLIN PRES.

The fifth annual convention of the Women's Association and Ladies' Aid societies of Prince Edward and Hastings Counties of the Belleville Presbytery United Church of Canada met in Demorestville Church on Wednesday, May 26th, 1937.

The morning session opened at 9.45 with the registration of delegates and visitors and a reception by the pastor, Rev. L. White, then Mrs. F. E. Walden and Mrs. Walters of Picton led in community singing.

The Devotional period was conducted by ladies of Burrs.

Miss Audra Redner read the minutes of the last convention and Mrs. Williams gave the treasurer's report showing a balance of eleven dollars.

Mrs. Gorsline of Demorestville, welcomed the delegates and visitors and urged everyone to think of the work as a privilege and an opportunity for using one's talents for the kingdom of God.

Miss Marjory Wood of St. Ola replied to the address of welcome in a few well chosen words, thanking the ladies for their welcome and assuring them that the sessions would be interesting and profitable to all.

The President, Mrs. C. E. Macklin of Stirling, gave an excellent address, welcoming everyone and urging all to use the beautiful theme song which was used during the meeting.

Miss Brickman the Secretary read a letter from Rev. Mr. Dixon, Hon. Organizer who has been in Belleville hospital for some time owing to a fractured hip. It was moved and seconded that flowers be sent to Mr. Dixon from the Presbytery.

The delegates were called on to give their reports and forty-seven responded. All showed that keen interest was taken to make the work a success and, spiritually and financially.

Mrs. H. Elliott sang a solo which was very much appreciated. This was followed by a quiet half hour in charge of Alton's W.A. and conducted by Mrs. Earl Bush. The subject "The Saving Message of Jesus" was taken by Mrs. Thos. Irwin who gave a very instructive talk. She pointed out that the work spoke in this generation were due to three things. We had first: a vital sense of God; secondly: moral discernment of the will of God and thirdly: more power in the service of God. And in all three Jesus is the supreme guide and teacher.

This address was followed with a duet by Mrs. Westover and Mrs. Brickman "Beautiful Garden of Prayer."

The meeting adjourned and the Demorestville ladies served a sumptuous dinner in the town hall.

Afternoon Session

The afternoon session opened with Mrs. J. A. Lott in the chair. Mrs. Walden and Mrs. Walters conducted convention singing. The Northport ladies gave an inspiring message during the Devotional period. Mrs. Robinson gave the topic "God in His Church."

Mrs. J. A. Ketchepaw and Mrs. Crothers sang a duet. Mrs. J. A. Lott, District Representative gave a splendid concise and interesting report. Last year she visited 17 societies and during the three years drove 700 miles. The first society visited was in Stirling for an evening meeting. Mrs. Lott found the ladies divided up the work in the organization and used various methods to gain interest. One had a sing-song, another a round table conference. She found a friendliness and encouragement among the members and was sure the W.A. work will become a spiritual help strongly than ever to all.

Mrs. Houston of Belleville, favoured with a solo "Teach Me to Live" which was a beautiful message in song.

Young People Should be Trained For Church Work

Mrs. D. Bews of Belleville gave an excellent talk on "A New Task for a New Day" or "Relating Religion to Life." The theme was extraordinary and appealed to the women in a new light. It was pointed out clearly that we must have new thought, new things and faith that God is working out his purpose if we are going to progress. Thoughts must not be controlled by class, state, nor governments. Mrs. Bews said that the W.A. is the bulwark of the church but we must relate religion to life and the evangelization of Canadian life must begin in the small communities. The church misses a great opportunity if the children are not brought in before seven and also if the young people of the community are not trained in the religious life of the church. The mothers of the church must be trained so that they may train the young properly. We must protect all young people if we protect our own.

Mrs. Macklin conducted the round table conference. This was followed by a hymn and the offering was taken.

Rev. W. J. Scott, Stirling, gave an inspirational address choosing for his text "Man shall not live by bread alone." He pointed out also that Jesus said: "I am the bread of life" and that bread would lead us to life eternal. This address summed up very clearly that the W.A. work was essential to the life of the church spiritually as well as otherwise.

The nominating committee consisting of Mrs. Murphy, Mrs. Lent, Mrs. Wait, and Mrs. Elliott gave its report.

The committee on resolutions consisting of Miss Brickman, Mrs. (Rev.) Clarke and Mrs. Harris thanked the ladies of Demorestville for their kind invitation and hospitality, the choirs heard and helped for the use of the church and also all those who helped make the convention such a splendid success.

New Officers Installed

Mrs. (Rev.) McRae very fittingly installed the new officers impressing on them that the offices were not to be coveted for mere personal gain but as a trust. They are looked upon as leaders, counsellors and as stangers of loyalty, faithfulness and enthusiasm. Officers and members of W.A. were asked to pledge themselves to the field of service.

The names of the officers for following year are:

Honorary President: Mrs. J. A. Lott.

Honorary Organizer: Rev. S. F. Dixon.

President: Mrs. C. E. Macklin, Stirling.

First Vice President: Mrs. J. M. Woods, St. Ola.

MOTORISTS!

. . . in all your driving

Try Courtesy

every inch of the way

EACH successive year has seen motor traffic greatly increased. With this increase there has come, unfortunately, an increase in traffic accidents.

It is the duty of those responsible for the regulation of the traffic, and of every individual who operates a motor vehicle, to do everything possible to reduce these ever-mounting and alarming accident figures.

The Government and my department have taken every precaution within our means to make motoring safe. We have built wider highways, have painted traffic lines on the pavements, have erected signs at every curve, intersection and railway crossing, have continuously patrolled the roads with uniformed police and in many other ways have striven earnestly to reduce traffic accidents.

And you, Mr. and Mrs. Motorist, truck-driver and motorcyclist! Have you done everything you possibly can to prevent accidents that may kill you and your family or some other persons to whom life is also sweet?

If you will just remember to Try Courtesy in all your thinking and driving in a motor vehicle you will have made your greatest possible contribution to the reduction of motor vehicle accidents.

Please remember there will be more traffic than ever this season and there will be more accidents and deaths, too, (and that may include you) unless there is more Courtesy shown by every motorist towards every other motorist.

So, again, I beg of you to "Try Courtesy" every inch of the way this season. Do that and you will get safely to where you are going and safely back again.

FORWARD CONTROL CHEVROLET TRUCKS offer you 4 BIG ADVANTAGES

Chevrolet offers Forward Control models to fill out the widest range of trucks in the low-price field. For helpful information, specifications and prices, see your local Chevrolet dealer. His training, plus his accessibility to the vast General Motors research facilities qualify him as a competent advisor in the purchase of your new truck.

1 BIGGER PAYLOADS are provided for by simply changing weight distribution to the extent that the front cable is assigned a bigger portion of the payload.

2 SHORTER LENGTH and greater compactness are achieved by reducing the distance between the back of the cab and the front bumper. From the payload standpoint, space taken up by cab and power plant is dead space. Therefore, any reduction in this dimension becomes profitable load space. Compactness, incidentally, is important where restricted vehicle length is a legal factor.

3 EASE OF HANDLING results from the fact that this type of construction permits the use of shorter wheelbases per foot of body length. The "turning circle" is smaller . . . manoeuverability easier.

4 NOVEL APPEARANCE . . . a product of the latest transportation design . . . attracts attention and serves as a travelling advertisement for your business.

MELROSE

Melrose—Rev. Mr. Merrick of Canifton was the guest speaker at the United Church on Sunday. There was a village attendance.

This community learned with regret of the sudden passing of Mrs. F. Hammond, Belleville, who was formerly Miss Ada Morden, eldest daughter of late Mr. and Mrs. Morden and Mrs. Morden of Melrose.

The remains were interred in the family plot, Melrose Cemetery on Saturday afternoon. The bearers here were Messrs. D. D. Pringle, Roy Badgley, Sullman Haight, Jack Blatherwick, Harry Murphy and Lorne Salisbury. Deepest sympathy is extended to the bereaved. She leaves to mourn her husband, one son Carl Smith, her mother, Mrs. M. Morden and two sisters Mrs. Ida Carpenter, Belle River and Mrs. H. Coe, Detroit.

Mr. and Mrs. Morton and Mrs. G. Grey of Peterboro were Sunday visitors of Mr. and Mrs. F. Davis.

GIRLS THANKFUL TO REACH HOME

Wandered Aimlessly in Muskeg And Bush Before Found

Pelly, Sask., May 26.—(CP)—Two school girls were recovering today, thankful to be alive after days and nights of aimless wandering through muskeg and bush in the wild porcupine forest region north of here.

Eleven-year-old Hazel Scraba was found yesterday 12 miles north of here after she and her 10-year-old companion, Ludvina Machitshyn, became lost Sunday while looking for cattle strayed from the Machitshyn farm home. The girls separated Monday and Ludvina was found Wednesday.

Hazel was suffering from exposure and hunger when found but was believed to have suffered no serious effects. Ludvina was in much better condition.

Hundreds of settlers of this district 200 miles east of Saskatoon joined in the search for the two girls under direction of Royal Canadian Mounted Police.

Roseland, Ont., May 28 (CP)—When he met his brother for the first time in 29 years, Harry Drane of this suburban Windsor village did not recognize him and thought he was a house-to-house peddler. It was Mrs. Drane who finally recognized her brother-in-law, Robert.

That was Tuesday and since that time Harry and Robert have had plenty of time to get used to each other's faces. Robert has a white beard and is 84. Robert celebrated his 79th birthday a couple of weeks ago.

Hubbell Not Picking Spots In Compiling All-Time High Mark for Major Loop Hurlers

Registers 24th Straight Win By Defeating Reds

WORKED 2 INNINGS

Tigers Without Cochrane Defeat Yankees 5-4 in 13 Frames

By Sid Feder
Associated Press Sports Writer

Carl Hubbell, who thinks he's lucky to have piled up the longest winning streak in baseball history, is now sizzling out his chin—and still laughing at the law of averages.

From all indications, he's not only going right on with his streak, but he's going to do it the hard way—against the toughest opponents and in the toughest spots. And the way most it look now, that bewhiskered 'law' that's supposed to apply to everything from baseball to burglary, is in for the most terrific beating of its long career.

King Carl was riding on his 24th straight triumph today, four better than the previous all-time high. And his next spectacular part about it is that since he passed the 20-game mark, every one of his wins has been achieved either at the expense of the National League's limited lamp-post, or in a situation that would undoubtedly have put the whammy on a less masterful roundsman. Definitely, 'old squarepants' is not picking his spots.

Between May 13 and last Monday, he whipped Pittsburgh Pirates twice and St. Louis Cardinals once. Yesterday, only three days after beating the Bucs for the second time, he ambled into the eighth inning of the Giants' go with Cincinnati Reds.

Worked Two Innings

He found a club that already had given two other Giant pitchers to the showers, that was on its home lot with the score tied, and that had a pitcher in there in young Lefty Gibson, who was anything but a pushover for the Giants.

So Carl faced just six men in two innings, and made all of them count-ers as far as the box score was concerned. The final score was 3-2 with Mel Ott's single winning homer turning the trick in favor of Hubbell and the Giants.

Victory boosted the Giants to within a game of the pace-setting Pirates, whose fifth win the Dodgers was rained out after 3 1-2 innings. The third-place Cardinals dropped even farther back by losing 7 to 5 to Boston Bees, with Roy Johnson's two-run ninth four-bagger in the eighth pulling the game on ice.

Detroit Tigers, finally caught up with the New York Yankees and in the American League's longest game of the season, finished off top 5-4 in 13 innings, despite Lou Gehrig's three-run homer. Cleveland Indians made a clean sweep of their series with the Athletics by registering an 8-7 win on Hal Trosky's triple with the bases loaded.

The Phillies smashed Chicago Cubs 11-2 and the Senators beat the White Sox 2-1. The Brooklyn-New York tilt at Boston was rained out.

PERTH COMBINES LEAD BALL LOOP

Three Way Tie For Cellar Spot by Rome, Brockville And Ottawa

(By The Canadian Press)

Perth-Cornwall Bloons found the "homers in threes" angle and are now to win the ball game that meant undisputed first place there in the early days of the Canadian-American baseball league.

Bloons moved in on Smith's Falls Beavers yesterday tied for thy league leadership with Kingston. They battled almost evenly down eight innings but Bloons went all-out in their half of the ninth, saying it with two four-ply walks, a single, a fielder's choice and splurgs and meant a 7-3 win.

The Perth-Cornwall Nine Colonels finally moved into the win column with a victory over the third-place Quebec Quins, 6-5, while Owosso Netherlands downed Brockville Pirates, 1-0, thereby creating a three-way tie in the league between Colonels, Pirates and Ottawa Braves.

It looked as if the Colonels were going down to defeat in the ninth inning of their game with Quebec when they were on the short end of a 5-3 score but Hal Bissett drove in runs to tie the score and then won the game when Stan Casten drove in the winning tally in the tenth after Billy Blenso opened the inning with a single.

One of the best hurling efforts of the season was turned in by pitcher Baker of Owego, who limited Pirates to three singles. Roesch, Brockville flinger, meant only to Baker's performance for he allowed only six hits, losing the game in the eighth, when Pat Henry filed with the bases loaded and only one man out.

CANTWELL WINS SEVEN IN ROW AT JERSEY CITY

Allows Orioles Only Three Hits in Hurling Effort

FOG HALTS GAME

Newark Bears Stopped by Fine Hurling of Jake Mooty

(By The Associated Press)

Old Boy Cantwell is seeing the light again. The veteran right-hander is curving them over for Jersey City's Giants in the International League in a manner reminiscent of the days when the late John McGraw first set eyes on him.

Cantwell never had much of a fast ball but he had uncanny control and McGraw bought him in 1927 for his New Yorkers. He failed to live up to the "Old Man's" expectations, however, and was traded to the Boston Braves. He pitched eight years for that Club hitting the peak of his form in 1933 when he won 20 games and lost 10.

Hampered by a sore arm he started slipping and last winter Boston sold him down the river to the Jersey City club, newly established as the key team of the New York Giants farm system. He is making good in a big way for the Jerseys and may be climbing back to the heights with the "Varsity" Giants uniform soon.

News from Nine Hits

Ben has gone to the mound seven times for Jersey this season and has finished victories every time. He chalked up No. 7 by a score of 3-1 yesterday as he mauled the baseballs of the Baltimore Orioles with three hits. Two of them was a homer by Ab Wright for the Birds lone marker. The Giants came back in the fifth to even the score and won out in the ninth on Hal Lee's single and swampy Wade's two bagger.

Mooty, in a youthful bandbox with aspirations toward Cantwell's pitching laurels, twirled his second victory of the year as the Jersey Citiets since being sent down by Cincinnati. He held the league-leading Newark Bears to six hits while his mates made good use of their bats to win 9-2.

A heavy fog which completely obscured the field in the seventh inning forced the Buffalo-Rochester night game to be called after four and one half innings and the game played with the teams deadlocked 4-4, Toronto and Montreal had a day off.

BAER SCORES K. O. OVER BEN FOORD

Referee Stops Bout in Ninth Round to Save South African

London, May 28 (CAP)—Max Baer, former world heavyweight boxing champion, was all-square with his English opponents today.

After dropping a decision to Tommy Farr, the Empire titleholder, Baer and Welshman Califorina fighter came back last night to score a technical knockout over Ben Foord of South Africa in the ninth round of a 10-round bout. Foord held the Empire crown until beaten by Farr two months ago.

Baer had all the better of the going with Foord. He floored the South African twice in the second round and had him on the mat again in the ninth when the referee stopped the bout.

Yesterday's Stars

(By The Associated Press)

Mel Ott, Giants: Hit homer in ninth beat Reds 3-2.

Hal Trosky, Indians: Hit triple with bases loaded in winning rally over Athletics.

Monte Weaver, Senators: Muffed White Sox with six hits for 9-1 win.

Pete Fox, Tigers: His single drove in winning run in 13th inning for 5-4 victory over Yankees.

Roy Johnson, Bees: His pinch-homer with mate on base to clinch 7-5 win over Cards.

Bucky Walters, Phillies: Fanned four and allowed nine hits in 11-3 win over Cubs.

JOCKEY YOUNG HAS SEVEN WINS

(By The Canadian Press)

Jockey Stirling Young, scored his seventh victory at Woodbine Park yesterday when he hooked home H. C. Hatch's Sweepden in the Woodbine Handicap. Sweepden held a length and a half margin over R. S. McLaughlin's Silver Fox with one of the 1 1-16 miles journey.

Earlier Young rode Blue Wren to victory in the Blue Wren race by six lengths over S. B. Crawford's Gogrles and returned $11.25 for $2 was the longest price of the meet.

Another long price was chalked on the board when G. Vallgliher's Langstaffe defeated the favored Orioline by two and a half lengths. The winning price was $36.55 for $2.

Horses scheduled to start in the Coronation Handicap, worth $5,000, Saturday have been tuned for the engagement. C. J. Hatch's Ariel Cross and Mrs. T. Stevenson's Tempestuous are expected starters.

"THE BRIGHT HILL"

by Clarissa Fairchild Cushman

And Susan was left standing there, watching him swing away, his head high in the spring sun, his invincibility startling. She was oppressed with a sense of impending ill—when—Kerin came back, what did she have to offer him? Could he? Could he punish her, punish herself, punish her—always reasonable, logical, masculine. What could she do to him? Or to Kerin?

"Alan, darling," she moaned to her husband, and there was fear in the exhaustion of her voice, "what do you think he means to do? Running around all the time now with that Beardsley girl—and of his students, Alan," that's what girl everybody. What have we done, dear, to deserve her in addition to Kerin?

"Perhaps we've freed her," said Alan grimly. "The only unkind things he had ever thought, was the only cutting words he had ever said, or that had ever been said to him, had passed between him and Carl. He had been angry with a rare, breathing anger.

So Kerin waited for the letter from Carl that didn't come, that was never coming; and Mrs. Winters, watching the drooping mouth, the haggard eyes, the listless walk, knew something herself of a deep anger, and refrained from asking questions anything. Remembering the anger woman who had come in the fall, wise and brought youth and gaiety to the office of the dean of women, her heart hardened against the unknown Carl. She felt increasingly convinced that the kindest thing she could ever do would be to keep Kerin on another year.

And Kerin, looking out with hurt eyes at a world of changed values, wondered if she did, after all, know what it was all about. The gay young things that with furtive, with serious, with frank faces, with eyes climbed the little paths of the bright hill, what was it they found there? Were they merely searching for something, stretching curious hands into the unknown; or did they find something there that had escaped her? She had been married ten years, but looking into the faces and eyes that looked into her own, hiding something, denying something, acknowledging something, she often felt that that was something she did not know. Perhaps they, poor children, didn't know either. Perhaps they dreamed dreams, as she had dreamed them at twenty.

All she asked of a world that had turned sick on her was Carl. She wanted him, now for that thing which hid itself from her in the dim ogres of the bright hill, but because he had the power to make her happier than any other human being could do, because he had the power to hurt her as no other person ever had; because he was the pattern of her life, the reason that lay at the back of all action, he was her marriage. But he didn't write.

What was it that had turned the round face of the little Arden girl into a tragic mask? that, Kerin asked herself over and over, could that sweet child want from that sleek pomaded barber-shop attendant who was already married and had two children? A pretty dark child, with money, with back-face full of life and color; "but ground, with culture, what was it what little Kingsbury, did you say she wanted? The affair, Mrs. Winters had hoped, was scotched last spring, otherwise she would have advised the family to send the girl elsewhere. And all fall and all winter the girl had either been in Reno or had been clever; but now the old startling rumor was on the lips Arden girl was so essentially fine, Mrs. Winters and those who had particularly attached herself to Kerin. Kerin had thought she knew sorrow. And now here was dark eye of the child looked out to her gaunt-ily, yet piteously, as one who asks boonches, help.

Mrs. Winters put it up to Kerin. "If we tell their people or if we shut the girl home, she may just break out and do something desperate. Doesn't she talk to you?"

"No-o-o. I think she knows I don't understand, and I don't. What is it, Mrs. Winters?"

"Infatuation. You must talk to her."—said Mrs. Winters. "You are young. She will listen. At any rate we can't—we can't—let it get too far. The family have money. To mind the wife is going to—well, it means—money—if a scandal breaks."

But I have nothing to tell her, thought Kerin. And then, quite without warning, the child broke down and told her everything, she found that she was indeed help-less, helpless because she didn't understand, helpless because she didn't understand helplessness. It seemed to her that she heard herself saying dreadful things, giving incredible advice:

"Corinne, dear, if it is all so desperate, if you and he have decided to make a grand gesture of it, in order to have each other honestly before the world, and all that, to burn your bridges, as you say, then let me —darling Corinne, let me tell you what I would do. Don't go away; don't be grand about it, or spectacular—honest, as you say. Make sure. Then, if you find that it's all true as you hope, as you believe, then is plenty of time to make the public acknowledgment." What did she, Kerin, know about it? Yet she knew the terrible fear of the human heart that is bound by its affections.

And a week went by, and another week, and Corinne drifted like a pale ghost about the green campus, and Carl didn't write, and it was only three weeks before Mrs. Winters would sail; when one night Corinne slipped into the black and white room and, taking a chair, dropped her hands between her knees and confronted Kerin. Kerin's heart turned sick to see her, so sweet a child.

"I—I couldn't do it, Mrs. Kingsbury."

Kerin felt as a swimmer does, breaking the water for air. "No," she said.

"No," said Kerin. "You couldn't." "Do you think—Mrs. Kingsbury! do you think I'm free? That it would make me free?"

"Won't what come back? thought Kerin. "I think," she said gently, that you'll find you're free."

INSTALLMENT 18

"I wouldn't believe I could be so indecently curious," said Mrs. Winters, as Corinne left the office two weeks later, her eyes bright, her face full of life and color; "but I've always wanted to see those two children? A pretty dark child, with money, with back-ground, with culture, what was it

LEAGUE FAVORS WITHDRAWAL FOREIGN TROOPS

Condemns Bombardment Of Open Cities in Spain But Approves Evacuation Complete Closed Session And Hope Results Will Show

RESPECT RIGHTS

No Formal Recognition Given to Loyalists' Protest

Geneva, May 29 (CP-Havas)—The council of the League of Nations today unanimously voted a resolution favoring withdrawal of foreign volunteers from Spain.

The League resolution condemned the bombardment of open cities.

It also expressed approval of the steps taken by certain governments to evacuate women and children from Spanish war zones.

Session Closed.

The resolution, completed at a closed session of the council this morning, expressed hope the initiative undertaken by the London Non-Intervention Committee toward the withdrawal of foreign volunteers would show results.

The committee's action was called "the most effective remedy" for the present situation which is of such "gravity for the general peace".

The resolution on Spain called upon every league member to respect the territorial integrity and political independence of every other nation. It did not, however, give formal recognition to the Spanish government's contention territorial aggression had occurred in Spain. The Spanish government has accused Italy of such aggression and, in lesser measure, has assailed Germany for permitting [illegible] nationals to fight on the side of the insurgents.

Julio Alvarez Del Vayo, the Spanish delegate, accepted the resolution but voiced reservations to the effect the non-intervention program had not prevented participating powers from sending contingents of troops largely than agreed had expected.

REFUSE TO HANDLE PRODUCTS OF PLANT

Windsor, Ont., May 29 (CP) — Union workers in the plants of General Motors of Canada, Ltd., and Kelsey Wheel Company, Ltd., will refuse to handle parts produced in the strike-crippled plants of Walker Metal Products, Ltd., U.A.W.A. leaders announced today in formulating plans to force the Walker establishment into recognition of the union.

After negotiations collapsed yesterday on refusal of H. R. Gregory Walker plant manager, to recognize any union, Local 195 of the U.A.W.A. decided, according to James Napier, Union organizer, to boycott parts manufactured in the Walker plant and shipped to the two other automobile plants for further manufacturing.

"Mr. Gregory better realize right now that he's not just dealing with his own employees," Napier said. "He's dealing with all of local 195, which has approximately 2,000 members in Windsor. The workers in Kelsey and General Motors are just as determined as the Walker strikers in the union recognition of Walker Metal Products. Beginning Monday they will refuse to handle any shipments from the Walker plant."

Goebbels to Call Prelates on Oath in Nazi 'Slander'

STANLEY BALDWIN MAN OF PARADOX STATES EXPRESS

"At Times it Has Seemed There Are Two Baldwins"

14 YEAR RECORD

"Some Basic Principle Knits Paradoxes Together"

London, May 29 (CP)—As Stanley Baldwin prepared today to enjoy a well-earned leisure after handing over the premiership to Neville Chamberlain yesterday, the press continued to comment on the qualities and accomplishments of the retiring statesman.

In a signed article in the Daily Express, Lord Beaverbrook, Canadian-born publisher and one of Baldwin's closest friends, wrote in conclusion:

"At times it has seemed there are two Baldwins on the stage — but there was in fact only one, a well-meaning man struggling under judgment who, whether he did right or wrong was always sustained by the belief he was acting for the best."

Mr. Baldwin's successor also paid tribute "not to stint its applause" for his 14 years' record in high office since and the turn has lasted just fourteen years." He continued:

"The chief actor has given us our money's worth—not in statesmanship, but in solid gain to the public welfare, but in variety, in interest, in wholesomeness.

"What an extraordinary record of peaceful years, recurring of judgment, recoveries after deep disasters, sudden changes from ill fortune to good. It is well worth examining to see how he survived such vicissitudes there must be in his character some principle which knitted the paradoxes together.

Record Called Baffling.

"What will the historian make of the baffling record? He will look for a man embarrassed by the inconsistencies of his policy and the contradiction of his statements, but he will see that the man, for Baldwin has been all through remarkable for the calm assurance of attitude with which he has pursued one course—and then the opposite. The Flying Scotsman is a fine splendid a sight when it travels to Edinburgh and when it heads south to London."

VICTIMS OF FOOD POISONING LEAVE FOR FINAL OUTING

Five members of the family of C. F. Mallory, Trenton, who was admitted to Belleville General Hospital suffering from ptomaine, after alleged food poisoning resulting from the consumption of Bologna and weiner sausages, were discharged from hospital today, considerably improved in health.

Dr. G. S. Cronk, attending physician, declared today that another week's rest from the meal, and which were alleged to have greenish-colored flesh at the time of consumption, would be forwarded to the Ontario Department of Health for analysis.

NEWS BRIEFS AND ODDITIES

Niagara Falls, Ont., May 29 (CP)—Whatever you think up for the boiler for the first Maid of the Mist, Hilda Conrad which daily fights its way to the base of Niagara Falls, was designed and installed by William Oldham of Buffalo. This week another boiler was completed to be installed in Maid of the Mist No. 1, replacing one which has been in use 37 years.

New York, May 29 (AP)—Fireman John Salmasson found a two and one half year old boy wandering in the Bronx at 3 a.m. The boy wouldn't tell his name or where he lived.

At the station house, Sergt. Terry Donnally tried tact. He gave the lad some warm milk and then asked, with great kindness, for the name.

The boy meditated for some time then, triumphantly, announced: "Mickey Mouse."

They took him to Fordham Hospital for care.

Bethany, Mo., May 29 (AP)—Lloyd Cox, 21, of Pleasanton, has bought 20 acres of land at a Shrievalty sale. When Cowles was ready to sign the transfer papers, he found he needed cash. Sheriff H. L. McCollum gave him $2,866 in small bills.

That's why he carried the money instead of writing a cheque, Cowles pulled out the last line on an advertisement of the sale. It read:

"Terms—cash in hand."

NAZIS MAY MOVE TO SEVER CHURCH FROM THE VATICAN

Goebbels Accuses Clergy of "General Decadence of Morals"

DRASTIC MEASURES

Churchmen Threatened to Be Called to Testify Under Oath

Castel Gandolfo, Italy, May 29 (AP)—Pope Pius sent to German Catholics today a special blessing "in the midst of the very grave events" in the third Reich—the controversy between the Nazi state and the church.

Thus the Holy Father sought to fortify the church in Germany against a fierce attack by Dr. Joseph Goebbels, Nazi Minister of Propaganda, on the Catholic Clergy at home and abroad.

Berlin, May 29 (AP)—The virulent oratorical attack of Joseph Paul Goebbels, Minister of Propaganda, on the Catholic Church in Germany was believed today possibly to foreshadow a drastic move establishing a "reorganized" German Catholic Church completely severed from the authority of the Vatican.

Millions of Germans were stirred to intense speculation by Dr. Goebbels' speech, broadcast throughout the Reich last night, which threatened widespread expulsion of the Catholic clergy and accused the clergy of a "general decadence of morals".

The fast Reichsfuehrer Hitler's personal mouthpiece, Voelischer Beobachter, prominently displayed Goebbels' quotation of Napoleon concerning suppression of monasteries as a right to regain "treasures treasures were not fair off.

Calls Bluff.

The concluding words of the Nazi minister's unprecedented attack were a challenge to the clique of National Socialism's next move in its bitter dispute with the Catholic Church.

"I speak in the name of thousands of honest priests, who—as Cardinal Innitzer letters addressed to me yesterday indicate—view with heavy hearts the [illegible] decline in piety of the church,' said the government premier declared.

"I venture to express the hope that out of the midst of these very circles a regenerated and united church will come so quickly it won't be too late."

Reply to Address.

The German Catholic interested virtually to mean either the German hierarchy was being given a last chance to reform or that the church along lines amicable to the totalitarian state or [illegible] more complete already for a "regenerated" church from Rome.

Goebbels' speech was designed as a reply to the criticism of German church persecution of trials by Cardinal Mundelein of Chicago, but most of his time was devoted with threats against the entire Catholic hierarchy in words which some German newspapers said were directed at Mundelein's head straight at the Vatican.

Goebbels threatened to call high church officials under oath if they continued their "slander" of Nazi justice in criticizing the publication of [illegible] numerous churchmen on charges of sexual offenses.

MIGHT HAVE BEEN HIT

Toronto, May 29—(CP)—Elsie Buckell, 23, found unconscious in a ditch on O'Connor Drive last night, was reported in good condition in hospital i attendants today. The girl told police she was attacked and beaten by a motorist who feared a possibility she may have been hit by an automobile.

ROBERT SWEENEY NEW CHAMPION

Defeats Lionel Munn of Ireland in British Amateur Contest

Sandwich, England, May 29 — (AP)—Robert Sweeny, American-born resident of London, today won the British Amateur Golf Championship, defeating 50-year-old Lionel Munn of Ireland, 3 and 2 in the 36-hole final round.

Sweeny, known as "Blue" who has lived abroad, either in France or England, since he was 10 years old, lost the brilliant putting touch that had characterized his play during the early rounds of the match but he finally shook off the indomitable Irishman at the 30th hole where he went two up. After they had circled the 32nd and 33rd, the 25-year-old Sweeny finally ended the tussel with a 6-foot at the 34th. Safely on the green, the 6-foot putt tee at the 34th Sweeny spent minutes assuring that he wouldn't miss. Then he stepped up to the ball, lying 10 feet away from the cup, and calmly banged it in. Munn's efforts from almost the same distance hung on the rim.

Sweeny's victory gave the United States at least a technical claim to the championship for the third time in four years. Lawson Little won in 1934 and 1935. Hector Thomson, of Scotland, who won last year, withdrew from the 1937 tournament because of ill health.

MENTAL PATIENT DYING AFTER LEAP

Harold Bowman Leaps Through Window of Speeding Train

Hamilton, Ont., May 29 (CP) Harold Bowman, escaped Ontario Mental Hospital patient, who leaped through a window of a speeding train here Thursday, was reported "dying" today by hospital authorities.

Ontario Mental Hospital authorities said they were anxious to communicate with a Mrs. Robinson, sister of Bowman, believed living in London.

Bowman leaped from the train while passing through Ellis Island, N.Y., to Toronto. He was arrested in Florida after escape from the Queen Street Mental Hospital in Toronto.

Suffering internal injuries and a compound leg fracture, hope was expressed yesterday Bowman would recover. Today, however, he was reported "dangerously worse" and doctors expressed belief he would die.

CATERPILLARS IN MILLIONS

Sudbury, Ont., May 29 (CP) — Millions of tent caterpillars have appeared in Sudbury district within the few days but are not confining activities to trees on which they were hatched. Many trees were stripped of their foliage. It was expected it would be another week before the pests invade forests.

Shortage of Ministers Faced by United Church

Due to expansion of the work of the church following the development of the northern parts of the country, the United Church of Canada is facing a serious shortage of ministers, Rev. James Semple stated today.

This important question and possible remedial effects, will be studied at a special meeting of the Settlement Committee of the Bay of Quinte Conference, of which Dr. Semple is chairman, to be held in Bellville Tuesday, on Monday night. Rivers will be placed on the need of the Conference for ministers to fill seven vacancies in the Bay of Quinte District.

H. R. H. Rank Denied Mrs. Wallis Warfield By a King's Decree

Statement at Variance With Remarks of Former Premier Baldwin at Time of Abdication Says Daily Express —Duke of Windsor Retains Title of H.R.H. During His Lifetime—Title is Barred to His Wife And Children if Any

London, May 29 (CP)—Announcement Mrs. Wallis Warfield would be entitled to the style "Her Royal Highness" after she is married to the Duke of Windsor was described by the Times today as reopening "the burden of speculation and discussion" from the Duke's approaching wedding.

In an editorial entitled "an act of clarification", the Times said:

"They (the King's advisers) decision is in keeping with the tradition that right to the title of Royal Highness is confined at home, throughout the empire and elsewhere abroad is essentially the attribute of a potential successor to the throne—the Duke of Windsor himself remaining the special exception to the rule.

"It also accords with such parallels as are found in other official practice and should relieve the ceremony which is to take place in Windsor next week from some part of the burden of speculation and discussion that is settled upon it.

"Public interest in that event is inevitable; it may be past hope that the Duke of Windsor should be granted the privacy which is manifestly foremost in his own wishes and would in similar circumstances be claimed and enjoyed by ordinary citizens, but there can be neither public gain nor personal service in publicity heightened by unnecessary controversy."

Baldwin's Statement.

Some newspapers, however, found the announcement, made in the official London Gazette, as conflicting with former Prime Minister Baldwin's statement at the time of the abdication crisis that no such thing as morganatic marriage "is known to our law".

Lord Beaverbrook's Daily Express said "it is puzzling because Mr. Baldwin told the King Edward: 'If you marry her she will be queen'.

"It is curious," declared the Manchester Guardian, "that in the discussions on the subject of the exact designation of the Duke's future wife the letters patent of Queen Victoria

JUDGE IS 'COLD' TO 'HOT' DIALOGUE

Playing of Record Fails to Impress Judge in Divorce

New York, May 29 (CP) —Mrs. Roncoe Alis was granted a divorce and $30 a week alimony from her dancer-comedian husband Jeanie Alis testimony was only a grunted phone she heard when she listened to him his hotel room door one night last February.

Alis brought the gramaphone to Supreme Court with him yesterday and played the record, but Justice Samuel J. Hamm was unimpressed.

The comedian said he and his stage partner, Betty Lewis, had made a recording of their act to check up on our timing, elocution and [illegible] He said in his room listening to the record, he said he heard a voice he thought was two aunts burst in.

Mrs. Alis testified her estranged husband's face was covered with lipstick, and her brother said he saw a woman in bed with him.

The record, when played in court, brought the following dialogue:

He—"Your kisses burn."

She—"You're not ice."

He—"Oh, darling, you're gorgeous. You're so shapely. Lie in my arms and let me with the good eye. Tell me, do you love me?

She—"Yeh man!"

11 Year Girl, Dragged to Car, Escapes Clutches of Youth

School Girl's Experience is Told to Teacher Who Gives Alarm

WITNESS FOUND

Monkton, Ont., May 29 (CP) — Dragged from the Moncrief School House door to an old car by a ragged youth yesterday, 11-year-old Elaine Bateman escaped when her brother, James Machan, R.R. 3, Monkton, managed to escape from the youth, who struck him with a hammer, and the school a badly frightened girl.

Elaine told police she was carried from the class. She was at the entrance to the school when the youth seized her by the youth, she said. He dragged her out to an old car, told her to get in, but she refused. He warned that, if she didn't, "something terrible would happen". She ran back to the school, however, and told another girl school. The girl then told the teacher, Blair Shaw, and he notified the police.

A witness has been found, said to have been the young man loitering near the school and marks were seen afterwards which showed the girl had been dragged out to the road.

75 WORKERS TIE UP SILK PLANT

Strike is Suddenly Called at Sherbrooke Factory

Sherbrooke, May 29 (CP)—A suddenly-called strike of seventy-five workers today tied up the plant of Canadian Silk Products, Limited, manufacturers of knit and weaver.

The strikers, picketing the plant, kept other employees from going to work. Police were on hand to preserve union recognition, and better working conditions.

Members of the night shift, the strikers declared the walkout at the end of their trick and immediately circled the plant with pickets to bar the day workers.

Police Chief H. O. Cumrand dispatched a squad of officers to the plant gates, but there was no violence as the arriving workers were turned away.

Bottle of Beer Prince Brewed Drops by Parachute at Fete

Empire Air Day is Celebrated at One Hundred Stations

HANGARS VISITED

London, May 29 (CP)—A bottle of beer brewed by the Duke of Windsor when he was Prince of Wales in 1922 was dropped by parachute today from a Royal Air Force plane in an Empire Air Day display.

The beer, as 'provender for troops' figured in a public display of army equipment during the afternoon.

The bottle, tied with red, white and blue ribbons, was to be dropped later at auction to benefit Royal Air Force Benevolent Fund.

Displays were given at 100 Royal Air Force and Civil Air stations throughout the country, enabling invitations to see British aviation behind the scenes.

The day was organized by the Air League of the British Empire in cooperation with the Air Ministry, the proceeds will go to the Royal Air Force Benevolent Fund.

Besides being shown a display of various types of flying, visitors were conducted around the hangars, the workshops and recreation and living quarters of the stations.

CROLL TO RETURN TO LAW PRACTICE

Windsor, Ont., May 29—(CP)—David Croll, Ontario Minister of Labor-Welfare and Municipal Affairs until his resignation April 14, announced today he is returning to the practice of law with his brother, Cecil Croll here. Mr. Croll became a member of the Ontario Cabinet after the 1934 election, Croll has taken no active part in practising his profession.

Mr. Croll first sever connection with the law firm of Croll, Brody and Martin, which he created and of which he has been a member for many years. The new firm will officially open June 1.

'OLDEST MOTHER' DIES

Memphis, Tenn., May 29—(AP)—Mrs. Mary N. Rice, the United States "Oldest Mother," died last night at the age of 105 years.

Two daughters, who have lived with her for a number of years, Mrs. Alfred Dockery, 71, and Miss Pauzile B. Rice, 77, were with her.

The title of "The Nation's Oldest Mother" was conferred upon her by the Golden Rule Foundation in a survey conducted several years ago.

QUEEN GIOVANNA EXPECTS CHILD

Sofia, Bulgaria, May 29 (AP) — Court circles today disclosed that Queen Giovanna of Bulgaria is expecting the imminent birth of a child, possibly today, in Vrana Palace.

The Queen, the wife of King Boris III, was reported in excellent health.

King Boris and Queen Giovanna, married in 1930, have one child, Princess Marie Louise born in 1933.

A male child would be heir apparent to the Bulgarian throne. The Queen Mother is the daughter of King Vittoria Emanuele of Italy and Queen Elena.

WOMAN TRAMPLED BY HORSE

Guelph, Ont., May 29—(CP)—Mrs. R. Fris of West Township is in hospital here with serious injuries received when she was kicked and trampled by a horse as she entered a stall to feed the animal. Living alone, Mrs. Firis was forced to drag herself to a nearby road where she obtained the assistance of workmen.

TO FACE NEW TRIAL

Windsor, Ont., May 29—(CP)—Because an earlier jury could not reach a decision after four hours and 20 minutes of deliberation, Harper Gross, 36-year-old Jugo-Slavia resident of Kingsville, must face a new trial on a charge of manslaughter at the fall assizes. Meanwhile the question as to whether he will be kept in custody or released on bail will be in the hands of the Attorney-General's Department at Toronto.

JUDGE McLEAN IS PRESIDENT

His Honor, Judge Evan N. McLean of Picton has been elected with election as president of the County Judges Association of Ontario. Judge Waring of London, Ont. was elected First Vice President; Judge Costello, Second Vice-President and Judge Owens of Walkerton, secretary.

EXPECT HEAVY CROP OF HUCKLEBERRIES

Huckleberries will be a fine crop in the "flats" of North Hastings this fall, judging by the extra heavy growth of buds at present observed on the bushes. Favorable winter conditions and plenty of moisture this spring have been factors in promoting heavy growth, it is stated.

PERMIT GRANTED TO HOLD STREET PARADE

Liens 'n tigers 'n clowns, the shrill of the calliope and the smell of sawdust and tanbark.....all will be here in this city on Friday, June 26th, as well as the glitter and panorama of a regular street parade in the morning when Clarke Brothers circus comes to town on that date.

Application for the holding of a street parade by representatives of the circus this week has been granted by the office in charge of the show, while space on the old northside circus grounds near the Stewart-Warner Alemite plant will also be rented. A flat charge of $100 is being made for the privilege of using streets of the city for the parade.

EXPECT BIG ENTRY FOR KID KAR DERBY

According to the demand for entry forms which are now being distributed at offices of the Kid Kar city, it is expected that between 200 and 300 entrants will participate in the event which is being held on the morning of Dominion Day. This week and next the Firemen's Club sponsoring the Derby have distributed the forms through the public schools of the city.

A LIVE BUTTERFLY ADDS TO TRIMMING

Front Street pedestrians gazed at what they believed to be a live butterfly on hat trimmings yesterday afternoon when a gorgeous, apparently imitation Monarch butterfly was observed perched as a saucy angle on the black chapeau of a pretty lady who hurried along.

Closer inspection revealed the butterfly was not living specimen, embancing the effect of trimming by slowly opening and closing its wings.

The young lady evidently unaware of the addition to her headgear strode along oblivious of the stares of those she met and passed.

SAYS CORONATION WONDERFUL SIGHT

"Got the coronation job all done —and, incidentally, my all got a good soaking before getting back to our quarters. But it was a wonderful sight, and many of us had ever seen such crowds before," writes Company Sergeant Major Samuel Johnson of the local Argyll Light Infantry, this city's representative in the Coronation contingent, in a postcard received yesterday by C. J. Sifton.

"We are leaving for Canada on May 28th.—Cheerio," appended the message.

FRONT ST. PROPERTY BEING REMODELLED

A force of 32 men has been engaged this week on remodelling work on the upper Front Street property at the corner of Mayor Ellis Street, known as the Budvietser location. When finished the newly acquired property is expected to be one of the largest modern garages and car storage in this district.

CAN'T USE BRIDGE FOR SUNDAY ANGLING

Local fishermen who have in the past been wont to fish from the Hastings Bridge at Hastings Village picked on Sunday last the given warning that steps are being taken to halt this Sabbath angling by municipalities of the community.

"We intend to keep fishermen off the Hastings Bridge, if it takes the Provincial Police force to do it," Reeve Fairman of Hastings is reported to have warned.

Warnings similar to that previously been posted to this effect but were torn down last Sunday.

POLICE BLOTTER

Breaking out with renewed energy three major outbreaks were reported throughout the Belleville district last night, metal being the chief item reported stolen, although a large quantity of grain was also taken police reported.

S. F. Twiddy, Foxboro, complainant of persons having entered his barn and removed eight bags of oats and one bag of valuable seed wheat. Provincial Constable E. Smith is investigating.

For the third time this spring Harry Ketchenon, Trent Road, reported the loss of some valuable steel rails and metallic parts of boating equipment left in the vicinity of his summer lodge. The articles stolen were all used in connection with Mr. Ketchenon's summer aquatic activities, but were not missed until the season opened. Provincial Constable Wm. McIntyre was notified of the robbery.

County Constable James Lovelace, Bloomfield, requested the assistance of the local police constabulary in an effort to recover a large quantity of metal reported stolen in Picton last night. Included in the loot were three stoves, the metal wheels of a hearse, one hundred feet of copper wire and other metallic parts of farm implements. None of the above mentioned stolen goods had been located or recovered at noon.

DEGREE RITUAL WELL CARRIED OUT

Knights of Columbus Exemplify First Degree

Last night a special meeting of Belleville Council, Knights of Columbus was held to exemplify the First Degree for several new members.

The Degree was in charge of Past State Deputy A. B. Collins, assisted by District Deputy T. V. Scanlan and the officers of Belleville Council. A good turnout of members was on hand and the ritual of the First Degree was carried out in splendid manner by those in charge.

The Council was honored by the presence of State Secretary O. A. Tierney of Arnprior, who delivered a splendid address after the degree. He pointed out the splendid work the Knights of Columbus were doing for the advancement of higher education through the granting of scholarships.

The speaker pointed out to all present the watchword of the order—Charity. He expressed the hope that all those present would remember this and always carry out to their best ability this maxim which has in the past made the Knights of Columbus one of the biggest fraternal and charitable organizations in existence.

After the address the members were treated to smokes and refreshments. A major degree is being held in Peterboro and it is hoped as many as possible of the local members will meet at the club rooms on Front Street at 10 a.m. Sunday morning to go to Peterboro.

Two Youths Rescued Off Victoria Park

Norm Herring And J. Hindle Become Winded in Swim to Buoy

First rollne work for the year of the season was registered off Victoria Park shortly before three o'clock yesterday afternoon by Lifeguard Geo. Semark one day after his appointment on the park for the season by the local Board of Parks Commission.

Advised by excited shouts of bystanders that two swimmers were in difficulty in the deep water off the south end of the park, Semark, engaged in painting a section of the bath house at the time, leaped from his job on the ladder, and shedding his clothes as he ran, swam a distance of some seventy-five yards to a buoy where citing Norman Herring 18-year-old youth of 310 Albert street and James Hindle, 15 years, of 239 Ann street. The latter had previously swum out to aid his chum when it became apparent that the marking buoy had not sufficient buoyancy to support the first winded swimmer. Herring had previously managed to negotiate the distance to the buoy with some difficulty and had swallowed considerable water while attempting to keep afloat. Towed to shore, both lyrs were profuse in their thanks.

Lifeboat Needed

This year application has been made by the Lifeguards for the loan or punt of some sort with which to rescue too adventuresome swimmers, who nearly all are located from the water in varying stages of exhaustion and submersion and administered first aid and resuscitation. Last season nearly a score of near-fatalities were registered.

Triplet and Twin Tulips Grown

Tulip "triplets" size-black in color and a rarity in tulip circles "with three perfect blooms growing from one stem; other stems bearing five blooms of yellow and black, and the rare parrot tulip in varying colors were presented today to Mr. G. Ward, Oliver, a guest at the Hotel Quinte, by Miss Bernice Reid of Moncton View.

Of special interest and beauty was a "parrot" variety of tulip. These blooms derive their name from the fact that they bear the parrot colors of red, yellow and green. One particular bloom with the yellow predominating and streaked with splashes of vivid red and green measured over five inches petal spread. The petals of this peculiar bloom are long, with jagged fringed edges of alternating colors, somewhat with a background of scarlet, splashed with shades of yellow and green was also a thing of beauty.

3 MEMORIALS TO BE PRESENTED

Tablets From John Street Church Now in Bridge St. Church

Official presentation of the memorial tablets of the late R. D. Graham, David Sinclair and A. C. Norinrup, which survived the destruction of fire which destroyed John Street United Church last October will take place at Bridge Street United Church at eleven o'clock morning service, Rev. Dr. James E. Semple will be in charge of the service.

Formal presentation of the tablets which have been re-conditioned and restored to look former beauty, will be made by Mr. J. B. Pinkney, former clerk of session of John Street Church, and will be formally accepted on behalf of Bridge Street Church by Mr. F. S. Deacon, Recording Steward.

Addresses will be made by His Honor Judge George E. Deroche, Messrs. A. W. Cook and H. W. Ackerman, intimate friends of the deceased. Dr. Semple will preach the special sermon.

The tablets will occupy a prominent place on the east wall of the church near the main entrance of the edifice on Church Street.

Canning Company Buys Ten New Ford Trucks From Local Firm

Indisputable evidence of the rapid strides and progress being made in the canning industry in Prince Edward County this year was borne out yesterday when the Trudeau Motors Sales, of Belleville made delivery of ten new two-ton Ford trucks to branches of the Canadian Canners Ltd. located in that county.

The trucks were delivered at Wellington for distribution among the various plants of the company, in the district. Present indications point to a bumper crop of canning produce in the County Shire, and the above is the result of the canning company's pre-season preparations for handling it.

COURSE CHANGES ARE EXPLAINED

Beginning With Fall Term Word "Form" to be Changed to Grade

Drastic changes in secondary school curriculum announced recently by the Department of Education were explained by Principal P. C. MacLaurin last evening during the Auditorium period of B.C.I.V.S. "Open House". Mr. MacLaurin outlined in a very interesting manner the details of the new plan.

Beginning next fall, the term form will be designated by roman and grade, will be designated by in word 'grade'. The first year students will be grade nine, the final year grade twelve, with the former Upper School being known as grade thirteen. In September the new curriculum will be introduced and first year students will all take a general course which will embrace academic, vocational and commercial subjects. The second, third, and fourth years will continue as at present, but by 1941 the complete change will be effected. Pupils upon graduation from grade 13 will be granted a secondary school diploma, those completing the work of grade 13 will receive a secondary school diploma with honors which will permit entrance to universities, normal schools, schools of science, etc. Mr. MacLaurin illustrated the change in first year work by reading a sample timetable.

3RD SIDNEY

3rd Sidney—Mrs. Palmer, who has spent the winter with friends in Toronto and friends in New York City, has returned to the home of her daughter, Mrs. Arthur Saylor.

Miss Clara Adams and Miss Jean Hartford and Earl Ash, of Toronto, spent the holiday with their parents Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Adams.

Friends of Mrs. Henry Kells will be pleased that her condition has improved and she is now at her home. Her daughter, Mrs. Bill Laughlin of Belleville is with her for a couple of weeks.

Mrs. John Nile, Audrey and Norman are the week-end guests at the home of Mrs. Harley Hubble.

Mrs. and Mrs. Fraser Cook visited Mr. and Mrs. Fred Noakes, Belleville, on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. John Cooke spent the holiday week-end with relatives in Hamilton.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley May, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Burns Westover, motored to Toronto on Sunday and attended the Baptist Y.P.U. convention meeting in Massey Hall, in the evening where Miss Phyllis May was guest soloist.

Mrs. T. Irwin, Miss Aletha Perry, Mrs. A. Saylor, Mrs. A. Leslie, Mrs. Ewart Wilson, Mrs. Lee Wilson, Mrs. Wheeler, Mrs. Fred Westover and Mrs. E. Johnson attended the W.A. convention in Demorestville on Wednesday. Several ladies from the 3rd Line also attended. Mrs. E. Adams, Mrs. Fred Alkens, Mrs. J. Kells, Mrs. Gordon Wilson and Mrs. Harry Roblin attended from Centenary W.M.S.

The Young Leonard of Trenton spent the week-end with relatives here.

The Young Couple's Club held their social evening on Tuesday evening, when the boys supplied the ice cream and treats for all present. This was the closing meeting until the fall months. This group has been very active all winter and spring and deserve much credit for their splendid work among the Young People, also for supplying flowers for the sick, and beautifying the Church on the Sabbath with potted plants and cut flowers.

WIND-BLOWN FLUFF RESEMBLES SNOW STORM

Floating on the still morning air through the downtown section millions of gossamer balls of cattail fluff gave the appearance of an easy wind from nearby marshes, while the city presented appearance of experiencing a summer snow storm early this morning. Dark suits of Bankstreet men covered with the floating stuff, while apartment house blocks, office blocks, store and restaurant doors were closed to the whirling down. From the rural districts popular opinion was also being wafted on gentle winds during the night and the outside section the appearance also of a snow flurry. Waiters of the hay were in some sections carpeted with the pollen, caused to loosen early this year by continued moisture.

Glenora Ferrymen To Wear Uniforms

Resplendent in new uniforms, operators of the Glenora Ferry boats which will shortly go into operation at the Glenora Ferry, will add a touch of dignity and sartorial splendor to the crossing.

"The Department of Highways feels that the operators should be provided with some dignity of authority in order that passengers can distinguish officials from the travelling public," T. G. Bowerman, M.P.P. stated.

Four hundred cars were handled by the small boat now in operation over the weekend, and the increased traffic which has been so noticeable since the ferry was taken over by the government, will be satisfactorily handled by the new boats when they are completed, it is claimed.

Some of the Joys of Fishing In the "North Countree" as Related by 2 Local Anglers

An enforced stay of two days in the dubious comfort of a trapper's cabin due to torrential rainfall; ten hours of battling with muddy quagmires in an effort to extricate their car and trailer; a night spent in a mail-sacked tent with supplies nearly ruined—form parts of a series of thrilling adventures encountered by Jack McLaughlin and George Finch, local fishermen, while on a three-day fishing jaunt recently to the lakes of North Hastings.

Leaving the city at two a.m. on a Sunday the intrepid fishermen drove through a teeming rain to Maynooth, a small village 38 miles north of Bancroft, where they contracted two guides who accompanied them to a point two miles east of Whitney. Here they ran into their first trouble when the car broke down on a side road leading to the first of a series of lakes they intended to fish in. Through pouring rain they pushed and dragged the heavy car and trailer a distance of three miles before coming to the edge of the lake. Here they left the car, unloaded their supplies and embarked in a canoe to a point approximately five miles from Clear Lake, their ultimate destination. The rain still poured down. Through the foaming waters of narrows adjoining two small lakes they made their way.

After leaving the second lake they made the long portage of five miles through dense woods to their destination. Here their guides left them and returned to the car. Thinking all that day in the waters of Clear Lake brought exactly nothing so the crews of the now not so enthusiastic fishermen.

That night in the slight drizzle which was falling they made camp on a small island in the lake a short distance from the mainland. Before the pleasant glow of a camp fire they had their evening meal on the rocky shore.

Rain Spoils Their Haul.

Then, fully clothed they crawled into their tent which they erected on a point of the island, and soon fell asleep. Awakened shortly after one o'clock by the howling of the wind they discovered the rain which again fell in torrents had caused the tent to shrink some ten inches. Water ran in small streams across the "floor" of the tent. It dripped in large drops on their bodies. Their supplies were soaked and nearly ruined. In the dull grey of the dawn, they attempted to light a fire to dry their clothes, but met with no success. Finch had an inspiration.

"We will cook breakfast over the gasoline stove we brought," he said out, then discovered he had left the most important part of the stove at home.

"We were cold and wet," said McLaughlin, "and bitterly regretted the fact that we did not join the Boy Scouts when we were young."

Huddled together behind a hurriedly constructed windbreak of boughs on the rainsoaked beach they breakfasted on bread and cheese. Then over the spume-crested waves of the lake which were whipped into foaming combers by the young gale which was blowing came a birch bark canoe.

Handling the light craft with the dexterity of the born trapper, the 24-year-old Jacob Sayres, sang out a cheerful welcome as he neared the camp on the island.

"Friend or foe," McLaughlin stated afterwards, "no one could have been more welcome than that trapper."

Making himself known, the aged trapper learning of the nature of the trip offered to take them where the grey beauties were plentiful—for a price.

"We agreed," McLaughlin said, "as we intended bringing back fish at any price."

Sayres led them overland on a long portage to Hay Lake, carrying the heavy dunnage and canoe, in all a weight of nearly three hundred pounds on his sturdy shoulders. Through wet undergrowth they plunged on the way. Now and then the long boat in the canoe would scrape on the old fellow said out on occasionally. Puffing under the heavy load of a fishing rod and tackle the intrepid fishermen sacked him to slacken his pace. Shortly after in a brief respite of dry weather they launched their canoe on the lake and, trolling, soon had considerable number of gray trout, some of which weighed in the vicinity of six pounds. A few speckled beauties also graced their creels at the end of the day.

The Joys of a Trapper's Cabin.

Accepting an invitation to visit the trapper's cabin, the fishermen thought soaked adventurers sank to a well earned rest in the comparative comfort of the ice building. There was no air hole between the logs," one stated, "but that cabin was a veritable palace to us. We had our dinner and dined off deer meat the trapper's home-made bread made from flour, which he packed in by water. Honestly think one could drive a nail into it, but we ate it in order not to hurt his feelings.

Came the darkness, but no lights. "I never saw lights there," said Sayres, "I go to bed with the darkness and get up with the sunrise." The fishermen, however, got a flashlight, for a few minutes, then curling up in blankets which were hardly dry, fell asleep on the hard floor of the cabin.

For nearly two days they enjoyed the trapper's hospitality, while leaden skies dulled the surroundings with rain.

But it was with dire misgivings that they set out on the return journey. Knowing the terrible condition of the roads leading to the lake they conjured mental visions of what the road must be like following three days of additional rain. They eagerly accepted the offer of the trapper to accompany them as far as the spot where they left their car.

"Here our troubles really started," laughed McLaughlin. "The mud in the road must have been a foot deep. However, we finally got the bus started and away we went on the journey to the Whitney highway. Then with a wheezing and groaning the car gave up the ghost, and with a sound that reminded me of a song-swan sigh, settled peacefully down to its wheel-hubs in the greasy slimy mire. We were forced to use fence rails to jack up the end of the car. The trapper worked like a trojan digging and scraping mud. I don't know how he stood it. We finally got the car the length of itself, drew the trailer behind it, when the dog-gone thing settled in the mud again. And all our efforts to move it were fruitless."

Alongside the narrow road was a broad ditch. George stuck a pole about ten feet in length in it and the thing disappeared from view. Below me, we stayed close to the cave of the narrow track after that."

Heavy Slogging Through Mud.

For ten hours they coaxed and cajoled the car and trailer through a veritable sea of mud, pushing pulling and straining as the heavy vehicles labored in the heavy going", before reaching the highway which would lead them to Whitney and some semblance of comfort.

Here they bade adieu to Sayres, their trapper friend. Turning to make a hazardous return journey, the aged trapper waved them a cheery good-bye with the words that he was going home and go to work.

But their troubles were not yet over. The heavy rains of the past few days had flooded parts of the highway. Through large ponds of water they steered their car, and it was in the middle of one of these that the engine "seized". Stuck hopelessly in the centre of the large pool of water they were forced to wait for some hours until an automobile came along which took them into Maynooth. There they despatched garagement to tow the car and trailer to the village.

"Never again," grinned McLaughlin, "henceforth I'll do all my fishing in a spot nearer home. We got some splendid fish, and saw a lot of the country but the war and tear is too much for me."

MARRIAGE BILL PASSES HOUSE

Not Likely to Pass in House of Lords Unless Amended

(By Edwin Johnson
Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, May 29.—(CP. Cable)—The Marriage Bill, which its sponsor, A. P. Herbert, introduced to remove the "indecent, hypocritical, cruel and unjust marriage laws of the country," was given third reading in the House of Commons yesterday.

A majority of members abstained from the division but the vote of 190 to 27 sends the bill to the House of Lords where it is expected it will either be thrown out or drastically amended.

Under terms of the bill no divorce will be obtainable within five years of marriage but after that time a divorce may be granted on the grounds of adultery, desertion, cruelty or incurable insanity. New grounds for the nullity of marriage are introduced and provision is made for the presumption of death in cases of missing parties to a marriage.

TRIPLETS BORN LIKELY TO LIVE

Tiny Daughters of French-Canadian Mother in Perfect Health

Chicoutimi, Que., May 28—(CP)—New-born triplets thrived today under the watchful eye of a doctor and nurse while their still-surprised parents looked about for new room among their sizeable brood.

The three tiny daughters of Mrs. Victor Gagne were "in perfect health" and likely to live, according to their doctor, and so was the 37-year-old mother who gave birth to them yesterday.

The multiple births — on the eve of the Dionne quints' third birthday — provided surprise in the Gagne household, though scarcely amazement. For the sturdy French-Canadian housewife had already borne four sets of twins, two of whom are now dead.

Ten children still remain to the Gagnes, though, with the new additions.

The triplets were Quebec's third set of large-scale births this year. Two sets of quads — the Rondeaus at St. Thomas De Joliette and the Martels of Montreal — have been born since the new year, but of them the only survivor is one of the Rondeau girls.

Rawdon and District

Rawdon, May 29—Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Holmes, Edwards, spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. John Holmes.

Mrs. Irvin Reid spent few days last week with relatives in Campbellcroft.

The Fourth Line School under the direction of their teacher, Mrs. M. Hayton held a very interesting program on Empire Day when the Hird Club and Junior Red Cross Club staged a combined program stressing peace, and patriotic choruses and songs and bird life.

Miss Mary Morrison, president of the Junior Red Cross Club, presided for the first part of the program with Miss Helen Plickett as secretary. This program was prepared by Vincent Ryan, Gordon Richardson, Donald Deveney and Marie Ketchison.

The main feature was an Empire Day play given by the senior girls and a special song was sung for each country as the various scenes were depicted. Readings, stories and recitations of a patriotic nature were given and a splendid display of pictures of the Coronation ceremony and the Royal Family were shown.

In the art period the pupils used the Union Jack and the British flag together as a copy for their work.

When the school opened in the morning the pupils sang "O Canada" and gave the salute to the flag.

Following the patriotic program Miss Dorothy Clay, chairman of the Junior Red Cross Club with Miss Marie Ketcheson as secretary presented a short program giving much information about birds.

The program consisted of readings, recitations and bird songs.

The afternoon service closed with "The National Anthem."

On Arbour Day each pupil had a part in planting a Royal Oak seedling and three acorns from Windsor Forest.

The men of the section pledged thirty trees, fifteen evergreens and fifteen elm and ash and to date all but three are living.

In the coming years this school yard will be one of the prettiest in Rawdon Township.

Mrs. Lucinda Heath who has been holidaying at Marmora returned to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Heath.

Several Rawdon ladies attended the Women's Association district convention at Demorestville on Wednesday.

From Rawdon circuit Rev. and Mrs. J. E. Bechel; from Wellman's Mrs. John Heagle, Mrs. Clifford Clancy and Mrs. John Raabie; from Bethel, Mrs. Harold Ellis, Mrs. Lois Heath, Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Tucker, Mr. and Mrs. C. U. Heath, Mrs. Jas. Warren, Mrs. Charles Dracup, Mrs. S. Gumsett from Springbrook, and Mrs. W. A. Bateman, Mrs. Walter Heath, Mrs. A. T. Williams and Mrs. Carman Sine.

The reports of the three societies were given by Mrs. John Heagle, Mrs. W. A. Bateman and Mrs. R. C. Tucker.

Mrs. Harold Elliott rendered a vocal solo "In the garden of tomorrow" with Miss Lois Heath as accompanist.

Mrs. Harold Elliott was appointed treasurer and Mrs. John Heagle a member of the committee.

Mr. Frederick Beckett opened Wellman's Young People's Society and the audience read responsively "The I am's of Christ".

Mr. Howard Wallace presided over the program. Rev. J. E. Bechel gave the topic dealing with missions. Several hymns were sung and Mr. Loree Watson staged a "car contest".

The meeting closed with prayer, notings for the summer months on Sunday, June 6, when they are preparing for the prophetic Sabbaths of the pastor to conference.

SOUND ALARM FOR BANDIT

Edmonton, May 28—(CP)—Royal Canadian Mounted Police here sounded a general alarm today for a bandit, believed to be a member of the gang that in the past six days has netted $1,775 cash in seven break-ins, who held up Phillip Wachowich in his general store at Opal and clubbed him when he resisted.

Dazed and bleeding from gashes about the head and body, the merchant informed the police of Opal, 40 miles northeast of here, Half an hour later, R. C. M. P. in fast patrol cars combed the area.

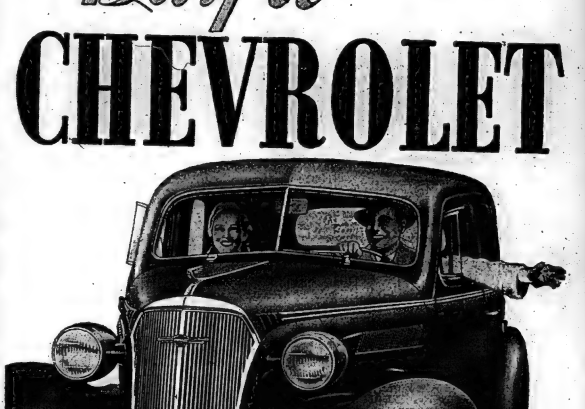
Londoners Greet Return of Buses On Regular Runs

London, May 29—(CP-Havas)—Double-decked red buses ran through the streets of the British metropolis today as workers ended a month-old strike.

A small garage tottered before the Hammersmith bus garage to see the first run start. Spectators cheered as bus No. 11 swung out of the doors and started its trip to Liverpool Street.

"London is itself again," said an official of the London Passenger Transport Board. "Everything is normal."



Maintenance workers in the garages had been affected by the strike, and the buses were kept in good trim during their enforced vacation.

Office workers who for four weeks had been getting to their jobs as best they could resumed their usual wait at the bus stops which, when, after being too literally true, had taken on their normal meaning.

Driven by necessity, some passengers had found convenient street car or subway connections and said they had no intention of returning to the buses. A majority however, greeted the return of the familiar red vehicles with a sign of relief.

W. R. MORTON, PUBLISHER

FAREWELL TO BALDWIN

Having passed through the strain of some of the most difficult years in modern history, Stanley Baldwin has resigned the prime minister's post and retired to private life. The very sign of the times is the united voice of the British press which placed aside party consideration to pay glowing tribute to his services to the Empire. If there were needed any proof of the heavy burdens on the prime minister in these past few years, here it is. Newspapers hailed him as typifying the best in British character both as leader and man.

The Times says: "Freedom from the daily strain of party leadership will give him the strength and time for those occasional utterances in which he has again and again and never more than in these last few months, revealed himself as the authentic spokesman for this nation. On occasions he reached the heights of national leadership attained by few of his predecessors. He has contrived to combine the guise of almost rustic simplicity with rare political acumen an apparent indifference to criticism, with an uncanny power of routing the enemies in his own good time and the conversational style of expression with the genius of a bard for moving his audience."

The Telegraph (Conservative) says that no one has achieved serious or even grave political mistakes with such astonishing speed and smoothness. He has been at once fortune's darling and her favorite child. We have to thank Mr. Baldwin for saving us from the stark choice between Fascism and Communism, finally to democracy, and last December for preserving the crown from the danger in which it might have miserably foundered or have ceased, from general discsteem, to be the bond of union of the British commonwealth of nations.

"There is enough old fashioned morality still left in the British people to make them rejoice the democracy accepts such men as leaders."

The News Chronicle (Liberal): "We should have to search a long way in our political annals to find a parallel case of a Prime Minister who resigns without the slightest compulsion of ill health or defeat. To judge by present indications Mr. Baldwin could, if he chose, remain Prime Minister until his dying day. Everybody, without exception of party, will wish him many years of contentment with the books and country scenes he loves."

The Daily Mail: "Mr. Baldwin has carried on undaunted and steadfast through all the upheavals that have tested his leadership. Each ensuing year of office has made the nation more familiar with his qualities."

The Liverpool Post (Liberal): "None can say Mr. Baldwin has been a strong or vigorous party leader. Nor can it be said his selection and control of colleagues were all they might have been. Yet Mr. Baldwin gave a very individual interest to national life. The political world certainly will not be the same without him. It is with regret, therefore, that we find ourselves face to face with the fact of his retirement."

The Yorkshire Post (Conservative): "In Mr. Baldwin there passes from the House by far the most widely known, most respected and most readily understood interpreter of practical democratic government. The torch which he hands on for others to carry is in very truth the torch of liberty. He has held it high, confidently and with conviction, through a period in which it has been the butt of ignorant satire and the object of malevolent intrigue or vindictive jealousy."

ONTARIO AND MOTORS

Ontario spends far more on motor vehicles than any other province. Last year there were 618,082 registrations of passenger cars, commercial cars, motor cycles, trailers and buses in Ontario while in Quebec, the next largest of the provinces there was a total of 181,628 registrations.

Ontario had 514,211 passenger cars last year, providing accommodation for practically every resident in the province a seat in a car while there are about one hundred and four thousand other registrations, commercial cars 70,593 , motorcycles 4,553, trailers 27,930, and busses 695

The total of trailers is one of the surprising facts.

How Ontario has become motorized is indicated very clearly in these facts. The motor industry with the accessories trade is one of the great industries of this province. Push enterprise and the trend of times have made it so.

OUR FORMER BOY SCOUT WAR CORRESPONDENT "BING" HAYES, cables from Watertown, New York, that the international bridge over the Thousand Islands project is going great guns and sends a report of a banquet tendered the promoter and engineer as reported in the Watertown, Times. "Bing" who since he has reached man's estate is entitled to be called by his real name Charles Hayes, opines that the building of the bridge is very important to Belleville folks and will be capable of bringing much business this way. Hooray, says we, the more business the merrier, but we will be glad to meet our Yankee cousins who come here by the bridge route and help them to have a good time whether they spend little or much money or none at all. However, lissenin on what Bing says:

"I read your SIDELIGHT of May 22nd in regard the Thousand Island International bridge. I am enclosing local newspaper clippings for you. The bridge is a real thing, bonds have all been sold and money on deposit in local banks. Work has been started. This bridge will mean a lot for Belleville and the Bay of Quinte, as Belleville offers the best scenic surroundings in the province of Ontario and the local Chamber of Commerce should get busy, on being prepared to draw thousands to the Bay of Quinte district. There are nearly seven thousand Canadians living in this area, and they will all want to drive home from the north ends for visits. Same as the Canadians flocked here yesterday by the thousands to shop.

Bing Hayes.

OUR NEIGHBOR TO THE SOUTH, PICTON, may not be as large as Belleville, Kingston, Toronto and other way stations, but it sure measures up in ambition, the will to do things, and community spirit. An evidence of that can be seen in the window of Carl Read's Home Appliance Store, 225 Front Street, where the magnificent gold trophy cup for speed boat competition is now on exhibition. This trophy is for annual competition and is beautifully designed and outstanding in every way, the cost of which is five hundred dollars. Picton is celebrating its centennial, and just to show that its hundred years has not left it decrepit, but rather full of force and vigor and facing the second hundred years with greater determination to go on to greater places and be known as not just another dot on the map. The gold trophy will be competed for at the Prince Edward Yacht Club regatta to be held June 30th and July 1, two gala days in Picton for which an attractive and diversified program is being arranged.

BELLEVILLE REDMEN WINNING THAT HOCKEY CUP must have flabbers who reside in Toronto for they moped for the cup arrived here with the silver plate acknowledging the victory of Belleville placed on the cup base upside down. Now Toronto sports may be shortsighted on some things, and liable to see double on occasion, but to put a silver plate on a trophy cup base upside down—we want to know—whether this upside down stuff is intended for insult, or whether it is just the Tronto rush and rustle which purposed to have the cup in a hurry and then when it gets there wonders what it came for, and why.

WHEN THE FLEET IS IN AND THE MARINES GET ALL LIT UP ON SHORE LEAVE everything is lovely and the goose hangs at the yardarm—but it is a different thing altogether when the whole fleet gets lit up as was broadcast over the air waves by a British wireless commentator who evidently had had one peg too many. Belleville bard takes advantage of the situation by offering the following rhyme:

When the fleet is in England
Oh, to be in in England
Now the fleet is there
For whoever wakes in England
Sees, some evening unaware,
THAT THE BRITISH FLEET IS ALL LIT UP,
The admirals all sing "Buttercup"
And the Navy's having all the luck
In England——now!

What do our neighbours think of us when they come to visit us?

The Canadian Travel Bureau has the answer to that one. Thousands of letters pour in every year after the tourist season, praising and criticising.

The great majority of the letters, it should be said, are favorable, and among them the Bureau gets some compliments as the following, which came from Logan, Utah:

"I cannot speak too highly of the fine French courtesy and kindness of the people we met in Montreal and Quebec. I have not found (with the exception of my own home town in Utah), a more serenely beautiful spot than the Quebec province. Its charming old world atmosphere and culture stay with one long after he has left it. Quebec has much to teach all of this maddened world. Its wholesome simplicity, and its charming people 'get you.'"

x x x

Even more laudatory was the letter from a lady of New York City, "Accomodations could be obtained, you could desire, courtesy shown everywhere. Would like to express my appreciation and courtesy and patience of traffic officers. The customs men at the border were exceedingly kind and considerate, and I think Uncle Sam is a very fortunate gentleman to have such a pleasant and peaceful neighbour to the north. Also for the police officers, they certainly "sell Canada" to the tourists from the States—no question about it. Am moving to answer, no detail too small to explain. Have become Canada Conscious."

x x x

However, any time Canada's tourist authorities get too cocky about Canadian courtesy, they should look up their files and contemplate another letter from a lady who lives from Detroit, who wrote D. Lee Dolan, director of the Canadian Travel Bureau, in part, as follows:

"I have never had a more disagreeable and unpleasant trip. The trips was my honeymoon, so you can imagine my regret that we wasted the time and money in Canada. We stopped at Hotels and Tourist Cabins. Your hotels are old and dingy, and the cabins are like army barracks or camps are discourteous. Particularly disagreeable is their habit of locking all the doors shortly in the morning so a guest cannot warm a little water for his personal shave and cleansing.

"The weather Canada was all we could stand. We had intended to go around the Gaspe Peninsula, but we turned back and came by Detroit as fast as traffic laws would permit, as we were so disgusted after getting about 150 miles past Quebec city. If you would spend your time and money telling your own people to be courteous to their guests instead of soliciting for more tourists, you would profit far more."

A letter like that is so exceptional that one doesn't like to leave the subject with a bang like that. It was the very next letter on the file, from a Bellefonte, Pennsylvania visitor, and it's quite antidote. He wrote, simply:

"I have been in very much pleased with the courtesy and general good-will that I have crossed the border 24 times, and hope to make two trips this coming summer!"

Mrward James Young, the Saskatchewan dirt farmer who has now become chairman of the Industry and Labor Board of Ontario, after a brief experience on the National Employment Commission, knows at first hand both the carpenter's bench and the handles of a walking plow. He sold papers as a little nipper on the streets of Winnipeg and saw the troops leave for the "Saskatchewan Rebellion" in 1885. He knew his way through High School and Normal, taught school, and was in the employ of Manchee and Mann, the railway contractors, at one time. He has been on a famous royal commission and spent ten years in parliament. So he knows a thing or two, at least, in varied experience.

When Mr. went out to his homestead west of Weyburn very early in the present century, he brought with him four horses, because they were cheaper than horses, a walking plow and a "gang" plow. The latter, "homesteader's shack", of single ply lumber, 12 feet by 14 feet, cost him $21 says, he put another ply of boards on the shack, and he was a "proved up" man. All so, for that was the year of the "Big Winter" when the snow fell and never still talk about.

It snowed about three feet in one storm in November and when the furious winter blizzards began to blow, some of the settlers were buried for the winter, with only the smoke from their chimneys through the drifts to show where the dwelling was. Or that's how Mr. tells it.

"Sir," present wheat farm is on the whole lower than the land we viewed, like all his neighbors, through fall and early winter conditions. When the 'black blizzards' were at their worst several years ago, 'Sir' said—"You could write a letter with storm windows off in the spring, for fear the wind would blow into your house." That was not just rhetoric, either, because five or six inches of dust on a field did blow into his farm yard and it took him days with a shovel to dig out to put the silt back where it belonged.

LOOKING BACKWARD

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BY-GONE YEARS

30 YEARS AGO

May 29th, 1917.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Gilbert, Mrs. S. H. Gilbert and Mr. and Mrs. Myers Gilbert have returned home after spending a week with the latter's camp near Arden.

Lieut. Josephine Gibson, honor graduate Victoria University, left today to join the company of Victorian Overseas Nurses and has enlisted for fruit farming at Winnipeg.

Mrs. C. W. Huyck of Tweed spent yesterday in the city.

Lad named Harold McConnell was thrown from his bicycle last evening when the latter became tied with a car on Front Street near Pinnacle. His lad was not injured, bus his bicycle was damaged considerably.

Mrs. T. B. Fairbairn, who has been at the Pacific Coast for the past twelve months, is now in the city visiting at the Sisson Homestead, accompanied by their cousin, Mrs. Mattae of Moosomin, Branch Park, Fort Qu'Appelle, Sask.

30 YEARS AGO

May 29th, 1907.

Mayor Chester D. Sulman is spending today at Toronto on business.

Mr. M. B. Morrison, M. P. P., Trenton, was in town today.

Mrs. W. J. Campbell, West Bridge Street, is visiting friends at Peterboro and places in that vicinity.

Mrs. William Robertson has returned to Chicago, after visiting friends here.

Mrs. James Bowatson of Bay View Farm, Massassaga, left today for Menominee, Mich.

Mr. Percy Owen, who has passed his examinations at the College of Pharmacy, Toronto, is home for a home.

Mr. George Wallon was in Toronto yesterday on business.

Mr. A. Parker, formerly manager of the Bank of Montreal here, now of Hamilton, Ont., is spending a short time in the city.

The application for a charter for power bridge from Bay of Quinte at or near Belleville will be before the Private Bills Committee of the Dominion Council. The town of Trenton is bitterly opposed to the bridge and has sent a strongly worded petition to the Government in opposition to the application. It will depends upon the action of our citizens, as represented in the city Council and in the Board of Trade, whether the petition will have any weight with the committee or not. If these representative bodies are prompt and send a strong remonstration to Ottawa's to explain the reasons why the bridge would not have to navigation, the result will be favorable to the best interests of the city. If they fail in this particular the result may be anything but satisfactory. It is confidently expected of the council that they will show a little enterprise and progress in this question at their meeting on Monday night.

Sergt. Thomas Downs found his black horse dead in a buggy in front of Gauthier's Hotel at seven o'clock this morning. The owner could not be found and the horse was taken to the city stable at the Queen's Hotel.

SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK

By R. J. SCOTT

The Feminine Vagabond

The police of Sudbury and worried parents in Burlington, Ont., are at a loss to know what to do about the case of Joan Victoria Smith, seventeen-year-old high school student, who was found in a coal car at Sudbury and stated that she wanted to get to Vancouver and did not want to go back to her home. She was a trespasser in the coal car, however, and the policeman in the case felt he had all the right in the magistrate decides what shall be done with the girl and has her escorted back to her home.

The question arises, what good will that do. The babe has been become almost as attractive to women as to men. The long continued hard depression has been characterized by a wave of hobohism that has swept many women into its tide. Perhaps it is not so marked in Canada as in the United States, but thousands of irresponsible young girls are drifting about the country, hitch-hiking on the highways, riding on freight trains with male companions, or tramping on country roads, following the kind of life that was familiar years ago in the professional tramp.

In Canada, there are a number of girl hobos and they are a problem to the authorities. Canadian ideas of womanly propriety have not become addicted to the spectacle of school girls wandering about the country, consorting with the flotsam and jetsam of male tramps and generally surrendering all the admirable traits usually associated with womanhood. Nevertheless, it seems to be a development of the age that women en show some of the restlessness exhibited by men. They have invaded the manifold fields of male activity ways and it is presumed that it is logical that they should share the inconvenient realities of hobohism. But that is a forbidden conception and women are to come down to it are to be pitied. Wandering aimlessly about the country, disheveled and filthy in bed enough in the case of male derelicts. Women in that role are positively unthinkable and yet a considerable number in Canada have taken to the highways and byways and constitute a puzzling problem for the communities along the way. Some of them have adopted that kind of life because they were out of work and had no means of support. Others are in it as a reckless adventure but many of them are forced into the hardships of transportation or the horrors of local jails.

When the "Mountie" Danced

The Ottawa Journal summarizes from The Star published in far away Johannesburg the story of a royal mounted ranger who had a fight in jungle and purported to be a true story. The title was, "The Mounted Police Officer, Their Manner and the author, a "soldier of fortune," who once had been a Mountie. It really makes one gasp, and has the penny thriller beaten forty ways.

The summary as given in The Journal:

This constable, as he tells the tale, one morning was called to the office of Inspector Blake, and a hard job for him. "Lead me to it, Sir," replied the constable, "I've been in some hell-bent corners in my time and you've got me the right one it through." He was told to find one, One-Shot Dick, bring him in. Dick was a fellow who became insatiable. Alive, he was told.

Well, after a search out and found One-Shot Dick in a saloon—a surly brute armed with a couple of guns; a drinking, gambling desperado who shot down before the constable could get a fellow who accused him of cheating at cards. Then the Mountie went into action, and fired "from the hollow" Dick's gun from his hand. "Stick 'em," he ranged, "you'll scatter you all about the floor." Dick stuck 'em, but as he raised his arms, neatly drew an emergency revolver from under the back of his collar. The shoe then was on the other foot. The constable dropped his "hardware" and with a well pretty punch laid Dick cause of law and order, "You durn ed swine," roared the constable at the gunman. "I'll get you for this if I don't."

One-Shot Dick said he wanted to see the Mountie dance and began shooting close to his feet. Bang. Bang. Bang. The constable danced, but counted the shots. Dick had fired six. Six cartridges had been emptied, and then the other. Then came the chance.

Slang, at the swelfth explosion I leaped higher than ever and as I came down I struck out, and one after the other, Dick's guns clattered to the floor. I got my feet out and caught the giant on the point of the jaw. A look of surprise came into his face, he reeled, he fell, a crumpled heap on the floor.

"Well, you've got a good silent crowd, you've seen a Mountie dance."

Commissioner Sir James H. MacBrien, K. C. B., C. M. G. must have got a very fearful look out of that summary as he read it in his favorite paper at headquarters in Ottawa. The neatest trick in the history of the Mountjoie, who "always get their man."

Taking Care of the Seventies

Health Service of the Canadian Medical Association

In the Dominion of Canada in 1934, more deaths from tuberculosis occurred from 20 – 34 years of age than any other time of life. There were 857 such deaths. Of these 333 were young men and 524 young women. From the peak — 20 34 years of age — 857 deaths, they fall away more in young women on? We do not know. Do they not get as much milk, as good food, as much rest, as their brothers?

From 15 to 19 years there were 608 deaths. From 35 to 39 years there were 782 deaths. The number increased up to 55 years of age and decreased after 56 years of age.

Why are there most deaths from tuberculosis in the early years? Why does school life not stamp the enormous demands that growth makes on the strength and vitality of the individual have been too much for these young Canadians. They need better care and better food. Did they get plenty of fresh air? Did they stay too late at night, and they having too much excitement?

Certainly nutrition has a great deal to do with this question. We are now beginning to understand the importance of nutrition and the real protection which good food gives. Milk is a food for the young to give up taking milk. Take it as a drink or in food. Vegetables, especially green vegetables, as well as fruit.

As a rule, we should always partake of all the foods on the family table so that we get a balanced meal. And eating regularly, and not too slowly, and chewing food well are of prime importance. Swallowing food in large pieces deprives one of part of its power to nourish us. Take your weight every month and keep a record of it.

The periodical Health Examination by a physician is a great safeguard and even if the young Canadian is perfectly well, he or she should have this medical examination before reaching the early twenties. Such an examination, as we now know, must always include an X-ray film of the head. It is the only way to be sure that the insidious enemy, tuberculosis, is not harboured there.

Deaths in the Canadian cemeteries from tuberculosis are not more than half what they were about 1910. In many Provinces they are not more than one-fifth of what they were in 1910. But take care of the Twenties. Keep up good general health, and tuberculosis will some day be as rare in Canada as it ought to be.

Questions concerning Health, addressed to the Canadian Medical Association, 184 College Street, Toronto, will be answered personally by letter.

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma and Puds Simkins and Lucky Leroy Shoester was wawking along just wawking along, and Lucky Leroy said, O, look what I see, good eats.

Meening 2 horse shoes laying rite on the poyment in back of somebody's front yard and Puds said, Well O, there's only 2 of them and there's 4 of us.

How about cutting up to see who gets them? I said, and Leroy Shoester said, Aw, you cant Puds can have them, I'm so darn lucky sumpin always gets me.

O, thanks, Lucky, I feel lucky already, so do I, thanks, me and Puds said.

And me and him each picked one and we all kept on going and half ways down the block somebody said, hay, where you guys going with them horse shoes?

Being a big turf looking kid in a great sweater sweater he had full of something as if he was coming home from a errand, and me and Puds said, We found them, and he looked at us out on the payment, why, what's a matter?

You found them in back of my house, he said, and Puds each took a quick push in the face and took the horse shoes and kept on going, and he said, Hay, you, I see, they was lucky all rite, lucky horse shoes, see?

Sure they was lucky, Leroy Shoester said, if they wasn't lucky this would never of fell out of his bag while he was pushing your faces, and I wouldn't give it back to anybody with a disposition like that said.

Meening a swell looking red apple, and he started to eat it when we got ot the next block, giving me and Puds each a little bite a half when remembed him he never would of got it if li hadn't of been in contributing our faces to be pushed.

Tweed and District

Tweed, May 29—The funeral of the late James Whalen, prominent resident of Stoco, was held on Tuesday morning from his late home to St. Edmund's Roman Catholic Church where Rev. Father J. Meagher conducted Requiem Mass. Assisting priests were Dean D. A. Cullinane, Tweed, Rev. Father P. Shillman, Enterprise, Rev. Father W. J. Klein, Flinton, Rev. Father G. Hackett, Trenton, Rev. Father J. Collins, Belleville, Rev. Father Clayton Lesage, Otter Creek, Rev. Father W. Nesley, Napanee.

The deceased was born in East Hungerford in 1860, a son of Thomas Whalen and Margaret Coughlin. He has spent almost his entire life in Hungerford Township where he was a successful farmer. For a few years he resided at Big Rapids, Mich.

Surviving are his widow, formerly Bridget Agnes Cassidy, three sons, Joseph and Stafford, of Stoco, and Rev. Father Francis Whalen, Madoc, and two daughters, Bernadette at Stoco and Mrs. Frank Phelan, Marlbank. Two brothers, Daniel of Maynooth and Patrick of Stoco also remain.

The following were the pall bearers: Ernest Courneyea, Charles Rush Thomas Durkin, John Hinch, Patrick Mulrooney and William Kelly. Interment was at Stoco.

Miss Lois Ketchem entertained a number of friends on Wednesday evening at a shower in honor of Miss Dorothy Barnett, June bride-to-be, who received many useful and lovely gifts. The parcels were brought into the drawing room in a small automobile, where they were opened by Miss Barnett, who thanked her friends for their thoughtfulness. The evening was spent in bridge and monopoly.

Mr. Ross Kraus, manager of the local branch of Tweed Sterlite Store, has been notified of his transfer to Cannington. He was succeeded by Mr. Macbeth. The transfer will become effective June 4. The regret will be in the nature of an advancement to Mr. Kraus who is receiving the congratulations of his friends on his promotion.

Mrs. Frank Mayers of Sulphide was taken to Belleville General Hospital yesterday where operation was performed on Wednesday morning.

Dr. M. G. Daley who has been a patient at the General Hospital for the past two weeks has been removed to his home for further treatment. His condition is improved, although he will be confined to the hospital for some time.

Tweed ladies' softball team is rapidly smoothing into a splendidly working machine, by dint of hard work under the watchful eye of Coach Harold Wilson. They are anxious to arrange exhibition games with other teams in the district and promise to give all and sundry a tidy battle in any engagement. Teams interested are advised to get in touch with Coach Wilson, or Miss Myrtle Dark.

Mrs. Wilfred LaRue entertained friends at an afternoon bridge at the home of Miss Mary Hawkins. Mrs. LaRue was assisted by Mrs. Ida Douglas. Prize winners were: Mrs. M. J. Quinn, Mrs. J. D. Corcoran, Mrs. M. E. O'Leary, Miss A. Courneyea and Mrs. T. E. Moffat.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Bowerman visited their daughter, Sister Mary Paulinus in Brockville, early in the week.

Rev. D. A. Cullinane, Rector of St. James' Church, Tweed, assisted Rev. W. G. Hope Swayne at the evening service on Sunday. Rev. Lewis is now located in Belleville.

Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Spackman spent several days in Ottawa as guests of Mr. and Mrs. Dewar.

Mrs. Skerrett and son Graham of Hamilton, who have been visiting the former's father, Mr. R. T. Graham, have returned home.

Mrs. Edward Bath and son Harry are guests this week of the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Burgoyne in Belleville.

Sister Mary Ethel Neta of Brockville spent a few days visiting her brother, Thomas J. Whalen in Stoco.

Mr. and Mrs. Manion of Toronto are among the first campers to go into summer camp at Sugar Island.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Sinclair (nee Violet Deline) at Sulphide, on May 26, 1937, a son.

Ten thousand maskinonge fry were placed in Stoco Lake this week through the efforts of the President, Dr. W. A. Paul and officers of the Tweed Fish and Game Association. At a later date pickerel and bass fry also will be placed in the lake.

Thousands of fry placed in former years are now giving local anglers plenty of sport and some splendid catches of pickerel are reported.

Mr. Robert McCammon of Hungerford Township celebrated his seventy-ninth birthday on Wednesday. Members of his family to the number of twenty-eight children and grandchildren gathered at his home in the evening for a surprise party. The centre of the table was occupied by a large birthday cake decorated with candles.

Following the birthday supper, little Doris Badgley of Tweed presented Mr. McCammon with a gold locket and watch chain inscribed with the words: "Father, on his seventy-ninth birthday."

Members of the family were present from various places in the county, including Milton McCammon, Trenton; Delbert and Mrs. McCammon, Thomasburg; Mrs. Claude Wager, Lost Channel; and Mrs. Ketchford, Belleville, all of whom spoke briefly.

Games and music including guitar selections by Marjorie McCammon, Granddaughters provided the entertainment during the evening.

Mrs. McCammon whose figure is a familiar one on the street of Tweed is still hale and hearty and manages and works his farm as he has done for many years past. His friends join with the members of his family in extending felicitations on the occasion of his birthday.

Several Grand Lodge officers of the Eastern Star were present at installation ceremonies at the Tweed Chapter No. 148, including Worthy Grand Matron, Viola McClung, of Brantford; Grand Secretary, Lillian Turriff, Toronto and Grand Organist, Marie Morton, Tweed.

Sister M. Morton rendered selections at her home in honor of the distinguished guests. She was assisted by Sister Boyd of Belleville, Past Worthy Grand Matron, who poured coffee, and Sister Barlow, Belleville, Past Worthy Matron, who poured tea.

Others who assisted in serving were Sisters Wilkinson and Coulter of Tweed and Sisters Houston and Wonnacott of Belleville.

The following officers were installed at the installation ceremony in the evening:

W.M., Sr. Elizabeth Leslie; W.P., Bro. G. H. Cotton; A.M., Bro. G. H. Cotton; A.M., Sr. Hazel Blakely; A. P., Bro. Jas. Corbet; Secretary, Sr. Mary Blakely; Treasurer, Sr. Blanche Vance; Con., Sr. Ann Way; A. The following comprised the installing team:

Installing Officer, W. O. M. Sr. Viola McClung; Past Grand Matron, Sister Boyd; Grand Secretary; Sr. Lillian Turriff; Past District Deputy, Sr. Barlow; Marshall, Sr. Naylor, D. D. G. M. of District 13; and Bros. H. J. Cordy, D. Leslie and A. Naylor.

Sr. Regina Pegrill, P.D.D., presented Sr. Ann Cotton with the Past Matron's jewel, while the Chapter presented her with a lamp. The presentation was made by Sr. Hazel Blakely and Sr. Grace Houston read the following address:

Worthy Matron, Sister Ann Cotton: Another year has been traced on the sands of time, a year to be added to the history of our Order. It is likened to a flower, warmed by the sun; it blooms, knows the secret of life, and fades away, leaving behind a beautiful memory.

To you, it has been a year different from all others, since you have been entrusted with the care and leadership of this chapter. The record of the year now lies before you. Although your tasks have been many and the hours long and directions at times, yet may the memory of the friendship formed and the evidences of fraternal love manifested while meeting in the chapter room, still linger in your heart while life shall last.

That you may have something to remind you of the year you have spent as our Worthy Matron, we, the officers of Tweed Chapter, No. 148, O.E.S., ask you to accept this gift as a small token of our love and esteem for you.

May the light that is shed from this lamp make your pathway all right and bright, and may God above keep you with His love.

Bro. H. J. Cordy, P. W. Patron was presented with a fountain pen by Bro. J. P. Houston of Belleville.

Sister Marie Morton, Grand Organist, was the recipient of a beautiful chair from Tweed Chapter and a handkerchief case from Sr. R. Perrill made the presentation of the chair, the address being read by Sister Ann Cotton, while Sister Osteleen Wilkinson made the latter presentation.

Sister Elizabeth Leslie presented W.G.M. Sr. Viola McClung with a purse and a bouquet of roses. Dancing and lunch brought a memorable evening to a close.

CHIEF C. I. O. ORGANIZER HURT AT FORD RIOT

Richard T. Frankenstein, chief organizer of the United Automobile Workers of America, is seen, with his head in his battered head after he and 30 or 30 other unionists were injured when Ford company employes clashed with the men at Dearborn, Mich. The fighting began when a delegation of approximately 50 unionists arrived at the Ford Rouge plant street cars and began distributing union handbills. Frankenstein alleges that the unionists were attacked by members of the Ford service department, who drove them off company property. After the encounter, union heads announced they would file charges against the company, under the Wagner act.

ADELA ST. JOHNS UP FOR ASSAULT

With Husband Attending Gay Party in Down Town Night Club

New York, May 29 (AP)—Adela Rogers St. Johns, Hollywood scenarist and newspaper writer, and her husband, Patrick O'Toole, publicity man, were two of seven persons arrested on simple assault charges as a result of a fight early today outside Billy (Big Nineties) and-Scott's Italian Night Club. Three men were injured, one seriously.

Those arrested in addition to Miss St. Johns and her husband were William Wright, radio commentator, who was taken to a hospital with a fractured skull, Daniel (Doc) Higgins, who said he was in the publicity department of the Columbia Broadcasting System, Henry Tannen, part owner of the club, William Walsh, a host, and Charles P. (Sailor) Grande, doorman.

Cause of the fight, in which all agreed fists swung freely, was a matter of much dispute. The issue was left for decision in Yorkville Court today. Both sides, however, agreed to have the case adjourned and June 9 was fixed as day for the hearing.

Miss St. Johns said she and her party had been celebrating in honor of Wright, who was to have gone to a new position in Hollywood, and decided to "top off" the evening at the night club. They were refused admittance because the house was full, Tannen said. While they were discussing the situation, she said, someone took a swing at her, she dodged, and the battle was on.

CANADIANS MISS IN SWEEP DRAW

No Residual Prizes Won by Canadians in Draw Today

Dublin, May 29 (CP)—No Canadian drew one of the ten residual prizes in $27,000 each as new counterfoils on the Irish Hospital Sweepstakes were pulled today from the whirling drums of chance.

Five of the fifth prizes went to the United States, three to Europe and two to Africa.

Yesterday seventy Canadians drew horses in the sweep, based on next Wednesday's derby at Epsom.

Following the drawing for residual prizes came 1,800 cash prizes of $500 each. Canadians winning these follow:

"First Timer", MD39710; "Pick and Pat", LJ30671; "Unlikely Helen", LH42983; "Mongina Toronto", MN-32961; "Peter Rabbit", EM3003; "M. K. Sturn", BA47182; "Mop" HM-36545; "White Heather", EJ31874; "Little Clown", BE24497; "E Morley", MM27006; "Scrap", BH38508; "Sleepy Rock", KA13920, BH8404.

ONE KILLED AS TANK EXPLODES

Believed Hose Leading From Tank to Nozzle Damaged

St. Isidore de Prescott, Ont., May 28.—(CP)—One man was killed and three others injured, two of them seriously, when an acetylene tank exploded in a garage here today.

The dead man:

Fernand Plion, 23-year-old mechanic.

The injured:

Donald Morland, 35, garage proprietor; Rene Guillier, 23, garage mechanic; and Y. Seguin, a farmer.

St. Isidore is located in 50 miles east of Ottawa in Prescott county.

The force of the explosion rocked many buildings, the noise being heard many miles away. The walls of the factory annex containing the garage were blown out, causing the roof to collapse.

Morland and Guillier were working in the garage, welding the frame of a car and Plion was working a little distance away when the acetylene tank exploded, burying the men in the debris of the collapsed roof and walls.

The force of the explosion was not immediately ascertained. It was considered possible, however, the hose leading from the tank of acetylene to the welding machine might have been damaged, permitting some of the gas to escape.

Dr. M. Severe, Chief Coroner of Prescott County, ordered an inquest.

Total amount of damage was not known.

H.R.H RANK DENIED

to that effect were not mentioned. They might properly have been set forth in the abdication terms."

Official Decree.

The announcement in official court organ said:

"The King has been pleased by letters patent under the great seal of the realm bearing the date May 27, 1937, to declare that the Duke of Windsor shall, notwithstanding his instrument of abdication executed on the tenth day of December, 1936, and his Majesty's declaration of the Abdication Act, 1936, whereby effect was given to said instrument, be entitled to hold and enjoy for himself only the title, style or attribute of Royal Highness, so, however, that his wife and descendants if any, shall not hold the said title, style or attribute."

The Gazette announced that letters patent issued by Queen Victoria seventy years ago declared the title "Royal Highness" should be used only by near relatives of the sovereign in line of succession to the throne.

Bound By Contents.

The Duke of Windsor will have the title of "His Royal Highness" but "H.R.H." will not be extended to his wife or children. They will, however, be entitled to the forms of address appropriate to the wife and children of a duke.

When the Duke of Windsor abdicated he automatically renounced his royal titles. Letters patent issued tonight declare that the King wishes his brother, the Duke of Windsor, notwithstanding the abdication, personally to enjoy the title of "H.R.H."

About seventy years ago, Queen Victoria issued letters patent laying down that the title "Royal Highness" was only to be enjoyed by near relations of the sovereign who are "in succession to the throne". This rule was confirmed by King George V. Consequently, unless some special exception were made, the Duke of Windsor, who by his instrument of abdication is expressly excluded from the throne, would himself not enjoy the title of "H.R.H."

Tonight's letters patent do not extend the title to his wife and children.

These letters patent always are left unsealed and recorded in the patents rolls of the official record office, as the King's subjects may read them "and be bound by their contents."

53RD BIRTHDAY IS CELEBRATED

Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe Hopes Quints Soon Back With Family

North Bay, Ont., May 28 (CP)—Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe, three years ago an unknown country doctor, celebrated his 53rd birthday today as a world famous medical figure and hoping the five little girls he had named Alexandrine Dionne babies into three-year-old perfection soon would be reunited with their family.

He told a gathering of newspapermen here last night at a dinner celebration in honor of the Dionne quintuplets, "we are looking forward to the day, perhaps less than a year from now, when the whole Dionne family will be reunited." Oliva Dionne, father of the quints, smiled at the remark. It was the first time he had attended such a gathering.

No Life of Own.

Dr. Dafoe said the quints were being reared in the manner of royalty to take away self-consciousness from them. "They have never had a life of their own," he said, "We are rearing them after the training of royalty, so that crowds will not affect them. These babies have no private life, therefore we are rearing them to be normal under the stare of crowds."

The quintuplets celebrated their third birthday yesterday when their shrieks were heard over four networks from the Dafoe Hospital, their home built for them by the government across the road from the farmhouse of Mr. and Mrs. Dionne at Callander, fifteen miles south of here. The dinner was the annual "party" for newspapermen and officials after the broadcast. Mrs. Dionne stayed at home with her other six children.

Dr. Dafoe, speaking of his own birthday, said, "I have many good ideas". She believed, he said, "that some day I would be given a title for being. Maybe I have. I don't really know."

Quints Perform Over Radio on Third Birthday

Callander, Ont., May 28 (CP)—Pronounced "physically fit" by Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe, the physician who has looked after them from birth, the Dionne Quintuplets entered their fourth year of life today after the best—at least broadcast—of their three birthday celebrations they have had.

The five children—Yvonne, Annette, Cecile, Emilie and Marie—counted out their five gorgeous birthday cakes, but they had a lot of fun whopping it up for a radio broadcast instead of the usual indifferent for an audience last night.

"Ah-ooo-ah-ooo," they shouted the five French-speaking children to the radio listeners as the announcer asked them to say "au revoir" at the close of the program which included "Three of a Friend" song, the "music" of the toy drums, and their characteristic shrill cries as they played in the nursery here.

Children Perform.

Encouraged to make themselves heard, the quints performed both separately and in unison while four radio chains carried their presentation. But apart from their appearance before a microphone, it was little different from the joyful play of the lives of the world's most famous babies. They ate their cereal, milk, fruit, milk, and meat, had their playtimes as usual, had a few tears, but were unusual.

After the festivities, their mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. Oliva Dionne, and in-laws from Quebec might soon be reunited with them and the other Dionne children.

Mrs. Dionne said she was happy the children were celebrating their birthday, "but not so happy as if I had them with me at home."

Elzire Dionne's message was described to the radio audience as "smiling and happy" as he received some of the visitors to the famous babies. His watched them gurgle into the microphone shortly after he had remarked to a reporter he was "glad they are healthy, but I'd rather have them home with us than in the nursery."

We'll all soon be able to see each other by trans-Atlantic television."—Guglielmo Marconi.

The Mutual Life "Pension With Assurance" Policy is becoming increasingly popular among the young men and women who wish, by systematic saving for a period of years, to guarantee themselves a monthly income for life, commencing at age 50, 55, 60 or 65. This policy also provides insurance protection for a parent or other dependents.

Family men are buying the "Pension With Assurance" Policy as a guarantee against dependent old age, and by adding the Family Income clause are providing insurance protection for wife and family while the children are growing up.

For instance, if a man lives to 60 or 65, whichever pension age he chooses, he will receive a monthly income for the rest of his life; if he dies within ten years after the pension starts the Company will continue payments to the end of the ten year period.

Should the policy become a claim before the pension date, his beneficiary will receive a monthly income commencing at his death and continuing until the date the pension would have started, and at that date the full face amount of the policy will be payable.

Pension policies share in the Company's dividends, both before and after the pension commences. Under certain conditions the Double Indemnity Accident benefit and the Disability benefit may be added.

If Fred Astaire isn't asking Ginger Rogers "Shall We Dance?" it isn't because the world is the movie's natural question in the world, in that new co-starring picture, for th at s its title, "Shall We Dance", their fourteen hit since "Top Hat" now on the Belle screen.

RUSHES TO HUSBAND

Mrs. Mickey Cochrane is shown as she arrived at St. Elizabeth hospital, New York, where her husband manager and catcher of the Detroit Tigers, is reported in a serious condition with a skull fracture sustained when he was struck by a pitched ball in the game against the New York Yankees. Mrs. Cochrane rushed by train from Detroit by aeroplane when notified of her husband's accident.

AT THE BELLE

Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers in Their Grandest Hit Since "Top Hat"

Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers have topped all their previous efforts in "Shall We Dance", their latest RKO Radio film, which the preview audience at the Belle last Sunday midnight applauded and cheered continuously, and which is announced as the feature attraction at the Belle today, Monday and Tuesday, matinee daily.

Funnier and faster than their earlier pictures, the romantic aspects and the comedy of his new musical have been definitely strengthened, making for greater entertainment, values, while the songs and dance novelties that film-goers have learned to expect in the Astaire-Rogers offerings are present in abundance, and brilliantly conceived.

The story itself is a novelty in the team's annals, for it presents the two favorites, not as struggling unknowns, but as "top" celebrities in their respective fields, Astaire as a famous ballet dancer who goes under a Russian name, Mike Rogers as a revue and musical comedy favorite. His slegs of her heart runs into hilarious complications.

The dancing pick is held against a glittering background of Paris and New York theatrical life, yuletide aied with tuneful songs composed by George and Ira Gershwin and eight spectacular dance numbers, two of these featuring Astaire's foremost ballroom partner, Hector, and three with the Astaire-Rogers duo in their specialty beat. One of these is a brilliant roller skating number, Astaire offers a remarkable solo dance to engine room of a giant liner as one of the real highlights of the film. A other novelty is his dance with twenty girls each disguised as Ginger Rogers.

Edward Everett Horton and Eric Blore, both of whom have appeared in former Astaire-Rogers hits, are again with the stars in important comedy roles and turn in grand performances. Ketti Gallian and two newcomers, Jerome Cowan and William Brisbane, are excellent in the chief supporting parts, and Mark Sandrich's direction takes full advantage of the story possibilities.

Mark "Shall We Dance" as one of the really notable offerings and the best filmusical of the year.

The Belle Late World News Events and "Cupid Gets His Man" a clever and funny cartoon in Technicolor precede the feature attraction.

"Romeo and Juliet"

Never before a love story so exciting, adventure so thrilling, a picture so magnificent is William Shakespeare's "Romeo and Juliet", announced for presentation for the first time at popular prices at the Belle, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, matinee daily, with Norma Shearer as Juliet, Leslie Howard as Romeo, supporting with one of the finest casts ever assembled including John Barrymore Edna May Oliver, Basil Rathbone, Reginald Denny, C. Aubrey Smith, Violet Kemble Cooper, Henry Kolker, Andy Devine, Conway Tearle and other outstanding players.

George Cukor, who made "David Copperfield" and "Little Women" live again, was the director.

Clear Summer Camps of Poison Ivy Pest

The eradication of poison ivy in the vicinity of holiday camps, summer cottages, and tourist resorts is being undertaken by various communities throughout Canada. Although nothing is so effective against poison ivy as tillage, this method is usually out of the question where eradication is most needed, in nooks and cranky situations in the close proximity to temporary or permanent residences. As pointed out in the circular issued by the Dominion Department of Agriculture entitled "Poison Ivy," eradication by hand is a laborious substitute for tillage, but removal of the plant bodily is often the simplest and surest way to clean out small areas around dwellings. Incidentally, it is an interesting point that cattle, sheep, and goats can eat poison ivy with impunity and seem to relish it. Ordinary brands of chloride of sodium chorate is a compound at present cheapest and easiest to procure, as it is sold by all wholesale druggists. A 10 per cent solution (one pound to a gallon of water) of sodium chorate is applied as a spray at the rate of a gallon for 200 square feet. The first application may be made about the first of June when the leaves are well spread. Information on the treatment of ivy spreading, and how to recognize and eradicate the plant will be found in the circular which may be obtained free on application to the Publicity and Extension Branch, Dominion Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

ROB PASTOR WINS

Los Angeles, May 29—(AP)—Rob Pastor, 183 1-4, of New York, punched Young Bob Nestell, 191, of Los Angeles, out of the front ranks of the heavyweight hopefuls last night, winning by a wide margin in 10 round decision.

After a wild first round in which both fighters hit the floor in a vicious exchange of blows, the squat New Yorker went on to coal out a near-brutal beating to the California.

IN MEMORIAM

MURRAY—In loving memory of our dear mother, Mrs. Archie Murray, who passed away May 29, 1935.
Rest, dear mother, your troubles are over,
Your willing hands will work no more.
You did not fail to do your best.
You worked so hard for those you loved.
You lived your life and lived it well.
With always a smile while'er he fell.
We have lost, but God has gained.
One of the best the world contained.
You'd lose all we'd miss you.
Those words have never been true
We lost our best, our dearest friend,
Dear mother, when we lost you.

Three Favorites Start Wednesday In Epsom Derby

London, May 29 (CP)—Twenty-two of the world's finest three-year-olds, bred in three countries, were being put through the final stages of training today in preparation for Wednesday's 158th running of the Epsom Derby, most colorful of England's turf classics.

The three favorites, attracting thousands upon thousands of pounds of the betting public's money, were from as many countries—Le Kear from France, the American-bred Pertinax, and Cash Book, bred in Lord Astor's stables in Wiltshire.

Form readers for the most part searched for a horse to beat Le Kear, Evremond de St. Eury's two thousand guineas winner, and thus prevent the blue ribband of the English turf going across the English Channel for the first time since Derby, 37 carried off the richest of the five three-year-old classics in 1914.

But that has proved a difficult task. Le Kear in winning the guineas by four lengths showed he had not only speed but stamina, shaking off what challenge there was and winning as he pleased. Returned to France to Francois Carter's famous stables at Chantilly—the bay son of Kear and Queen Isenli finished second in the French Guineas at Longchamp but ran in such a way as not to affect his derby status.

The colt arrived at Epsom today from Chantilly where on Thursday he had his final trial over the full derby distance.

U. S. Has Entry.

The American hope, William Woodward's Pertinax, a son of Gallant Fox and Pertinacity II, was reported coming along nicely at Newmarket after having been subjected to an interruption of training due to a jarred near foreleg. However, bathing and cracked heels were also causing considerable anxiety in the Suffolk racing centre where the gowing was becoming rather firm and trainers were having a trying time.

Most popular in this country would be a victory for Cash Book, the entry of Lord Astor, whose fi link in the made has become proverbial.

Cash Book was not seriously trained as a two-year-old when Lord Astor's other candidates failed to shape up to his liking and along quickly and impressed the experts by his stylish victory in the Newmarket Stakes a couple of weeks ago. In that race he beat a number of derby aspirants, including Hot Copy, Full Sail, The Hour and Golfo.

The colt is a son of the 1931 derby winner Cameronian.

One caber candidate conceded a splendid chance of winning the Epsom classic was Mid-day Sun, owned by Mrs. G. W. Miller. Should the colt win it would be the first victory by a woman owner in the derby proper. Lady James Douglas-Hamilton's Scuffle, by Hurry On, was over the easier Newmarket course.

Roxie Lawson, and C. Marcum Keep Tigers and Red Sox Contenders in American Loop

Tiger Hurler Has Lost But One Game This Season

PIRATES ON TOP

Yankee-Athletic Series Failed to Start Because of Rain

By RID FEDER

The baseball folks in Detroit and Boston should be thankful these days that Roxie Lawson and Frootie Marcum chose this spring to do their come-backing.

If these two hurling hopefuls had not started like a couple of houses afire, the Tigers would be out of the first division today and the Red Sox would be about eighth in the American League.

As it is, Lawson already has won many games as he took all last year, and top them the No. 1 flinger in the Tigers' trek to second place. And Marcum, with five victories to his credit so far, is the only elbower among the Red Sox starters with a better than .500 average to date.

Lawson, after a fine start with Detroit in '35, went through eight dismal games last season: Marcum, one of the big-priced beauties Connie Mack sold The Tribe after the 1935 season, lost thirteen and won eight last year, and finished the season's assignment in the college of the Red Sox.

Work Horse of Loop.

At the moment, Lawson is the "workhorse" of the league, with 27 innings on the mound in nine games. He won the only game he failed to finish, and allowed but a total of the single decision he lost. One of the starters in the pitching of the Sox, he has fanned 26 and walked only 32 so far. Yesterday, he was never in trouble as he breezed to his fourth 7-3 victory over the St. Louis Browns in the nightcap of a doubleheader. Detroit also won the first game 6-5 on a homer by Hank Greenberg, to climb back into second place.

Marcum has seen 62 innings of action in games, and has allowed but 46 only 13 batters while fanning 23. He muffled the Washington Senators 7-0 with six hits yesterday to put the Red Sox over the .500 mark for the first time in two weeks.

Pirates Boosted Cards.

Their work featured a curtailed program in both leagues. Otherwise, the highlight was a 5-3 victory of the Pittsburg Pirates exploded on the St. Louis Cardinals for a 9-3 win, thereby stretching the Bucs National League lead to a game and a half over the Ida Glazier. The Chicago Cubs found Cincinnati pitching easy and clouted out a 9-5 decision behind Charley Root's steady hurling. Both of the others had an open date.

The Chicago White Sox outlasted the Cleveland Indians and came through with a 3-2 win on Zeke Bonnett's timely slugger in the tenth inning. The looked-for start of the Yankee-Athletic series was delayed a day by rain and was carried over to a double header today.

Lorne Bateman in Rare Form Holding Opposition to Three Hits

Combining their triumphant march to Belleville Senior O.B.A. ball League, the Point Anne "mushballers" hung up their fourth consecutive victory by virtue of a 7-1 victory over the Bell-Sargents at Coleman Park last night.

Lorne Bateman, of perfect game fame, was skipper Sedory's choice for mound duty and the elongated son of Springbrook was in rare form, letting the "hick maidens" down with three hits, a triple from the bat of Tommy Phillips and two singles off Bushell. The lone marker registered by the losers came after two were out in the final frame.

Bateman struck out thirteen in seven innings and did not issue a free ticket via the four ball route, his control being prier-perfect. Phillips' Miller ascended the hillock for the losers and was nicked for an even dozen blows, Bateman added to his pitching prowess by getting a safe hits while Murney Green and White head contributed a pair of one base knocks to the cause. Green's effort was replaced by Hughes in the sixth as the "cementers" failed to send the count to seven.

MONTREAL ROYALS IN SECOND PLACE IN LEAGUE RACE

Defeat Toronto With Harry Smythe Hurling 99th League Victory

BEARS GET BREAK

Syracuse Chiefs Error Themselves Out of a Ball Game

(By the Associated Press)

Ralph Mamaux-Pitz believes his Montreal Royals are good enough to give Newark's leading Bears a stiff battle from the scrubs and observers along the International League front are inclined to string along with the "Rabbit."

The Royals have won four straight and are in second place, five games off the Bears' pace. But the way the Royals have been trimming their ball games lately indicates this is not flash-in-the-pan but the work of a smoothly functioning team. Montreal has been getting consistent pitching, timely hitting and dependable fielding.

Harry Smythe, the veteran righthander hurled the Royals into second place yesterday. He held the Toronto Leafs to five hits while his mates belabored Mike Meola and Babe Davis for 14 and a 9-3 victory. It was Harry's 99th International League victory and his fifth of the season.

The triumph moved the Royals a half-game ahead of dizzy Indians. Gus Dugas and Dave Harris smashed out homers for the Royals.

Meanwhile the Bears took advantages of the break to nip Syracuse 2-1 in a hurling duel before a crowd of 10,000 at the Chiefs' ball park. Frank Pearce hurled four-hit ball for the Chiefs but was beaten by second baseman Al Glossop and a fielding blunder. Jack Reed in the second inning gave the Bears their winning margin.

In another arc-light contest, Buffalo's Bisons clawed off a ninth inning threat to defeat Rochester 7-6. The Baltimore-Jersey City contest was postponed because of wet grounds.

YESTERDAY'S STARS

Hank Greenberg, Tigers—Hit a homer in opener and drove in two runs in nightcap as Tigers topped Browns 6-5 and 7-2.

Charley Root, Cubs—Muffled Reds with eight hits, fanning five, in 12-3 win.

Zeke Bonnett, White Sox—His two-bagger in tenth drove in winning run for 3-2 victory over Indians.

Paul Waner, Pirates—Hit two doubles and single, driving in two runs and scored two others himself in 9-3 win over Cardinals.

Johnny Marcum, Red Sox—Blanked Senators 7-0 with six hits.

PERTH COMBINES HOLD ON TO LEAD

Last Inning Homer by Smith's Falls Fails by One Run

(By the Canadian Press)

Perth-Cornwall Buona, defending champions of the Canadian-American Baseball League, apparently have adopted the slogan of "Knock off the hard ones."

But despite this knack of beating the better teams, Buona were happy to move out of Smith's Falls yesterday after a two-day stand. The second place Beavers gave the champions their keenest competition 7-6. The Baltimore-Jersey City contest was postponed because of wet grounds.

Buona's Irish Catholic team, Smith's Falls' Protestant nine, Perth's Buona, Gus Dugas and Dave Harris smashed out homers for the Royals.

Meanwhile the Bears took advantages of the break to nip Syracuse 2-1 in a hurling duel before a crowd of 10,000 at the Chiefs' ball park. Frank Pearce hurled four-hit ball for the Chiefs but was beaten by second baseman Al Glossop and a fielding blunder. Jack Reed in the second inning gave the Bears their winning margin.

In another arc-light contest, Buffalo's Bisons clawed off a ninth inning threat to defeat Rochester 7-6. The Baltimore-Jersey City contest was postponed because of wet grounds.

The Logie-coached squad from below Victoria Ave., who attend Q.A.S., showed to advantage their experience gained in defeat the previous night by playing fine combination and scoring three goals in rapid succession in the early moments of the initial period. The Q.V.S. kids battled back tenaciously, but fell short of knotting the count as they scored one in the first and added another goal in the second. There was no evidence of scoring in the last frame.

Doug Dimond, Russ Weller and Doug Latimer scored one each for the Q.A.S. in the first period, while Bill McBride scored for Q.V.S. on his first bright solo effort in the middle stanza after Doug Mott had successfully sunk the ball for the initial Q.V.S. count in the initial frame. The local bantams are rapidly gaining knowledge and experience in the art of lacrosse, some of the teen age kids showing remarkable agility in stick-handling and ball carrying at this early stage.

The line-ups: Queen Alexandra—Pratt, McGilligan, Robinson, Jeffery, Cunningham, Weller, Lyall, Bradley, Latimer, Campbell, Dimond, Boyle, McCreary, Jones, Hyde, Coiine, Pearson, Davis and Anderson. Queen Victoria—Tompkins, Gardner, B. Kerr, Gibbons, Selz, Evans, Carson, Goodier, Flaherty, Robinson, Morris, McBride, Knott, Welsh, Nurley, Jones 1st and Mott.

SEAGRAM STABLE SCORES DOUBLE

Thirteen of the best handicap performers will battle today at Woodbine Park for the major portion of a $5,000 added purse in the King George VI Coronation Cup handicap. H. C. Hatch of Agincourt will be represented by Sweepstaff, Upper most and Ariel Cross in the 1 1-16 miles classic.

Royal Vintage, M. J. Sansone's one-horse stable, yesterday won the Glanford Plate over the six furlongs route. Jockey Frankie Maddley shot the seven-year-old gelding past the judges' stand a length-and-a-half ahead of T. A. Cochenour's Worthy Lad, with Keeling's Easter Hat-ter was third.

Black and Yellow colors of the Seagram racing establishment of Waterloo, Ont., scored a double victory. Millpond won a six-furlongs Agincourt Claiming run a nose victory in another three-quarter mile test.

Queen Victoria Kids Downed 3-2 in Smart Contest

Outclassing a first-period attack, that netted them three goals, the Queen Alexandra bantam lacrosse squad staved off a belated rally by their Queen Victoria School rivals to defeat Q.V.S. kids 3 to 2 in a regular School Minor Lacrosse fixture at the Collegiate Campus last evening. The win elevated the Q.A.S. team into a tie for second position in the league standing with the Queen Mary team, the Collegiate squad leading the parade with no loses in two starts.

KIWANIS TEAM DEFEATED 4-3 BY CANNIFTON

Winners Score All Their Runs in One Inning

ENJOY 3-0 LEAD

Campbell With Slow Curve Had Cannifton in Trouble

Cannifton, May 29—The Belleville Kiwanis juniors suffered their third straight setback of the season here last night when the Cannifton squad eked out a last minute victory by a 4-3 margin in a game which was terminated by darkness in the fifth inning.

Going into the last of the fourth enjoying a 3-0 lead, the Belleville club used what turned out to be poor strategy when with two down and Cannifton aboard and with two away an intentional walk was given to fill the bases. Campbell, who prior to this had turned in a pitching effort momentarily lost control. The result being that the next batter also walked forcing in a run. Empson smacked one to left centre and two runners scored tying up the game. Campbell then uncorked a wild pitch scoring another to put Cannifton one up.

Smith a Big Factor.

E. Smith, Cannifton's elongated flinger, was a big factor in turning the kids down. He held the opposition of the third inning when they got to first base. Then he and all their runs he had easy sailing. Lannan, a newcomer to the Cannifton lineup, looked a classic remarkably well and seems to be a first class recruit for the Kiwanis' nine.

Campbell with his slow tantalizing hook had the Cannifton sluggers guessing until the unlucky fourth when his control failed, walking but two batters to retire the side.

Scored Three In Third.

Manager Wesley Sayle scored all their runs in the third when Campbell and Warren both hit safely. Gray let Sayle's grounder get away from him and Campbell raced home. On the next pitch Warren and Sayle ran and Warren pulled off a perfect double steal. Whalen smacked one to left centre and Sayle scampered home with the third Cannifton run. Empson scored to the outfield allowing both Warren and Whalen to scoot to put the kids three up. They missed a glorious chance to increase their lead in the next frame when McQuade drew a walk but on Coopers fly out to right fielder failed to second and could not get back.

Cannifton's last chance in their half of the fourth as E. Jarrell, first man up, was out pitcher to first. Cannifton failed to get a man to third. Bleeckman, Smith was safe on the fielder's choice but Bleeckman was out at second when he overran the ball. Jarrell scampered and did Gray forcing in a run. Empson then singled scoring two while Gray scored on Whalen's error. Two were out when Smith struck out.

Belleville—Warren, Ronsky, Whalen, Wardley, Collins, McQuade, Cooper, Campbell and Sayle.

THREE JOCKEYS PUT ON GROUND

Racing Association is Probing Alleged "Jockey Ring"

Toronto, May 29—(CP)—Carrying forward investigations into an alleged "jockey ring" associated with betting at the Incorporated Canadian Racing Associations now in session here yesterday cancelled the licenses of three jockeys pending a probe of charges had their licenses withdrawn on the eve of the King's Plate last Saturday.

Jockey Robert Watson, contract rider for Col. Wilfrid Bovey's stable, Jockey Colin McDonald, second leading rider at Fonthill last season, and Frank Madley were ruled off yesterday. The previous five were Frank Adam, Jockey Frank Coppolino; Johnny Passero, Fort Erie, Ont.; Jockey Ernest Cuban rider, and Frank Dougherty.

COCHRANE IMPROVED

New York, May 29—(AP)—Definite improvement was noted today in the condition of Mickey Cochrane, manager of the Detroit Tigers, who suffered a skull fracture when hit by a ball pitched by Bump Hadley of the Yankees.

In their final bulletin last night, Dr. Robert Emmett Walsh and Bryon Stookey said,

"The signs are encouraging."

"Whatever a patron wants to get published is advertising. Whatever he wants to keep out of the paper is NEWS". That terse observation has been framed and placed in a conspicuous position in all editorial rooms of a well known newspaper syndicate, that specializes in the publishing of dailies on the continent, and illuminates a principal difficulty in small-city newspaper publishing. Not infrequent we find correspondents seeking a self-appointed status to the imaginary position of the advisory board of the sports department, merely because they read the game oftener. To satisfy all categories of sport is next to impossible, simply because in a small community as ours, every one phase of sports is invariably jealous of the other lines and repeatedly firm in its belief, that their correspondents are receiving more publicity than are they. Generally speaking the fault lies with the fault-finder as the sports department of a small daily must answer to all lines of the betterment of one person. If there are not sufficient items to warrant a particular sport, the writer is either responsible for the omission or to the cause. Everybody else in town exercises the right of free discussion of the subject individually, whether they be in favor of or adverse to the policy followed. But the rights of the sports reporter, in the minds of many, extends only so far as the report coincides with the reader or sponsor's individual views. If not condemned upon, whether it be constructive criticism or not.

If the sports department of a small daily had the exclusiveness of a large metropolitan, the quality of inner realm would be a heaven, but on the small daily the sports department is the child of a multifish, and someone is always trying to sink a harpoon into the critter. Whatta life, that is if you don't weaken.

President Harry Moore of the O.C.U.L. says he has resigned as coach of the Belleville Brave in favour of Leo McDonald of Kingston, from what meagre information is available we have had the local lacrosse squad boasts of an excellent "Big Four" team and needs only a proven defence player and possibly a couple of scoring aces. The Braves practice at the Collegiate campus until exams are over and in the adjourn into the B.C.I. gymnasium to complete their normal workouts. Manager Ted Sedory of the O.C.U.L. schedule, now that the season is opened, opens on Monday with Peterboro at Cobourg, while the Braves pay off the bill versus the R.C.A.F. at Trenton on Monday. The local lacrosse players should bear in mind that all games are scheduled to commence at 8:15 p.m. this season in the interests of fans, except Belleville, daylight saving is in effect and Sedory and the Braves are concerned the games will get under way at 7:30 p.m.

Speaking of daylight saving we understand Trenton and Napanee have adopted the Dafoe daylight system, leaving Belleville the only community in the village class between Tweonio and Montreal. 'Sum fun', eh?

Weaver-ver Coach Woodley makes an appearance in the South Hastings League with his "Elwood Kiwanis" outfit. Make a note chances are there are more to men. Last night at Cannifton the Kiwanis were faced with Ernie Smith, former C.O.B.L. fire-ball artist, and for four innings the local lads gave the ole-speed-ball-ace a thorough going over in batting. As a matter of fact the juniors were leading 3 to 2 going into the fifth, when a couple of hits, errors and some good basework gave the homesiters four runs and the game was called on account of darkness at the end of the fifth inning with the score of a 4 to 3 count. It was their third straight defeat, but the local kids are improving each time out.

Skipper Woodley sent his newfound hurler Campbell, recruit of Albert College, to the hilltop and the former eight-letter-man let the kids what it's all about. The acquisition of Campbell gives the Kiwanis kids a pitcher of experience and namely Campbell, Kelleher and Weeks, the latter being the sole newbie. The experience being gained by the local juniors in the O.B.A.L. should prove invaluable to them when they advance into the junior O.B.A.A. ranks next season. What the local kids need most of all is a little moral support from the fans. They are at home to the champion Foxboro nine on Wednesday.

Speaking of stopping this Point Anne team in the local senior softball loop, last night they gave the first fourth consecutive victory in as many starts. At the present time the aldermanic "cement villagers" won 7 to 1 with Lorne Bateman in rare form twirling in the hero role. In his last appearance on the mound, Bateman fanned thirteen in seven innings and issued in the initial sack in the second, fifth and seventh. Bushell getting the other two hits. We are quite anxious to see the tussle between the Point Anne nine and the Bell-Sargent Anne next week, however.

With Jack "Chief" Williams, the Indian who never could be crow old, up to his old tricks, the Kingston Frontenac aspirations received the setback of 12 base hits from the Oshawa Oldtimers. Jack Spratt, Ernie Gibbard's new right hander from Lennox County, the latest Williams find, failed to accept the seventh. Williams was in the box for Kingston with curve ball past the Oshkarts with abandon. The Napanee over only had Ferguson left stranded on the runway with the Purnell kid an even dozen behind. Williams only allowed three hits in the first seven frames, the Oshawa nine succeeding in the ninth to score their second run. The Napanee over only had Ferguson, but Joe Paley's Ponies seem to have what it takes this year.

'Open House' at Collegiate Prominently Displays Work Being Done at Institution

Parents of Students And Residents of City Attend

INTERESTING WORK

School in Full Operation to Give True Insight to Accomplishments

The classrooms and corridors of Belleville Collegiate and Vocational Institute relinquished their daily atmosphere of disciplinary decorum last night and echoed to the voices and moving feet of a large crowd of interested citizens of Belleville and district who took advantage of "Open Night" to view the various phases of collegiate and vocational work, which was presented to them in both exhibitory and demonstrative displays.

From eight o'clock onward a steady stream of "proud parents" students and visitors thronged the various classrooms and paraded along halls and corridors displaying a marked interest in the many exhibitions of work put on by the students. Every phase of work being done at the Institute was brought out in its most attractive form, and the many fine exhibitions brought not only credit of the students and teachers, but reflected the fine ability of both in presenting the work in an eye-pleasing manner.

Tea Wagon Admired

Greeting the visitors on the ground floor of the school were the displays of woodworking, auto mechanics and pattern-making. Perhaps one of the finest displays in the school and one which drew forth many admiring comments was the exhibition of furniture made by the students of the woodworking class. Here one saw splendid tables of unique and attractive design. Bookcases, electric lamps, cabinet, tea-trays, chairs and many other useful articles of furniture, highlighting this display was a magnificent tea-wagon made of walnut and constructed by Jack Ketcheson. This proved to be the centre of attraction of the large crowd.

An object of interest in the pattern-making department was a distinct innovation in this particular class, that of the Lithaye Module, which shows the pupil in every detail the construction of the object being made.

The whirring of lathes and the harsh sound of steel biting into metal greeted the visitors to the machine-shop. Here the future mechanic demonstrated in a fine manner their ability at manufacturing the progressive stages of making a steel penholder. Placed on tables were the many objects made by the students of this class among which andiron sets, hammers, wheel-pullers, towel racks and various kinds of tools.

Airplane Model

Highlighting this display was the aluminum model of an airplane engine. Complete in every detail this tiny power plant is made to scale and is slightly over three inches in height. Completed, it is capable of developing 1-5 horse power, and is a distinct credit to teacher and pupil alike.

A fully equipped auto-mechanic classroom provided the future automobile engineers of the city with a perfect setting for the fundamentals and advanced practical work of this important vocation. Here students were seen dismantling and assembling important parts of the mechanism of automobiles. Here they are taught how to hone pistons, grind valves and other important work. "Short cuts to knowledge" are exemplified in the various parts of a motor which are shown with working parts visible.

The sharp staccato of swiftly moving typewriters greeted the early of visitors to the Commercial classrooms. Here students of the various classes demonstrated their ability at transcribing shorthand. Under the watchful eye of their instructress, students gave practical evidence of their ability in this important phase of commercial education.

Domestic Science Display

Of exceptional interest, especially to the feminine visitors was the attractive display in the Domestic Science rooms. Here on tables a group of young lady students prepared a dainty luncheon. One group was busy preparing delicious asparagus. Another bevy of attractive youngsters busied themselves at the preparation of the cream sauce. Others made appetizing hot tea-biscuits, while yet another group made a delicious lemon snow and delicate sauce. In another room a dainty table was set, ready for the luncheon. In this department the students are taught the fundamentals of home nursing and mother-craft. Outside at a table, students offered for sale many delicious cooking creations such as cookies, cakes, pies, etc., the work of the students of this branch of the school.

Drawings of various designs of mechanical apparatus graced the wall of the draughting room. It was here that two clever students designed and perfected the blueprint of the model airplane engine built by the students in the machine-shop department. All drawings were cleverly executed and show splendid ability on the part of the students of this particular class.

Coronation Motif

The spacious lines of the Collegiate Institute was another source of interest on the part of the large crowd of spectators. A decided Coronation motif was apparent here with a flag-draped photograph of Their Majesties, King George and Queen Elizabeth occupying the centre of the room. Ingeniously made up scrapbooks, filled with newspaper and magazine pictures of the principals and outstanding events leading up to and during the Coronation, and compiled by students of the various classes proved a source of unfailing interest to the many spectators who crowded the library. Other objects of exceptional interest here were a box of insect specimens, butterflies etc., gathered and prepared by little Miss Joyce Watson, a first form student and a splendid collection of eggs, the gift of the Vocation School to the Board of Education.

Later in the evening, highly entertaining motion pictures depicting bird life in the Belleville National Parks was shown by Mr. F. T. Shelton, in the auditorium to a large crowd enjoyed the fine scenes of life of various animals, from a stamping grace to the grace and beauty of the 'Whistling Swans'.

A family or peerage chickens in a modern chicken house highlighted the Agricultural Room. Here visitors were shown an osteological display of the bony formations of various parts of several animals. Insect life in their entirety were shown on bottles of preserving fluid. Farm periodicals lay on tables, where exhibition-ists study at their leisure. Bottles of seeds and their classification rounded out an interesting display.

Coronation Year Scrap Books

While every department offered endless attractions which captured the interest of the visitors, a display, whose timeliness made it of special value was that in the history department, where Miss Shilling's students had prepared Coronation Year Scrap Books. Carefully designed and carried out with artistic sense the scrap books will be of much value in later years. Another project by the history class, which will assist in fixing the important developments and trends securely in the student mind is the Time Charts which showed the various phases of history in their proper sequence.

Former students took special delight in the display of old issues of "The Intelligencer". Pictures of themselves, articles and news items recalled happy school day associations, and those who had been members of "the staff" were reminded of the exciting moments before, and more frequently after going to press.

Large numbers of spectators lingered in the Art Department which presented a truly diversified variety of exhibits. Under the direction of Miss Stagg, the art students learn not only the use of water colour and pencil, but clay work and soap modelling. The last was particularly fascinating, and showed the transformation of a humble bar of household soap into a tinted design of unusual beauty.

Beautiful Needlework

The department to which the ladies were easily lured was the needlecraft section of the Vocational Work. Under the guidance of Miss MacPherson, the girls taking this technical course, and those coming for a few hours from the Commercial department, had completed many lovely examples of handiwork. The displays indicating the scope of their enterprise. Against a background of colourful spring flowers the articles exhibited made a charming picture and included all kinds of delicately executed work. The new petit smocking on children's dresses, infants' knitted wear, blouses of all kinds, embroidery and plain sewing were included. Two lovely blouses with cross-stitch embroidery in tiny designs and beautiful shading were outstanding in this department.

The interesting work of the school finished by the students a serpentine of twenty-seven boys made an interesting study of colour in the corridors as the pretty models went from floor to floor. From wool suits to chiffon afternoon dress the outfits were perfectly designed and finished. Long organdy gowns, vies with crisp daytime frocks in their appeal to the feminine eye and their youthful wearers could well be proud of their splendid work.

Rousing strains of the school band under the direction of Mr. Rose Hudson drew crowds to the Collegiate Auditorium where a thoroughly delightful program was presented to the complete enjoyment of the audience. Selections by the School Band and the Glee Club were given in splendid style and merited the enthusiastic applause of all present. The progress made by the singers and band members under the musical director is most pronounced and shows careful training.

School Uniform

Next year the girl students at the Collegiate will present a decidedly smart appearance, for last evening there was introduced the new uniform which will be adopted throughout the school. Several outfits were shown, all in jumper style with blouses. They included a navy jumper with natural coloured blouse, navy with white, green with natural or green with white. The green jumper in flared style with natural coloured blouse, brown tropicana and natural coloured stockings will be the official school uniform, and judging from last evening's example it will be the last word in chic.

The highlight of the Auditorium program, however, was the melodrama "The Villain Pursued Her", or "Heaven Help the Working Girl", presented with much gusto by the Vocational Department. The comedy was written and directed by Mr. Thomas and had all the ingredients of the old fashioned "dramamer" the mortgage on the old homestead, the suave villain twirling tremendous moustaches, the local hero and the daughter, who went to the big city. The fact that the characters interjected modern phrases and that the daughter came back, not to accept the hand of the humble rescuer but to demonstrate her perversity by deciding upon the latter, gave the comedy a rollicking air. The presentation of carefully acted lines and boo-ers in the audience maintained the tradition of the era of the good old melodramatic scene.

Those taking part were as follows:

Silas Clodhopper—John Harperty
Maria Clodhopper—Lorella Stay
Josephine Clodhopper — Betty Shorey.
Hortensio Slocomb—Gerard Couture
Horatio Alger—Victor Clapp.

Gymnastic Demonstrations

Program in the girls' gymnasium revealed the intensive physical training given under the direction of Miss Allison. Group games, graceful ballroom dancing by the Senior girls, folk dancing, badminton and basketball games were presented, about seventy five girls taking part. Beatrice Moonk, gymn class pianist, played for the program.

The badminton game was for the Bachelors Club championship, the four top players engaging in a doubles match. After strenuous play the prize was won by Dorothy Carr and Betty Shorey who defeated Barbara Patterson and Betty Grow.

The basketball game was an exhibition encounter when the inter-form champions, 1D, after contesting with fifth form to win the trophy, met 1Ib whose line-up last evening included four members of the school team, who naturally had been barred from inter form games during the year. The 1Ib girls were very anxious to test their mettle again, such outstanding players.

The line-ups were as follows:—Judith Scott, Ardel Smith, Margaret Rowbotham, Victoria Scott, Loretta Stark, Isabel Morrison and Dorothy Price. 1Ib—Nancy Pufts, Jean Sherry, Rhoda Moult, Margaret Whitfield, Marjorie Hales and Helen Chambers. Referee—Barbara Patterson.

In the boys' gymnasium, the championship of the inter-form basketball series was decided after a strenuous battle between class 2A and 3C, survivors of the elimination battle. A fine exhibition of movements on four pieces of gymnastic apparatus under Jack Peoples and Jack Dickens, by a number of students, brought forth hearty acclaim on the part of the spectators.

JURY RECOMMENDS RESTRICTED SALE OF WOOD ALCOHOL

Toronto, May 29 (CP) — Wood alcohol—known technically as methylated spirits—today was classed as a public enemy. Last night a coroner's jury, probing the death of four Toronto men, recommended its sale be more strictly regulated. A doctor said two or three teaspoons could cause blindness and suggested it be put on the list of deadly poisons.

Shortly before Coronation Day, evidence showed, George Akridge, Charles Brown, William Brown and Alex McKinnon had been drinking heavily. At one party, Alfred Mcintosh, made one of the men, who told of the consumption of eight to sixteen ounces of wood alcohol on top of wine and rubbing alcohol, complain himself in pyjamas and barely survived the alcoholic poisoning.

Coroner Dr. George R. Philp said sending a chronic alcoholic to jail was of little use. It would be much better to send him to a jail farm for six months a year where he might recover from his habits with the advantage of working in the open air.

The jury attached a rider to its verdict suggesting wood alcohol be sold "in large quantities and signing for the same". The foreman explained they considered selling the liquid in large bottles would prevent addicts from securing it so easily.

Evidence showed that those purchasing rubbing alcohol had to sign their names for it as it was controlled by the Ontario Liquor Control Board and the Department of National Revenue, Excise Branch. Wood alcohol, on the other hand, might be bought without signatures at drug stores or gasoline service stations.

WHITEFISH BODY AND HERRING HEAD ON HYBRID FISH

A novel hybrid fish with the body of a whitefish and the head of a lake herring was caught recently by Dayton Murphy and William Thomas, Wellington fishermen, off the shore of Lake Ontario near their home.

Their curiosity piqued by their novel catch, they submitted it to the Royal Ontario Museum, Toronto. Professor R. Dymond of that institution in a letter to the fishermen stated that the fish was a hybrid, the first catch in these parts.

Newspapers live long and are a most important part of community life—some of them—that deserve to live. Those that don't usually get short shrift for the public nowadays has no time to fritter away with things that serve no useful purpose. Hence McKim's Directory of Canadian Publications, 1937 edition, first from the press, has many points of interest, and is especially interesting in its references to publications of great age. Now that the Ontario Intelligencer has joined the Newspaper Century Club, such an exclusive organization, with members few in number, we do not propose to go "High Hat," but hope to be just as friendly and helpful as ever to our many newspaper friends who have not attained century distinction. From McKim's 1937 Newspaper Directory it is learned that the year 1752 was no important year for in that year was established The Royal Gazette, the official organ of the Nova Scotia Government, is Canada's, oldest living periodical. And by a strange coincidence it began publication in the same place (Halifax) and in the same year (1752) as the first Canadian newspaper.

That particular newspaper, published by one John Bushell, failed to survive. But another newspaper, started just 12 years later, in Quebec City, is still rendering faithful service to the people of its community, six days every week, despite an age of 173 years!

Associated with it as the only other survivor from the Eighteenth to Century, is a Montreal daily with a career that dates from 1778.

In a country as young as Canada, one does not expect to find many individual business enterprises with a history going back as far as 1850. Yet the Canadian publication industry can boast of ten daily newspapers, seventeen weekly newspapers, three religious periodicals and one magazine, all still in active operation, that had their beginnings earlier than the middle of the last century. That makes a total of 31 publications, each of which is 87 years old or older. And if we were to begin the honor roll at 60, there would be no less than 204 publications that would qualify, 199 of them being in Eastern Canada, the part that was settled first.

Figures such as these testify more eloquently than words to the splendid manner in which the press of Canada has continuously served our country. The publishing of a periodical is essentially a form of public service. Newspapers serve a community interest. Only as each serves well the particular interest it has chosen to serve, has it a chance to survive. The fact that 199 of the 1,159 periodicals published in the eastern provinces . . roughly 17 per cent . . can claim an age of 60 or more, constitutes a record of useful and faithful public service of which the press of Canada may well be proud.

Publications live not on their circulation revenues but on their advertising revenues. They qualify for the latter by building up their circulation. And they build up their circulation by giving the best reader service their means permit them to give.

In pioneer days Canadian publications had little competition from other kinds of advertising media. Today they have a formidable army of such competitors. Each of the newer media can legitimately claim to serve the advertiser well in its own particular way. But no other medium can point to the long and distinguished record of useful service, both to the reader and to the public, that is the proud boast of the Press of Canada.

As the oldest advertising agency in Canada, A. McKim Limited are glad to pay this tribute to a press with which they feel themselves intimately acquainted, having grown up with it over a period of 49 years.

NEW YORK

Closed today and Monday — (Decoration Day)

TORONTO STOCK EXCHANGE CLOSE

Toronto, May 29—(CP)—Slowest market of the year gave the Toronto Exchange a turnover of only about 200,000 shares today. The holiday on the New York Market gave many Toronto customers of the local mart do holidaying notions and their withdrawal thinned out the action sharply.

One sale of 600 shares of Nickel was taped out at 60 1-4, a gain of 1-4 and prices were slightly firmer for Consolidated Smelters, Noranda, and Aldermac. Pend Oreille, Normetal and Falconbridge were off slightly. The new stock of Ventures, appearing on the board for the first time today, was quoted at 49 to 49.95. The old stock closed at 1.90 yesterday. Each new share represents five old shares.

Among the Goods Domes and Lake Shores were higher for broken lots and other gold gainers were Little Long Lac, up 25 cents and Sylvanite, Pamour, Wright Hargreaves, Conlaurum, Preston, MacLeod-Cockshutt and Kerr Addison.

Premier lost almost a cents, Waybob 3, Siscoe 5 and Toburn 3.

Buck Lamb Zero Hour Set for June 8

According to an announcement by the Canadian meat packing industry, buyers of lambs in Ontario and the West, on and after June 28, 1937, will pay two cents more per pound for ewe and wether lambs than for buck lambs. Buyers may also pay up to one cent more per pound for lambs of most desirable weights and of good quality than for lambs weighing over 90 and up to 110 pounds. Up to two cents more per pound may be paid for lambs of desirable weights than for lambs weighing over 110 pounds. Unfinished and cull lambs will be paid for on the basis of their relative quality.

As any abnormal marketing affects prices, all lambs should be docked, and all buck lambs castrated when ten days to two weeks old as a sure means of eliminating the buck lamb from the market. The advantages of marketing ewe and wether lambs are many, the chief of which may be labelled under four heads. Ewe and wether lambs can be marketed at any time during the season as soon as they reach desirable weight and finish. Ewe and wether lambs do better particularly late in the season.

The elimination of buck lambs avoids possible lowering of lamb prices at the beginning of July.

Produce Prices on Montreal Market

Montreal, May 29.—Most produce lines had a steady price tone yesterday. Eggs, cheese, potatoes, and poultry were unchanged. Butter was quoted steady in some quarters and slightly easier in others. Receipts were 1,297 cases of eggs, three boxes of butter and 781 boxes of cheese, excluding truck arrivals.

There were no sales on the Canadian Commodity Exchange. Quebec fresh 92 score butter was quoted there at the close of 34 1-4c to 34 1-2c. Western butter to arrive was offered at 32c. On the open market, some were quoting 34 1-2c to 34 3-4c, while others were unchanged at 34 3-4c to 35c. Small lots to the retail trade were quoted by jobbers at 35 1-2c for solids and 36c for prints. The market was dull.

The cheese market was quieter but held at 24 3-4c to 24 7-8c for No. 1 Ontario, current arrivals.

On the egg market the tone was firm, under a good demand, and graded shipments in used fine cases sold on spot at 21 1-2c for A-large, 20 1-2c for A-medium, 19 1-2c for B and 18 1-2 for C, while storage packed car lots were offering at 22-22 1-2c for A large 20 1-2c to 21c for A medium, 19 1-2c to 20 3-4c for B and 18 1-2c to 18 3-4c for C.

Fragrant Flowers and Spring Vegetables Entice Buyers On the Saturday Market

Green Onions, Radishes And Lettuce Find Eager Buyers

EGGS ARE CHEAP

Brilliant colors of tulips, lilac, lily of the valley and other cut flowers set in a background of the vivid green of flowering plants with the whole enhanced by the bright sunshine of a typical May morning gave the city market a real summery appearance today. In spite of the presence of Spring fishing work many farmers took advantage of ideal weather conditions to bring its city shoppers a splendid display of Spring vegetables and flowers.

At the peak of its natural production, asparagus reached a new high in quantity but prices remained steady, scarcely changing from those quoted at the beginning of the season. Pound bunches were quoted at fifteen, twenty and twenty five cents each according to quality. Spring spinach was also in evidence and sold well at fifteen cents per six quart basket.

New Spring vegetables dominated the outside market with a fine quality radish selling at three bunches for ten cents, with other vendors quoting their stock at six bunches for twenty five cents. Onions, radishes, green lettuce and other early edibles sold readily at five cents the bunch.

Potatoes were fairly plentiful with prices fluctuating as vendors sought for trade. Top price quoted today was $1.75 for the ninety pound containers with other prices ranging from that quotation down to as low as $1.25. Certified seed potatoes were offered at $2.00 per ninety pounds. Catching the eye of discerning shoppers was a fine quality of new string beans, with both the yellow and green varieties selling at 15 cents the pound. New Spring cabbage also proved popular morning briskly at prices ranging from five to fifteen cents each.

Imported fruits sold readily with many varieties being in evidence. Hot watermelons made their 1937 debut but the prices caused many a potential purchaser to ponder before loosing the purse-string. Eighteen cents bought one a juicy melon measuring nearly twenty inches in length and of generous girth. Pineapples also proved popular selling at ten fifteen cents each.

Contributing to the color of the market were the many varieties of plants and flowering bloomt. Huge bunches of purple lilac selling at 10 cents each vied with the reds, yellows and blacks of cut tulips selling at ten cents per half dozen. Trilliums were plentiful and were offered at 5 cents per bunch. Bleeding hearts at 5 cents per bunch; single and double petuniag at twenty five and fifteen cents per box; pansies at the same price; Poliage at five cents; geraniums at five cents; ten and twenty cents per pot; woodfern at five and ten cents per pot; zinnias and sweet alyssum at fifteen cents per box; Marigolds at the same price and the popular nicotine plant at fifteen cents the box rounded out a colorful display.

Vegetable Sale Plentiful

Small spruce sets, fresh from the northern woods and popularly used for hedges on city lawns sold well at twenty five cents per set.

Raspberry, blue and red varieties averaged two cents each as a number of vendor stalls. Strawberry sets were quoted at thirty cents per hundred. Tomato plants ready for field planting were plentiful with prices ribbing a quarter lower from those of a week ago. These were offered at seventy five cents per hundred with dozen lots going at fifteen cents. Cabbage and onion shoots were quoted at ten cents per dozen and fifty cents per hundred.

Dolls puppies added a homelike touch to the market today with youthful vendors selling the little fellows at one and two dollars each. Black and white rabbits nibbling peacefully at lettuce leaves were offered at twenty five cents the pair. Fine and fat weaner pigs were plentiful and were offered at prices ranging from three dollars to four dollars and fifty cents each.

Whitefish at 22c.

Lovers of fish found their favorite in variety. Whitefish sold at a new price high of twenty two cents the pound with fresh lake trout running a close second selling at twenty cents for the same quantity. Mullets were offered at five cents each and muskels at two pounds for twenty five cents. Pike was quoted at ten cents per pound.

In the indoor market, Saturday morning shoppers were greeted with a fine display of farm and dairy produce. Eggs generally were offered at eighteen cents the dozen for 'A' selects although a majority of vendors sold their stock at nineteen and twenty cents. Ungraded were offered generally at nineteen cents. Young broilers dominated the chicken mart selling at from 75 cents to one dollar per pair. Chickens were offered at from seventy five cents to as high as $1.25 each. Farmer's butter was quoted at the usual prices of fifty five cents for two-pound rolls with some vendors selling their stock at thirty cents per pound.

SLATE COMPANY IMPORTS EXPERT U. S. QUARRYMEN

The Men Are Very Enthusiastic Over Quality of Slate at Madoc

NEW EQUIPMENT

Canadian Slate Products Limited have engaged the services of several expert slate quarrymen from Pennsylvania; two of whom claim the distinction between themselves and their parents of almost one hundred years of continuous slate quarrying. The Company has been successful in obtaining the services of Mr. James Masters of Bangor, Pennsylvania. Permission was received from the Immigration Department, Ottawa, to engage these men, after the Provincial and Dominion Employment Agencies had used every efforts to obtain men in Canada according to a statement recently issued by the President, Mr. L. Ampleford of Toronto. Mr. Masters has had charge of production in several of the largest quarries in the slate belt in the Bangor area. He arrived at the property on May 24th and after a thorough examination of the quality of the slate, was very enthusiastic about the future of the Company. He said in part, "You will have one of the finest equipped plants, when completed, on the American continent. The new building which you are erecting is far superior to any we have in Pennsylvania". "You have the finest slate that I have ever seen or handled and you can say that you are the only producers on the American continent whose your slate has no faults such as ribbon wines is very detrimental to the manufacture of roofing and structural slate". Mr. Masters brought with him an experienced block-man by the name of which all blocks to be sawn and split, also an experienced splitter who will teach the younger men at the plant.

New Building Near Completion

The new Roofing Slate Process Building which is built of all steel construction is near completion. A Diamond Saw has been installed and a 57 H.P. Ruston Diesel has been installed which will run this plant. The new trimming machinery have arrived from Wales and are at present being installed. The company is making every effort to bring their roofing slate department up to capacity production and has now over thirty men working full time, this number will be added to, within the very near future.

Frankenstein is shown in the lower photograph after the riot during which he was injured.

FIVE BURNED TO DEATH IN CRASH . . . . .

This photograph made a few minutes after a crash of a Massachusetts automobile and a truck near Cossackie, N.Y., shows the fiercely-blazing passenger vehicle tire blew out, on the automobile standing on end in a culvert, causing it to smash into the truck. Three passengers in the machine were burned alive, as were the driver and helper of the truck. It is believed the crash occurred when a

"THE BRIGHT HILL"

by Clarissa Fairchild Cushman

Two weeks after the opening of school, a few days after the opening of Carl's new term, she received a long, loyal, sunshiny letter about it, and read, with a kind of numb horror, the brief letter that followed it, upon stiff fingers the stiff legal document. Carl had filed suit for divorce.

Divorce, Divorce. Over and over Kerin whispered the word, trying to make it real. Divorce. Carl. It had all been mistake—he was writing the not forgiving; it had all been working up to an ultimate cruelty. Cruelty; that was all it was. He wanted to hurt her. He was glad to hurt her. He meant to hurt her now all he could. With a gasp she reached the end of all thought; he would take Donald. That, that is above all, was what he meant to do. Donald. He would take him from her. Her mind said it over, and over. There was not the slightest doubt.

To stop the divorce, to prevent it —that was the only remedy. She must go back—at once, and take up her life with Carl. Now. Today.

Was he there? If he was not there, what could she do? Find him. Alan—Alan would help her. She would send a wire at once: Is Carl there?

And while she waited for the answer, she flung her things together, her bag. She wouldn't take Donald. Where had she read that possession —oh yes, possession was nine points of the law. The law. An ugly, hard word.

A girl to stay with Donald—gladly arranged. A message to leave for him: business was taking her away for a few days. A message to the president's office. She must dress. The dark silk. The dark silk suit, the one she wore when she had run away. A terrible mistake. Now she was running back—running back to beg Carl forgiveness, to beg Carl on her knees to take her back. No message from Alan—and she must rush for her train.

As she hurried to her taxi she did not notice the detaining scent of the jasmine, and as the taxi raced to the station she did not once turn back to look at her little house, its windows bright with sun like left the house that had made her so happy without one thought of it, her face set backward with anguish to regain the past.

All that long journey Kerin pushed the brain. She slept fitfully, moaning once and waking with a smothered cry, as nightmares persisted her. The train didn't be surprised." Alan stood, looking at his letter. At just the sight of that formal document, those cold legal phrases, a hot rush of anger had flooded him, tightening his heart, his head, flushing his face and his proud weary eyes. It was as if all the months and years of his own work had culminated, like this, in disaster. He was too tired, too tired, to bear this pouring flood of anger.

INSTALLMENT 29

"Alan, is Carl here—, teaching, I mean?"

"Yes, he's here."

"Then I must see him. Right away, Alan. I must see him. Right away."

"If you must." Alan's voice was very gentle, contrasting unnaturally with the rigidity in which his body was held. "Sit down a minute, Kerin. I think we ought to talk this over a little."

Susan pulled Kerin to the sofa and sat beside her, cuddling up to her in warm silent sympathy.

"You had no warning, Kerin?"

"No. And you see I must get him to take it all back—to take me back. I must. If he wins this suit, he'll take Donald. I know he will. That's all it's about. That's all every bit of it means. He claims I deserted him. How can that be, Alan? He never wrote me after Thanksgiving, not once. Not Christmas even. I wrote and wrote. I offered to come back. He wouldn't even answer. I was ashamed to let even you and Sue know. He's doing this to get even with me—to punish me, by taking Donald." Kerin was beating her knee with her fist in the terror and urgency of her story.

Alan reached out and took Kerin's tight fist, and gently loosened the gripping fingers. "Take it easy, Kerin. We're your friends. We're your friends. I repealed Alan, grimly, "even if I get dragged court myself and sued."

"He threatened us, Kerin, you know," said Susan.

"Threatened you?" Kerin turned frightened eyes on Susan. "With what?"

"With a suit for damages for alienation of your affections."

"It was nothing, Kerin. Just Carl showing his teeth." He must, thought Alan, push down this consuming anger. It wasn't civilized. Did Kerin feel it too? "Kerin, are you quite sure you want to go back to Carl? If you weren't afraid of losing Donald, would you go back?"

Kerin clasped her hands before her and rocked back and forth, her wide-open eyes fixed on nothing. Thoughts moved across them, mirror-like. Carl, blond and laughing; Carl, gentle, after her father died, standing between her and an empty world; Carl saying, "You're all they have, Kerin. We're your friends. We're your friends. I repealed Alan, grimly, "even if I get dragged court myself and sued."

Farewell Party by Madoc Friends

Madoc—On Wednesday evening, neighbors and the many friends of Mr. and Mrs. R. F. Wellman and family and Mrs. George Huffman met in Trinity United Church, Madoc to bid them farewell before they leave for their new home in Peterboro. Mr. Robert Bristol acting as chairman, had the meeting in order and a short program followed. Mr. Colin Ross took charge of community singing assisted by an instrumental duet by Mrs. L. Ashley and Miss Marion Robertson, Messrs. C. Ross, W. Hawthorne and B. Wellman entertained with two humorous songs. Rev. I. E. Kennedy gave a short address after which Mr. Ted Naylor was called and read the following address:

To Mr. and Mrs. Wellman and family and Mrs. Huffman,

It is with much regret that we, your friends, co-workers and associates of this community have learned that you are about to sever your connections here and move to Peterboro.

You have been greatly interested in all phases of church work, in lodge and everything tending to the welfare of the district at large. For these and other varied reasons you will be much missed by all the residents of the neighborhood where you have always taken such an active part and have been so untiring in everything which was for the best.

We trust you will find many new friends in the place where you will soon be residing and feel sure that you will find an outlet for your activities in the larger sphere which is before you. We hope that success and prosperity will be with you always.

Mr. and Mrs. Wellman and family we now take pleasure in presenting you with these gifts, not for their value but as an evidence of the esteem in which you are held by all the community and as a remembrance of those whom you will leave behind.

Mrs. Huffman, we must refer to your long and active record in connection with the Ladies' Aid and other church work all your life having lived in the village and county in this neighborhood. As one of the older residents you will be missed by all and while we shall miss you very much, we trust that you will find enjoyment in your new home.

Please accept this gift as a remembrance of the citizens here and believe that your memory and kind acts will live long in the hearts of those you have left behind.

Signed on behalf of the community at large: — Mrs. C. B. Hazen, Pres. Trinity W. M. S.; Mrs. W. H. McBain, Pres. Trinity W. A.; Mrs. T. L. Middle, Pres. Women's Institute; Miss Minnie Ferguson, Pres. Trinity Y. P. S.; Mrs. J. H. Davies, Noble Grand Eldorado Rebekahs; Mrs. George White, Pres. Trinity Church choir; Mr. Percy Holland, Hugh, Trinity S. S. and Bible Class and of I. O. O. F. Lodge, Madoc.

Sawfly Causes More Damage Than Fire To Spruce Trees Says Dominion Expert

First Discovered in Canada in 1930, the Sawfly, Native to Central Europe is Spoiling Canadian Spruce Interest is again centred in Belleville's Dominion Entomological and Parasitical Laboratory with announcement by the Dominion Government that Canada has declared war to the finish upon an enemy that will take years, perhaps decades to conquer it.

It is a vast contingent, millions strong of the commonly labelled saw-fly, which has encamped in Eastern Canada, and which, if not combatted at once, might easily ruin the country's second largest industry, the product of her standing forests.

In the Dominion laboratory, pictured above, on East Dundas street, finest of its kind in the world, which has recently been built for the specific purpose of breeding and culture of helpful parasites, millions of sawfly parasites will be bred here this coming summer for liberation in Canada's eastern forests in a concerted attack upon the avowed enemy. An estimate of the actual number of parasites needed this year has been announced by Mr. A. B. Baird, in charge of the laboratory, at about 200,000,000 of the tribe.

Native of Central Europe.

In the above centre of the picture may be seen the spruce saw-fly in various stages of development, first as a cocoon, then as larva and lastly as an adult. It is a native of central Europe, and like the corn borer, which will also be combatted by the local laboratory in Ontario cornfields, this year as it has for the past several years, is one of the undesirable aliens which entered this country unnoticed, found conditions favorable for growth and has reached all the threatening stage. It is believed the flies have been in this country about forty years, multiplying in numbers all the time.

Below the flies are seen spruce needles in which the pest has laid single eggs. At the upper right are the spruce trees which have been injured by the saw-flies. Above, left, is Dr. Arthur Gibson, Dominion entomologist, who is conducting the war on Canada's latest menace.

Declared to be more injurious to Canadian forests than the usual toll of forest fires, the saw-flies by the end of 1937, it is estimated, will have destroyed 7,000 square miles of spruce in the Province of Ontario alone. It has secured a firm grip throughout New Brunswick and Nova Scotia and is spreading into Ontario

Parasitical Control.

Natural control of the insect has not been available in Canada, and in order to suppress and probably wipe it out, millions of smaller, parasitical foes are being imported from Europe. Last year 30,000,000 of these made available through British Government entomologists, were received in Belleville and propagated in the local laboratory for reshipment here.

These parasites which are collected mainly in Hungary, are sent to Canada in the cocoon stage and are received in Belleville in a cocoon state through cold storage facilities. They are kept in a state of arrested development here and are released as appropriate intervals. The cocoons are thrown by aeroplane to sea ports and shipped in fast boats across the Atlantic. But not all parasites received in Belleville are of the spruce saw-fly variety. Many millions of other helpful insects, ranging from those used to keep the corn borer under control, to peach moths, and other field, forest and orchard pests are also received here and distributed to field and later released.

Expert entomologists of the world are in the local laboratory, constructed at a cost of $100,000.00 is the finest and best-appointed ever built.

Library Corner

by K. G.

A book, that offers unusual interest, into the ranges of human nature, is that written by Henry C. Link, Ph.D., Director of the Psychological Service Centre, New York City. The title, "The Return to Religion" would seem to be at variance with the methods of psychology which tend to solve problems through one's reactions rather than one's convictions. A fervent agnostic, Dr. Link, through his work with individuals, was led to conclude that the present day overemphasis on the intellectual rather than the spiritual is the cause of the ruin of personality. "We are the victims of our reason," he says, "and its dupes of scientific truth." The book, while in a sense autobiographical, ranges in its subjects from bridge, tennis, dancing to social security and the "isms" of education. William Lyon Phelps has called this volume "The finest book on practical psychology I have ever read."

The Arts Today," edited by Geoffrey Grigson is a volume which will show the modern trend, as interpreted by eight of the younger writers of England. All the fields of art are explored and appraised. W. H. Auden writes of art and psychology. Louis MacNeice writes of poetry. John Grierson a promising young producer, writes of the cinema. The fields of painting, sculpture, the theatre, music and fiction are all represented by modern exponents. Attitudes differ as to the future status of the various arts and the stimulating comment of the writers often food for discussion.

One of the most outstanding characters of modern India is revealed in the autobiography of "Jawaharlal Nehru". The author, an Indian, was educated at Harrow and Cambridge and called to the Bar. He returned to India to follow in his father's footsteps as a lawyer. On his return he became interested in the great social and political movements which swept over India. Much of his life of recent years has been spent in prison. The pages of his book offer a glimpse of an unusual personality.

"Not Deep As a Well" is the apt title of Dorothy Parker's volumes of collected poems. For here the reader may discern a modern philosophy which displays an arrogant bravado tinged with bitterness. There is a lyric lilt to these poems which stands re-reading and the themes range from flippant humour to tragedy.

The Nervous Strain
Of the stenographer's busy day

If you feel limp and tired at the end of the day and arise next morning unrested, you may be sure that the nerves are overstrained.

When the nerves are tired it means that your nervous system is greatly run down and you must have the help of a nerve tonic to regain health and vigor.

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is suggested because it is a thoroughly tried and proven restorative for tired, exhausted nerves. Because it goes to form new, rich blood it can scarcely fail to be of benefit to you just as it has been to so many thousands during a considerable number of years.

Such symptoms as nervousness, irritability and sleeplessness, tired, depressed feelings and discouragements warn you of nervous exhaustion and these soon disappear when Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is used to build up new nerve-force. With its use you will soon be feeling fine. Your friends will tell you how much better you look.

GERMAN FLEET BATTERS ALMERIA IN REPRISAL

Germany First Power To Attack in Spain: Reprisal for Bombing

Port of Almeria Destroyed Because of Air Attack on Warship

APPEAL TO GERMANY

Fears Felt in Europe That Peace Efforts May Collapse

London, May 31 (AP)—The British firing guns of German warships on the 21st anniversary of the Battle of Jutland, battered the Spanish government port of Almeria today in the first open attack in the civil war by a foreign power.

Nineteen persons were killed, including five women and one child, an official Spanish government report announced.

The town was destroyed, the Nazi government said, to avenge bombardment of the battleship Deutschland in which 26 German sailors were killed and 83 wounded.

Tension Grows Rapidly

International tension developed rapidly. There was danger the Committee to Negotiate Non-Intervention in Spain would collapse while all its efforts collapse.

The Nazi government announced its readiness to withdraw from the committee to permit a free hand in dealing with Madrid's Loyalist government.

The German fleet was ordered to Spanish waters to aid naval units already there in attacks by aircraft at night at any Spanish government warship or airplane.

The British government will not participate in the control system inaugurated today to prevent arms and munitions shipments to Spain for assistance of the Non-Intervention Committee as long as no guarantee is given, that such happenings will not occur, a Baldwin commitee was carried.

Eden Appeals to Germany

British Foreign Secretary Eden appealed to Germany to take no action which would "aggravate the situation."

CHILD IS BITTEN BY FAMILY DOG

Mrs. Fitzgerald of Shannonville Rescues Son from Animal

Shannonville, Ont., May 31. —(Special)—Victim of a savage attack yesterday by a police dog owned by the family, "Junior" Fitzgerald, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Fitzgerald of this village is today suffering from severe lacerations of the hand.

Hearing her son scream, Mrs. Fitzgerald rushed to the front yard where her son was playing and discovered the dog snarling and worrying at the hand of the little sufferer. After a considerable struggle, Mrs. Fitzgerald succeeded in rescuing her son and fighting off the infuriated animal.

The cause of the attack is not known. The dog, a family pet, has always been very docile and a friend of the children and has never been know to attack a human being before.

St. Michael's Observes Feast Corpus Christi

Yesterday the commemoration of the Feast of Corpus Christi was held in the parish of St. Michael—the Archangel with special solemnity. After the High Mass at ten-thirty the Blessed Sacrament was exposed until three o'clock when a procession was held from the church to the Altar which had been prepared on the lawn.

Participating in the procession, there marched the students of St. Michael's Academy, the First Communion class, the Holy Name Society, the Catholic Women's League, the Sodality of the Holy Angels and the Children of Mary. The various Sodeties carried their banners. The Fourth Degree of the Knights of Columbus acted as a guard of honor.

The altar was beautifully decorated, gleaming with lights and banked with flowers.

The sermon was delivered by Rev. J. O'Neil, Trenton, who spoke on the devotion to Our Lord present in the Blessed Eucharist. He traced the Sacrament from its institution by Christ at the Last Supper when He said "This is My Body, this is My Blood." He stressed the benefits spiritual and temporal derived from the Real Presence of Our Blessed Redeemer in the Holy Eucharist.

"Panis Angelicus" was sung by Miss Anna Ladforse and the children's choir chanted the Benediction.

Rt. Rev. J. P. Nicholson, V.G., was celebrant with Rev. R. La Lessy as deacon; Rev. J. J. Collins, sub-deacon and Rev. C. E. Sabre as Master of Ceremonies.

"WHITE COLLAR" UNION

Toronto, May 31 (CP)—Organization of automobile salesmen is the next objective of the United Automobile Workers of America, it was officials said today after a week-end meeting which included organization of a Canadian Committee of the U.A.W.A. The organization, an affiliate of the Congress for Industrial Organization, plans to sign as members "white-collared" workers.

Walter N. Wells of Detroit, vice-president of the international body, said the U.A.W.A. seeks a membership of 75,000 in Canada.

Ocean - Air - Service Flights Will Begin on June 24th

Clippers to Fly Between Newfoundland And England

2 WAY FLIGHTS

St. John's, Nfld., May 31 (CP)—Officials of Imperial Airways announced today Imperial and British Overseas Airways, Ltd., would begin initial trans-Atlantic flights via Newfoundland, beginning June 24.

The announcement did not specify in what direction the flights would be, but it was believed here an Imperial plane would fly from England and a Pan-American plane from New York, the clippers taking off at approximately the same time.

Such tests were made between Long Island and Bermuda last week.

Why the Weather?

By Major A. H. Thiessen

Science Service Meteorologist

Cold front thunderstorm!

These thunderstorms are usually associated with the familiar windshift line of the cold front.

At this line there is a meeting of cold northward flow and southerly winds. As the mass of cold air from the north advances its surface layer drags and is retarded. The causes an overhanging bulge of cold air which extends over warm air, and brings about instability; that is, the warm air, which is light, rises rapidly and the cold air sinks. Furthermore the cold air may undermine the warm air, again forcing it to rise. These conditions produce the thunderclouds and all the attendant phenomena, of, a thunderstorm. Often it comes after a cold front thunderstorm.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO, May 31 (CP)—A shallow depression is moving northeastward across Lake Superior and unsettled and also low over the Manitoba Valley and to the Great Lakes. A ridge of high pressure from the Yukon to high levels over the Lower Lake region southward and over the northwest States. The weather has been for the most part fair with warm temperatures in the Western Provinces, while over Eastern Canada it has been warm with thunderstorms in the Northern Districts of Ontario and Quebec.

Lake Region—Unsettled with showers or thunderstorms. Tuesday, partly cloudy and comparatively cool; fresh variable winds today, shifting to northwest on Tuesday.

Maritime—Partly cloudy and cooler. Tuesday, fair and moderately warm; fresh northwest winds.

Ontario—Showers and thunderstorms. Tuesday, partly cloudy and comparatively cool.

Manitoba—Partly cloudy and cooler. Tuesday, fair and moderately warm.

Saskatchewan and Alberta— Fair and moderately warm today and most of Tuesday.

"Wild Bill" Cummings Gradually Moves up to Front

Indianapolis Speedway, May 31 (AP)—With the race half finished, Wilbur Shaw of Indianapolis was engaged in a terrific duel of speed with Ralph Hepburn of Los Angeles for the lead in the 500-mile automobile race at the Indianapolis motor speedway today.

At 250 miles Shaw had a lead of six seconds over the California veteran with Ted Horn of Los Angeles third, "Wild Bill" Cummings of Indianapolis fourth, Cliff Bergere of Los Angeles fifth.

Travelling at record-breaking speed, Shaw covered the 250 miles in 4:63 minutes 46 hour. His time was 2:10:51.31.

Hon. Dr. Faulkner First To Apply in Health Plan

Toronto, May 31 (CP)—Hon. Dr. J. A. Faulkner, Ontario Minister of Health, was the first person to file application for services to be rendered by Associated Medical Services, Inc., as the health insurance scheme got into operation here the previous today. The plan is sponsored by the Ontario Medical Association.

Dr. J. A. Hannah, Director of the Service, said "much interest" had been aroused in the scheme, under which the wage earner may obtain full medical or surgical attention on payment of $2 a month and a graduated scale for other members of the family. Total cost for a family of four would be $6.50 a month, officials said. The subscriber chooses his own doctor.

BRITISH HOUSE GRAVELY ANXIOUS

Neville Chamberlain, New Prime Minister Welcomed in House

By GEORGE HAMBLETON

London, May 31 (CP)—The Chamberlain government this afternoon met a House of Commons gravely anxious over Spain.

Ramsay MacDonald, who retired from the premiership with Stanley Baldwin, recorded a sympathetic cheer of "hear! hear!" as for the first time in many years he took his seat on a back bench. It was the seat until recently occupied by Sir Austen Chamberlain.

But it was the menace of the Spanish scene which exercised the House. Foreign Secretary Eden referred to the situation as "grave," and told how he had expressed to the German Charge d'Affaires in London the earnest hope of the British government that the German government would take no action which would render it "graver still".

BACK FROM SPANISH WAR

Windsor, Ont., May 31 (CP)—Joy in the home of Mrs. Mabel Levy here because of reports her husband, Bernard Levy, received from a Spanish Insurgent prison camp, was accentuated today on receipt of a cablegram from the husband in London which read: "O.K. Home shortly. Love, Bert."

It was the first direct word Mrs. Levy and her 11-year-old daughter, Taube, had received since Levy was captured in the Madrid area in mid-February.

RURAL COURIERS HOLD SESSION

Many Matters Are Discussed At South Hastings Meeting

A regular quarterly meeting of the South Hastings "Rural Mail Couriers' Association" was held in the Y.M.C.A. on Saturday, May 29th, at 3 p.m.

A splendid number of members attended from Belleville, Trenton, Frankford, Foxboro, Roslin, Halloway, Tweed, Lonsdale, Shannonville and Prince Edward County. Much interest was in evidence in the work being done by the Ontario Central Association and many matters of interest to all members were discussed and passed on to the Legislative Committee.

Mr. W. Cruickshank of Trenton, President of the Local Association, was in the chair and very ably went into many matters that have arisen since the last meeting.

Most people do not know, or if they do, give little thought to the hundreds of "Rural Couriers" who make their regular daily trips at almost the same time each day over country roads through good and bad weather, and gratefully do so with a smile and good cheer.

It was decided at this meeting that a "Get Together Picnic" be held at Sandy Cove Oak Lake, on Sunday, July 18th, for the "Couriers" and their families. This day was chosen, not because it is easy to so use Sundays, but because on all other days these "Couriers" are up and at their work for His Majesty and for the public.

The business has been finished, it was decided to hold the next Quarterly meeting in August.

LUMBER MILL BURNED

Lindsay, Ont., May 31 (CP)—The lumber mill of F. W. Reed and Son was destroyed by fire of an unknown origin during the week-end, throwing forty men out of employment.

Situated in Harvey Township fourteen miles from Bobcaygeon on the Depot Road the Reed mill had provided steady employment for a large number of men, turning out a minimum of 15,000 feet of lumber per day.

A. Wright and pleaded guilty to the charge.

He was remanded to jail until he reappears for sentence next Monday. Chalmers, who represented no counsel, the prosecution being represented by Crown Attorney Harworth at Kingston.

Maude Adams Dislikes The Company of Men

New York, May 3 (AP)— Maude Adams, regarded still as the greatest of all actresses by many of her admirers, has moved to the Catskill Mountains tomorrow to carry on her long retreat from the world of men.

The woman, who throughout her 64 years has been cool toward and suspicious of men generally, is leaving her secluded home on Lake Ronkonkoma, Long Island, for the summer.

Three other elderly women and the White-haired husband of one of them will live for the next two months with Miss Adams on her farm in Harrison, N. Y.

Before their departure, the man of the party, Hugh Reilly, disclosed one of the reasons Miss Adams has lived with Catholic Sisters since her retirement from the stage in 1918 broken only by the brief comeback with Otis Skinner in "Merchant of Venice" in 1931-32) was because "they protected her from men."

"A couple of them used to follow her around the country — they thought they couldn't live without her," said Reilly, who for 35 years has been Miss Adams' stage property man and general man of all work off the stage.

RETIRED CANNER, WELLINGTON, DIES.

P. A. Greer Always Took Active Part in Church And Sport Affairs

Wellington, May 31—Philip Alexander Greer, 67, one of Prince Edward County's most highly esteemed and respected residents died in his home in Wellington on Friday, May 28, following a short illness which extended over a period of two years. The deceased was in his seventy first year.

Born at the Greer homestead in Hillier, he was the son of the late George W. Greer and Mary Jane Pettingill, the deceased received his early education in the township schools of his native county. With the exception of a few years spent in Florida and Arkansas, he and his wife the late Eva Noxon, who predeceased him on May 5th of last year, spent practically all their lives in Prince Edward County. Intensely interested in things agricultural, he returned to the farm following the completion of his education, where he specialized in the raising and development, of all kinds of fruits. Years of keen study in this phase of farming soon enabled him to the top ranks of successful fruit growers and his advice during this line was eagerly sought.

Some years ago he retired from active participation in work on the farm and moved to Wellington where he formed a partnership the Greer, Brothers Canning Company until the time of his illness.

A staunch adherent of the United Church he devoted much of his time and talent to the interests of the church. For a number of years he served as Church Board Treasurer and Envelope Steward of the United Church in Wellington.

Always a keen lover of sport, he attended many athletic scenia, and up to the time of his illness was always to be found in attendance at baseball games in the county and district.

The funeral held today in Wellington was attended by a large number of sorrowing friends and relatives. Services were conducted by the Rev. J. G. McKee, pastor of the United Church, Wellington. Interment was satisfied by the Rev. W. H. J. Smythe, pastor of the Port Perry United Church and a former minister of the deceased. Pallbearers were Messrs. Ernest Greer, Eugene, Malcolm and Joseph Greer, and two cousins Messrs Ralph and Donald Greer. Interment was made in Wellington Cemetery.

Surviving are three brothers, Ernest D., Charlie H., and Lindsay J. Gree, all of Wellington.

MAURICE BRANT'S NARROW ESCAPES

Is Hurled Over Dam Into Deep Water Below

Shannonville, Ont., May 31.—Maurice Maurice Brant, 20, Tyendinaga Reserve Indian, narrowly escaped death from drowning this afternoon when he was swept over the twelve foot dam of the Bateson River near here. Brant, who had gone in swimming in the waters of the river just above the dam was caught in the current and plunged over the steep drop to the treacherous eddies below. Here he was whirled in the foaming maelstrom with his wits apparently numbed and unable to fight his way to shore and safety. Apart from a few bruises and cuts received from contact with rocks, Brant appeared little the worse for his unusual experience.

Caterpillar Plague Menaces Orchards And Gardens Here

As predicted by local governments enchanter's nightshade, the season who gave warning also to agriculturists to be on the guard against the tent caterpillars have increased so rapidly throughout the district during the warmer weather they now control the situation, orchardists and orchardists alike, plagued with millions of the crawlers.

Reports received from every apple tree and wild cherry tree, the latter the favorite lunch and delicacy of the deceased. Pallbearers were Messrs. Eugene, Malcolm and Joseph Greer, and two cousins Messrs Ralph and Donald Greer. Interment was made in Wellington Cemetery.

Surviving are three brothers, Ernest D., Charlie H., and Lindsay J. Gree, all of Wellington.

No More Worry Over Money Need Be Felt by MacDonald

Former British Prime Minister Gets Income For Life

FRIEND'S TRUST FUND

Edinburgh, May 31 (CP)—Former Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald will not have to worry about money during the sunset of his career.

The will of his boom friend, Sir Alfred Mond, created in 1929 and made public today, showed today that MacDonald will receive the income from a trust fund of $300,000 "all the days of his life."

Sir Alexander's father and MacDonald's uncle were once fellow guards on a Highland railway. Sir Alexander, a millionaire biscuit manufacturer, for years was a regular visitor at Lossiemouth where his friendship with MacDonald ripened despite differences in their political views.

GERMANY REFUSES TO PARTICIPATE IN ANY SESSIONS

Must be Guaranteed No Further Bombings of Warship

PORT DESTROYED

Handed in Bombing as Reprisal For Shelling of Germany Acted Sligle-

London, May 31 (AP)—Germany and Italy withdrew today from the European non-intervention committee, after guns of German warships battered the Spanish government port of Almeria in the first open attack in the civil war by a foreign power.

Berlin, May 31 (AP)—The German government announced today it would not participate in any further sessions of the London Non-Intervention Committee on the control of arms and volunteers so Spain until it was given guarantees there would be no further incidents such as bombing of the Deutschland.

At the request of the German government a full meeting of the Non-Intervention Committee in extraordinary session was called for 4.15 p.m. (1.15 a.m. E.D.T.) to hear a full statement from Sir Ralph's representatives on the bombing.

The announcement came hard on the heels of the destruction of the Spanish government port of Almeria on the Mediterranean for the bombing Saturday at dusk of Deutschland in which 26 German sailors were killed and 83 wounded.

Germany acted single-handedly and swiftly. Paying back the Spanish government in kind.

Although there was no indication of the next step in German policy, it was learned that it was ordered to weigh anchor immediately to reinforce the units already in Spanish waters.

EVERYONE BUSY AT CHATEAU DE CANDE

Wedding Breakfast For Duke And Duchess Brilliant Affair

Monte, France, May 31 (AP)—Final preparations were speeded today for arrival of the first guests for the wedding next Thursday of the Duke of Windsor and Mrs. Wallis Warfield.

Everyone at Candé was a bustle of activity in the kitchens and in the upper floors where extra beds were piled in.

Chef Jean Diot and his staff have already begun preparations for the wedding breakfast. All the catering will be done by the household with-out outside assistance.

Touring Americans men made preparation for a day Thursday in the expectation of many tourists.

The proprietor of one restaurant where the Duke and Mrs. Warfield have dined recognized King Edward's abdication and placed over their table a blue and white sign of the Windsor arms, 1837. His Lordship the Duke of Windsor, King Edward VIII of England."

Youth Struck in Head By Board in Mill

Lindsay, Ont., May 31 (CP)—Ray Jones, 14, was injured seriously as the result of an accident while he was working in his father's lumber mill at Kinmount, it was brought to hospital here.

While the lumber, a 3-heavy board had been thrown off the edge, striking Ray on the forehead. The 70-mile trip to hospital here was made in a little over an hour.

TWO CHILDREN DROWN

Timmins, Ont., May 31 (CP) — Irma Trefl, seven years old, and Wynnie Jones, Jr., eight, were drowned when they fell into the waters of the Mattagami River at Wawatin Park yesterday.

The two children had gone to the park with Pullis on a fishing trip with the girl's father, Albert Trefl. Upon reaching the falls, Trefl and a son proceeded to the river bank and left the two children near the Northern Ontario Power Company's plant to watch the water pouring out of the turbines.

BOY FRACTURES ARM FALLING OFF VERANDA

Orliff Cross, 5-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Ken Cross, 141 Pinnacle St. was pulled off a veranda at his home by another boy while playing on Saturday, breaking his arm above the elbow. The little fellow is a patient in the Hospital where the fracture was reduced.

ORCHARDS IN BLOOM ATTRACT U.S. TOURISTS

"There's just one reason which prompts us to make an early visit to this district each year," commented Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Veteh, Cleveland, Ohio, visitors during a brief stop over on the city tourist camp early Sunday evening. "That is the sight of the apple trees in bloom just about this season.

"It's the fifth year we have visited Canada and this season the orchards were never more beautiful," added the visitors who made an extended trip through Prince Edward County, the Brighton district and through North Hastings since Friday, last.

Mr. and Mrs. Veteh, typical of the customary flat snapshots, this year have armed themselves with a modern movie camera and have taken hundreds of feet of scenic beauty of this and other districts, en route to the roaddide. Trees in blossom have been a particular delight to the tourists.

NEW REGULATIONS FOR HANDLING CHEESE DESTINED FOR EXPORT

Cheese makers of this central district are advised through a communication received today by the local office of Dominion Dairy Commissioner, E. S. Archibald, Ottawa, that Regulation 13, section B, under Part 2 of the Dairy Industry Act has been amended by the following substituted therefore:

(1) No person shall place in boxes within eight days from date of manufacture, any cheese destined for export.

(2) No grader shall grade any cheese until in his judgment it is sufficiently mature to permit of the quality being properly determined.

The above sections of Regulation 13 are now in effect and all cheese destined for export must be held in the curing room for at least eight days after manufacture, the press before being placed in the boxes, the communication adds.

Obituary

MRS. HARRIET A. KETCHESON (Frankford)

After an illness of four months' duration Mrs. Harriet Almeda Ketcheson died at her home, 37 Mr. Ketcheson, passed away at the family residence on Thursday morning, Saturday evening, May 29th.

The late Mrs. Ketcheson, who was in her 72nd year, was born in the 3rd. concession of Sidney Township, the parents being the late Mr. and Mrs. Tilbon Bell. For many years she resided on the 4th concession of Sidney Township and for the past twenty-six years she had resided in Frankford village. She was a woman of most estimable character and her passing this brought deep feelings of regret to many who knew her and a large circle of friends. In religion she was a faithful member of the Church of England and in her health was a constant attendant at the services in connection with Trinity Church at Frankford.

Surviving to mourn her passing are her husband, Mr. W. A. Ketcheson; two daughters, Mrs. Peter Van Allen, Trent Road, 1st. concession of Sidney Township and Mrs. MacLaren of the 5th. concession of Sidney Township; one son, Mr. Walter Ketcheson, Trenton. Another son, Edward, passed away two years ago.

The funeral announcement is made elsewhere in this paper.

Rebekah Lodge

Visitors from Belleville and other communities throughout the central district joined with Campbellford members of Rebekah Lodge in celebrating the 14th anniversary of Loch Lomond Lodge in Campbellford on Friday evening. Nearly 100 guests enjoyed the banquet which followed the degree which was exemplified by the Frankford Lodge and the initiation of three new members of the Campbellford branch.

STUDENTS VIE ON FIELD, TRACK IN ANNUAL GAMES

Jack Peoples Within Half Inch of Record in High Jump

Poor footing undoubtedly proved the greatest obstacle which Jack Peoples failed to establish a new school record for the senior high events at the opening of the annual track and field day meet of the Belleville Collegiate Institute and Vocational School at the Fair Grounds this morning. Under trying conditions, however, Peoples won the senior high jump, but fell short one inch of establishing a new school jump record. Peoples bundled over 5 foot three inches before slipping.

The annual B.C.I. & V.S. school day was marked with a large entry of contestants in all events, the groups seeking individual points or berth on the relay teams. A 9.6 clattering pace witnessed the competing athletes as the preliminary heats in the various dashes were completed this morning, with the winners qualifying for the final heats this afternoon.

The results of the morning events:

Girls' Events

Senior: Girls' Relay (3 rows): Janet Adams, Gladys Samain, Doris Gardner. 6ft. 11in.

Intermediate: High Jump: Marjorie Hilchon, Marjorie Hales, Claude Tuffs. 11ft. 10in.

Junior, High Jump: Dorothy Dowdall, Dorothy Landry, Jean Sherry. 4ft. 6in.

Boys' Events

Junior, 100 Yards: Wilfred Mills, Warren Gannon, Wallace Anderson. 13 secs.

Senior, High Jump: Jack Peoples, W. Wright, T. Hughes and C. Bailey, the 5ft. 3in.

The finals in all track events and many field events are to be featured this afternoon, the meet being under the supervision of Miss Allison, girls' athletic directed assisted by George Laughlin, in charge of boys' athletics at B.C.I. & V.S.

Only contesting students and field day officials were permitted to leave their studies to compete in the morning program, although the entire school will be present this afternoon. The officials of this morning will be augmented by members of the teaching staff this afternoon.

The officials in charge this morning were: Starter: Bill McGhie. Timers: R. R. Sawyer, F. Palmer. Announcer: Wm. Fry. Judges: J. Gilmour, T. Paterson and W. Muir.

GROOM-TO-BE, 59 NOW SEEKS JOB

Nuptials to Prince Edward County Girl Meanwhile Wait.

Just when George Loasby, Port Rowan, farm laborer and Agnes Storms, comely Prince Edward lass whom he selected as his prospective bride from a list of over sixty applicants answering a newspaper advertisement for a wife, were ready to parade to the altar, George's employer, thrown by figurative monkey wrench into Cupid's machinery and deprived the fifty-nine year old bridegroom of his job setting wedding date back until such time that George can get employment to find the means of providing for his future bride.

Loasby, who is in Picton looking for work, stated on Saturday, "You can't really marry a girl when you haven't got a home to take her to. They had it in the papers we were married on May 24th but they were wrong I left Port Rowan that day for Picton and didn't get here until Tuesday evening. Miss Storms has never been to Port Rowan so we could hardly have been married that day. In fact we are not married at all and don't know now when we will be. But I hope it is soon."

First Meeting Sunday

Cupid's plans crashed about Loasby's ears when his employer refused to give him permission to bring his bride to his home. So George left and came to Picton, where he is at present seeking work. "I want something steady," he said, "and something that will bring in enough to support both of us. I want to get married."

Meanwhile in her home, fifteen miles from Picton, on the Bay of Quinte, the bride awaits the coming of her elderly groom. She met him on Saturday in a Picton hotel. The couple appeared to be anything but lovebirds.

Wants Home in P.E. Co.

"I wouldn't have gone to Port Rowan anyway," Miss Storms declared; when George told her of losing his job. "I was born in Prince Edward County and have always lived here. I want George to get a job here. I want a home of my own and have a lot of things to help make one."

"I got tired of living alone," Loasby added in answer to a query as to why he advertised for a wife. "I'm sure you're satisfied," he added with a smile. "Why I got over sixty answers to my ad. and these three girls are coming to my wife's own of seventy. Miss Storms appeals to me as that of a good family, a good worker and a cook. I think she would make a good wife."

In the prime of life Loasby believes he is at fifty-nine. The bride-to-be was twenty-seven in May.

"I'll get that job first and then we will plan our wedding," Loasby said. "I hope it will be soon, and so does Agnes".

OPEN INQUEST ON W. POOLE

An inquest looking into the death of the late William Poole, deafond Belleville General Hospital on Sunday morning, was held by Coroner Dr. J. J. Robertson, at Mallory's undertaking rooms, Church Street, at noon today. Identification was established and the proceedings adjourned until a later date when the inquest will proceed at 2 o'clock this afternoon.

Dr. R. S. McCreary was called and after viewing the body ordered moved to act on the case until 11.00 a.m. Sunday. "The deceased obviously had suffered a fractured skull and died Sunday night," stated Dr. McCreary.

Sergeant Harman, coronrt's constable, stated the accident happened on Bridge Street on Wednesday evening last when deceased sustained injuries which subsequently removed to the hospital. "We have numerous witnesses available for the hearing, all of whom saw the accident," prompted Sergeant Harman.

R. C. Donnan, K.C., County Crown Attorney, conducted the investigation. The jury was composed of Reeve George, Thos. Harris, H. McGinnis, Mark Spafford, F. Chandler, Mac Hill and E. Bateman.

FAREWELL CHAPEL SERVICE HELD

Rev. Dr. Bert Howard Delivers Address to Students

"Life's greatest task for everyone of us to find the true philosophy of life," said Rev. Dr. Bert Howard, principal of Albert College, addressing the last chapel service of the Student Christian Movement for the present school year at Albert College on Sunday afternoon. "The writer of Ecclesiastes" continued the headmaster, "chooses the very worst philosophy, that of cynicism, life is vanity and vexation of spirit. He said that nothing is worth while, and why worry."

"Dr. Howard remarked, "of all people to be pitied is the cynic. Not only does he know he is missing the best in life, and that he is a fool in his own eyes, but he knows he is held in contempt by all persons."

Opposite to this pessimism, is the Psalmist's philosophy, "Come let us sing a new song," "That is the philosophy I find so helpful," said Dr. Howard.

A Sane Philosophy of Life

"The principal pointed to the great statesman Sir Wilfrid Laurier who has laid down the tasks of Empire, and said he had a beautiful philosophy which is expressed in those words, "it makes very little difference whether a man is driving a tramcar or is prime minister, if he not only brings to life a new service, a thing that is in him and performs it in the service of mankind."

The philosophy of life which one has, largely defines one's life said the principal. "Life is largely dissatisfied music, he orchestra requires a tried and competent leader, it needs a great variety of instruments. Some feel "we must be it or we won't do anything." That is tragic, for in many of us feel that everything is dissatisfied. We feel whether in school or in life somebody had something against us. To the students I would say, 'Life is going to be unendingly disappointing to you unless you are used to harmonizing and living with your fellows.

Dignify The Calling

"It is a mighty fine thing in life to choose a worthy calling, and to live just as mighty and fine to make your calling whatever it be equally mighty and fine. If you want music to play the big drum or blow the great bass horn in the orchestra, no one must not forget that there menti has to play first fiddle. If the violinist should be absent from any small instrument fails, the symphony would fail.

"What really matters is this. How are you playing, and are you doing as you going to continue to play? Whom have you chosen for your leader in the orchestra of life?" asked Principal Howard.

Doing Bit Nobly

In what he called a sort of "round-song" the principal said, "We were going out from school now to return. Dr. Howard will choose a tried and competent leader, despite not your music nor your instrument will you be able to do your bit in the world. Go out then and do your bit, no matter how small that bit may be."

Mr. Harry Atkinson, president of the Student Christian Movement at the College presided over the service in the memorial chapel and welcomed the gathering of students and friends. Miss Marie McDougall, offered prayer and Mr. Ken Morland, president of the Student Council read the Scripture lesson. Holloway Street United Church choir led in the singing under direction of Mr. R. Hailey, and sang two anthems "How Amiable are Thy Dwellings" by Maunder and "Bill, Bill with Thee" by Dudley Speaks, in which Mr. J. Gordes took the bass portion. Members of the Board of Governors and others attended the service.

THREE TABLETS PLACED IN CHURCH

Impressive Service at Bridge Street United Church

"As I look at these tablets I thank God for these men", declared Rev. Dr. James Semple in a brief impressive address given before a crowded auditorium at Bridge Street United Church yesterday morning when the official presentation of tablets to the memory of the late David V. Sinclair, R. J. Graham, and A. G. Northrup, former members of John Street United Church, was made by Mr. J. N. Findlay former Clerk of Session of that church to Bridge Street United church. Mr. F. S. Deroche, recording steward of Bridge Street, formally accepted the tablets on behalf of his church.

"We are a congregation, should thank God for their creative foresight and pioneering courage," continued Dr. Semple. "They lived and loved in Christ".

Giving to Church

"Every one has some costly contribution to make. There are too many people, like Judas, who object to the gift of the church. They make costly gifts to man but none to God and humanity. We should make our contribution while we are alive to do so and in giving the gift will be touched by Christ."

"There is a feeling power in the lives of those who receive". Dr. Semple stated "wherever their shadows fall. Not only in their gifts to Christ but in their godly lives. These men from a simple beginning brought great results. They had all the greater things of life, and among them that greatest gift God can give to man, a Christian influence. They will never die. Their influence will be felt and will speak to us down through the years".

Lives are Eulogized

Simple eulogies, impressive in their verbal beauty were given by His Honor Judge George Deroche, brother of Mr. Cook and Mr. Ackerman to the memory of the departed.

"He was a dear old gentleman and I will always think of him as such", Judge Deroche said of the late Mr. Northrup.

Of the late Mr. Sinclair, Mr. Cook said that no greater monument to his memory is evident than that of the Y.M.C.A. building here. It is a fine testimonial to his memory among the young men."

"It is quite fitting that the memorial tablet of the late Mr. Graham should come to Bridge Street Church," Mr. Ackerman said, "for he was when a young man a member of Mr. Church. He was a great world traveller and enriched the globe many times."

Prior to the regular service a number of young children were baptized into the service of the church. Dr. Semple officiated at the ceremony.

The memorial tablets which have been re-conditioned, have been placed on the east wall of the church, near the entrance, and were the source of much interest on the part of the large congregation as it filed out of the church following the service.

MASS CELEBRATED ON POPE PIUS' BIRTHDAY

This morning a High Mass was celebrated in the Church of St. Michael the Archangel to mark the birthday anniversary of His Holiness Pope Pius XI. The celebrant was Rev. Father Sheridan, C.S.S.R. and the children's choir sang the mass. A large congregation was present and made generous Holy Communion. Monsignor Nicholson delivered a sermon on the life and work of Pope Pius XI, speaking of the great influence he has wielded in the world affairs. The speaker referred to the Papacy which has played so great a part in the shaping of civilization, and asked the prayers of the congregation for the continued well being of the Sovereign Pontiff who is the guiding star indicating with certainty and precision the way out of the difficulties that beset our troubled world.

RECKLESS DRIVING CHARGE IS PROVED

"The officer investigating connected this man's car and directed him to a hotel for his own protection. The officer testified that he showed slight signs of drinking," Crown Attorney S. C. Donnan, K.C. informed Magistrate A. E. Bailey, K.C., during today's local police court proceedings in the case of P. A. Jarvis, Kingston, pleaded guilty to a charge of driving recklessly and also to consuming liquor in an illegal place.

The accused man was apprehended driving on Highway No. 2 south of Marysville by Motorcycle Patrolman C. L. Jillings, Napanee, on Saturday. The accused man's operator's license was suspended for a period of one week.

"May I drive my car home to Kingston?" queried Jarvis.

"I would not. You have drink alone," cautioned His Worship.

Claude Gordon, Belleville man who has been in the courts for some weeks on a charge of vagrancy, found his case dismissed today.

"Only a charge of vagrancy was laid again Gordon, but investigations by the Belleville Police and Chief Charles Monohan, who received serious injuries and has been in the hospital for some time, are not completed," added Mr. Donnan.

"I don't think w can hold this man any longer, case dismissed," commanded His Worship. Mr. Donnan intimated the dismissal met with his approval by adding "I guess Quinn will be around if we ever need him."

A Stirling farmer pleaded guilty to drunken driving, which is punishable by seven days in jail without the option of a fine. "I believe this young man's father is ill and he is needed to complete the spring seeding on the family farm. Would you consider permitting him to finish his seeding and coming back to serve his sentence in two weeks time?" queried Mr. Donnan. His Worship agreeable and consented to the suggestion.

Norman Eby, Lindsay, paid the sum of $10 after pleading guilty to a charge of reckless driving laid by Motorcycle Patrolman Sam Irvine.

22 BAGS OF GRAIN ALSO CALF STOLEN

Taken From Farm of John Keene in Sidney Township

Twenty two bags of seed grain and a three months old calf are reported stolen from the farm of John Keene, third of Sidney, over the week end. Mr. Keene discovered the loss of the grain upon rising to commence his daily chores early Monday morning. He immediately notified Provincial Constable Wm. McSkrien, who is now in charge of the search for the officers that the theft of the grain and calf must have occurred during the night. Stolen from the granary in the barn were 17 bags of seed buckwheat, three bags of barley and two of oats.

The scene had five Durham heifer calves tied and secured in the barn, but the thieves left behind the rope halter which secured it in the room adjoining the grain granary. Police stated that distinct marks of a struggle were in evidence where the animal had broken the rope which tethered, but apparently the second rope halter was too much for the thief, found wandering about the barn yesterday. Police stated that the theft from the chance of the calf having broken loose and escaped from the barn as the doors were also secured.

WEIGH MASTER FOR ALL CHEESE MAY BE NAMED

Official May be Appointed at Nominal Figure by City Council

SETTLE DISPUTES

Members of London Board Visit Belleville to Obtain Ideas

Committee appointed from the Belleville Cheese Board to investigate the possibility of having Belleville city council officially appoint a weigh master for cheese in the city, by unanimous agreement of the Board at its regular weekly trading on Saturday noon, following a motion to this effect by W. R. McCreary, buyer, will be given power to act in the matter. The motion which followed brief reports of W. C. Morrow, president of the Board and Secretary Fred Mabbey, was seconded by Mr. Montgomery.

Robert Gooby of Belleville, formerly chairman of the local board, has been named as a possible appointee to the position of weigher, hired at a nominal salary by the council, it was indicated in the report of the Board president.

Services of the weigher are not of compulsory nature. It was pointed out by Richard Hart. He will only, mainly as a convenience to both buyer and factories as the final word in official weights whose weight she would be the final authority in the matter of weight arguments. "When official weights are asked for no second weighing is made, this weigher would be in a position to supply them", added Mr. Hart "It does not mean that all factories or salesmen will have to have the official weighed."

What the question finally settled down to, is whether we want a man here who could act as official weigher and settle any disputes which might arise", was explained previous to the vote.

One new buyer, Robt. E. Ashton, was introduced to the Belleville Board of Trade Board Morrow on Saturday, explaining in answer to a question by one salesman, that he was trading solely for himself.

In order to attend and view the Belleville system of boarding cheese, invitation was extended to three western board representatives, J. J. Poole, president of the Ingersoll, Ont., Cheese Board; Mr. Morrow, president of the London, Ont., Board and Mr. Bailey, secretary of the London Board.

To Board All Cheese

In his brief acknowledgment of the introduction, President Poole explained that the Ingersoll Board was attempting a change in the present system of boarding cheese. To that end a visit had been made to the Belleville Board "to acquire a edged at perhaps the outstanding Board in Canada", he added.

"We appreciate the size of this Belleville Board, because it stands in readiness to cope with any trading that may be offered to it. Under the western system we have not been able to board as much cheese as we would like, especially owing to the fact much cheese is sold to buyers at the factory, and some more of it is bought on the curb. We expect to add more to boards this and have all cheese boarded regularly.

Mr. Hugh Jones, president of the London Board, also expressed his appreciation of the facilities afforded view the Belleville Board in operation. Attended his observations to Belleville members for the efficiency of the master cheese board in the posing of cheese from buyer to seller through the regular boarding.

Confessing he had not been at the work long enough to form any new hints on marketing, Wm. Bailey, secretary of the London Board commented also upon the contrast, that was afforded between the Belleville and London Boards. "There we have only a handful or so of buyers. Here you have a complete system".

As a point of information W. R. McCreary of the Belleville Board stated: "Are the published prices we see in the papers from pool Board the actual prices paid?"

"The prices are bid, but not always sold at that price", explained Mr. Poole of the Ingersoll Board. "There we have a different system; at the end of the month the prices which have been bid are averaged up and those are the prices we figure at which the cheese are sold."

Instal New System

"Then when we see that 100 boxes or so of cheese have been sold on the Ingersoll Board at 1-2 cent, it doesn't mean a thing?" pursued Mr. McCreary.

"Not under the present system," Poole agreed Mr. Poole. "But we hope to install a new trading and buying board upon which any buyer can come in and buy his cheese. Cheese then will be sold at the price at which they are bid on the board."

This latter explanation brought a round of applause from members of the Belleville Board.

Full support in the matter having a produce weigher in Belleville for the convenience of the district was voiced by Mr. R. V. Illey, manager of the local branch of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, another visitor to the Board.

"The appointment of the weigher by the city council, who would be recommended and fully approved by the Cheese Board would mean simply the appointment of an official referee, who would be available at all times not only for the cheese factory and buyer, but for the man who purchases his cheese and other stuff, too", explained Mr. Illey.

"Let the city council appoint him at a salary of say $1,200 per year, and he could have the return from the small fee paid for weighing.

Mr. Illey paid high respects to representatives of the Ingersoll and London Boards, and expressed appreciation for the fine compliments they had tendered the local organization.

"A good year is ahead, and a prosperous one", responded Mr. Illey. "Owing to the condition of the Old Country markets at the present time and the fact we are favored by the United States tariffs, we have new possibilities opened to us this year. I hope personally to see cheese sold locally at fifteen and a half cents per pound before the season is over.

Next Saturday's meeting will be the annual election of officers of the local Board, members were reminded by Secretary Mallory. A request that the Board meet at 10.30 in the morning was made.

HOW TO OVERCOME ITCHING PILES

If you are annoyed with itching piles or rectal ailments, do not neglect the condition, and risk an operation. Any itching, painful or tender part, sores of skin, may be relieved by the use of Dodd's Ointment as directed. Dodd's Ointment is used internally and externally to relieve itching and soreness and aids in the healing of the irritated spot. Remember in a physician's prescription and is highly recommended. Dodd's is used internally and externally. If you are looking for anyone to risk an operation when a simple remedy, which is of long standing, may be had at such a reasonable cost.

A radio plea, sent out from the "Viking" was picked up by the liner "Niagara" en route from Auckland to Vancouver and the Canadian ship surgeon boarded the yacht and performed the operation necessary to save Baker's life.

Five German Warships To Exact Reprisals For Bombing of Deutschland

Reports State Battleship Shelling Port of Almeria

'ACT OF WAR'?

Spanish Delegation Asks For Special Session of League Council

London, May 31— (AP)—The admiralty announced today it has informed the German battleship Admiral Scheer began a bombardment of the Spanish Government port of Almeria early today.

A British destroyer, on duty with the non-intervention patrol, witnessed the bombing, the information, the announcement declared.

The Spanish Embassy declared it had been informed by telephone the bombardment started at 7 a. m. and ended still being pursued into the Mediterranean city at 11 a. M.

(Reports from Berlin said the German Government was prepared to exact reprisals for the bombing of the Deutschland by Spanish Government planes by conducting a bombardment of a Spanish city.)

An official of the Spanish Embassy declared five warships were taking part in the bombardment.

At Geneva, Julio Alvarez Del Vayo, Spanish delegate to the League of Nations, declared he had been informed a German cruiser and two destroyers were bombarding the city.

Members of the Geneva delegation were reported to have described the bombardment as "an act of treachery" and "a deliberate insult to the League" to capture the town by their own efforts.

Call for Session

Del Vayo called for an extraordinary session of the League to take action, in consideration the report of developments.

Spanish circles in Geneva declared they took a most serious view of the incident as the most flagrant and undisguised aggression in Spain.

The news of the bombardment of the Republican city came just before the 27 nation "hands off Spain" committee's steering committee was to have been called into session as a result of the bombing of the Deutschland off Ibiza in the Balearic Isles Saturday.

Twenty-three German sailors were killed in the Deutschland bombardment and 83 wounded, 18 seriously.

Change Attitude

The chairman's sub-committee had been expected to receive a possible joint Italo-German demand that the Spanish Republic be joined together to keep the Spanish war "clean" from embroiling the rest of Europe, but changed attitude from "passive insulation" to active intervention.

The German and Italian protest was based on the Deutschland incident and a previous bombing of an Italian vessel in which six officers were killed, was expected to be presented today.

The seaport city of Almeria, capital of the province of the same name, is situated on the Spanish coast southeast of Malaga, 60 miles east of Malaga. Its population is normally 100,000 persons.

The city's narrow streets, dating back to the time it was under Moorish dominion, are blocked by terrific rocky hills that are crowned by a citadel and a Moorish port.

Spanish Liner Sunk

Valencia, Spain, May 31 (AP)—The Spanish liner Ciudad De Barcelona, heavily laden with passengers, was reported today to have been torpedoed and sunk in the Mediterranean by an insurgent submarine off Barcelona.

Reports of possible casualties was available, but the 3,246-ton vessel was believed to have left Marseille with a long passenger list.

Dispatches from Barcelona, government stronghold on the east coast, said the Ciudad De Barcelona was part of Insurgent General Francisco Franco's naval force.

The Defence Ministry of the Spanish Republican government announced the Ciudad De Barcelona was sunk by a submarine "of unidentified nationality."

The incident occurred in Mediterranean waters patrolled by Italian and German naval vessels as part of the London non-intervention committee's decision to halt men and arms bound for Spain in the general region where other maritime incidents brought the possibility of complications to the Spanish civil war.

Two torpedoes were fired at the Ciudad De Barcelona, the Defence Ministry said. One projectile scored a direct hit and sent the passenger vessel to the bottom, about 37 miles northeast of the Catalan capital.

The same submarine had earlier attacked the Spanish merchantman Zorzona in the same vicinity. Two torpedoes were launched at the ship, but she escaped undamaged.

HAIL! HAIL!

In the merrie month of May, when carpets of flowers are in order, Baltimore, Md., to its amazement, experiences a carpet of hailstones—the product of a freak storm that stood the city on ear for a brief period, knocking down telephone and light poles and playing similar spectacular pranks. Here you see an auto running for shelter as a barrage of hailstones, big as golf balls, bombarded the highway.

WILL ESTABLISH MAN'S IDENTITY

Money Secured in Holdup Believed Recovered in Hotel Room

Brockville, Ont., May 31.—(CP)—Police said today they would take photographs and finger prints in an attempt to establish the identity or a young man charged here with a $2,000 holdup Saturday of Mallorytown Royal Bank. The young man gave the name of George James Chalmers and said he was a welterweight boxer, but police said from Toronto addresses he gave were incorrect.

The accused was arrested in a Kingston Hotel after information had been given police by two newspaper reporters who had traced him to the hotel after questioning the taxi cab driver, Oswald Earl, who had driven him from Brockville to Kingston. The reporters, Gordon Powley, Kingston, and Fred Pense, Gananoque, had been assigned to the story by a Toronto paper.

Police declared search of the hotel room of the accused located $1,127 of the $1,160 stolen from the bank. They said the money was in a club bag, and added they had also the loaded revolvers, one of which has been identified as having been taken from the bank during the holdup.

Held in Custody

The young man, who had registered at the hotel as George James Tornio, was remanded without bail until today.

"This is a stick-up, hurry about it," a young man told Manager A. H. Votier as he was working on the ledger Saturday morning at Mallorytown branch bank, a mile and one-half north of Kingston highway.

He ordered the teller (L. A. Rowat) and me at the point of a revolver to hand over money," the manager said. "When he got the money out of a tin container in the teller's box, he forced us into the vault and closed the door.

Votier and Rowat escaped from the vault after they found a screw driver which they used to take a plate off the combination and open the door.

FATHER AND SON SACRIFICE LIVES TO SAVE GIRLS

Seven Drowning Victims in Ontario Over The Weekend

HEAD STRIKES ROCK

Midland Youth Nearly Loses Life Trying to Rescue Friend

By The Canadian Press

Three children attracted to cooling waters for the first swim of the season were among seven drowning victims in Ontario during the week end as temperatures rose to 90 degrees in some parts of the province. The total death toll of nine included a woman and child in an automobile tank explosion and one fatal motor accident.

Guy Wells, 40, and his 14-year-old son, Albert, sacrificed their lives near Pickering in the Oshawa district, Saturday in an attempt to save two girls in the family who had cried for help while bathing in a creek after a picnic. The girls later reached safety. Both father and son dived to the rescue at the same time. Neither could swim.

Leonard Landigan, 11, nearly lost his own life as he sought to rescue Howard Eveline, 10, drowned near Midland. Leonard freed himself after a struggle in Honest seized him under water in panic.

Only 20 feet from shore at Port Stanley, Bill Graham, 22, St. Thomas, drowned in Lake Erie Sunday, when seized with cramps. High cliffs at the point, where the drowning occurred prevented a life saving crew getting down to the beach with a rubber raft after two youths had recovered the victim.

Drowns in Pool

Not far from the Niagara whirlpool, Fred McGill, 9, drowned in a pool rarely used by visitors. He was unable to swim and had dived into 20 feet of water without knowing its depth. The body was recovered.

Warren Gray, 10, East York Township, was diving in the Don river at Pottery Road when he got in swim. He struck his head on a submerged rock and drowned. Fred Heinze of Hamilton drowned at Hamilton Beach, where he had been swimming since Sunday evening while two companions had gone out on the lake in a rowboat.

The only traffic fatality, an unidentified man was struck by an automobile while walking along a road at Ingersoll. Police believed the man may be A. Chaberg, Vancouver. Two other workmen were seriously injured when Fernand Pilon, 21, was killed at St. Isidore de Prescott, 50 miles east of Ottawa, when an acetylene tank exploded in a garage.

MICKEY COCHRANE MUCH IMPROVED

Physicians in Charge Still Fearful of Secondary Meningitis

New York, May 30.—(AP)— Mickey Cochrane appeared unmistakably on the upgrade today but physicians in charge still feared that manager of the Detroit Tigers said the danger of infection still was present.

Cochrane is suffering from a fractured skull received in a fall at suit of being "peaned" by one of Bump Hadley's pitches in the Tigers game with the New York Yankees Tuesday.

"The greatest of the terrific concussion are fading out. But we still must watch for the secondary infection because of the chance of infection," said Dr. Byron Stookey, consultant in the case. "There is definite improvement however, in Cochrane's general condition."

THE SENSIBLE DUTCH

Particular interest in English-speaking countries attaches to the defeat of Nazism in Holland and the triumph of democracy in the land of dykes. British people have always felt a feeling of kinship for the Dutch and the other northern European nations which are the bulwark of democracy, Denmark, Norway, and Sweden along with Holland. Besides these peoples with their orderly forms of government and their lack of upheavals, are very much in the English or British manner of development and quite unlike the radical changes such as have swept France, Germany and Russia. These nations with the United States and the British Dominions stand as the exponents of thorough democracy as against dictatorship whether fascism or communism and against socialism.

In Holland the Dutch Nazis secured four seats, they expected ten out of one hundred seats. The Nazis of that land no doubt trusted to the influence of Germany to give them a strong footing but were disappointed. Herein the people of Holland have made it very clear that they are satisfied with democracy as it has been developed in their country.

It is a good thing in this age to find a number of peoples whose pulse does not require the artificial stimulus of political upsets, fascism or radicalism. The solid composed Hollanders know a good thing when they see it such as democracy and will not toss it away for the will o' the wisp which Nazi seekers after power dangle before them. Their common sense is a victory for the democratic order of things. They have not allowed themselves to be tempted to give up their rich heritage of peace and order for restrictions and limitations on freedom and liberty as some countries have.

People in other lands which have fallen victims to various "isms" in politics, seeking new orders of things should ponder over the Dutch situation. Other lands may like their nationalistic growths but the Dutch do not yield their settled form of things for the sake of any ambitious groups. They know that in democracy the good citizen has all the opportunity he needs and wants to live and serve the people.

PEACE AND BOUNDARY

During the past one hundred and twenty years there have been many wars but no war between the two countries with the largest boundary line in the world, the United States and Canada. This means that for one eighth of a thousand years there has been no conflict. In other words it is less than 6½ years since Columbus discovered America and yet more than one quarter of that time has been spent without a gunshot of one of these nations at the other.

Three thousand miles of foreign territory fringe these countries and they are not afraid. Everywhere is the sense of security. Let us learn that the two peoples never think of the boundary except as political.

At the Niagara frontier recently Canada and the United States celebrated 120 years of the Rush-Bagot pact, which limited armaments on the border and this and which had the result that in time the limitations themselves disappeared.

The boundary of two such peaceful peoples has not been a barrier to goodwill and peace, it has been the place where the two countries meet and over which they fraternize.

Of course North American problems are not European problems. Racially there is a great similarity between Canada and the United States. In Europe migrations and wars have swept over boundaries and left "islands" here and there. Today whole races of another blood are included in some countries. That being so, it should be seen how impossible it is to set boundaries by the strong arm of war. These foreign peoples must be made the bond or cement of peace among neighbors. That is what happened with Wales, Scotland and England until there is one political unit, the British unit.

BRITISH CHANGES

Neville Chamberlain comes on the scene with a record as a financier as Chancellor of the Exchequer. He is of a very prominent English family, his father having been Joseph Chamberlain, Secretary for the Colonies and one of the outstanding public men of England in the past generation. Neville Chamberlain's half-brother, Sir Austen Chamberlain, another noted figure in the public life of Great Britain died recently.

The departure of Ramsay MacDonald from the Presidency of the Council is another change of last week. MacDonald of Lossiemouth has had a remarkable career, has sat in Labor and National Governments as Premier in the Labor Government and as Lord President of the Council in the National Government over which Mr. Baldwin presided. MacDonald has run into heavy criticism from Labor in his latter days. His name has been mentioned at times for a possible peerage but he has stated that he will not accept the honor of an earldom. He retains his seat in the Commons for the present.

SKULL FRACTURE IN THREE PLACES FROM A "BEAN" BALL thrown by pitcher, colorful manager-catcher Mickey Cochrane, of the Detroit Tigers, came near the pearly gates as a "horrible example" of one of the most glaring of abuses which has crept into professional baseball. The riot recently recorded in which "Dizzy" Dean, noted pitcher, participated, had its origin in a "bean" ball pitched by Dean who claimed that it is customary for professional baseball pitchers to pitch "bean" balls, in order to get the batter's goat and perhaps induce him to fan. The modus operandi of the pitcher using the "bean ball" is to throw the ball just as close to the batter's head as he can with or without hitting him. This gets the batter nervous and affects his hitting ability. "Bean ball" should be made a criminal offence, ranking with manslaughter and murder.

x x x

ATTENTION SO DRAMATICALLY DIRECTED TO "BEAN BALL", of which "Dizzy" Dean boasts, by the injuring of Mickey Cochrane, manager-catcher for the Detroit Tigers, should result in the elimination of this murderous adjunct to professional baseball. "Dizzy" Dean says all pitchers use the "bean" ball, some in moderation, some otherwise, but sport writers in New York claim that the pitcher who "beaned" Mickey Cochrane is one of those gentlemen of the game who would scorn to use such unfair tactics. According to the metropolitan press the injury to Mickey Cochrane was accidental. Mickey saw that the ball was liable to hit him and ducked but the ball took an extra inward twist with the result as related. However, now that the attention of the public is directed so noticeably to the "bean" ball something will surely be done about it. To refer again to mouthy "Dizzy" Dean, that voluble braggart put himself on record as a short sport when he said that ballplayers who couldn't take the bean ball were "sissies". Hubbell or some of the other gentlemen pitchers should give this Dizzy Dean a sample of how close they can come to his empty head with the bean baal he defends, and see just how much of it he can take.

CHARGE HILL BILLY FARMER HITCHED WIFE, CHILDREN TO PLOW

Because he literally "plowed his wife to death," according to neighbors, John W. Davis (inset) has been arrested at Woodbury, Tenn., on a charge of first degree murder. Neighbors claim Davis hitched his wife and children to a heavy plow and forced them to break the ground on his mountain farm. In the above photograph the three Davis children demonstrate how they did their noble duty. Pulled through the tough hill-side soil of their father's farm. Mrs. Davis, an under-nourished hill-wife of 34, died of violence, according to a coroner's jury. Her body was bruised and rubbed raw in spots from the straps of her harness. When the photograph of Davis was taken he was standing in the jail cell with a Bible in his hand. The children, shown are (left to right) Evaline, 11; Mamie 8, and Charlie 14.

Little Benny's Note Book

Mr. Hammer was at our house for dinner yestiddy, being pop's boss and very important, and we was in the living room waiting to go down to the dining room and Mr. Hammer started to ask me questions, saying: Well Benny, have you made the big decision about your future? Do you think you'll be a professional man or do you prefer to be a business man? he said.

O, I dont know, I guess maybe I'll be an aireoplane pilot, I said.

Well Mr. Hammer said, Well if you are, be careful, especially in wartime. But I understand you have a good eel of literary ability, so perhaps you'd like to be an author, he said.

O I dont know, I've wrote one book already, and I guess that's enough, I said, and Mr. Hammer said, Well, it frequently is, but you surprize me. I had no idea you'd written a book, your father never told me.

It's new to me, too, and I fear it was news to Benny himself till just a moment ago, pop said.

Meaning I was just making it up, and I said, No sir, it's a real book and I wrote it and it's rite there in the bookcase with the other books.

Come come, that's a bit thick, pop said mad said. Why Benny, how can you say such a thing with a straite face, what will Mr. Hammer think?

Well may, I'll show it to you, I said.

Meaning the book, and I went over to the bookcase and took it out, saying, Here it is, I found it in my desk draw the other day and I realized I had wrote it so I browt it down and put it in the bookcase.

Being a little thin read book called Pockit Diary for 1935, having a space for every day in the year and there was writing in my writing in nearly every space, saying different things such as, Went to Puda's house, or Rain today, or Late for school, or Cousin Artie came over, or Had my hair cut, and just then the dinner bell rang for supper, being stuff chickin in honor of Mr. Hammer.

CANDIDATES FOR BRAZILIAN PRESIDENCY

Here are the two principal candidates for president of Brazil in the election on Jan. 3, 1938, at LEFT Jose Americo De Almeida, chosen by the nation's majority political forces, who is a backer of President Roosevelt's "good neighbor" policy. At RIGHT, Armando Salles De Oliveira, who resigned as governor of Sao Paulo to run for the presidency as an independent candidate.

Board Room Gossip

MARKET COMMENT

The odds are three to one that the market will open at a level in June which is higher than it was in May average, and June is often an ideal month in which to make purchases in anticipation of a pre-autumn advance.

One source points out that the market has declined considerably more than any recession in business and indicates that a recession is merited. The consensus in the street is that higher prices will develop over the next few months.

A hint has been given out to British Investment Trusts that the Treasury Department would appreciate their co-operation on the matter of foreign investments just now.

With the subsiding of inflation sentiment, Government bonds are again firming with Dominion of Canada issues at the highest points in many weeks.

Brazilian Traction Should Earn Close $1.25 a Share After Write-offs for 1937

After various write-offs totalling $7,782,802 in 1936 Brazilian Traction, Light, Heat & Power showed earnings of 96 cents a share for the year, the milreis exchange has improved of late, this coupled with higher earnings has enabled the company to report a net of $6,320,-081 for the first four months of 1937 as compared with $5,349,981 in 1936. Should this gain continue it would mean that Brazilian Traction would earn roughly, $1.25 a share in 1937.

Bell Telephone

An important event took place this week when the Bell Telephone Company of Canada announced that its common stock was again on an annual dividend basis of $8 a share. The company maintained its dividend rate at $6.00 per cent for a period of forty-one years, from 1905 to 1946. But the depression gradually forced a reduction to 6 percent, but business with the improvement in earnings to an extent that the directors have deemed it advisable to restore to former payments to shareholders.

TORONTO STOCK EXCHANGE (Close)

Toronto, May 31 (CP)—Mining shares bumped along on new lows for the year today after 25 days of trials and ills were only a little less depressing than Monday and the reveal of rumors about the insecurity of gold positions prompted scattered selling here as well as in the foreign markets that were opening. Wall Street's closure for the day and Canadian markets tied to have their own brief developments in Europe. Losses of 10 to 35 cents were recorded among the higher-price secondary gold issues and the veterans of the list. Lake Shore and McIntyre were the only fractions to more than a point.

Lake Shore dipped from to 50 1-2 and closed around that level. O'Brien followed suit to as low as 4.70 for a loss of 10 cents while Pickle Crow declined 20 cents, Macassa 15, Buffalo-Ankerite 25, Teck-Hughes 10 cents or more included Central Patricia, Kirkland Lake, MacLeod-Cockshutt, Moneta, Read-Auldlet, Kerr-Addison and Preston.

The big base metals were equally heavy. Nickel posted a decline of about 1 1-2. Hudson Bay, Int. Nickel and Falconbridge and Frnd Orville weakened 25 cents and Noranda and Amulet 10. In the silvers Eldorado and Beattie were weak for new cash sech. Consolidated Smelters centre the group with a drop of 3 1-2 to 78.

Losses of 1-4 to 2 3-4 were posted for Bell Telephone, Imperial Oil, Abitibi and Great Lakes Paper.

Trenton and District

Trenton Beverage Rooms To Close at Eleven Each Night

Council Passes By-law Requiring Change With Majority of One

DEATH ACCIDENTAL

TRENTON &/& DISTRICT 77- ..... Trenton, May 31—(Special)—Beer parlors in the town of Trenton will lock their doors at 11 p.m. all nights in the week, starting July 1, council members decided at the monthly meeting Friday night. The early closing motion was carried by a 4 to 3 majority. Three councillors were strongly against shutting the beer parlours at 11 p.m., contending that the adjustment will send drinkers out of Hotels onto highways to other places where the beverage rooms operate on Standard time. Rev. G. D. Campbell, pastor of Grace Street United Church presented a petition signed by local United Church ministers and the presidents of the local women's church societies emphatically requesting council to order the hotel owners of the corporation to close their beer rooms at 10 o'clock on Saturday nights and 11 p.m. through the week. "If you are going to force beverage rooms into existing an hour earlier what will you do with the bootleggers?" Councillor Ellis asked. "That's a job for the local police," Rev. Campbell replied and continued saying "should this issue be turned down by council we will go before the people and demand council to close the beverage rooms an hour earlier." This time adjustment doesn't satisfy we temperance people but it is a step towards our goal," Rev. Campbell concluded. "I maintain Mr. Odette should not have passed such a slur on the town councillors of the province," councillor Ellis stated and remarked "Early beverage room closings should be dealt with by the Government Liquor Control Board.

Mayor Gives Statement

In a statement to newspapermen Mayor Cory declared early closing as they exist are wrong..People should not be allowed to sit down and drink beer at a table. Nine out of ten do not know they are intoxicated until it is too late and 11 p.m. closing time is the proper procedure. Mayor Cory informed the closing delegation, that two of the four hotel proprietors were strongly in favor of the early closing hour." Mayor Cory and town treasurer, W. J. Polis were granted permission by the council members to borrow the sum of $15,000 from a local bank for the purpose of improving the Trenton Public Utilities facilities. The money will be used for drilling a new fresh water well at a cost of approximately $5,000 on the south side of the mountain about one half mile west of the present well; for installing a spring water main beneath the Trent River to protect residents on the eastern side of the town from fires and sinking an additional six inch pipe to the Government Airport well to be used to carry spring water.

Need More Water

Mayor Cory announced the present spring water well could not supply sufficient water to the town and he base if something unforeseen happened to the well. Insurance underwriters have threatened to raise fire protection rates if a main is not laid across the river to the eastern section of the corporation. At present the only water available to the Airport with a six inch pipe and although the maximum requirements has only been used once, a conflagration might break out at any time and cause a heavy drain on the water pressure. Men taken from the relief rolls for the town will be hired to work on the proposed Utilities expansion at a wage of 35c an hour. Mayor Cory announced that the Co-operative Workers Organization had requested council to use its influence to the relief rolls the several men who refused to work on the Walker Highway job. Councillor Mayor Cory told Mr. Workman that he had been asked to go back to the highway job at Gilmore, Councillor Ellis Chairman of the Relief Committee.

OPEN ROAD URGE IS FELT BY MANY

Great Outdoors is Colorful Panorama on Sunday

There isn't any doubt about the fact that white will be the popular color among the youth and age of the city and district this coming week-end. White predominated in evidence on yesterday when the youth of the city took advantage of brilliant Spring weather to blossom forth in typical white costumes in the parks and on the streets, the everpopular white coats reached a new high in milady's favor. Saucy white hats were at a height with white some of them sporthy, as one Front street wag puts it, "them dooflickers" and fair maidens pranced in white.

However the whites did not monopolize the entire fashion picture. A number of the Sunday afternoon strollers were tailored suits of grey and other colors, while dotted swiss of various hues adding a colorful touch to the promenade.

There were many who, not to be outdone by the members of the fair sex, also sported new Spring and summer ensembles. While the white flannel trousers were predominant the greys and browns appeared to be the choice of many a young blade. The wall of the open road proved too strong for a number of residents yesterday. All day long and far into the night a steady stream of vehicular traffic surged along the main thoroughfares. A number of cars bearing American licences were noted passing through the city, while not a few appeared to enjoy meals at city restaurants and hotels. Local and distant picnic grounds did a land-office business, as the good brave weather lured the fair sex. Quinte lured many a family to the cooler spots to be found outside the city limits.

Victoria Park proved a mecca for a large crowd of pedestrians throughout the day and early evening. Many motored their family, taking advantage of the springlike atmosphere to have their evening meal on the grass of the park.

Spots lured a number of local Izaak Waltons over the week end. As early as Saturday noon, the trek to the quiet pools of the north where the speckled beauties lure, began. While the lures of city fishermen, began. While the lures of city fishermen began, so did the water as being too high for good fishing, there were those who had their lines cast hopefully with likely good catches.

NEW AUTOMOBILE BADLY DAMAGED

Allegedly struck by a hit and run driver, a new automobile the property of the Trudeau Motors and driven by Roy Brown, Belleville, was badly damaged twelve miles west of the Gilmore Highway No. 2 late Saturday night, according to a report issued by Motorcycle Patrolman Ed. Gilmore. Happening, as day. The damage to the car owned by the Trudeau Motors amounted to approximately $250.00, the investigating officer stated. The driver of the second car, that is alleged to have struck Mr. Brown's vehicle, failed to remain at the scene of the accident, Constable Gilmore gathered were to the effect the missing car belonged in Westbrook and was later reported stolen in Kingston.

GERMANY REFUSES

At the same time the German naval forces received orders to shoot on sight at any submarine, surface man-of-war of the Spanish government or any ship that present disturbed condition lasts.

The German government officially announced that the battleship had destroyed the Spanish port of Almeria. It was made clear that the firing of cruiser Deutschland Saturday and killing of 23 members of the crew was the work of government aircraft.

Reprisal Taken

Additional ships of the German navy were ordered to Spanish waters immediately to reinforce the attacking units.

The communique issued by the German government said:

"As a reprisal for the criminal action of Spanish bombers on the armoured cruiser Deutschland lying at Anchor, the fortified harbor of Almeria was shelled during the morning hours by German sea forces. After the port was destroyed and the opposing red batteries silenced, the military action was broken off and ended.

"Additional ships of the German war fleet will also be ordered immediately to reinforce the fighting units in Spanish waters.

Twenty-three sailors were killed and 83 wounded, 19 seriously, when the Spanish government battleship squadron attacked the German warship, Deutschland, off the coast of the insurgent-held Balearic Isles.

The attack on the warship was by the cruiser Admiral Scheer, according to the report current here.

The international patrol operates at the Italian embassy which had extended the feeling that the German government would first place its demand before the London Non-Intervention Committee.

Scene Was Cancelled

Italian newspapers said voluntary had been expected first to exhaust peaceful means of obtaining satisfaction with the attack on the Deutschland in which 23 sailors were killed and 83 were injured.

The German government placed the battle fleet under emergency orders after the cabinet's decision to take measures" in reprisal. All leaves were cancelled and almost every warship in the German navy began preparations for sailing with sealing orders.

The German note of protest to the London Non-Intervention Committee, this informant was convinced, constituted not only a demand for retaliation but a concrete act of protest against the attack.

The Deutschland was bombed Saturday off the Balearic Island of Ibiza in the Mediterran. She reached the port of Gibraltar last night with the flag at half mast in memory of her dead.

An official communique announced after the cabinet session in the government of the Reich had determined that measures which it will without delay communicate to the Non-Intervention Committee."

"The dead of the Deutschland will be buried in their native land," the newspaper, Vecltkicher Beobachter.

All other German newspapers received the demand for vengeance. Their front pages were aflame with indignation over the attack on the summer days of 1914.

Berlin newspapers like met by the demands on the Non-Intervention Committee in London, Hitler's paper Volkischer Beobachter declared "We will answer this newest unbelievable provocation in the Mediterranean Valencia with measures appropriate to the crime."

Communique Issued

A semi-official communique said, however, that the measures "which must be asked what the non-intervention committee intends to do."

(This taken with the official communique, did not make clear whether German warships will "shoot on sight" off Spain" committee to take joint action" which Hitler had asked in a collateral action of which she would undertake in the future.

Hitler met with his chieftains for more than five hours before the issuance of the communique.

"This new criminal onslaught on a German warship compels the German government to take measures which it will without delay communicate to the Non-Intervention Committee."

The semi-official communique brought up the question of intervention and of guarantees that no similar attack would occur in the future, and added:

"The dastardly attack on a German warship by foreign aeroplanes of a unit of the international fleet supervising the non-intervention (munitions to the Spanish civil war) has caused the greatest indignation among the entire people of the German Reich.

"If the Valencia government pretends its plans were fired at by the Deutschland, it is lying! Europe will not be obliged to swallow that against the irresponsible warfare which involves international danger gangs.

"Before all, the question must be asked what the non-intervention commission proposes to do. It was not German warships that are to take over the sea control.

Town Hall Scores For Peace.

"The powers concerned approached Germany with the request to take the initiative in measures for the end of peace, shouldered the burden.

"What is known of the non-intervention commission offer that German leadership.

"The blood of German and Italian sailors fallen in the service of the international peace organization cries for satisfaction.

"It must not be forgotten that behind Valencia stands Bolshevism. This must sound the alarm signal to the whole of Europe."

It was reported, without confirmation, that first power might be joint Halo-German naval demonstrations against Spanish ports. It was believed generally here that joint action of some kind was inevitable since a number of Italians had been killed in a similar attack.

"The dead of German and Italian warships are knocking at the door of the conference room," Volkischer Beobachter declared.

Black Borders

"It must be expected the bombs dropped on the Deutschland finally will arouse the non-London-Intervention Committee out of its lethargy and academic discussions.

All morning newspapers carried heavy black mourning borders and Propaganda Minister Dr. Goebbels ordered on the procedure of German warships to attack at sight any submarine taking part in the patrol to keep the civil war from spreading.

Chancellor Hitler was informed of the attack while he was opening the Munich Agricultural show. The dispatch was rushed to him and the luncheon guests assembled in the main hall were interrupted to permit him to confer with Baron Konstantin Von Neurath, Foreign Minister, who had just arrived.

A few moments later, the Chief of the Admiralty, Admiral Birch Raeder, arrived by airplane and after a conference the three flew to Berlin where they were joined by Col. Gen. Hermann Wilhelm Goering, Hitler's Chief-Lieutenant, and major general of the air, in a special plane from Weimar.

Crashes Three Book

Reports from Gibraltar said on of the bombs, which struck the Deutschland, crashed through the deck and exploded in the engine room.

The blast was said to have killed 18 enlisted men and wounded 12 officers, seriously. Another report to have struck the foredeck, killing four men.

The Communique issued by the Nazi Foreign Office at 4:30 this afternoon declared the Deutschland had entered from the Harbor of Ibiza with all motor on. grave situation more serious."

The French naval ministry and the British admiralty hastily consulted each other. Foreign offices of the two nations were in frequent telephone communication.

The Neutrality committee postponed momentarily an extraordinary session to hear German representations on Saturday's attachment of the Deutschland by Spanish planes in the harbor of Ibiza, Spanish Mediterranean island, of developments.

There was no exact announcement of Germany's next step.

The communique to the Neutrality Committee observed warningly the Reich "will decide according to its own ideas on measures to be taken toward the red rulers."

A German foreign office spokesman intimated there would be no immediate warlike action—the sending of additional ships to Spain, he said, but to relieve fighting craft already there and to provide convoy for the damaged Deutschland and other returning warships.

All Germany was roused, however, to a high pitch of excitement. Crowds gathered before the foreign office and the Reichskanzellery.

BROWNIES STAGE BROWNIE PLAY

Tiny Actresses of Company Three Appear Applauded

The aims and ideals of Brownies were engagingly presented in play form on Saturday evening in the Armouries when members of Company Three Brownies made their debut before an audience in interesting three-act play "The Brownie Who Lost Her Shoe." Under the leader of parents attended and the Brownies performed in a manner that would do credit to many a professional.

The play actresses demonstrated just how to be a happy Brownie with the aid of such captivating characters as Brownie Box, Brownie nuts, Flower girl and her very pretty bouquet, Brownie Bird, Brownie Saggs (Olive Smith) Patty, the Brownie who lost her shoe, Cross Demolsky) and the Brown Owl (Elizabeth Keeler) were particularly good in their parts. One of the last scenes were a typical Brownie meeting with the Brownies entertained with the music, stories and projects of the Brownies. In the second scene the discovered Brownie searches for her smile and finds it in the possession of Brownie nuts.

Weddings

COBDEN—SWEETMAN

Beautifully decorated with Spring flowers, the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Sweetman, Bleecker Avenue, was the scene of a charming wedding on Saturday, May 22nd, at noon when their youngest daughter, Ruth, became the bride of Mr. Walter Corden, only son of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Corden, Bridge Street. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. W. Walker, minister of St. Andrew's Church.

Lilacs, tulips and varied Spring blossoms made a lovely setting and the ceremony, while streamers of blue and pink added to the effective festive scene. The bride was lovely in a gown of Wallis blue silk net, carrying Talisman roses. Miss Dorothy Foster, Lakefield, was bridesmaid, and wore peach silk crepe. Her bouquet was Premier roses. Mr. Howard Robinson was groomsman.

Wedding music was played by Mr. George Mayhee and Mrs. Fred of Madoc, who sang a sweetly during the signing of the register, "I Love You Truly".

Following the ceremony a reception and dinner was tendered the place, about thirty-five guests being present. Mrs. Sweetman, mother of the bride, wore black crepe with black cut velvet, and corsage of pink roses. Mrs. Corden, while Mrs. Corden, mother of the groom, wore Wallis crepe with corsage of lilies of the valley.

Later Mr. and Mrs. Corden left on a motor trip to Western cities, the bride travelling in a smart pink georgette suit, for trimmed with white accessories. Upon their return they will reside at 117 Bridge Street West. The bride and groom, who are very popular in the city, were the recipients of many lovely and costly gifts.

DAILY SHORT STORY

Rosa Accepted Tony's Offer

By Ad Schuster

"It is all right. Some day when I am a star, be a little less, then there maybe, the big, you will be sorry you will not marry me." Tony threw himself so grandly that he might not show his disappointment. This Rosa thought of finishing the first motion picture and her little job in the store.

"And if I get married, Tony, it will be you. But you understand there are so many things to do, so many good times, that I do not wish to cook the dinner and wash the clothes even for you." She laughed at him and his thought, even in his anguish, that he eyes were like jewels.

"You laugh. It is all right. You see the picture and think you will be the actress. Perhaps not. The camera cannot put the sparkle of your eye on the screen and without the sparkle of your eye you are not Tony shrugged his shoulders," not so very much."

That was the start of the quarrel. No one could tell Rosa that was earning twenty-one dollars a week and saving a whole dollar of it each Saturday in the bank, she was not so very much. If Tony would be jealous he was not one bit more than he should be much more time more for the pictures. There were many men, many better than Tony, on the screen at the Acme theatre. She would go there and make eyes at fingers and laugh.

The next afternoon there stopped in the store a man who took her to one side and explained she was violating a law. In surprise she listened to what he had to say.

"I am twenty years old and you say I have to go to school? Is there time for another too much silly-ness? Impossible!"

"You are an alien and you are not twenty-one. You have to go to night school until you reach that age." To make it strong he added, "I have informed your employer that you do not obey you will lose your job."

When Rose went to night school she passed the motion picture house and reflected upon her wasted opportunities. It cannot be said she was an apt scholar, for there was a rebellious gleam in her dark eyes and her thoughts went far away from her books.

"You have some stuff you teach me," she protested, "can I sell gloves any better? Bowing so much? You should be ashamed." The others laughed, but Rose held her head high and considered herself a victim of injustice.

Though she would not learn from the books, the girl found out many things concerning the school, teachers and students. She reckoned the number of months she must attend these classes until she should become twenty-one, and her fine spirits drooped.

If they kept on putting stuff into her head, she decided, they would take the sparkle from her eyes. And Tony had said that without the sparkle she would be nothing. Tony? She would find him, she would see, somehow, that he met her on the street.

During the meeting took place, Tony was dressed in a new suit and stepping high.

He said, "I am the Bills boss. Pretty soon, maybe two years or fifteen, I will be the big boss. Now you are sorry you said you would not marry me."

"Tony, I didn't mean it. It was to make you jealous and propose to me. Now I am ready to say 'yes' next time you asked me."

Tony looked at her in surprise and again fell victim to the sparkle in her eyes.

"Then right now, I propose again, and what do you say?"

"I say 'yes'," and Rosa and Rosa took his arm, and as they walked down the street, kept looking at him lest he be denied the treat of those eyes.

"Some women," said Tony, "they don't fool me. It is because I have the better job, and you say 'yes'. Very well. I am satisfied, but not one bit happy."

"And these men." thought Rose, "they are so easy fooled. It is because I am a married woman that I have to go to school I accept him. But I am satisfied, too."

Tweed and District

Tweed—The following address to Dean Cullinane on the occasion of his takin over his new duties as St. Carthagh's Church was read by Mr. Joe Bergeron.

Very Rev. Dean Cullinane:

We, the members of the congregation of St. Carthagh's, wish to extend to you sincere welcome as our pastor.

With the death of Very Rev. Dean O'Riordan, we anxiously awaited the announcement of a successor, and rejoice that the appointment has fallen on you.

We are aware of the sacrifice you were called upon to make in leaving the parish of Stoco where you labored so zealously and successfully for many years. Your devoted parishioners there feel keenly this separation, but St. Carthagh's is our gain.

May the Holy Spirit, on this the beautiful feast of Pentecost, replenish your soul with His Heavenly gifts in abundance and may you be spared for many years as the Shepherd of St. Carthagh's, Tweed.

Signed:

Joseph Bergeron.

Mrs. Edward Mullin.

The ordination of Rev. Fr. Clayton Sullivan, son of Mrs. and Mrs. Thomas Sullivan, Bridge Street, to the Holy Priesthood by His Excellency M. J. O'Brien, D. D., Co-Adjutor Archbishop of Kingston, took place in St. Michael's Stoco and Very Rev. D. A. Cullinane of Tweed, assisted.

AT THE BELLS

"Shall We Dance"

In "Shall We Dance", latest of the Astaire-Rogers musicals which opens here before three performances at the Belle on Saturday, the dancing sea eclipse theirs on the screen for gaiety and terpsichorean entertainment, and present the most unusual role for him of their careers, a sparkling, colorful story filled with delightful songs and decorated with songs and dance numbers in profusion.

The story, which plays a more important part in this offering than in its predecessors, deals with a romance that starts in Paris and winds up in New York roof garden. Miss Rogers portrays an international revue favorite and Astaire a famous ballet dancer named Peters, but who calls himself Pedro for professional purposes.

Attracted by the revue dancer's beauty, Astaire starts a high-speed courtship, but through the stupidity of Miss Rogers' agents are circulated that the two are already married. This makes for startling complications but Astaire wins out in the end.

The two stars give brilliant characterizations and a distinguished cast includes Edward Everett Horton, Eric Blore, Ketti Gallian, Harriet Hector and Lisa Gaston. Because turns of the offering constitute much of its very novelty, Harriet Hector, America's greatest ballerina, contributes two spectacular dances, one a solo and the other a duet with Astaire. Several striking ensemble numbers enhance a glittering finale.

The dancing of the Astaire-Rogers team also longer than other efforts with three memorable duet dances, the first when, in White Bear-bane turns in noteworthy performances. The ballet-dancing portion of the offering constitute much of its very novelty. Harriet Hector, America's greatest ballerina, contributes two spectacular dances, one a solo and the other a duet with Astaire. Several striking ensemble numbers enhance a glittering finale.

AT THE BELLS

"Shall We Dance"

In "Shall We Dance", latest of the Astaire-Rogers musicals which opens here before three performances at the Belle on Saturday, the dancing sea eclipse theirs on the screen for gaiety and terpsichorean entertainment, and present the most unusual role for him of their careers, a sparkling, colorful story filled with delightful songs and decorated with songs and dance numbers in profusion.

The story, which plays a more important part in this offering than in its predecessors, deals with a romance that starts in Paris and winds up in New York roof garden. Miss Rogers portrays an international revue favorite and Astaire a famous ballet dancer named Peters, but who calls himself Pedro for professional purposes.

Attracted by the revue dancer's beauty, Astaire starts a high-speed courtship, but through the stupidity of his agents are circulated that the two are already married. This makes for startling complications but Astaire wins out in the end.

The two stars give brilliant characterizations and a distinguished cast includes Edward Everett Horton, Eric Blore, Ketti Gallian, Harriet Hector and Lisa Gaston. Because turns in noteworthy performances. The ballet-dancing portion of the offering constitute much of its very novelty. Harriet Hector, America's greatest ballerina, contributes two spectacular dances, one a solo and the other a duet with Astaire. Several striking ensemble numbers enhance a glittering finale.

The dancing of the Astaire-Rogers team also longer than other efforts with three memorable duet dances, the first when, in White Bear-bane turns in noteworthy performances. The ballet-dancing portion of the offering constitute much of its very novelty. Harriet Hector, America's greatest ballerina, contributes two spectacular dances, one a solo and the other a duet with Astaire. Several striking ensemble numbers enhance a glittering finale.

TRAINER GIVES HIS TEAM KRUSCHEN

"Daily Dose" for Footballers

Read what one professional trainer does to keep his team in tip-top condition:—

"I am a professional trainer, at present with a first-class football team, and have been for the past fourteen years. Kruschen Salts has been very beneficial both as a laxative and in keeping the men free from staleness. Each morning I use that every man under me takes a small amount of Kruschen Salts to assist the liver and kidneys. I have used Kruschen with all types of athletes, and also extensively among my private patients, for cases of loss of vitality, rheumatism and neuritis."—J. J. (Certified Masseur.)

The "little daily dose" of Kruschen Salts helps to keep the internal organs functioning regularly in their daily duties. Liver, kidneys and bowels are stimulated to healthy vigorous activity, thus assisting them to eliminate waste products and poisons that endanger the health.

Tweed and District

Tweed—The following address to Dean Cullinane on the occasion of his takin over his new duties as St. Carthagh's Church was read by Mr. Joe Bergeron.

Very Rev. Dean Cullinane:

We, the members of the congregation of St. Carthagh's, wish to extend to you sincere welcome as our pastor.

With the death of Very Rev. Dean O'Riordan, we anxiously awaited the announcement of a successor, and rejoice that the appointment has fallen on you.

We are aware of the sacrifice you were called upon to make in leaving the parish of Stoco where you labored so zealously and successfully for many years. Your devoted parishioners there feel keenly this separation, but St. Carthagh's is our gain.

May the Holy Spirit, on this the beautiful feast of Pentecost, replenish your soul with His Heavenly gifts in abundance and may you be spared for many years as the Shepherd of St. Carthagh's, Tweed.

Signed:

Joseph Bergeron.

Mrs. Edward Mullin.

The ordination of Rev. Fr. Clayton Sullivan, son of Mrs. and Mrs. Thomas Sullivan, Bridge Street, to the Holy Priesthood by His Excellency M. J. O'Brien, D. D., Co-Adjutor Archbishop of Kingston, took place in St. Michael's Stoco and Very Rev. D. A. Cullinane of Tweed, assisted.

At St. Edmund's, Stoco, Rev. Fr. LeSage celebrated his first High Mass in the presence of many relatives and friends. Assisting priests were Rev. Fr. Meagher as Assistant Priest, Rev. Fr. Simon LeSage as Deacon and Rev. Fr. A. Bellanger of Toronto as Sub-Deacon. The latter, Professor of Sacred Elocution at St. Augustine's Seminary, delivered a special address suited to the occasion, speaking first in English and then in French.

Present for the occasion were the parents, brothers and sister of Fr. LeSage, Tweed; Mr. and Mrs. Stafford LeSage, Agnes and Jack of Oxford Mills; Mr. and Mrs. Leo of Chicago, Nora of Detroit, Joseph of Tweed and Mrs. Edward Mullin of Toronto.

Father LeSage will be stationed at St. Mary's College, Kingston, where he will go Friday to take up his new duties. He was educated at St. Michael's College, Toronto, and received his high school education at Tweed High School. He graduated with honor in Philosophy and Theology in St. Augustine's Seminary, Toronto.

Some fine beds of tulips in full bloom are to be seen in the United Church Parsonage where Rev. R. E. Nicholson has one of the finest displays in the district. Several thousands of blossoms are at their best this week-end in time. Mr. C. H. Hardwick, Belleville, will be at the Convention of Women's Associations of the Presbyterian Church on Wednesday May 26th.

Mr. and Mrs. Clifford McIlroy and Marilyn of Peterboro, were week-end visitors at the home of Mr. Harper, Rateman.

Mr. and Mrs. Percy Mumby, Mrs. Charlie Lough and Miss Hazel Lough of Springbrook and Mrs. Jack Bateman of Stirling visited Miss Gladys Bateman at Hamilton, on Sunday. Mrs. F. S. Bateman accompanied them to Seamsville and Mr. Bateman to her sister.

Mrs. Beatrice Storms of Spry's Settlement, visited Mrs. J. Mason on Wednesday evening.

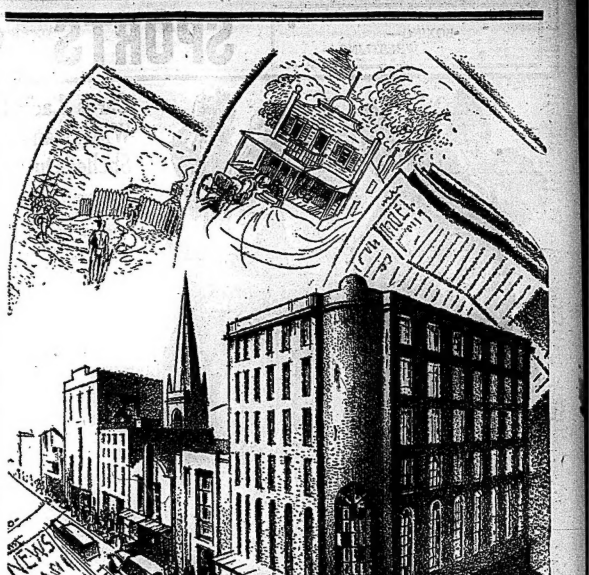
NEWS BRIEFS AND ODDITIES

Guelph, Ont., May 31 (CP)—In a reunion unique in many respects, five men who served in France together, but who had not seen each other since they demobilized 19 years ago, met over war days here at the week-end.



They were a company commander and the four sergeants of the 2nd Battalion, Toronto Regiment. One was a Guelph clergyman, another is rector of St. Patrick's Church; the others are A. A. Smith, of Chicago; W. J. McCrona, Toronto; S. B. Medley, Hamilton, and J. K. Crawford.

Salt Lake City, May 31 (AP)—Eldred Bechstead, Riverton, Utah had a battle with a bee. The casualties were cuts and bruises on Eldred, a broken steel light pole, a smashed windshield pane, and three smashed mail boxes. Eldred told police he lost control of his motor car when he tried to brush the bee away from his ear.

Dallas, Tex., May 31 (AP)—If they ever catch him, police expect to find the thief laughing.

Attempting to break into the plant of the Lone Star engineering service, he was routed by a din that aroused the neighborhood.

The concern manufactures burglar alarms.

The Show Windows of the Nation

The merchants of Canada have played an important part in national development. They were in the vanguard of colonization; their business is the axis on which modern trade and commerce revolve.

Every merchant's progress and the value of his service to the community have depended at all times on his ability to keep prospective customers informed of the kind and quality of the goods he could supply. Advertising has been essential to the profitable conduct of his business.

The efficiency of the local daily newspapers as advertising media has been demonstrated more and more conclusively as markets have expanded and the variety of competitive goods has increased.

Today the most successful merchants are those who advertise their products consistently and frequently in their local newspapers. They know the newspapers maintain an intimate contact with every home and that every consumer depends on his daily newspaper for reliable information concerning goods and services available.

Consequently, the advertising columns of the Canadian daily newspapers have become, in a very real sense, the show windows of the nation. They influence the purchases of more than two million families every day.

Mallorey Family Recovering

Five members of the Mallorey family who were treated in Belleville General Hospital for alleged food poisoning were permitted to return to their home on the corner of Stanley and Alberta Streets, Saturday. Laura Berts, youngest daughter of the family to contract the poisoning is recovering favorably. She was more sick than her three sisters, Mildred, Coral and Gussie and also her brother, William. The father who was also ill has fully recovered.

Cards Lack Hurling Strength With Dean and Warneke being Shelled Out in Their Last Starts

Team Down in Fourth Place With No Hope of Rising

PIRATES WING ALONG

Take Two From Cards, Weiland Being The Only Hurler to Win

(By Sid Feder)

Frankie Frisch will now load the chorus in those St. Louis pitching blues.

Joining in with him and his gashouse gangsters will be those beefing boys who completely overlooked the small matter of a pitching staff—or lack of it—when they installed the Cardinals as favorites for the National League pennant.

With only ten "known quantities" and possibly a third thrower able to keep up in fast company, as the limit of the Cards' Varsity flinging brigade, it begins to look like a long dark summer for the rough, tough crew from St. Louis. This is especially so, now that Dizzy Dean's arm is acting up, and Paul Dean's pitching is showing no indication to stop their early pace.

Dean Belted Out Twice

Even Dizzy Dean, the old dependable, has been belted out twice and has lost a third decision in his last four starts. And Lon Warneke, the ex-Cub who was supposed to "make" the Cardinals this season, found none to strong in being out in six innings his last time out.

The rest of the Redbirds already taking it out on the Cards. In the past week they have dropped from second to fourth place, and right now they're only two games out of second division.

Just when they needed pitchers most, during the week end the third tough series with the dangerous Pirates, they ran short of them. As a result, the Bucs belted Dean out early in one game, dropped one to Weiland, and then knocked Bill Harrell and three other assorted hurlers around yesterday for 13 hits and a 7-4 win, with Paul Waner leading the attack.

Pirates Strengthen Lead

While dropping the Cards to fourth place, the Pirates strengthened their first place hold to 1 1-2 games, since the Giants were on the short end of a 6-5 score against the Phillies.

Larry French, his fractured hand back in condition, won his first games with a fourth-hit performance, pitching the Cubs into third place by a 7-1 victory over Cincinnati, thereby knocking the Reds' long streak to eight.

The Yankees rocked the Athletics completely, sweeping the series with a 13-1 win yesterday behind Monte Gomez's relief-pitching and their 15-hit attack fell short of two 20-hitters pitched by Lefty Grove Ben and Detroit Tigers.

The Bees staged an eight-run splurge in the seventh game to trounce the Brooklyn Dodgers 11-4, while the Tigers, with Rudy Hernandez and Gerry Walker each walloping a pair of homers, pinned back the ears of the St. Louis Browns 18-3.

Pete Appleton limited the Red Sox to ten hits and drove in two runs himself as the Washington Senators swamped Boston 9-0, Chicago's White Sox banged out 14 hits to conquer Cleveland 9-6.

MONTREAL TEAM TAKES 4 IN ROW FROM THE LEAFS

Wins Put Them Securely in Second Place Behind Bears

LEAFS NOW FOURTH

Orioles Win Two in Row For Longest Streak of Season

(By the Associated Press)

Just when the most loyal fans were beginning to give up hope, Baltimore Orioles won two games in a row.

Most disappointing of International league teams, last in the standings almost since the beginning of the season, Orioles pounded the Jersey City Giants for an 11-1 victory, yesterday and added to Saturday's win over the same team. This was the Birds' seventh win in 32 games.

As usual the Orioles turned to Sid Lubzman for victory. - He chalked up his fourth of the season, to give him a better than .500 average on the rest of the staff. Ab Wright of the Birds, the circuit's leading home run hitter, got his 10th of the season in the sixth inning.

Montreal Royals boosted their winning streak to seven straight by walloping their Canadian rivals, Toronto Maple Leafs in a doubleheader, 12-8 and 7-5, the victories consolidated Royals' grip on second place.

Royals collected 25 hits in the two games but home run honors went to Joe Gantenbein of Leafs who got two round trippers. Leafs made seven errors.

Walter Brown's four hit pitching in the nightcap gave the leagues leading Newark Bears another win over Syracuse Chiefs, even break with Syracuse Chiefs.

George Hockaday limited the Bears to six hits in the opener and had a shutout until the ninth, when two Newark runners scored on two errors.

Hitting honors for the day went to Rochester Red Wings who pounded three Buffalo Bison hurlers for a 13-1 win. The Wings got 16 safeties, five for extra bases.

CHARLTON HELD TO TIE

New York, May 31—(OP)—Tied in their first American engagement, Charlton athletics prepared today for a game in Pittsburgh on Tuesday night when they hope to establish the superiority of English soccer to the United States brand.

The crack English club was held to a 1-1 tie by an American all-star team before 30,000 fans here yesterday.

St. Louis, May 29 (AP)—The following advertisement appeared today on the financial page of a St. Louis paper.

"Former market analyst and investment counsel would like job in private family as chauffeur and butler. Will also do laundry and look after children."

HATCH'S STABLE WINS HANDICAP

Spring racing meet at Woodbine Park was completed Saturday when H. C. Hatch's Uppermost won King George VI handicap, closing day feature. Upper-most scored by a length over Mrs. L. Stevenson's Tempestuous. Artel Gene, stablemate of the winner was third. The win was the second major triumph of the week for the double blue Hatch colors. Goldtino won the King's Plate on opening day.

Racing swings to Thorncliffe race track tomorrow. Long Branch and Dufferin Park meets will follow and then the horses swing through Ontario circuit before returning here.

Jockey Herb Lindberg and Pat Remillard had double victories to wind up the meet. Lindberg won with Tokie Orie and Lipton, Remillard with Pirate Princess and Penrill to victory.

Sports Roundup

By EDDIE BRIETZ

(Associated Press Sports Writer)

New York, May 31—(AP)—Sore arm or no, the Yankees are ready to lay plenty on the line for young Bob Feller,....Max Schmeling apparently has given up on Jim Braddock, for Max has signed to appear in a radio program at seven p.m. EST next Thursday night (just the hour he'd be due at the Gaelic ball)....Good news: Mickey Cochrane is doing fine.....Three games are scheduled in the Inter-City League managerial berth will be open next winter.

Hill and Quill: The dark - skinned gal who cooks for this corner is a regular player of the Harlem numbers game.....Saturday she "hit" for $42 and quit (her job) on the spot.....The Garden has a full set of preliminaries standing by just in case Jimmy Braddock shows up Thursday night.....

Mr. Stitz plays first base for the Winston-Salem club of the Piedmont League.....Mr. Pitts (Alabama to you) plays second.....reports (unconfirmed) are that James Morris, a member of Madison Square Garden's Executive Committee, has ordered a block of 700 seats for Braddock and Louis.....

A survey shows the average professional golfer is 41 years old.....Shute began his career at the age of 26.....In 15 years he has earned about $43,000 or an average of $2,855 per year.....Which shows you could do a lot worse than become a pro.....The average American will have an income of $1,250 in 1937, less than half the $2,855 average of the pro golfer.

OSHAWA SENIORS DEFEAT PETES IN OPENER 6-3

Jake Biddle Allows Only Four Hits And Wallace Smacks Homer

ALERTS HANDICAPPED

Brantford Uses Pitcher Belmore and Phil Wallace Regular Catcher Moved

By The Canadian Press

Kingston of the Senior Ontario Baseball Amateur Association last year, Oshawa clouted out to keep its title the right way by beating Peterborough 6-3 to open the Central Ontario Baseball League season at the Motor City Saturday. Four-hit pitching by Jake Biddle and a smashing home run by Lefty Wallace that scored bennett in the eighth put the game on ice.

Veteran Ding Haynes plunked out a pair of home runs for St. Catharines for the winning margin in a Niagara District Senior Baseball League game. St. Kitts beat Merrition Alliance 5-3 in one of the three games played in the Peninsula League.

Thorold Mountaineers had Niagara Falls Cataracts tied up in the end of the 12th inning at the Falls park when Whitey Whitehead sent a scorching single through the infield and Dave Glenfield romped across the plate with the winning run. The third Niagara District game, Welland, was an easy one for Port Colborne. The Sailors outhit Welland 11-6 to win the season's opener 5-3.

Alerts Minus Catcher

London got five runs in the last three innings to win their senior intermediate game from Brantford Alerts 8-3. Although on their home stamping grounds Alerts were handicapped because of a missing catcher, pitcher Ken Watson went behind the plate for the game because the regular catcher, Rudy Asmith, was transferred to the Soo Lake.

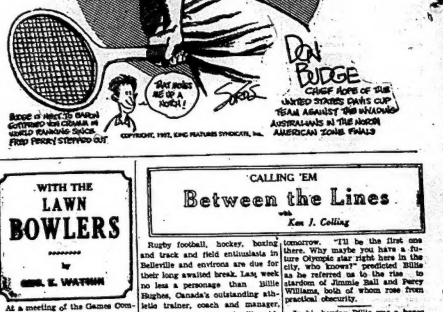
Three thousand fans watched a doubleheader in the Hamilton Senior City League. Woodland trimmed Alerts 4-1 while Eastwood took the nightcap 4-0 from the favored Victoria Park Warren turned in a three-hit record in the first game for Woodland.

Waterloo crossed the river to beat Kitchener 4 - 4 defeat in an inter-county intermediate "A" game that was completed under protest. Tied one-all in the fourth, Moisan man lined out to Miller and Cole, behind the plate, tried a fast catch with Dahmer doubled off third base on the play. "Chick" Appel, base umpire, disagreed and said the ball was trapped and both men safe.

Preston got its first intermediate "A" victory of the season when they handed Hespeler the short end of a 4-3 count. Gall Terriers scored in all but the last two innings to beat Guelph Leafs 13-0 in the third "A" game.

OSWEGO MOVES UP TO SECOND

Score Five Victories in Row And Make up a Lot of Ground



(By The Canadian Press)

When the Canadian-American Baseball League swung into action a little more than two weeks ago it looked like the setup for a race for Perth-Cornwall Buons, the defending champions. Buons were out in front all right but it appears Oswego Netherlands also are pennant-minded.

During the week-end the up and coming Netherlands made it five straight victory and moved into second place behind Brantford Alerts. A four-hit hurling performance by Nets Ken Hutchinson was Nets' 7-0 victory over Smith's Falls Beavers. Oswego trimmed Buons 8-1 Saturday.

No other team could boast a week-end record comparable to the Nets. Even the league-leading Buons took it on the chin twice yesterday, dropping a 9-5 decision to Ogdensburg after trouncing Rome Colonels, 6-0 Saturday. It was the second loss of the season for the Buons against nine wins.

Ottawa Braves split a double-header yesterday with the Colonels, losing the first game 9-5 and taking the second 9-8. Gloversville Glovers took a 8-4 decision over Brockville Pirates yesterday after being beaten 7-6 the previous day. Smith's Falls Beavers took the week-end with a 10-8 win Saturday against Glovers.

CALLING 'EM

Between the Lines

with Ken J. Colling

Rugby football, hockey, boxing and track and field enthusiasts in Belleville and environs are due for their long awaited break. Last week in a personal chat with Billie Hughes, Canada's outstanding athletic trainer, coach and manager, located in Belleville and will reside here. Perhaps to clarify matters somewhat we should reveal that Billie Hughes was moved to Belleville from Winnipeg by the employers, a well known Western Ontario beverage concern.

Billie Hughes has the distinction of being the only man in Canada to train both Eastern and Western senior rugby football champions, having been with Queen's University in 1923, '24 and '25 and trainer of the Winnipeg Rough Riders, when they won the Grey Cup in 1935. Billie was also head athletic trainer to the Canadian track, field and boxing teams for the Olympic games in Berlin in 1936 and is the prince of his colorful and varied career. Billie was an outstanding boxer of note and won many titles, of which we will relate later. Believe it or not we have in our midst today a man who, during the past 25 years, trained or coached more than a championship teams, as well as many Dominion individual championships, and Everett McGowan, world's champion speed skater, Cyril Coaffee, Jimmy Ball, all Olympic Utilists, and others.

Mr. Hughes had not been in the city many hours before P. C. MacLaurin, president of the Belleville Rugby Football Club, had contacted him and a lengthy conclave ensued with gratifying results. We understand Billie is willing and anxious to assist the local realm of sportdom and give his time and valuable knowledge in both training, coaching and on the executive end. It is indeed fine, out of a clear and rather drab sky of sports, that has reigned locally of late, that such an outstanding celebrity hails. Billie listened to the laments and bewails that confront the various phases of sport locally and seemed to thoroughly understand the situation and promised to be different than Winnipeg was when I first went there. We merely put our shoulders to the wheel and before we could accommodate Billie personally, we had overflow crowds in football," stated Mr. Hughes.

"I can well recall when Belleville's sporting scene was really fine hockey and baseball material. If we had proper system in the force and you get the citizens interested, all lines of sport will flourish, but we have had laborious efforts during the early stages. From what I can gather it is purely a case of indifference and undoubtedly that can be remedied," pointed out Billie to us over the week end. Mr. Hughes is assured of success in the promoting of a football team here this fall and also will assist in the coaching of an intermediate hockey team in the winter, all of which seems to be too good to be true, but it is a fact.

"How do they go for track and field events in Belleville?" we asked him. Our only answer was to invite him to attend the O. A. C. Field Day meet here on the Collegiate mee; at the Fair Grounds tomorrow. "I'll be the first one there. Why maybe you have a future Olympic star right here in the city, who knows?" predicted Billie as he referred us to the rise in stardom of Jimmie Ball and Percy Williams, both of whom rose from practical obscurity.

In his heyday Billie was a boxer of no mean ability. He is the former bantam and featherweight champion of Canada, retiring in 1924. Billie participated in over 180 professional ring engagements, losing only nine bouts. He also fought a draw for the welter-weight championship of the United States with Jimmie Braddock at Chicago in 1923, so for information of the local leather pushers, they have a champion of their cause in Billie Hughes.

Foremost, however, are rugby and hockey in Billie's repertoire although he still lists towards track and field events. We recall continue to relate Mr. Hughes' achievements in our many columns, but will leave those in Belleville to read at a later date. In the meantime the local rugby team is fortunate indeed in having Mr. Hughes on board of strategy and will commence in the near future to resume activities for the fast-approaching season. A week ago it looked as though the local football spread had "rove with the wind" but thanks to the good graces of Mr. MacLaurin the sporting spark is in for a general rejuvenation locally, which is indeed a treat.

Wonder what's the matter down in Kingston? The Police had exactly 411 paid customers for their opening C.O.B.G. game last week. Certainly a fine road looks to be the team to beat and Kingston being a rabid baseball town, we just can't understand the lack of interest being reported.

Mickey Cochrane has passed the danger stage, physicians stated today. As a matter of fact the experts state Cochrane will, in all probability play baseball again. Connie Mack has already introduced a baseball type of helmet, that, although resembling a baseball cap is fibre-lined.

Hits were rather scarce at Oshawa on Saturday, when the Motor City aggregation walloped the Peter's their second consecutive defeat of the C.O.B.L. season to the tune of 6-3. Jake Biddle hurled four hit ball with Calladine and Eddie Starr pulling two each. Only veteran Ross Kitchen hurled seven, 5th in the league, but his lack of control widness put runners in positions to subsequently score. Although Oshawa is still in 1st Inlance it looks like Kingston and Oshawa for the landing with the Peter and Napanee struggling for the third hole play-off money.

The Yankees are widening their American League margin while the Pirates are hanging on tenaciously to their slim advantage in the National these days.

"THE BRIGHT HILL"

by Clarissa Fairchild Cushman

"Susan! Don't be ridiculous. He cares little enough for any wife, let alone a part-time." There was something indecent in the candor of Kerin's mind.

"If I tell Susan?" But Alan signaled her off. Sarah's eyes wandered to the window. "Susan—" Kerin confirmed. For a long thought she hesitated, at last she said, coldly: "There is Carl now. Down the street."

With a single motion Kerin was on her feet and at the window. There was Carl. He was striding toward her, all unconscious of her; he and a girl. He was bareheaded, as always, and as he walked he was gesticulating, he was laughing loudly now and then, he was full of a great joy of living. The girl with him was pinkish in her own ways —large and dark, perhaps a little too heavily built, with thick swinging hair. There was a hint in her of the Slavic; and curiously she made Carl's own magnificence of body a little more noticeably animal. Then as Kerin looked the girl evidently said something that tickled Carl, for he turned and gave her a push, and she caught him in return; like dogs, thought Kerin, playing; and into her mind, whirled had in spite of her warmed into joy at seeing Carl, there came a look of doubt, of distress.

"Annie Beardsley," said Susan softly.

"What do you mean?"

"I think it means ——he would marry her in a——"

"Marry her!"

Kerin watched the two, as they approached. There was no thought, now, that she would rush out to Carl. They came on, unconscious two; and even as she looked Carl caught the girl's arm and took her to her and said something, and the girl laughed and her head fell back, looked around quickly, furtively, as if some one might have overheard and then she threw her face back with a little familiar slap to his hand. "Marry her," repeated Kerin, as if the words were a statement. "Why, I would let him do that before that girl should ever get Donald."

Wild a frightened gasp, Susan drew back from the window. Then had been such a flight of scorn and finality in Kerin's voice. And Kerin was going on: "She's not in his class at all."

"She's what he wants!" cried Susan, and a kind of suffocating rage rose in her, looking at the two in the sunlight, so big and physical and brash, so eager on each other, and Kerin like a ghost. "Oh, Kerin!" she cried. "If he wants that kind of girl—and he does, my dear, he does! It's been going on for months and months, plain enough to disgust the whole community—why in Heaven's name don't you step out of the picture and let him go to his own kind!"

Kerin's face was blazing white as her turned it on her. The sun in the sun had passed. "His own kind indeed! He's fine. Dear! How splendid! You've never liked him, but I just know him. A girl like that would ruin him. She's just a great selfish thing, thinking how smart she is to catch him—Carl Kingsbury, who's worth a dozen of her! I won't have it!"

"All right," said Susan, raging. "Then stop it." Her voice rose. "Stop it—you fool!"

"Susan!" protested Alan.

Susan flinched at him, sobbing. "I don't care. I don't care what you think. I don't care if he—she's not standing there! Carl Kingsbury treated her like nothing human—he always did—he's treated her like that. And she stands up for him! She stands up for him! Now! Even now! Oh!" And Susan flung herself on Alan's neck.

Kerin was still standing very straight. "He didn't treat me badly," she said, in a hard, collected voice, but her face looked very tired.

Sue flashed around at her." And I suppose you'll say he's not treating you badly, now!" She stamped her foot. "Oh you make me sick! You make me absolutely sick!" and rushing from the room she ran up the stairs.

Kerin looked at Alan. "Alan! Have I quarreled with Susan? How could it?"

"No," said Alan, wearily. He wished Sue hadn't gone. He needed her. "She'll be all right. You must try to realize Kerin, that we've been watching it all along—going on for since you left. We find it difficult to be quite dispassionate about Carl."

"I see," said Kerin. The very tempestuous of Alan's words was a crushing weight. looking at him, not seeing him. Finally she spoke.

"I didn't know," said Kerin.

"No," said Alan. "We couldn't tell you. We thought it was just a—kind of defiance, on Carl's part, a sort of slapping our faces."

"No. He doesn't care that much what you think.' Kerin was recalling the past months, with their hours of anguish. He hadn't been punishing her, not entirely. He hadn't bothered himself. Part of his willingness to punish her was because it had been, deep down, hurt to himself. That was a cruel fact to have to accept; that all this time he had not been hurt.

Susan's feet were a soft rush on the stairs, and her lips were full of apologies for forgiveness against Kerin's cheek. Kerin turned her face to Susan's in a moment, yielding gratefully to the love and affection that had never been limited by getting its value in return.

INSTALLMENT 36

Kerin allowed herself to be led back to the sofa. Yet once there, tired as she was, she seemed to gather into herself a renewed strength, a sustaining strength. Susan was relieved, but Alan watched with growing concern. An emotional Kerin was much more predictable than a Kerin who had made her mind. He said as Sue had said this and that, and Kerin answered yes, or answered no; but eventually her mind seemed to brush through all these trifles. She looked up at Alan, and said simply, "I believe I must see Carl."

"Now Kerin!" wailed Sue; but Alan said, "Very well, Kerin. You must."

She smiled a little wryly, "I don't know that I do, Alan. But I have to do what seems best." She held her eyes straightly to his. "Don't, Donald. That's all. It's not myself that I'm thinking of. After all, if Carl doesn't want me any more, it's he does want some one else why—that's that, isn't it? But Donald's different. If Carl insists on Donald, why then——" She paused. Perhaps even she did not know how to finish the sentence. Yet she did finish it. "He shan't have Donald," she said simply.

But Susan was not to be reassured. "If you go, and you talk to him about Donald, it will be just exactly like my telling Janet not to put beans up her nose. Maybe he hasn't thought about Donald at all —and this will just give him the idea."

"And I tell you," repeated Kerin, "that the point to him of the whole thing is to take Donald. To punish me, Sue."

"But maybe it isn't," persisted Sue obstinately. "If he doesn't care enough about you to want to keep you, maybe he doesn't care enough about you to punish you."

Kerin thought about that. She shook her head. "It isn't the same thing. not to want me back as it is to want to punish me." It was a simple statement of fact, made without cynicism. "Certainly he ought to be easier for him to punish me if he didn't really mind hurting me."

"There'd be a real pleasure in it!" cried Sue scornfully. "It would make him feel better—bigger—to punish you, thinking all the time how miserable, so logically, so coldbloodedly about what sound reasons he has! He thinks—and he'd be less a person to ask something from you, especially a favor, if both things like love. Oh, Kerin!" Susan turned to her, swept again by a storm of emotion. "How can you be so detached about it! How can you! I should think you'd hate him!"

Kerin looked at Sue, as passionately passionate with a little flare of scorn. "I'm not detached about it, Sue. But I certainly don't hate Carl. I—" Her throat closed. She could not go on.

Susan looked at her a moment and let out a little whimper of disgust. But she would not be still. "I don't care," she whispered, half to herself, "you don't love him, Kerin. I know you don't. You don't know what love is. I don't think you've ever known what it is. No. It's no use to scold me, Alan. I know what I'm talking about."

Well, thought Kerin, that's of small consequence now. She said to Sue without turning, "Well, but what do you call love? I was happy with Carl. And I would be happier with him now, I think, than I ever used to be. I've got more—better resources in myself. I'm more a person. I think now that Carl might care more for me, too, than he used to. That he would talk to me, let me color into his life."

But Susan only shook her head, looking at Kerin. "You're mistaken, Kerin. It's true you've grown—yes, tremendously—but I'm not sure Carl would like that. I think he would resent it. And as for you, I don't believe you'd be so tolerant, now, of Carl. You might perceive the clay feet."

"It doesn't matter!" Kerin rose with a final cry of impatience. "I must see Carl. I must. I must! Either he must take me back—or he must have me Donald. Oh, when can I see him? This waiting—and waiting, and knowing!"

"You mean you won't even finish your year at Amherst?" Sue's voice was impatient, exasperated.

Kerin's eyes widened. "Finish? Oh, I don't know! When I see Carl——"

"All right, Kerin. Have it your own way." Susan rose abruptly. "But Carl's no person to tackle on an empty stomach. I'll tell Helga to hurry dinner."

It was decided that they would go together, Kerin and Alan, after dinner, in hope of finding Carl in his office. But as their feet sounded hollowly in the seemingly last school corridor Alan said quietly, "If you want to see him alone, Kerin, I'll wait in one of these rooms till you're through."

"I don't know, Alan. I don't know. What do you think?" Kerin's heart was pounding heavily, her hands were clammy with cold. Her eyes were fixed upon the approaching door that was Carl's office.

At this moment there was a sound, and the door broke open. Carl, big in hand, was just coming out when he caught sight of them.

They all three stopped suddenly, and then Carl burst into a chuckle of laughter.

"Kerin—come in—come in!" he cried. "Well, well, Kerin! So you decided to see what it was all about —at last. I was about! Come in! You, too, Alan. Not going to have any rehabilitation fiction pulled on me. Well, well! You're looking fine, Kerin. The year's agreed with you."

"Well—it's agreed with me, too. Absolutely. Well—what's it all about? Can't the divorce wait you."

"Yes. Please, Carl."

"Please Carl!" he mimicked her. "Good lord, Kerin! Haven't you any sense at all? If I were going to give up because you say 'Please Carl' why would I have started it? Have some sense!" He was smiling. She was, thought Kerin, doing just what he had wanted her to do.
